Mr. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

CANADA SHIVERS

In less than an hour swirling snow and ear-popping cold rolled from Lake Huron to swamp the area south and west of Sarnia.

At the height of the storm three people were injured in a two-car collision at the intersection of Highways 7 and 22. Both drivers reported trying to miss a snowbank in the middle of Highway 22.

As cars piled up bumper to bumper at a dozen hamlets and lone service stations dozens of minor accidents and near-crashes were reported.

PATROL AFOOT

Provincial police officers at the main tie-ups spent hours in the frigid winds patrolling the lines on cars to make sure there was heat, directing new arrivals to parking areas. They waited because poor visibility made cruisers useless.

Police at Mount Forest said traffic was moving at a snail's pace. Owen Sound reported the same.

Airline traffic into and out of London was on schedule, but buses ran a half to three-quarters of an hour late from Sarnia, Grand Bend and Ipperwash. Railway main lines were kept clear by normal traffic.

EDUCATION

"The child must be prepared to live satisfactorily" in all three. It is a tall order and more than any school can accomplish alone. Newspapers, magazines, clubs, the radio, churches, industry and, above all, homes have their part to play, too."

RUSSIAN 'OUTLINE'

Mr. Tovstogan, outlining the Soviet education system, said 50,000,000 persons are receiving education of one type or another in the U.S.S.R. This population is approximately 220,000,000.

Youth was playing an increasing role in developing Russian technology.

Dr. Trueman said "there is nothing wrong with Canadian education that a great deal of money properly applied, would not set right."

Teachers' salaries had to be raised "to create the prestige which the profession has never enjoyed but which is necessary to attract to it in larger numbers men and women of ambition, fine abilities, devotion to the profession itself and the capacity to employ these qualities successfully in advancing the purposes for which the profession exists."

The panelists' opening remarks were released to the press before delivery.

CITIES CRIPPLED

A fresh blizzard over an area only about 20 miles square around Michigan City, Ind., dropped up to 36 inches of snow.

The city's 30,000 residents were almost isolated. Mayor Francis Pedder declared a state of emergency. Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley sent nine snow plows to aid the stricken community.

Washington, D.C., was paralyzed by a 14-inch snowfall, the district i's worst in 22 years. Thousands were trapped in their homes.

All schools were closed.

CANCEL LEAVES

In New York, Governor Averell Harriman cancelled all state police leaves. In Pennsylvania, Governor Lawrence Leader ordered key civilian defence units mobilized in the highway department.

An estimated 40 to 45 inches fell in Wayne County in the extreme northeastern corner of the state.

Hundreds of weekend pleasure-seekers were stranded by the storm in the eastern area, including up to 500 who spent Saturday night at Maryland's Bowie race track.

More than 1,000 New York City boy scouts were marooned in camps where they had gone for the weekend. They were reported having th time of their lives. About 1,600 guests were stranded at hotels in New York state's Catskill mountains. The fall of 8½ inches in New York City was the heaviest in almost two years.

CHARGED IN BEATING

WINDSOR (CP) — A 21-year-old Windsor youth has been charged with the brutal beating of a cafe owner who is in critical condition in hospital with a stroke which followed the attack. Allan Trudell was charged Thursday with assault occasioning bodily harm to the restaurant owner, 51-year - old Edward Tiede of Riverside.

SEEK UNIFORM PENALTIES

OTTAWA (CP) — The magistrates of Eastern Ontario are to meet here early in June to work out means of achieving uniformity in the penalties they impose. Magistrate Joachim Sauve announced Thursday. Attorney-General Kelso Roberts has ordered that such meetings be held in all parts of Ontario.

GM Has Made 60 Million Vehicles in Last 50 Years And Scores of Millionaires

By DAVID J. WILKIE

—DETROIT (AP) — If you had bought 10 shares of General Motors stock in 1908, kept all 21 and exercised your rights to buy more, you would now have 22,880 shares worth more than $776,000.

And you would have received nearly $9000.00 in dividends over the years.

Although the world's largest industrial corporation won't be 50 years old until Sept. 16, it already has begun observance of its golden anniversary. The golden stream it has poured forth over the years reached an unprecedented $1,189,477,092 in net income for the auto industry's record year of 1955.

Thrift is a one-time buggy maker, who developed into a financial wizard but twice lost control of the corporation. General Motors has made more than 60,000,000 vehicles in less than 50 years. It has also made scores of millionaires.

LOST TWO FORTUNES

The erstwhile buggy maker who visualized a gigantic single corporation to build motor vehicles was the late William Crapo Durant. He was credited with a Midas touch but lost two multi-million-dollar fortunes in stock market speculations.

It was Durant, who brought Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Buick and Oakland (later Pontiac) together to form the nucleus of General Motors in 1908. But others fashioned the structure that held GM together.

There was Alfred P. Sloan Jr., now honorary board chairman, who sold roller bearings before joining General Motors. Sloan, a row in his 93rd year, was an organizational genius. GM got Sloan when it took over United Motors in 1918.

Then there was the fabulous Charles F. Kettering, long the auto industry's No. 1 engineer-scientist, who was involved in so many engineering advances of the car industry they almost challenge tabulation. He adapted the self-starter to cars in 1911.

PRODUCTION GENIUS

Another was William S. Knudsen, a Danish immigrant. He became a production genius, built up Chevrolet, GM's big money maker, became president of General Motors and left the corporation to direct production for the government during the Second World War.

Notable among others who aided in the development of GM included Fred and Charles Fisher the pioneer body builders. They produced the closed body to the auto industry.

In many respects the story of General Motors is an industrial saga not unlike that of the Ford Motor Company. But where the Ford story largely was that of a single outstanding individual, the GM growth resulted from the combined efforts of many men, each a specialist.

OVER 700,000 STOCKHOLDERS

The destinies of General Motors now are directed by a one-time accountant, Harlow H. Curtice. Curtice joined GM in response to a classified advertisement in the Flint (Mich.) Journal, calling for a bookkeeper.

GM prides itself on the fact it has many stockholders. At last count they numbered more than 700,000. Its employees number about 600,000.

Few if any of the original purchasers of General Motors stock in 1908 held it through the numerous splitups that were made during the last 40 years. Most of the smaller holders lacked the vision to foresee a golden future from their investments.

Not infrequently someone asks: "How big is General Motors?"

Its unit volume slipped noticeably in 1957, dropping to 46.06 per cent of U.S. passenger car output from the preceding year's 52.78. But its total assets, including real estate, plants, equipment, patents, goodwill, cash on hand and other items, are in excess of $6,500,000,000.

It has come a long way since 1908.

PRINCE IS KILLED

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Prince Heinrich Franz Wilhelm, 35, of Bavaria was killed Thursday in the crash of his small German car in the Andes, it was learned Sunday.

Prime Minister Meets Leaders In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker was to meet Ontario Progressive Conservative leaders today ending a four-day Prairie opener of his election campaign.

The prime minister flew in Sunday night from Saskatoon. His Ontario today included a lunch con at Queen's Park with Premier Frost and Conservative members of the legislature.

His next stop is Newfoundland for a two-day visit.

The Progressive Conservative leader concluded a busy Saturday at Nipawin, Sask., in the wintery sharpest cold snap.

Then he drove 70 miles to Choderland, population 500, and spoke to about 350 persons in the afternoon. He drove another 20 miles to Nipawin, a town of 2,500, where about 500 turned out with the temperature 25 below.

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the former Liberal government of laxity in planning development of Canada's resources.

"We're 10 years overdue in establishing something of a national plan for the development of Canada."

The prime minister said the Liberals "backed down" in dealing with the United States on trade by allowing U.S. import quotas to be set on Canadian farm exports.

But the Conservative government had persuaded the U.S. to stop tying up future world export markets through the U.S. agricultural surplus disposal program.

Both at Nipawin and Choiceland he charged Liberal and CCF opponents with misrepresenting the Conservative farm price supports bill.

The critics said nothing about the bill's main section—that supports would be at levels a fair relation to production costs. That is what farmers have requested for years, he said.

1 DIE IN PLANE

NEW BUFFALO, Mich. (AP)—Three Michigan men were killed Saturday night in the crash of their single-engined plane in a rural area 10 miles northeast of here. The plane, owned by the Leonard Refineries company of Alma, Mich., was en route to Alma from Tulsa, Okla. The occupants were employees of the firm.

M. J. Coldwell Outlines Program For CCF Party

By LARRY COLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ROSETOWN, Sask. (CP) — National CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell outlined a 10-point platform including parity prices for agricultural products and a program of home and school building as he opened his federal election campaign here Saturday night.

Mr. Coldwell also called for establishment of a national investment board, greater participation by Canada in economic aid programs, passing of a national labor code, and an increase in unemployment insurance payments.

The rest of his 10 points included setting up of national marketing boards, when requested, for farm produce, and a crop insurance plan.

About 200 persons turned out in windy, near 30-below weather to hear Mr. Coldwell's address, hall filling the Rosetown community hall.

Earlier in the day he had been nominated unanimously in Rosetown-Biggar, a seat he has held since 1935.

Dealing mainly with agriculture, Mr. Coldwell said farmers should be guaranteed a fair return on their products just as railways are protected by setting of freight rates and big industries are protected by tariffs.

"What is done for business should be done in a different way for farmers," the CCF leader declared.

Mr. Coldwell said the depressed agriculture industry is partly to blame for the almost unprecedented unemployment" in Canada today. He said the two are also linked to Canada's trade deficit.

"None of these issues can be effectively dealt with separately," he said. "You cannot have a really effective parity price program for agriculture without a full employment program for labor, nor can you have full employment for labor while there is ar. agricultural crisis. And neither of these can be achieved effectively unless the Canadian government is prepared to plan Canadian affairs in accordance with the principles set forth after the war in the proposed international trading agency.

There is no excuse for people to be out of work when there is so much work to be done, Mr. Coldwell said. A CCF government would deal with the problem by starting a full-scale construction program.

The CCF would enact legislation to ensure building of at least 100,000 homes each year to sell or rent at reasonable prices. "And I don't mean 20,000 homes—I am thinking of rural homes."

Mr. Coldwell said that although housing has improved in Canada, there are still many substandard dwellings, particularly in the East. He blamed many of the deaths by fire during and during the winter on old houses, which should be condemned and replaced.

The CCF would provide federal assistance for a massive school building program and the construction of many new hospitals. Canada was short of scientific personnel and short of teachers to train them, the latter pulled off the best students. Whereas teachers were highly respected and well paid in Russia, they were considered below the "upper crust" in Canada "because money is often the criterion of social standing."

The CCF would provide federal assistance for a national highway program, Mr. Coldwell said. The party approves a second highway across Canada going through either the Yellowhead or the Pine Pass.

Eastern Canada Remains Locked In Deep-Freeze

Winds Close Schools Plug Roads, Stall Trains

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow driven by biting north winds drifted highways, stalled trains, closed schools and left everybody shivering in zero weather as Eastern Canada remained locked in deep - freeze Monday.

The winds, gusting up to 57 miles an hour, fanned flames in a flock of industrial and house fires.

The same winds swept through western Quebec and brought 14 inches of snow to Montreal, snarled traffic, hampered pedestrians and immobilized snow-removal crews.

Drift - ribbed roads stalled about 500 students at schools in three rural areas in Ontario. Hydro-electric crews and residents accommodated students in Exeter, Stratford and Mitchell after school buses floundered.

ARENA COLLAPSES

An ice-skating arena at Morrisburg, about 50 miles south of Ottawa, collapsed in high winds. Damage was estimated at between $50 and $75,000. No one was injured.

Scores of high schools and public schools in rural districts in Southern Ontario said they would close today because of near-blizzard conditions.

About 18 persons were homeless and damage of $2,000,000 in damage done to homes and business.

A 40-mile-an-hour wind kindled flames which caused damage expected to exceed $1,000,000 at Malton Airport in Toronto, where a hangar, 12 planes and two cars were destroyed.

WINDOWS BLOWN OUT

A blast blew out all first-floor windows of a supermarket in Toronto earlier in the day, allowing a 30-mile-an-hour wind to fan flames into a $50,000 blaze.

In Hamilton, damage was estimated at $25,000 after fire ripped through a church hall.

CNR passenger trains from Owen Sound to London and from Southampton to Palmerston, and a CPR train from Toronto to Owen Sound were delayed from three to six hours because of snow-blocked tracks.

The highway department in Toronto held travelling was "very difficult" in the Stratford, central Lake Erie, Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions. Highways in these areas were "heavy to blocked" and visibility "poor to nil."

In Ontario, "snow belt" around Georgian Bay almost disappeared and many main roads and highways were blocked south to Lake Erie.

Niagara Falls and St. Catharines reported drifts on city streets up to 10 feet high.

In Toronto, the weather office forecast no change in present conditions, except for western Quebec, where the storm was expected to slacken today.

Wren Requests Commons Debate On Diesel Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Albert Wren, Liberal labor member of the Ontario legislature for Kenora, said Monday he has asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker to prevent implementation of the Kellock report approving removal of diesel firemen in railway freight and yard service.

Mr. Wren released copies of a letter he sent to Mr. Diefenbaker arking that matter be held over for discussion at the next session of Parliament.

RAILWAYS CLAIM RATE INCREASE NOT SUFFICIENT

Take Their Case To Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) — The railways are claiming before the Supreme Court of Canada that they were short-changed in a $15,000,000-a-year freight rate increase awarded them in December.

While the federal cabinet continued to hold up any application of the increase, the carriers submitted to the court Monday that the 3.6-per-cent boost was not "just and reasonable" for them.

The railways asked the court to rule in filing notice of appeal with the court, claiming the December increase should have been larger.

Eight provincial governments all except Ontario and Quebec—already had appealed to the cabinet, arguing there should have been no increase at all.

SUSPENDED TILL MARCH

The cabinet on Jan. 7 suspended the increase until March 10 into effect originally on Jan. 15—pending the outcome later pending hearings on the provincial appeals.

No date for cabinet hearings has been set, but the court is expected in the next few months to rule on the railway appeal next Monday. It was expected the railways would push for early hearings and that the provinces would ask that the case be deferred until perhaps the fall session of the high court.

Similarly, the railways sought an increase of 10 per cent estimated to yield $30 million for 1958 year, but the board of transport commissioners cut this down to 3.6 per cent.

Egypt and Sudan Squabble About Tract In Desert

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egyptian and Sudan forces today were reported massing into a contested tract of 10,000 square miles as both sides pressed rival claims to the zone.

The Sudanese foreign minister, Mohamed Mahgoub, arrived here by air this morning and went into immediate conference with Egyptian officials including foreign minister Mahmoud Fawzy and interior minister Sarwat Abdel Hadi Okeib.

Egypt issued an official communique claiming for Egypt all lands north of the 22nd parallel of latitude, a 10,000-square-mile tract on the Red Sea coast bordering southern Egypt and Sudanese.

Egypt demanded withdrawal of Sudanese forces which are entering the territory to conduct political there in Sudanese elections due Feb. 27.

15 Housing Units Will Be Built At Napanee

The announcement said construction will be undertaken shortly on 12 three-bedroom and three two-bedroom units. Rentals will be "sufficient to meet all administration and maintenance expenses and recover the total cost of the project over 50 years."

The federal government is putting up 75 per cent of the cost—estimated to be about $150,000—and the province the other 25 per cent.

California Boat in Ecuador Waters Commandeered by Escaped Convicts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Early last Saturday 21 desperate San Quentin prisoners swept over the California yacht Valinda, docked in Ecuadorian waters, and commandeered the 110-foot vessel skippered by Los Angeles lawyer William Rhodes Hervey.

"It was terrifying," Hervey told the Associated Press by ship - to - shore phone Monday night. He said he called The AP because "they're desperate men."

DETROIT (AP)—A new door is opening today for Melvin Hoover, who has been opening doors for a living for more than 30 years.

Hoover, a Canadian-born butler in his mid-50s, was notified Monday that he was named to receive $100,000 "after taxes" in the will of his employer, Mrs. Louis Mendelssohn, who died recently.

The bequest was "for loyal service and able assistance." He didn't "Mrs. Mendelssohn told me before she passed away that she'd take care of me, and she did."

He expects to make some investments, "probably in utilities," but added: "I've never thought of them (investments) before. Of course, I never had money before, either."

My wife is here. After you've done one thing for so many years—and for such wonderful people—it's hard to leave and even harder to find something to do."

Hoover, a native of Madoc, Ont., shares father, David, now lives at Now Liskeard, Ont., is divorced. He has two children, both married with families of their own.

An uncle, the Mendelssohn' gardener, induced Hoover to come to Detroit in 1921, while the Cadillac still was in his teens. Later he was made under-butler to the Mendelssohn mansion.

Mrs. Mendelssohn also willed $50,000 to Francis J. Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York. After numerous smaller bequests, several to servants, from the estate valued "in excess of a million dollars" by bankers, the will sets up trust funds or her daughter and son-in-law and her two grandchildren.

Former Prime Minister Will Not Be Candidate in Election

QUEBEC (CP)—Former prime minister St. Laurent, 76, has completed his withdrawal from a direct part in national politics with an announcement that he will not be Liberal candidate for Quebec East in the March 31 federal election.

The announcement, contained in a statement he read Monday night to a press conference by Senator Jean Marie Dessureault, Quebec Liberal party organizer and a close friend of Mr. St. Laurent, leaves the way clear for Dessureault to succeed Mr. St. Laurent as the Liberal party's candidate in the March 31 federal election.

Mr. St. Laurent said in Monday night's statement that he was "deeply moved" by an offer of Quebec Liberals to sponsor his nomination to the historic seat, but he has decided it did not decline.

He said uncertain health, which caused him to resign as leader made him feel he could not guarantee his constituents three or four year's service.

Review of Taxes on Tobacco Is Promised by Diefenbaker

BRANTFORD (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has handed back to Ottawa after promising an election meeting that taxes on tobacco be reviewed.

The prime minister hinted the federal tax taken, which is among the heaviest of any industry in Canada, may be cut.

Before Mr. Brantford speech Monday night the prime minister shared the spotlight with Premier Leslie Frost and Premier Frost of Ontario at a luncheon in Toronto.

In Brantford, the prime minister spoke to about 1,200 persons in the Eagle Capitol Theatre.

On tobacco: "We're having discussions with the provinces as to ascertain what action should be taken,to assist the tobacco growers in fair and reasonable returns."

The tobacco industry, the non-smoking prime minister said, has not received "the consideration it deserves."

Mr. Diefenbaker said, about 18 per cent of the present package of cigarets goes for tax but did not suggest what part of this tax may be cut in line for a reduction.

The tobacco industry has long called for a reduction in the sales tax, which would result in a cut in the consumer price of cigarets and other tobacco products.

Mr. Diefenbaker criticized the Liberal party for campaigning with promises of tax cuts and doing nothing about reducing taxation while they were in power prior to the June 10 election which defeated them.

But he expressed hope that, following the election pledge of the able to campaign for the Liberals in the forthcoming election. He was not available for personal comment.

School Closed, Waiting Girl, 6, Nearly Freezes

SOUTH FULTON, Tenn. (AP) Deborah Lynn Beard was puzzled when she arrived at school to find the doors locked Monday.

Temperatures were below zero in Deborah's hometown with cold. Still she waited, unaware that the school had been closed because of the cold.

She was there about a half. Herman Roach, a bus driver stopped by and, finally finding the street, saw Deborah hunched on the steps, her head dopping almost in her lap.

Roach called to the little girl. She tried to get up and fell forward. He carried her to a nearby house. A doctor was called.

Deborah is recovering from a severe case of exposure. Her father said she usually had to hear the school had closed.

PEARSON BLAMES TORY PARTY FOR FINANCIAL WOES

Says PCs Rushed Into Election by Fear

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says the Progressive Conservatives plunged Canada into "financial chaos" and then rushed into a general election because they were afraid of their "incompetence" being found out.

"It now is up to you to decide whether you can trust a frightened government," the Liberal leader told a French-language television audience Monday night as he launched his most belligerent attack yet on Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the Conservative government.

Canadians, he maintained, did not want a general election. They wanted strong government action to prevent economic depression.

The Liberals had offered that, and if parliament rejected that at a record 816,962 persons were registered for work with the National Employment Service across the country.

The employment service figures do not represent absolute unemployment. A certain number of registrants—never estimated—are not genuinely looking for jobs but are merely changing from one job to another.

The previous high for registrations with the employment service during the winter was 717,000 here at Jan. 9 of this year, when there were 796,371 on the rolls.

SHARP INCREASE

This year's mid-January figure of registrations represents a sharp jump from 570,674 at last Dec. 12 and from 526,658 at mid-January of last year.

Every region showed increased registrations between December and January. Of 46 communities for which figures were provided, Windsor, Ont., showed a decrease—from 16,790 to 15,932.

In addition to the 250,000 without jobs and looking for work, the government reported, another 50,000 persons had been laid off for the full week.

"NO SMALL"

In assessing the jump in registrations between December and January, the labor department and the statistics bureau said in a joint statement that the seasonal increase was greater than in previous years but the December figure was smaller than in the last five years.

Total employment and Jan. 18 was estimated at 5,371,000, a decrease of 209,000 from Dec. 14 and of 22,000 from a year earlier.

The labor force at Jan. 18 stood at 5,852,000, down from 5,966,000 in December but up from 5,844,000 a year earlier.

The employment total was divided between 4,734,000 at non-agricultural jobs and 637,000 in farm work.

Diefenbaker administration adopted this position at a meeting on the rate of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which also lobby forced across the Red border Sunday with two American Legion posts, 30 Canadians and 30 Kosovans aboard.

The high Kosovan official rebelled the Red demand "impossible." South Korea did not sign the armistice agreement suspending the Korean war, and refused to recognize the existence of the Communist regime.

The South Korean foreign office said it would seek release of the plane and those aboard through the International Red Cross.

Firemen Find Bodies of 10 Children Huddled in One Room After Blaze

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Twelve persons, including 11 small children in the same family perished in a fire that roared through a two-story duplex building here Monday morning.

Firemen said they found the bodies of 10 children huddled in the upstairs bedroom.

In other bedrooms were the bodies of a woman and a baby lying in an incubator and a woman, mother of four of the dead youngsters.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Jones escaped their lives in unsuccessful attempts to reach their seven children.

Jones was cut off by flames while trying to get to them, and finally leaped to safety from a second-storey window. Later he ran up a ladder erected by firemen and plunged into the smouldering structure. Firemen pulled him back.

Mrs. Jones said she "ran through a wall of flames trying to get upstairs."

"My hair caught fire and my arms were blistered. I just couldn't reach the children."

Police said the fire started in the seven Jones children, Mrs. Mary Helen Rowe, Jones' sister-in-law, and her four children.

One of the children, all under 10 years of age, escaped. The infant son, just recently home from hospital and still in an incubator.

Andrew Tiller, who occupied the other side of the asbestos-shingled duplex, led his wife and their four children to safety from the fire he sealed off the front to the house.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

January Jobless Total Exceeds Half A Million

Unemployed up 134,000 In Month Survey Shows

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian unemployment reached a post-war peak of 520,000 jobless in January, the federal government said today.

The figure far outstripped the previous post-war high of 401,000 in March, 1955, and also represented a big jump from the 386,000 of mid-December of 1957.

The record-breaking total, estimated by the bureau of statistics, was more than 200,000 higher than the 320,000 of January, 1957.

It represented "persons without work and seeking jobs for the whole of the week ended Jan. 18. It was based on the bureau's monthly sample of 30,000 households.

$16,000 REGISTERED

Simultaneously, the labor department reported that at Jan. 16 a record 816,962 persons were registered for work with the National Employment Service across the country.

The employment service figures do not represent absolute unemployment. A certain number of registrants—never estimated—are not genuinely looking for jobs but are merely changing from one job to another.

Doubt Bulganin Will Terminate Letter Barrage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomatic officials think it likely that Russia's Premier Bulganin will ignore President Eisenhower's advice and keep firing public letters at the United States.

If Bulganin continues his letter-writing barrage, they predict, Eisenhower will have no choice but to answer the notes just as publicly.

Silence by the White House under such conditions, it is felt, would only allow the Soviet Union to win a high-level propaganda war without a contest.

These officials discussed this outlook following the strongly worded Eisenhower letter to Bulganin while the White House public Monday.

Toronto Women Die in Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Two married women were killed Monday night when their car collided with a CPR passenger train at a railway crossing in suburban Weston.

Mrs. Marjorie Needham, 28, of suburban Malton and Mrs. Eldeen Phillips, 32, of suburban Rexdale, died in the wreckage.

Police said the two women were en route home from their stenographic jobs at a nearby office. Mrs. Needham was pregnant.

Police said the crossing was unprotected and a driver's driven snow may have obscured visibility.

Six Childeren Die in Trailer

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Six children died in a fire Monday night in a mobile home trailer-shack home which police said, appeared to be a deliberate blaze.

The parents and one of the four other children who escaped were reported in good condition.

The fast - spreading fire destroyed the combination home-trailer, house trailer and shack structure occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cash and their nine children. Five died in the fire, which started early today in a Joliet hospital.

POLICE ACTIVITY QUIET DURING NIGHT

The crime level and resultant police activity must be tied to the weather.

Both city and provincial police reported an exceptionally quiet night with little stirring to ten below zero temperatures.

Major activity here was the apprehension of two drunks.

City Manager Now Drafting Works Program

A special municipal works program to take advantage of provincial subsidy on winter construction to relieve winter unemployment is being planned for the city of Belleville.

City Manager Drury Denyes is now drafting a works program which would be eligible for the subsidy and it will be submitted for council approval at their next meeting.

Aldermen Les. Digby at last night's council meeting suggested two projects which might be undertaken to take advantage of the special works subsidy of 70 percent offered by the government.

He noted that at the present time there were about fifty names heads receiving direct relief as unemployed employables.

With the 70 per cent subsidy offered on special works program, Ald. Digby said the municipality could do considerably more work than was anticipated but that the same time obtain value for the money rather than pay it out in direct relief.

Mayor Hyde noted that the city manager already was working on such a program and this would be before council at its next meeting.

Council Gives Approval Of Debentures for Third H.S. To Cost Over Million Dollars

Tentative approval for the assumption of the city's share of debentures for a third high school costing slightly over $1,000,000 was given last night by ontario city council.

The new school would be built east of the present city limits but within the Thurlow township area which is to be annexed to the city.

The approval of the debentures was given by council following an explanation of the request by a delegation of members of the Bay of Quinte High School Board who stressed the urgency of the matter if accommodation for increasing numbers of high school students was to be provided.

Board chairman J. J. Trudeau said the high school board had done a great deal of work in planning for the new school. Tentative approved costs were $900,000 for the school plus $100,000 for equipment and $54,000 for architects fees.

He said that the Belleville Collegiate had been built for 900 students but was now accommodating 1150, while the new Quinte Secondary School and its recent recent addition was already nearly filled to capacity. School population statistics indicated that even the proposed new high school would be filled by 1964.

Harold C. Seldon, chairman of the high school board sites and accommodation committee, also stressed the urgency of the new matter. He said that by September, 1959, there would be a shortage of high school accommodation unless the new school was finished.

STRESSES URGENCY

"The board has found by bitter experience that it takes a long time to get through the red tape and started on actual construction," he said. "I cannot stress too strongly the urgency of the matter."

He noted that requests for debentures approval were also being placed before other municipalities making up the Bay of Quinte High School area.

Referring to tentative plans for the new school, Mr. Seldon said a school similar to the present collegiate and vocational school was wanted. Mr. W. J. Turner, resident district high school inspector also felt this type of school would be best.

School surveys which in the past had proved accurate indicated that by 1962 there would be 2670 pupils in Belleville and area by 1965 the high school population would be 2943.

Current high school population in the two city schools was slightly over 1900, the ratio being 868 from the city and 1055 from the rural area.

This ratio would be slightly upset when annexation took effect and Mr. Seldon said he did not know what would happen with respect to grants and other high school problems at that time.

He noted that attendance and capital cost grants were greater for rural students than for urban.

The grant expected for the proposed new school would be in the neighborhood of $540,000 or $30,000 per class room, he said.

The government grant on new schools had recently been cut from $30,000 per class room to $20,000, he said.

QUESTIONS ASKED

Alderman Frank Grandamn wanted to know if there were any "frills" in connection with the proposed new school to bring the cost up to $30,000 per classroom.

Ald. Seldon noted that in the case of Quinte Secondary School, grants approved had been given for only a single gymnasium, while the board had felt a double gym would be more suitable. Since then the grant for gymnasium and playfield cut out entirely, while no grant was received for hall space or office space.

"Wha: has the board done to reduce the cost from $30,000 to $20,000 per classroom, the figure on which the grant will be paid?" asked Ald. Ralph Graham.

He said it was apparent that the government felt the initial cost of schools should be reduced and was looking for a reduction of grant. The obvious reason was to force some reduction and reduce construction costs by one third, he said.

Mr. Seldon, however, disagreed that the reduction in grant indicated an opposition to school con.truction costs could be reduced.

"It is a matter of reduction of costs," Ald. George Winsart interjected. "It was a matter of money distribution. The department only had so much money to go around."

Mr. Seldon agreed that possibly a school could be built at a cost of $20,000 per classroom but he questioned whether this would be good business. He said a jerry-built school could run into high maintenance costs and the public would then ask why such a building had been erected.

Alderman Doug Bo.....ferred to the architect's fees and asked if this included the services of an inspector when the architect was not on the job.

Mr. Seldon said he "would rather not answer that question." Architects' supplies supervision in "this" (the architect's) opinion. During the construction of the Quinte Secondary School, the board had hired a clerk of the works to look after the board's interest.

Later in the meeting under enquiries Alderman Don Whalen asked if and when annexation became effective assessments in the annexed area would remain the same.

Mayor Gerald Hyde noted that the Municipal Board allowed 26 days for the following annouencement of their decision following which a second order would come through which might include directions as to fixed assessments and other matters.

Tells Rotarians About Effort to Aid Alcoholics

The Salvation Army's newest weapon in the fight against the increasing problem of alcoholism, the "Harbor Light Brigade," was discussed in an interesting address by Commissioner Wycliffe Booth, territorial commander of the Salvation Army in Canada East.

Commissioner Booth took time out from his busy schedule of speeches and interviews, to address Belleville Rotarians on the Salvation Army in Action.

"The Harbor - Light Brigade was started in Vancouver four years ago," he said, "We now have brigades in Victoria, Toronto, and Montreal attempting to rehabilitate Canada's increasing number of alcoholics.

In speaking of the alcoholic problem, the speaker said there are 27,000 known alcoholics in Ontario and, since this number is in danger of becoming a'coholics. In the United States 12 000 people are added every last year, he stated.

WORLD PROBLEM

Alcoholism is a world problem, and the UN's Committee for General Health has noted a tremendous marked increase in the number of people suffering from this "psychological ..ealth," he said.

"It is time we faced up to this problem and tried to find a solution," Commissioner Booth said.

"The Salvation Army, through its Harbor Light Brigade, is primarily concerned with helping those who have gone to the bottom of the down-and-outers, the panhandlers on Skid Row."

The Harbor Light centres at Ochalles are fed and given shelter. They attend meetings and have their own Alcoholics Anonymous groups in which those who have licked the habit give advice and encouragement to others. The Salvation Army also tries to find jobs for those who have recovered, he explained.

668 REHABILITATED

The period of one year no less than 3,500 men sought help in Salvation Army institutions, he said, and of this total 668 men were able to lick their alcoholism and become useful citizens of decency and manhood, and were restored to their families, he said.

All types of people are found on the "Skid Row" from high professors on down, he explained. "Their lives consist of sleeping in flop-houses, suffering from the D.T.'s, and begging for enough money for a bottle."

"One former college professor is now in London. He died last but he is now recovered and is once again practising his profession," he stated.

The speaker warned we are all "our brother's keeper" and that there no right to pass by those who need our help.

"It is the case of anyone who is in danger of becoming an alcoholic, you should heed the first warning signal before it is too late," he urged his audience.

Commissioner Booth also touched on the "Big Business" aspect of the liquor traffic.

TWO MILLION MEMBERS

He stated there are approximately two million members and 27,000 officers in the world movement. In Canada there are 1,000 officers with headquarters in 360 towns and cities and 100 institutions, employing over 5,000 persons.

Last year over 5,000 permanent jobs were found by the Salvation Army for those out-of-work, and approximately 6,500 persons were under the Army roof nightly, he said in describing the two little known aspects of Army work.

Commissioner Booth was introduced by Mr. Morgan Flanigan and thanked by Robert Turner. A token of the club's appreciation was presented by president Joseph Demeza.

Prior to the address, president Demeza paid tribute to Brotherhood Week, now sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, which is being observed this week. He urged all Rotarians to observe the aims of Brotherhood Week.

In honor of Rotary's observance of Brotherhood Week, head table guests included Rabbi Donald Brei Boros of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue, who was commended for his work in assisting Hungarians in the city, Buzz Nemiin, president of the Synagogue, Captain C. J. Ivany, Brig. Morgan Flanigan, and Frank Domenico.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at its official 39¾ at 29-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Monday's opening was the same 39¾ cents. Pound sterling $2.76⅝, up 1¼.

Illegal Parking Penalties Upped By City Council

In an effort to stamp out the prevalence of illegal parking in the downtown section of the city the penalty for such offences is going to be increased.

This was agreed upon Monday evening by city councillors who passed an amending by - law governing minimum penalties to be charged for such offences.

In the future double parking and parking on a rush hour route will cost the delinquent motorist a fine of at least $4. Parking on a bus stop and in prohibited areas will cost $2; parking meter violations will cost $1 and other parking violations $2.

In explanation he said that at the present time the police are charged with issuing comprehensive parking tickets with result that for certain parking offences the motorists received a summons through the mail instead of finding a ticket on the windshield.

The net result was that on conviction the motorist paid a minimum fine of $5 under the H.T.A., and an additional $3.50 costs for a total of $8.50.

He said a comprehensive parking ticket bearing in print fines for various parking offences would be better public relations insofar as the motorist concerned.

"Instead of finding a summons in the mail ten days after the offence, the motorist would know immediately what his offence was and what the fine would be," he said.

He said it was the feeling of the traffic committee that the increased penalties should be provided to discourage offenders.

Alderman Ralph Graham felt the same way. He said that parking regulations had been introduced following a majority vote of council and that 99 per cent of the motorists abided by them.

However, one per cent of the motorists disobeyed and seemed willing to pay the fine. "The idea is to discourage the offenders," he said.

Alderman Whalen wanted to know why the present tickets were not used to write in the various other parking offences when they occurred.

Alderman Temple replied this was where the public relations came in. At the present time there was no printed penalty on the form and he felt that many motorists would object to the brought of a police officer writing in the offence and the penalty.

Four Schools, 40 Teachers In City by Annexation Order

Problems which will confront the city public school board arising out of annexation were outlined to the board at its regular meeting held Monday night at the board room.

At the meeting a special committee of members Clark Smith, G. H. Hall, William VanTassel and board chairman George Olsen reported on the first meeting held to deal with annexation problems.

Under the annexation order received last week from the Ontario Municipal Board, four schools in Thurlow township will come into the city, involving in all approximately 40 teachers.

Business conducted was more or less routine including the offering of tenders for contracts on four teachers on the probationary list. Offered contracts were Kenneth Harnden, William Lott, and Misses Barbara Wilson, Elizabeth Gaylord and Barbara Brown.

The board approved of improvements to the basement lighting in Queen Alexandra School and purchase of additional storage cupboards at Prince Charles School, and also of a check of possible improvements in basement lighting at King George School.

Investigation of a co-ordinated school traffic safety program in the schools will be made on recommendation from the special school traffic safety program committee of the city council. (City council last night turned down a recommendation calling for the initiation of the safety program.)

The board also finalized purchase of four lots to the north of the present Sir Winston Churchill school grounds. The four lots together with a portion of Stanley Street, which is to be closed by the city, will be used to enlarge the school grounds.

The four lots purchased, two on each side of the south end of Stanley Street, have a frontage of 165 feet along each side of Stanley Street and have a depth of 132 feet.

At last night's council meeting, council approved of the closing of the street of the closed street will be taken over by the school board to enlarge the Sir Winston Churchill school grounds.

Council Passes New By-Law Prohibiting Outside Cleaners Offering Cut-Rate Prices

TRENTON — Town councillors approved a protection for the four dry cleaning plants in Trenton Monday night by-law which will forbid outside cleaners to come into the town and sell their services for a lower price than has been the standard for the past eight years here.

At the regular meeting of council in the council room of the Municipal Building last night the owners of the four local establishments presented a brief to the councillors.

Jack Goldberg spoke on behalf of the dry cleaners said: "We do not want to raise our prices. We simply want our costs and make a living the way they have been for the past eight years put a fence around Trenton. All we are asking is for the councils to do something which will prevent outside plants from coming into town and cutting prices. We have not raised our prices in the past eight years and it would be unfair for us to cut them now and get along.

"We are not asking that other cleaners be banned from Trenton business as a result of lack of competition. All we ask is that a minimum price on dry cleaning be written into the by-law to protect us from people who wish to come in town and undercut our prices.

"We feel that we are spending our savings and we have to pay the form of taxes and wages and that these others are only setting up small offices, paying a small amount of taxes, and taking the rest of their earnings out of town.

"This is the only area in the province of Ontario at that this type of business is going on," he concluded.

In commenting on the dry cleaners' proposal, Councillor Harry Gardner said that they were entitled to some sort of protection but he would hate to see free trade go out. However he favored the proposal.

Lloyd Worrall, speaking for the council table, said he felt the matter should be dealt with immediately as in the last week alone the local plants had been hit and have had to lay workers off. He said the province has laid down a procedure under which council can take immediate action in matters of this nature and he would like to see the new by-law approved at once.

The mayor stated he certainly would go along with the local dry cleaners. "I have done business with four of you at one time or another," he said.

The by-law was later approved unanimously by council. Councillor Lloyd Worrall abstained from voting as, he said, he has a financial interest in one of the local plants."

Cleaners present were: Jack Goldberg of the Spotless; Carman Donato of Nu-Way; Howard Asia of Quinte and Dick Vandertogt of Trenton Cleaners.

Mr. Goldberg thanked council members for their interest in the matter and for the protection given through this new by-law.

Slippery Roads, Drifting Snow Cause of Crashes

TRENTON — A total of nine accidents were reported over the weekend when drifting snow made the roads of town difficult for travel. Seven of the mishaps were only slight with damages totalling an estimated less than $100, Frosted car windows and slippery roads were blamed in the majority of the accidents that were unable to stop in time and to slid into others which had also put a fence around Trenton. All or stopped or traffic lights or stop signs.

In two other accidents the damages were considerably higher but no injuries to persons were reported in either case.

Edward King of R. R. 1 Hillier, Ontario reported to Police he was proceeding north on Dufferin Street and on approaching the intersection with Bell Street, Frankford was forced to stop and smashed into the left hand side of a car being driven by Mrs. Gertrude Bell, 36 Bell Street, Frankford as the car was turning off Dundas East onto Dufferin Street. In cutting the corner smashed into a sign which had been erected by the C.N.R. blocking it off. Damage to the front end of the King car was estimated at $200 and to the hand side of the Richardson car was also estimated at $200.

In the second mishap a car being driven by Earl J. Collins of Mill Street, Frankford was turning off Dundas East onto Dufferin Street when in cutting the corner smashed into a sign which had been erected by the C.N.R. blocking it off. Damage to the front end of the car was estimated at $150.

Meanwhile, town crews have been working steadily over the past few days in an effort to get the snow either removed or shoved back. The sanding crews has also been working around the clock during the past few days in an effort to get the hard packed snow. Crews worked right through until dawn this morning in clearing the main business section of Dundas and Street West.

Nearly every available man in town has been employed during the past few days to shovel the snow out of the way.

Reading Birthday Cards

Mr. William J. Johnson, 4th concession of Sidney township, reads birthday cards received on his 93rd birthday by his blind wife. A former master bricklayer, Mr. Johnson recalls when bricklayers received 40 cents an hour.

Now 93, William J. Johnson, Sidney Twp., Was Bricklayer On Armouries, Local Arena

Work stoppages as result of labor going out on strike, are not new to William J. Johnson, 93, as it was recalled last week by William J. Johnson, 4th concession Sidney Township as he observed his 93rd birthday.

Arriving in Canada with his wife and family back in 1907 with only $5 in his pocket, he went to work as a bricklayer on the Belleville Armouries and was on the job only for a week when laborers on the job went out on strike.

A former master bricklayer with a flair for architecture, Mr. Johnson assisted the late J. Arnold Thomson, Belleville architect, in drawing the plans for the present Belleville Collegiate, and also acted as a supervisor in the construction of the Belleville Arena.

The Arena job was the last steady work which Mr. Johnson has been able to do. At that time he was taken ill and was forced to leave the job. Since then he has been able to do only occasional work. For the past 22 years Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have been living in the 4th concession of Sidney.

A native of England Mr. Johnson served years of apprenticeship before receiving his certificate as a master bricklayer. Several Belleville brick homes are fine examples of his workmanship. He also built the chimney stack at the C.N.R. roundhouse and also the Sir Gilbert Parker memorial vault at Belleville Cemetery.

REASON FOR LEAVING

A shortage of expert bricklayers in Canada was the reason for Mr. Johnson to quit London, England, bring his wife and family to this country.

A native of the Marlborough district, he lived there until he was 22 when he went to London. In London he met and married Miss Bennett between the former rural centre in which he had lived and the huge metropolitan London area with its cramped condition.

"I never liked London and this was one of the reasons I decided to come to Canada," he said.

But arriving in Belleville shortly after the turn of the century was no bed of roses.

"There were no sewers, no pavements, only wooden sidewalks, and the odd electric light hung in the centre of the street. I was so disappointed I sat down and cried."

But he admitted that his arrival in the city at four o'clock in the morning, together with the fact he had only five dollars left in his pocket, may have had something to do with his feelings.

He and his small family rode from the north station down town in Aselstine's coach and he and his wife and children slept on the floor of the O'Brien House on Front street for the remainder of the night.

The next morning he contacted the Salvation Army and found accommodation for his wife and family was found.

He went to work as bricklayer on the Armouries job but was laid off for two weeks when laborers went on strike. He recalls that wages were 40 cents an hour at the time was but 40 cents an hour.

FORCED TO LEAVE SCHOOL

A member of the Salvation Army, Mr. Johnson also belongs to The Belleville Lodge, No. 122 having been a Mason since 1916. Forced to leave school at 12 years of age to go to work when his father died, Mr. Johnson's handwriting is a credit to his 93 years.

A crippled foot and the effects of a hip broken several years ago now confine him to a chair. But his health is good as is his eyesight. His sight for distance is "good as it ever was" and he uses glasses only for closeup work and reading.

Twice married his wife is the former Mary Elizabeth Bennett. They were married in 1929. Mrs. Johnson is partially blind.

Mr. Johnson has seven children, a daughter Kate, Mrs. Jim Johnston of Ottawa, and a son Frank Johnson, with the Hydro in Toronto.

Confirmation Of Age Sought

Confirmation of age is being sought by a Hamilton man, Mr. George Hall, who has written to Mayor Gerald B. Hyde for assistance. In his letter to Mayor Hyde, Mr. Hall notes that he came to Canada 50 years ago and joined the Marchmont Home at Belleville and asks for information as to where he might write to any person who might be the records of the Home. Any person knowing of the where-abouts of the Home records is asked to get in touch with Mayor Hyde.

Adoption of School Patrol Guard System Defeated by Tie Vote at Council Meeting

Council approval for a recommendation calling for the institution of a proper co-ordinated school traffic safety program with possible later adoption of a school patrol guard system, was defeated on a tie vote by city council Monday evening.

The recommendation was submitted to council by Alderman Les Digby, chairman of the school traffic safety program committee set up by council last year.

Since setting up of the committee meetings with school boards and home and school association had been held with a general approval of the safety program being voiced.

Alderman Digby noted that such a school safety program would come under the jurisdiction of the police department and instruction in safety would be given by a police officer details expressly for this duty.

School patrols, under which program students would act as crossing guards, could be a later phase of the program following the instructional period.

There was no thought, however, of adopting with any of the present school guards but it was felt that the school patrols might be able to take over some of the less congested crossings.

Annexation would mean additional school expenses that would have to be covered by guards, he said.

"The program will be the start in the promotion of real traffic safety," Alderman Digby said.

The idea met with some stiff opposition from council, however, with Ald. Ellis McCabe asking if the program had the approval of the police department. The alderman was told that the police department was prepared to go along with the program.

COST TOO HIGH, CLAIM

Alderman Douglas Mowatt said he was definitely opposed.

"It would mean the hiring of another police officer at a total cost of possibly $5,000 a year," he said.

He doubted also if the safety instructional program would be worthwhile. "The child is away from school he is "on his own," he said.

He felt the present system of adult school guards was adequate.

Alderman Frank Grandame noted however that the city had been fortunate with its success in many centres and the safety patrols had been responsible. He said the program was worthy of a trial in Belleville.

Alderman George Wishart noted that the safety of the educational aspect of the program but suggested that the safety of the school children would be taken only with care and after full instruction had been given.

Alderman R. Temple was of the same opinion claiming that naturally the students was "too much of a responsibility for a child."

Alderman Robertson Collins said he was sympathetic with the educational aspect of the program but with an already heavy traffic situation the city council should impose irregularities in the classroom schedule. Such instruction would be "desirable but not academic," he said.

Another alderman speaking in opposition to the program was Alderman C. D. Tice who said it was his understanding that the police were not in favor. He questioned also if the motorists would respect the pedestrians crossing for a third high school. Alderman Tice said "council passed a million dollars for a school but we still seem to get together on the dogs."

Licence Fees In Dog By-Law Are Amended

City dogs living double if their masters' homes are going to get a break this year after all.

Earlier this year city officials learned that the recommendation of the city by-law governing licence fee for dogs was not being properly carried out and decided that something should be done about the matter.

Accordingly it was announced that when two or more dogs are kept by the owner in same household, the licence fee for additional dog or dogs would be increased.

The edict raised a bit of a furor among dog owners, many of whom complained to councillors with result that an amendment to the city dog by-law was introduced to council Monday evening by Alderman Les Digby asking that the licence fee for dog remain the same regardless of the number of dogs owned by the householder.

Several of the councillors wanted the wording of the amendment to be made more explicit, claiming that it was ambiguous. So the amendment will be reworded.

Commenting on the earlier decision of a recommendation approving of the assuming of debenture costs for a third high school, Alderman Argue said "council passed a million dollars for a school but we still seem to get together on the dogs."

THE SALE OF COTTAGE SITES

An amendment has been introduced into the Ontario Legislature changing the method for selling public lands.

This change makes us uneasy.

The legislation is primarily directed at the method of selling cottage sites. In the past it has been the custom to dispose of such sites on a first-come first-served basis. It is now proposed to alter the system to provide auctions or the calling of tenders.

Hon. C. E. Mapledoram, minister of lands and forests, says that this will enable the government to dispose of the land fairly and at the same time will bring the government more money. Since the land being sold is owned by all of the people of the province, it is obviously in the best interests of all of us that the government should get a fair price for it. It may be objected that there is nothing to prevent the government setting a fair price by the old method of sale. The difficulty, though, is that what is a fair price for undeveloped land is frequently hard to determine. It can be argued, with considerable reason, that what a cottage site is worth is whatever people are willing to pay for it. The auction or tender method of sale will settle this question nicely.

And yet there is a drawback. This means that the best cottage sites will be reserved for those with the most money. It will be bad enough if those with the most money are Canadians, but if, as may occur, they are citizens of the United States, using the higher standard of living in their country to keep Canadians from buying the choicest cottage sites in their own province, then we think there will be something about the picture which the public will find displeasing. We do not see how it is possible to write into legislation an adequate protection against such a development.

At the same time, we can understand that the first-come first-served method sale could result in equally undesirable situations. We rather suspect that some such amendment must have arisen, or the Ontario Government would not be proposing this change in the method of sale.

We wish we could offer some alternative process which would have the merit of assuring the government, that is the people of the province, of a fair price from the sale of public land, but which would still protect Canadians from the danger of facing unfair competition from across the border. We can suggest no such an alternative, but perhaps somebody else can.

WESTWARD BOUND AT EVENTIDE

Town planners have the wrong idea.

None of them has tried out a town with all the factories on the east side of town and all the homes on the west side. That's the only proper layout for a town.

In mid-summer or mid-winter, this assertion may be a little hard to prove. Then one trudges home in broad daylight or deep darkness, as the season may be.

But this time of year the case is easy. The man who lives to the west of his place of work walks home with glory in his eyes. While his stomach wonders what's for supper, his mind can revel in a repast of beauty.

What's more, if he gets to work in decent time he has the same opportunity to enjoy the walk to the office or factory.

What is that? This may be all right for the man who walks, but driving east at dawning and west at sunset is a good way to crease a fender and crumple the makeup on the family jalopy.

That's true.

Does it then follow, we wonder, that all those who live on the West Hill in Belleville are shiftless dreamers, forced to walk to and from work, while all those who live on the East Hill are well-heeled go-getters, blind to the beauties of the world around them?

We don't think so. The truth is, alas, that even the sunsets which greet the westward-farer these lengthening February days too often catch him with his mind's eye elsewhere and it is only very occasionally, say after five winters of such experiences, that he suddenly realizes just why there is a lift to the step and a feeling of well-being.

WHO HAS THE ULCERS ?

What is it piles up woe on woe
Throughout the blessed

What is it worries people so?
It's just imagination.

What makes a fellow rave and

What makes him feebly say:
"I, I can't"?
It's just imagination.

What makes a task seem hard

Facts About Missiles

Wall Street Journal

Nothing is more discussed by the public, and less understood, than the coming American ballistic missile, so say the engineer-scientists who are making it, and the military men who'll be employing it.

The fact: On the contrary, it is moving with startling speed. Experts in the production push agree with the official Washington expectation that the U. S. will be in position to begin manufacturing operational intermediate - range (around 1,500 miles) missiles by next year.

This means that—after a late start—the whole act of creation, from first sketches on the drafting board to final placement of completed weapons, will have been accomplished in about half the time traditionally required for such a revolutionary military items as new - model bombing planes. Furthermore, it will probably take considerably less operational inter continental missiles — those with - range ballistic missiles will be rolling by 1960.

Popular impression No. 2: The billions of dollars spent on the intercontinental - range Thor and Jupiter, the intercontinental Atlas and Titan, will provide the U. S. with the ultimate weapons.

The fact: Nothing of the sort. These will be obsolete. To use the cold-blooded language of the Air Force's ballistic missile Division. Their destructive strength will be fantastic, yet their weakness will be a critical one that generals are sure the early models of the great missiles possess after the first half-dozen years. Meanwhile, more billions will be spent on their modification—and no end to this cycle of obsolescence is in sight.

Be it noted that the big Russian missiles, likewise, are now regarded as a step in a primitive sort. Thus the U.S.-USSR missile race will be no four or five year sprint to the finish. Instead it promises to strain the resources of both nations indefinitely.

To put this technology into perspective, consider what is a "perfect" missile might be like. Military mandarins say it would stand in permanent readiness like a rifle bullet.

Unlike manned bombers, clustered on vulnerable airfields, the perfect missile would have its own little launching platform, portable, nearly undiscoverable and hundreds of miles from its nearest neighbor — hence relatively invulnerable to attack.

If fired, it would unfailingly hit its target. It would carry a big hydrogen warheads could pretty well demolish a city or nation, only a small fleet of these missiles would have to be made.

Finally, the great missiles — Thor or Jupiter, Atlas or Titan — would be controlled by a single one of these standards. The fact is that rocketry is merely in the first phase of a rapid but painful evolution.

"Take a closer look at the kind of missile we are actually buying:

Its complexity is almost beyond imagination. In addition to its perfect engine, it requires a completely self-sufficient power-plant producing electricity to surge through its veins. It has — for radio contact with the guidance system on earth, for computing devices that respond both to his guidance and conditions aloft, for testing the rocket engines to alter the angle of flight, and for numerous other functions.

All told, a grown-up ballistic missile has some 300,000 pieces in its anatomy, any one of them must work correctly if the missile's intended flight is to end in a single stuck valve," a single gyroscope spinning askew, a single transistor misfiring means a miss-fire.

In the present state of the art, it is impossible to tune all of these up to perfect working order and then have confidence that they'll remain so a year later — or even a day later.

Once the missile is on the site, all its electronic and hydraulic components must be kept "warmed up," for instant readiness — it cannot be fired, of course, but its innards must be kept in actual and frequent operation.

And to make sure that they are operating right, technicians seated before consoles of monitoring instruments will be checking day and night. Testing cannot end at the factory assembly line; it must continue for the lifetime of the missile.

• • •

With all this, components are in fact assembled in a hurry-scurry. Then the missile will have to be hoisted off the launching pad and hauled to a "recycling" building, where it can be disembowled and parts be replaced.

Obviously a missile will be of no value during such an operation, but will no longer save it. "There will probably be a complete turnover in the missile at least every five to seven years," says Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the Air Force's ballistic missile boss.

• • •

Furthermore, neither the Thor nor the Jupiter, the Atlas nor the Titan, will ever be an instantaneous weapon, always ready to go at the push of a button. Reason: Their fuel tanks are likely to be empty when the big alert is sounded.

All will be liquid-fueled, and these liquids cannot be stored in the missile. A rocket holding liquid oxygen would lose about five per cent of the stuff every hour. One holding fuming nitric acid or hydrazine derivatives would suffer corrosion. This means that missile fuels and oxidizers must be big storage tanks and powerful pumps for fueling the thing. Hitting a missile with this procedure will be about a two-hour job.

A different objective, of other programs, is to use far more powerful fuels, so the missiles can carry bigger warheads and guidance systems of greater accuracy. But this turns the scientists towards such elements as hydrogen, fluorine, lithium and fluorine which far from being safer in storage could poison a missile crew.

Thus the "perfect" missile may remain a dream, but the achievement of one desirable characteristic after another is achieved only by sacrificing another. In practice, later-crop missiles are likely to be technically varying kinds, designed for particular tasks.

However, the whole missile system will probably never become obsolete. There is no guarantee destruction of the enemy's missiles before they are launched of our own. With still, the U.S. and USSR should each be able to maintain the nucleus of retaliate in kind, even if the other struck first. Thus the real hope of U.S. strategists is that, knowing this, neither would dare to strike.

• • •

A "missile stalemate" of this strategic character will not halt the technological race to create improved weapons. For one thing, the door is wide open for each side to develop defences against the ballistic missile; the U.S. is already stepping up efforts to solve this problem.

Stopping an ICBM is theoretically simple; the hard trick is to act quickly enough. The ballistic missile flies on a long thrust of its rocket engines, follows a trajectory which can be spotted and plotted.

Then it can be stopped—for instance, by exploding a nuclear charge in the atmosphere and gets uncomfortably warm, a little extra heat applied to a nuclear missile blast could be enough to demolish it.

Or a sidespread shotgun-like blast of tiny steel particles might finish it; the impact of just a few grains upon metal moving at thousands of miles per hour could be explosive.

As such defences evolve, missile men propose that they be fitted to abandon ballistic missiles warning receivers of the approach to the target. This will call not only for more intricate controls but for an increase in power which perhaps could be supplied only by atomic fuel.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ONE CERTAINTY

A recent news item reminds us of one of the sober facts of life. A young bride and groom, en route by private plane to their wedding, were killed when the plane crashed. Such a tragedy is one of great pathos. We can readily imagine these young people on the verge of one of life's richest experiences, joyful and confident of their happiness to come — and then, in a matter of seconds, their lives ended.

But this aspect of life is always with us, and always has been. In one of Jesus' parables, we are told of the rich man who said to himself, "Soul, thou has much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry."

The rich man's expectations, however, were suddenly cut short. "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee."

It is a solemn thought that not a single person in the whole world can be sure that his own soul will not, like that of the rich man in the parable, be required of him in a day or even an hour. All we can be absolutely sure of is that some day, tomorrow or years hence, it will certainly be required of us.

First things first: the trivialities of life will vanish into dust. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the brashest men at Varsity with me in my youth became famous as a result of his "pressure" salesman in those days. As a young man he was insufferably cocky. He had colossal nerve. During his early career as a salesman he was something of a laughing-stock among those of us who knew him, because of one revolting habit.

He always lunched in the most expensive restaurant and at the most distinguished citizens were likeliest to be found. And it was his habit to greet these men of distinction, these tycoons, with the greeting: "Hello, Adams! How are you?" He warmly and respectfully by name, though he did no know Adams. He avoided having lunch with him on this account. It was disgusting to see him scheming his way past the table of some big shot, merely to get him offbalance, and then to pin a chummy pat on t h e unsuspecting back. Once or out of a dining room, he would hail as many as half a dozen notables, just as if they were one of them. To us he made no secret of the fact that he had never been introduced.

He is now the president and general manager of one of our loftiest businesses.

Which proves, I suppose, that the world is run by men who are willing to make fools of themselves.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JEALOUSY

I have never understood how anyone could be jealous of another. A jealous person admits his or her inferior standing by expressing envy. He or she should be pleased over the good fortune of another. If we perfect ourselves to the extent of our ability, and have enjoyed that success, why shouldn't we gladly share the acclaim with others, especially with those far above us in fame or ability?

Jealousy is such a poisonous thing to throw around. It is bound to touch the worthy, unknowingly, I am sure.

Almost all our great artists, musicians and actors, as well as many leaders in sports, have habitually shown their fine sportsmanship. The world loves the good loser quite as much as the good winner. We feel sorry for many times comes back to be the winner!

People's cheers go out to the successful but the heart of all competitive events goes out to the losers. How little, if any, jealousy is ever displayed! A fine spirit exists. As marked in the recent Olympic Games.

There is probably more jealousy in Politics than anywhere else, but even that fades out in time, and is usually replaced with genuine good will, as it should be.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

REGULARITY IN HABITS CAN HELP OVERCOME CONSTIPATION

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain the disease called chorea? I haven't seen anything written about it. — Mrs. W.

The disease, you see, may at times affect the brain whereby such a way as to make this jerky, spasmodic action in the muscles. It often starts in often than boys; I don't know why. It occurs far more often in spring than other season. Again I don't know why.

Usually an attack will end after several weeks, but sometimes it continues longer. Treatment is based on the severity: A lot of rest, maybe in bed; attractive (and wholesome) diet; sometimes warm baths, drugs to ease severe jerky movements, massage; occasionally some more complicated treatments like "fever therapy."

The episode ends. Sometimes (not always) it will be repeated the following year or several years. Still, the most important problem is not the twitching. The big problem is that the rheumatic fever case, is what damage may have affected the heart; exactly what can be done to prevent another rheumatic fever bout.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is trichinosis infection a venereal disease? Can it be transmitted to and women both affected? — M. G.

Definitely, it is not a venereal infection. It usually can be cured — but the general overall health appears to be an important factor. It can be passed on to men, women and children. At times is stubborn and treatment may have to be prolonged.

What about constipation? Many of us suffer from it. Can it be mentally and physically by reading my booklet "Ten Ways to Overcome Constipation." For a copy write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20c in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Worm Tastes Lot Like Dirt

By John Robinson in the Hamilton Spectator

Of all the things we lose as we grow older, I think the thing we should miss most is the loss of curiosity. We are too ready to accept the judgments of others when what we have needed is continue to try things for ourselves.

Last fall I was sitting on my back porch trying to put off as long as possible the many things as possible, when a little girl from the neighborhood appeared and sat down on the step below me.

She was waiting for I have learned that anyone who opens up a conversation with a little girl is going to have to be patient — and his ears plugged.

"What does worm taste like, John?" she asked, for all little girls call me John until they are 18, after which I'm known as Mr. and I am an incredibly old man.

"I don't know, Joan," I admitted, for I am an honest chap who tries never to pretend anything that he has never eaten a worm.

So that little girl casually picked up a worm that was lurking near by and before my bulging eyes and gagging stomach she took a bit it into two fairly equal sections.

If that child had been a grandmother she would have reacted the way all people do who have eaten something they should not have, and claimed that the worm tasted a little like the white meat of chicken. But she was not only a curious girl but an honest one.

"Tastes a lot like dirt," she said.

Then she added thoughtfully: "But we knew it must say."

There is a little girl who, if the future is any guide, has many strong sense of curiosity will go far. If she becomes a trifle more selective, of course.

If she doesn't she will end up just before the hangman for turning out those horrible things they are serving now at cocktail parties.

Bad Washer Stops Rocket

London Free Press

Every schoolboy knows about the rider and the horse that the nail was lost for want of a nail. (George Herbert said it first, some three centuries ago, and Benjamin Franklin repeated it.)

The principle is still valid. It's been revealed that a million-dollar rocket missile failed recently in a test at Cape Canaveral, Fla., because of a defective washer on a fire-dollar switch.

This is the kind of frustration we are up against in this intricate age, when the whole depends on the function of apparent parts. Simplicity in an era of advance technology is no longer possible. We can only hope that the Russians share our difficulties.

A rash of home and industrial fires has engulfed Ontario's paralysing cold snap.

At least 15 blazes were reported Monday and Sunday, destroying more than $3,000,000 in homes and business property and leaving about 18 persons homeless. Only one person was taken to hospital.

The Toronto area suffered the worst loss Monday when six fires cost well over $1,000,000 damage.

The biggest fire occurred at nearby Malton when flames razed through a hangar owned by Sanderson Aircraft Limited, destroyed 10 aircraft, a number of automobiles and caused damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Earlier in the day a blast which blew out all the front windows of the Pickering Farms Market, on Queen St. E., allowed 30-mile-an-hour winds to swirl the flames into a $50,000 blaze. Fire fed by gas from a burst-ing meter ripped through St. Nicholas Serbian Orthodox Church in Hamilton Monday, causing damage estimated at $25,000.

Firemen fought the flames for four hours in below-zero temperatures, battling with frozen hose lines and fittings. Platoon Chief Gordon Newcombe said the fire apparently broke out above the furnace and shortly after-ward burned through the pipes of the gas meter.

IN ANTIQUE SHOP

About 50 occupants of the Brighton apartment building on Ariens. Rd., in north-eastern Toronto shivered in a snowstorm as firemen battled a blaze in a ground-floor antique shop. The fire caused $2,000 damage to the building and destroyed a paint-ing valued at $5,000.

Fire destroyed the Oshawa home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bryan who were away visiting relatives with their two children.

In Essex, 10 miles northeast of Guelph, fire destroyed most of the downstairs furniture and other possessions of Frank Granville Sunday night and sent his wife to hospital, suffering from smoke and shock. They have four children.

The most heartbreaking blaze occurred at Cordova Mines, 35 miles northeast of Peterborough. Fire caused $2,000 worth of damage to Mr. and Mrs. James Hendy's two-storey frame house. Six weeks earlier the couple, married only seven months, were burned out of their previous home.

LANDMARK RAZED

A century-old farmhouse on the outskirts of Orillia was razed by windswept whipped flames. Firemen said they were unable to save the district landmark because the water supply gave out. The house was owned by Herbert McEvoy.

Three children of Mr. and Mrs. P. Toscani were rescued from a burning house at Pembroke as flames whipped by high winds destroyed their home.

Mrs. Allan Silverthorne and her two children escaped when fire burned their frame home at Tara, 12 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

At Listowel, fire Monday swept the interior of a two-storey frame house owned by Walter Ward. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Laporte lost all their possessions when flames destroyed their farm home at Reece's Corners Monday, with loss estimated at $10,000.

Coldwell Terms General Election 'Unnecessary'

SASKATOON (CP)— CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, terming the March 31 federal general election "unnecessary," Monday night charged Prime Minister Diefenbaker with seeking a mandate and subservient majority in the Commons for his Progressive Conservative party.

Choice of the winter date for a "snap" election "reflects utter disregard for the voters, and particularly the farm voters," he said at a political rally here.

"Nothing could have been more designed to prevent farmers from coming to the polls, or to make it more inconvenient for any voters to take part, than the plunging of the country into an unnecessary winter election."

"Never had an election been more unnecessary than at this time," Mr. Coldwell said of the March 31 vote, only the fifth winter election since Confederation in 1867 and first since 1940.

The Conservatives had completed their two obstruction in the Commons, where they formed a minority administration with 113 of the chamber's 265 members. The prime minister had said the situation was "intolerable."

"NO OBSTRUCTION"

There was no obstruction, Mr. Coldwell said. Opposition parties had offered almost unparalleled co-operation.

"Was it intolerable," he asked, "that because the old-line party had a majority the CCF was able to persuade a reluctant government to introduce some beneficial legislation and to force a few improvements in weak and inadequate legislation?"

The CCF leader's latter reference was to the Conservatives' farm price stabilization bill, which underwent major amendment at two stages of its passage through the Commons.

In criticizing the choice of March 31 as the election date, Mr. Coldwell said "one would think that the Conservative government had deliberately set out to discourage the farm vote, and well they might, being aware as they are of the dissatisfaction with the inadequate" farm price bill.

HAD "RUN AWAY"

The government had "run away from Parliament" instead of keeping it in session to finish its work.

"It wants the meek and subservient majority that Liberal governments had before it," Mr. Coldwell said.

Instead of announcing in Parliament the government's public works program, Mr. Diefenbaker was announcing it throughout the country in bits and pieces "to maximum political effect."

He dared not announce it in Parliament where it could be exposed for its futility and lack of effectiveness in dealing with this winter's unemployment. The minister is seeking to escape the control of Parliament . . . .

Ontario Govt. Relief Program Called 'Phony'

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the legislature says Premier Frost's new plan of municipal grants to reduce unemployment is "completely phony".

Rois Whicher (L—Bruce) told the legislature Monday during throne-speech debate that municipalities will have to put up $50,000,000 to take advantage of the $5,000,000 offered by the government for special municipal works projects.

The government's 70-per-cent contribution covered only the wages of men hired from relief rolls. Municipalities would have to pay for all materials, while most of the men they hired would be skilled and hence already holding jobs or drawing unemployment insurance — which would make their wages exempt from government contribution.

"WILL MEAN NOTHING"

"The plan will mean nothing to this province as a whole," said Mr. Whicher.

In other legislature business, Provincial Secretary Dana Porter tabled the liquor control board's annual report, showing consumption of alcoholic beverages in Ontario last year was up by 653,700 gallons or 814,574,309.

Sale of all types of beverages was higher, with sales in wine stores registering the biggest increase—73,222—gallons or 7.2 per cent.

Sale of all beverages in government liquor stores was down 4.3 per cent by volume but 1.4 per cent higher in dollars. Gallonage dropped by 3,113,963 gallons because of a 20-per-cent decrease in liquor-store beer sales.

Total consumption rose to 95,027,526 gallons from 94,373,826, an increase of .7 per cent. In dollars the rise was 2.3 per cent, to $282,542,913 from $276,268,603.

Government liquor revenues amounted to $154,000,000. Ontario got $56,140,000 of this. Ottawa, $97,000 000 cent, a rise of .7 per cent. municipalities $1,-000,642.

The liquor licence board's report said there were 2,134 licensed establishments, an increase of 29. Eight licences were cancelled and 54 suspended because of violations of regulations.

The board reported licence-holders spent $34,853,281 on improvements to their premises.

Workshop Stage Reached by Conference

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Conference on Education, told Monday that universities and high schools are "wasting their time" turning out "too many half baked products" today split into workshop study groups to consider what is to be done about this and other problems of Canadian education.

About 720 delegates are devoting themselves to a four - day analysis of present education In Canada and its needs for the future.

Sponsored by 19 professional, commercial, labor and veterans' organizations, the conference set its keynote in plenary session Monday, culminating in a banquet attended by External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith, former president of the University of Toronto.

E. F. Sheffield, director of the bureau of statistics' education division, predicted that Canada will need at least 227,600 elementary secondary and university teachers by 1969.

The problem appears "formidable," he said, and the outlook for meeting it "far from bright."

MORE FELLOWSHIPS

Dr. Andrew Stewart of Edmonton, president of the University of Alberta, suggested to the workshop that the federation that universities could help meet the anticipated shortage by stepping up the number of graduate teaching-fellowships.

Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president designate of the University of Toronto, speaking today at the workshop on higher education, said "brief after brief has pointed out that the salaries of professors have suffered a real decline," but no clear statement ever emerges as to "just how much money the university needs to do its job properly."

Universities should realistically assess actual costs of tuition fees, "which would mean the doubling, possibly the tripling, of the present fees."

A scholarship - bursary - loan fund "on a scale many times greater than exists now" would help students to meet the increased cost. Government contributions would have to rise to take in the proportionate increase.

Business and foundations would be encouraged to withdraw from the field of undergraduate scholarships, which would be taken over increasingly by the government and specialize in post-graduate bursaries.

Canada Adopts Attitude Of Goodwill to All Groups

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada has adopted an attitude of unqualified goodwill towards both of the major regroupings among Arab nations in the Middle East.

Egypt and Syria announced Feb. 1 that they had formed a United Arab Republic, Yemen, an absolute monarchy, said Feb. 11 that she will federate with it Feb. 31.

Wealthy Iraq and her poor poor neighbor, Jordan, announced Friday they had formed the Arab Federal State, both their monarchs retaining their domestic thrones with King Faisal of Iraq become of the federation's crowned head.

While recognizing that the monarchical federation was called into being to offset the United Republic, Canada's position is to deprecate any Western pressures that would tend to pit one against the other.

COMMUNIST POLICY

The Egypt - Syria combination is considered essentially neutralist in relation to the major power blocs, while Yemen harbors an anti-British feeling after armed clashes last autumn.

The Iraq-Jordan partnership is held to be more pro - Western. Iraq is a member of the Baghdad Pact but her withdrawal from that alliance would not surprise anyone.

Officials in Ottawa say they have detected a tendency in the West to encourage rivalry between the two groups with a view to splitting the Arab world. This is held to savor more of taking a lead from the Communists' notebook than of developing the long-run sympathetic approach which Canada feels has better chances of earning goodwill from both groupings.

"Divide and conquer" may be said to have been paraphrased by the Communists into "split them, unite with one of them, then devour him, and the others in turn."

OFFICIAL CANADIAN VIEW

External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith said the Egypt-Syria union must be viewed as the logical development of two significant and powerful trends" in the area.

These are a surge of newly-awakened nationalism throughout the Arab region, and a desire there for "non - alignment" with either of the two ideological camps dividing the world. In the Middle East "non - alignment is called "positive neutrality."

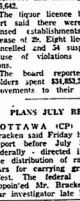
"The sudden union of Egypt and Syria may be a step towards that wider Arab unity which has long been the goal of Arab nationalists," Mr. Smith said two days before the Iraq-Jordan federation was announced.

"We do not see as yet of judging how the new union will develop, or how far it may ultimately extend; but the tide of history is running fast in all these countries, and it would be unwise, I think, to adopt hasty attitudes with respect to a development which may in fact represent the pattern of the future."

ULTIMATE FUSION SOON

In Ottawa, where such world events are viewed in the light of Canada's success in welding a nation from culturally - divergent elements, the balance of factors in the Arab world is seen as favoring ultimate fusion, given time and patience.

It would be wrong, so goes the reasoning to take a course towards either the new republic or the new monarchical federation that risked thwarting or frustrating what might be a legitimate and logical development.



"Positive neutrality," if backed by social, political and economic changes, could be a powder-keg between both major camps.

However two formidable booby - traps remain. They are the Arab states' ultimate attitude toward Israel, which they virtually envelop, and toward France, whose policies in Tunisia and Algeria infuriate them.

"...but my situation is different!"

Of course your situation is different—no two men are in identical circumstances, where money matters are concerned. When you buy life insurance, it is vitally important to obtain a plan which fits your situation exactly. Simply "buying a policy" can't be expected to provide your family with the kind of tailor-made protection that is available to them.

The plan which is right for you is determined by a number of factors: your scale of living—your plans for your family—your future prospects—those and other details of your business and home finances.

London Life representatives are trained to take all the pertinent facts into account in helping you select your life insurance plan. Moreover, it is their job to assist you to keep your program of protection up to date. We believe that this is one reason why so many London Life policyholders buy again and again from this Company.

Albert College W.G. Hears Talk On Trinidad

The regular monthly meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held at the Manor on Thursday with the president, Mrs. C. L. Hyde, presiding.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn followed by a business meeting. Mrs. Hyde welcomed some new members into the Guild.

It was decided to have the annual dessert bridge in April, as in Alumni Hall. It was also agreed to furnish the kitchen in the new wing with necessary equipment to enable the students and staff to prepare light lunches. Some money was also made for luncheon cloths.

Mrs. Brown led in the devotional service, reading from St. Matthew and using as her text, "We Are the Light."

Mrs. Pat Downes sang two beautiful solos, accompanied by Mrs. Hillis.

Miss Helen Sulman gave a reading "When Sparrows Built" and Grandma," keeping in with the Valentine theme.

Mrs. Hillis introduced the speaker, Mrs. Swan. Mrs. Swan spent six years in China, and 26 years in Trinidad, accompanying her husband, Dr. Swan, as missionaries of the United Church of Canada. Dr. Swan is now on the teaching staff of Albert College.

Mrs. Swan did not dwell on the religious work, but took the Guild on an imaginary voyage to the West Indies, destination, Trinidad; setting sail from New York, arriving in Trinidad six days later. This is the land of the calypso, and Mrs. Swan played a record to acquaint the group with this type of music.

COSMOPOLITAN ISLAND

Trinidad is a cosmopolitan island and no racial discrimination is shown. There is good shopping in Trinidad — English currency being used. The approved language, too, is English.

Mrs. Swan showed slides of the many beautiful flowers, native homes and dress and the wonderful sea shore.

The world championship cricket events are being played there now. Pictures were also shown of Princess Margaret on the occasion of her visit to the island.

Everyone stops for tea at four in Trinidad.

Miss Grace Tucker expressed the thanks of the Guild to Mrs. Swan for such an enjoyable journey, remarking that the speaker was truly an ambassador of good will.

The president also extended her thanks and invited everyone to stay for a social hour. Mrs. Moon poured tea from a tea table gaily decorated for Valentine's Day.

Alpha Lambda Outlines Aims, Purposes

The Alpha Lambda Belleville Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority is composed of 23 young women active in community interests. The chapter was formed May 29, 1946.

The purpose of the Sorority is the "giving to young women in search of further cultural advantages and, expanded social contacts, an opportunity to unite in fellowship with other young women who also desire to develop their cultural natures by definite courses of study, with the ultimate aim of making an "art of living."

The Sorority is international in scope, having chapters in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Europe and Asia.

25th ANNIVERSARY

In recognition of the 25th anniversary of Beta Sigma Phi, in 1956, Alpha Lambda joined with 4,200 other chapters in forming a "Silver Anniversary" chapter called "Gamma Mu." An exemplar chapter composed of members having four years' standing, has also been formed and this chapter is known as Xi Alpha Mu, thus constituting three Belleville chapters.

Cultural programs in the arts are studied in relation to the girls' everyday living. Each member participates in the program, either in its preparation or in the general discussion following its presentation.

The social aspect is met with the beautiful pledge initiation ceremony and includes many other delightful events planned by the members.

The social sponsor and the director serve as guiding hands in all chapter activity. Mrs. J. Lennox Smith serves as social sponsor for Alpha Lambda and Mrs. Clive Ryan acts as director. Their more than generous assistance has added greatly to the success of this chapter.

GENEROUS CONTRIBUTIONS MADE

Although culture is Beta Sigma Phi's main object, it has made generous contributions to local institutions and charities, including the donation of cribs and mattresses to the Receiving Home for the Children's Aid Society, and the stocking of the Samaritan cupboard at Belleville General Hospital with layettes for infants requiring them.

Through the international office channel much financial assistance is given to Cancer Research and Cystic Fibrosis Research.

To support these efforts the main undertaking of Alpha Lambda Chapter each year is the Sorority dance, "The Black and Gold Ball." Since 1952 this has become an annual affair and the experience of each Canoe efforts are made to make them even more enjoyable. Under the convenorship of Mrs. Robert Laughlen, and co-convener Mrs. Herb Hastrey, all feel sure that again Black and Gold Ball in February at the Club Commodore will be a social success.

Many Odd Incidents Befall Specialist in Wedding Gowns

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The tall, slender bride was being married in her mother's gown, and she insisted that it be altered so that the trail on the floor.

She was so fussy on this point that John van Drill finally asked her why.

"My fiance is shorter than I am—and sensitive about it," she explained. "So I am going to be married with my shoes off. Then I won't have to look down on him when I say 'I do.'

"That's why the dress has to sweep the floor. I don't want my feet to show."

This is one of many odd incidents that have befallen van Drill, who is known as "the wedding gown king." As president of the Le Boeuf firm in East Orange, N.J., he is a specialist in the cleaning and preserving of wedding outfits.

His concern handled 30,000 gowns last year, grossed more than $1,000,000.

Van Drill, a short, dark-haired man of 44, is a self-made specialist. He got a job in a dry cleaning plant at 14, after his father's death.

"The plant wouldn't allow us to clean wedding gowns—they were too risky," he recalled. So van Drill set up in business for himself.

Now he has customers across the land, many of whom send him for repair and restoration wedding finery that has been treasured in families for generations.

"In former times most wedding gowns were made by brides themselves, by their relatives or by dressmakers," he said. "And they made them out of everything from wool blankets to flour sacks, table cloths and lace curtains."

Today the stores sell between 700,000 and 800,000 wedding gowns yearly. It's a $100,000,000 industry. The gowns cost an average of $135, but range from $99 to $1,800. Van Drill himself says a bride can do right nicely for $69.

MANY GRATEFUL

Many brides, of course, want to be married in the same gown worn by their mother and grandmother. But often the gown, left to hang in the attic, has fallen victim to mice, moths and rotted cloth.

"But brides are the best people in the world to deal with," said van Drill. "They are approaching one of the most emotional moments of their lives, and they are deeply grateful for any help you give them."

On the other hand, a few wives have come to him later and wanted to pawn or sell their wedding gowns. One bride, who had been married twice in the same gown and lost both husbands, asked him to dye the gown blue for her third wedding.

"Maybe that'll change my luck," she said cheerfully. "After all, blue has always been my lucky color."

But the bride he remembers most is one he never met. She sent a brand-new wedding dress, lovely and shimmering, to be preserved and sealed in tin. With it came this note:

"I want to keep it all my life. It has never been worn and never will be. My fiance was killed in a plane crash on the way to our wedding.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. F. S. — Boys need supervision, as well as girls.

* * *

Donald S. — I am 16 and have a problem no boy my age has ever faced. My mother wants to meet all my dates.

Now whoever heard of a boy bringing home his dates? I might as well have the girls call for me and take me out. My mother does not understand how ridiculous it makes me look. A couple of times girls looked at me as if I were crazy when I told them we'd have to stop at my house before going out.

Things have gotten so bad I just don't feel like asking any more girls out.

* * *

Mrs. F. S. — I have explained to Don that I have very good reason for wanting to know all his dates, at least until he is 18 or older. A boy of his age is not capable of judging what is best for him.

My own brother got into a great deal of trouble at his age. He started dating an older, experienced girl and became so enthralled that he finally had to leave town to escape her clutches.

I would like to have Donald go through anything like that. Boys need parental supervision as much as girls do.

* * *

The Council: Yes, we'll agree that boys need parental supervision as much as girls do, but Mrs. F. S. seems to be defeating her own ends by setting up rigid and unusual rules.

It is very likely that Don would bring home his girl friends in the natural course of things if he felt his mother had a friendly, casual interest and was not sitting in judgment or expecting a minor tep on his part.

Boys sometimes bring their dates home on the way to a party or dance, but it is not the usual thing. Don can't fail to feel self-conscious with his date if he is required to do this on every occasion. His mother's lack of respect for his ability to choose friends and her lack of understanding of feelings will drive a wedge between them. He may follow her rules when he has to, but will grow secretive about the things most important to him.

Parents can't completely supervise adolescents. The best "control" they have is freely given confidence. Parents can only earn that by real consideration and understanding.

Mrs. F. S. will not need to set rules if she makes all of Don's friends feel welcome in the home — for an occasional after-school snack or an evening of TV, music or study. Don may sometimes go out with a "new" girl who hasn't yet visited the house, but the chances are that this girl will not be very different from the ones he usually dates. She will eventually make her appearance in the home if she rates with Don.

There is no need for formal inspections or "defense" work if happy, friendly relations exist between parents and children.

Chafing Dish Specials

By Mary Moore

Here is an excerpt from a letter from my reader - friend Helen P.: "my best friend from Trent River got a chafing dish for Christmas, and there was not only no instructions that came with it, but no recipe book. There may be other readers, Mary, who might enjoy some chafing dishes too. Whatever would we do without you, anyway — and how did we ever prepare meals before you had columns in the paper?" Helen P., you are a peach to ask for these. I've temporarily neglected the lucky chafing dish owners because I've been so pre-occupied cooking on an ordinary stove. But if it is time for a little frivolity, I'm all for being in on it.

THE BOY FRIEND AND THE BOX OF CANDY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Sunday afternoon a boy friend of mine came to see me, brought me a box of candy (not a very big box), handing it to me as he came into the living room. In the living-room at the time were two guests of my mother, two of my sister's guests, and another friend of mine. Although the guests must have seen the boy handing me the box of candy, I didn't think it necessary to open the box and pass it around. So I didn't. Afterwards my mother and sister said I was very rude and accused me of being "stingy." Was I, Mrs. Beeckman?

Image Reader

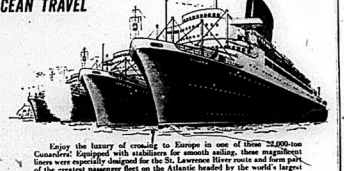
No, I can't think you were very courteous . . . and I agree with your mother and sister that undoubtedly you gave the impression of being "stingy." Since the boy handed the box of candy to you in the presence of the others, you really should have passed it around . . . even if you didn't want to!

WEDDING GUESTS SHOULD BE INFORMED ABOUT LUNCHEON-INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am a widow, my fiance is a widower. We are to be married in May, a simple wedding in the church with the members of our families and a few of his and my dearest friends present. It is to be a Noon Wedding, and following the ceremony we plan to have a luncheon at one o'clock. Is it necessary to incorporate that in the wedding invitations?

2. My apartment is very small, and so I could not accommodate the guests coming from a distance. There is quite a large and attractive local hotel. If these guests put up here is it necessary for me to assume the hotel bill, or does each couple assume their own? — Reader



1. Yes. It is absolutely necessary that in your invitations you inform the guests exactly what they are being invited to . . . in this case, to the marriage ceremony at twelve o'clock noon, and afterward, at one o'clock, to the reception and luncheon, stating where each is to take place.

2. It is your responsibility to pay for any hotel accommodations necessary for your attendant and, if she is married, for her husband. And it is your bridegroom's responsibility to pay for any hotel accommodations necessary for his attendant and, if he is married, for his wife. But other wedding guests pay their own hotel expenses. You should get in touch with any couples who you think will want to put up at a hotel, suggesting you will make the reservations if they wish you to, and perhaps giving the approximate cost.

SHAKE UP!

Don't look now but before these hockey shanigans are over they may be calling the Macs the McFarland Eskimos.

Latest reports from OHA headquarters has it that the winners of the Eastern Ontario senior "A" league meet the winners of the northern section of the NOHA and if our geographical memory serves us right that's about seven miles south of the Arctic Circle where the natives wear muskhats for bedroom slippers and hotwater bottles for heat, must needs go west with its young men, where they will tangle with the champions of the lone prairies and points west, for the Allan Cup. Lemmence, who do we know in Penticton, Kelowna, or Spokane?

Meanwhile, according to OHA president Lorne Cook, the Eastern League has a couple of wrinkles to iron out, due, it is said, to the pressure of time, or perhaps to prevent the ice from being maintained in Memorial Arena until early 1st.

Taking all things into consideration, President Cook has come to the conclusion that unless the Eastern League schedule is not completed by February 25, the semi-finals series will be reduced from a best-of-seven series as originally stated, to a three-of-five affair.

The McFarlands will finish under the wire all right, since they play the Pembroke Lumber Kings here Friday and wind up the schedule the next night, Saturday, February 22, in Pembroke. However, other clubs' games stretch a little farther, and it is with the idea in view the remainder of the schedule that a special meeting of the Eastern group has been called in Kingston tonight.

As matters stand now the Pembroke Lumber Kings, in second place in the playoff standing, have five games to play, while Kingston, a point behind the Cornwall Cherries has three games left, with the Cherries four. Cornwall and Kingston clash in two of these tilts. The Cherries, mathematically at least, can tie the Lumber Kings by winning all their remaining games, providing the Kings drop theirs. Actually the battle resolves itself into a fight between Kingston and Cornwall for third and fourth places.

However, it is expected the wrinkle will be ironed out tonight at the confab of the league brass.

On another hockey front plans are being finalized for the annual presentation of certain awards scheduled to take place at Memorial Arena Friday night between the second and third periods. The handsome Bill Green Memorial Trophy will be awarded the player adjudged the most valuable to the McFarlands during the season, with a special memento awarded as the player's permanent possession. Present at this part of the ceremonies will be John Hibbard and Henry Fenn, president of the Belleville Hockey Oldtimers' Association who will present the Green Memorial and Bobby Green, son of the late hockey star, who will present the memento.

Another important presentation will be the Lee Grills' Trophy, donated by Mr. Grills and which will be presented by him to the "most gentlemanly player, off and on ice, on the McFarland roster." The third presentation will be the Carlings Silver Tankard awards to the adjudged players of the week, who in this case are Barton Bradley and Minnie Menard. These will be presented by Harold "Speed" Weiler, of Carlings.

The names of the most valuable and most gentlemanly players will not be announced until the night of the presentations, and just before the trophies and awards are presented. The ceremonies will take place in centre ice with both teams lined up on their respective bluelines.

A REMINDER

To all Boosters . . . Do not forget the general meeting in the city hall council chambers tomorrow night starting at eight o'clock. Special business that should have the attention of all members is on the agenda and President Dick Beare wants as many of the gang as possible to be on hand.

Howe, Bathgate, Horvath Closer to Pocket and Moore; Boston Centre Solid in 4th

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-way challenge to Montreal Canadiens' pace-setters in the National Hockey League scoring derby came last week from as many clubs.

Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers, Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings each collected four points to nibble a few precious points off the margin set up by Dickie Moore, No. 1 man, and Henri Pocket Rocket Richard, the runner-up.

Moore and Richard collected only three points between them—Moore a single assist and Richard two goals—and all came in one of Montreal's three games.

The league's official statistics, released today, show Moore heading the parade with 67 points three goals and added an assist to take sole possession of fourth place with 54 points.

Howe had an action after an injury, picked up two goals and two assists and moved from sixth to fifth place with 51 points. Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, out for the season since Jan. 28, was dropped from a fourth-place tie to sixth. He had 49 points on 27 goals and 22 assists when injured.

Boston's Johnny Bucyk, who became a last week, pulled into a seventh-place tie at 46 points with Alex Delvecchio of Detroit. Delvecchio had a one-point

DROPS TO NINTH

Vic Stasiuk of Boston, tied for seventh a week ago with Delvecchio, added only a single point with his one goal and dropped to ninth place with 45 points.

Camille Henry of New York Rangers and Jean Beliveau of Montreal each scored one goal and two assists, moving from a fifth-place tie to sixth for 100 with 43 points.

Canadiens, who all but have the NHL title wrapped up, broke even in their three on the road last week and a win, a tie and a loss New York Rangers needed their perfect mark—two wins in two games—to hang on to second place. They are pressed by Detroit Red Wings, who dropped one in three.

The fourth - place Bruins lost ground slightly, with a win, loss and tie. Chicago Black Hawks broke even in two games while Toronto Maple Leafs dropped all three they played. Hawks moved into a fifth-place tie with Toronto and got top billing because of the greater number of games in the win column.

WILL MAKE DRAW

MELBOURNE (AP) — The draw for the American Zone, northern section, of the Davis Cup tennis tournament will be made Feb. 24. Entries have been received from Argentina Canada, Cuba, Israel, the United States and Venezuela.

No Sixth Spot For Giants Says Rigney

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Bill Rigney of the San Francisco Giants says "we didn't move to San Francisco to finish sixth again. We're going to move up this year."

The main reasons for Rigney's optimism are two young sluggers outfielder Willie Kirkland and first baseman Orlando Cepeda.

"Willie Mays did pretty well for us last year," said Rigney, "but wait until we put a man up behind him that's a threat. Then they'll have to pitch to Willie whether they want to or not."

TO BAT CLEANUP

Rigney plans too keep Mays batting in the No. 3 slot. The 23-year-old Kirkland, just released from the army, is scheduled to be the cleanup man and Cepeda only 20, might bat fifth and open at first base.

Kirkland is the current pride and joy of the Giant organization. A left-handed batter, he hits with power and can run. In 1956, he was called up from Birmingham, tapped 27 homers and drove in 83 runs. He had more than 100 RBIs in each of his four minor league seasons.

If Cepeda matches the form he displayed at Minneapolis last year, Rigney says the youngster will open at first base.

Cepeda, a six-foot-200 - pound Puerto Rican, hit 260, blasted 22 four-baggers and knocked 108 runs across the plate with the American Association team.

Leafs Place Rudy Migay On Waivers

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran centre Rudy Migay of Toronto Maple Leafs was placed on waivers Monday in a shakeup apparently produced by the team's prolonged slump.

Coach Billy Reay said Migay had been put on waivers because he didn't figure in the team's future plans.

Migay, who has played with the National Hockey League club for the last six seasons, was noncommittal about the move.

The club also called up forward Gerry James from Rochester of the American Hockey League. James, who also plays professional football for Winnipeg Blue Bombers, was expected to check in at the Leafs practice today.

Reay said he plans to start James as a penalty-killer in his first game with Leafs. He is on outright recall from the Rochester club which means he will be with Leafs for the remainder of the season.

McIntyre Rink North Favorite

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Les Redford's quick marker McIntyre took on the role of avorite in the Northern Ontario curling championships Monday morning at pair of games in comparatively easy style.

Redford, representing the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Curling Association, downed Tim Moran of Sudbury 12-9 in the morning and six-time champion Ernie Richardson of Kenora 14-5 in the afternoon.

Play winds up today with the draw following the same pattern as Monday.

Redford jumped into a 6-3 lead on the fifth end against Moran and led the rest of the way. Against Redding, the McIntyre rink counted five on the ninth end for a 9-3 lead and then added another four on the 11th.

Redding built an 11-1 lead after six ends in the match with Moran. The big end was a four on the fifth.

Moore Nudges Marshall in Points Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland's Jimmy Moore has tightened up the American Hockey League scoring race while moving into second place behind pace - setter Willie Marshall of Hershey.

While Marshall failed to collect a point in two games last week, Moore produced six to displace Hershey's Duce Fisher as runner-up.

Figures released by the league however today show Marshall has 56 points, nine more than Moore, whose total is 71. Fisher ranks third with 69.

Goal-keeping Laurels still belong to Cleveland's Johnny Bower who has yielded an average of 2.38 on 123 goals allowed in 52 games.

Manchester U Resumes Play Only 2 Originals in Lineup

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United, tragically deposed from the favorite's role, resumes its quest of the Football Association Cup Wednesday night.

Only two of the United's formidable starting lineup are likely to take the field before a capacity crowd at Old Trafford in the first leg of the round match against Sheffield Wednesday.

Of the others, seven are dead and two first-aid casualties as a result of the Feb. 6 crash at Munich of the jetliner returning back from a European Cup match in Yugoslavia.

Goalkeeper Harry Gregg and right back Bill Foulkes are the only passengers aboard the plane expected to see action. Assistant manager Jimmy Murphy will run the team in place of his boss, Matt Busby, who still is seriously ill in a Munich hospital.

TEST YOUTH PROGRAM

One player, inside forward Ernie Taylor, has been bought from Blackpool but, in the main the match will put Busby's youth-development program to the biggest test in its history.

Murphy may arrange a second practice game before Wednesday night. But the team's chances rest largely on the ability of Busby's youngsters, most of them with little or no first-class experience.

The club appears to be content to rely chiefly on its own resources. It has received offers of assistance from several league clubs but Murphy seems to be concentrating on finding good replacements in the ranks of his weakest spots.

A newspaper wrangle developed over the weekend as a result of Murphy's slowness in signing players. The Sunday Dispatch accused other clubs of poor sportsmanship in being niggardly with their offers of assistance.

HEATED REBUTTAL

Bob Lord, chairman of Burnley, burst into print with a heated rebuttal. He was particularly incensed by reports that the United was after his star wing forward, Brian Pilkington.

"When clubs offered help, it was with players sufficient to keep United ticking over until they could rebuild, not to supply them with the cream of the country's footballers," he said. "While I am very sorry for them, they'll have to fight their way out of trouble."

Sheffield Wednesday, United's Cup opponents, stands at the bottom of the football league's First Division and would have been a decided underdog against the pre-Munich Manchester lineup.

But any organized eleven is bound to present a formidable obstacle to Murphy's reconstructed side. It will take the full lineup power of the Manchester crowd, plus a good share of the breaks, to pull United through.

Petes Take Two-Game Lead With 9-3 Victory Over Belleville

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Peterborough Petes took a commanding 3-0 lead in their OHA Junior "B" semi-final playoff series here last night, defeating the Belleville Lambert-Stollins 9-3.

Petes rate as strong favorites to wind up the three-of-five series Tuesday night in the Liftlock City. The winners of that set will clash with the Trenton-Kingston victors in a four-of-seven series for group honors and the right to advance into the next round of the OHA playdowns.

The visitors fired five consecutive goals by Harold Carr in the Belleville nets by the 16.01 mark in the first period. The home club got one back while Petes scored the only goal of the second period. Belleville held their own in the early minutes of the third but lost out as the stronger Peterborough club outscored them 3-2.

Paul Brennan was the only scorer to dent the twine twice for the winners and also picked up a single assist. Murray McCormack was the top point man with a goal and four assists while Frank Daley had a goal and two assists, and George Gayer one and one. Brenton Martin, Joe English, John Hutton and Ron Jewell also scored while Larry Peterson and Dan Pearson had two assists and Val Armstrong one.

Gary Goyer clicked for a pair of the Belleville goals, both in the third period. Jack Brennan had the other marker with assists, divided among Dennis Kerrish, Art Culloden and Gord St. Louis.

The clubs split in minor penalties evenly with half of these coming in the middle session.

McCormack opened the game scoring at 2.04 and his mates hovered his example with Jewell, English, Parnell and Horton blinking the light in that order. Ron Jay was sitting out a hooking penalty when John Brennan got one back for Belleville at 17.25.

Carr turned in one defensive George Casey's drive for the lone second period effort, coming at the 4.22 mark. Belleville missed at least two golden opportunities, Dennis Kerrish breaking in alone and firing at Dobson's pads at 12.51 and Ray Sawbotham working in the only to bounce one off a post.

Gary Goyer cut the difference a little at 1.40 of the third, taking Culloden's pass in front to find an open corner. Parnell got this one back for the Petes at 7.30 but Goyer bagged his second, taking St. Louis' drive off the back boards and tucking it in the corner past a surprised Don Dobson at 11.33. Two Belleville men were repeating their sins when Frank Daley added the Petes' eighth goal while Jewell closed the scoring at 14.48, both teams a man short.

Only a slim handful of faithful hockey fans braved the sub-zero temperatures to witness what was likely the final junior game of the season here.

Canadiens Call Farm Help Backstrom May Turn Pro

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens may have to call on farmclub help again as a result of the latest of a series of injuries.

All-Star defenceman Doug Harvey pulled up lame in the Montrealers' National Hockey League game in Boston Saturday and watched his mates in Chicago Sunday from the press box.

Harvey damaged muscles in his left leg. Reports Monday, while the club was en route home, said if Harvey is unable to play in the next game—against Boston Bruins here Thursday — Red Berenzs may be called up from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League.

Canadiens had only three defencemen in the Chicago game as Jean - Guy Talbot is already laid up with an ankle injury.

There was speculation also that Ralph Backstrom of Ottawa Junior Canadiens may be turned pro. He has played in one game with Canadiens. The decision on whether he turns pro may depend on how soon Bert Olmstead can return to the lineup. Olmstead suffered cartilage damage in the knee and his leg has been in a cast.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion was sidelined Jan. 28 and won't be back until season's end. Maurice (Rocket) Richard, injured Nov. 12 in Toronto, may rejoin the club Thursday.

Hamilton Cubs Tie Petes 1-1

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs, unbeaten in their last nine games, gained a 1-1 tie Monday night with Peterborough Petes to move within six points of St. Catharines Teepees, leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Ed Cooke scored for Cubs, Gary Darling for Petes, both in the first period and both while the opposition was playing a man short.

Dunlop 'Injuries' Not Serious Will Be Ready for Big Show

GOTTENBURG, Sweden (CP) — Two of Canada's hockey players suffered minor injuries in exhibition games last week but Jack MacKenzie, one of those hurt, said they'll be in good shape for the world championships.

MacKenzie said he and George Gosselin of North Bay, were injured at the second Swedish exhibition match in Stockholm Friday when Whitby won 6-5.

"I just hurt my back," MacKenzie reported. "I didn't play in Soerdertastie yesterday because I needed a couple of days rest. I promise I'll be back in shape for the world championships."

MacKenzie has proved one of Whitby's top scorers in their undefeated exhibition series. The Canadians have played seven games so far and meet a selected Gothenburg team here today.

MacKenzie laughed off rumors in the Swedish press that manager Wren Blair should call for reinforcements.

"I've just had a couple of days off, that's all."

Gosselin, who also suffered a minor injury Friday, was able to play in Sunday's exhibition, which Whitby won 7-0.

"George is all right," MacKenzie said. "He just had a slight muscle ailment."

SWISS TIE U.S.

BASEL, Switzerland (AP)—The United States tied Switzerland 1-1 Monday night in the last of three international hockey exhibitions here.

Three Rinks Stay Undefeated In Schoolboy Curling Tourney

By ED SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—An 18-year-old Winnipeg kept defending champion Ontario hopes high in the Dominion high school curling championships Monday night by leading his rink to a 10-7 victory over Manitoba.

It was the second straight win for Gordon Stibbard in the afternoon Ontario scored a 10-6 win over Nova Scotia.

Alberta's Sparkes and Northern Ontario's Tom Tod share the lead with the Ontario team each with two wins. Prince Edward Island and Quebec have one each. Sided between the New Brunswick and Saskatchewan with a win and a loss. Prov. hospital favorite Manitoba is still looking for a win after two tries. In the same category are British Columbia, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Two draws are scheduled for today, one at 2 p.m. AST and another at 9 p.m.

FOUND THE RANGE

Ontario ran up a 5-1 lead before Manitoba found its range. Pete McLeod's fort Hannes, only quarter, which this year is the Manitoba representative, got the position they wanted on the outside rings and made Stibbards come to them.

Manitoba had a four in the fifth and five more in the sixth end to take a 10-5 lead but Ontario refused to die the seventh with Stibbards' double takeout to count five and the last score.

Manitoba edged up for singles in the eighth and ninth. In the tenth McLeod, with his final rock, drew in closely in front of two Ontario stones. Stibbards delivered his final stone perfectly taking out Manitoba's shot and leaving Ontario three.

Prince Edward Island skip Art Burke kept close tab of British Columbia throughout. The Islanders, who drew the bye in afternoon play, were leading the big ones out to win 8-5. In the seventh end when they scored a three to set the stage for the win.

TROUBLE WITH WEIGHT

Alberta's Sparkes had trouble outside ring in the match against Newfoundland. The island province, as in the afternoon round, were heavy at the start and when they threw the stones in later ends were unable to beat the Alberta strategy of positioning opening guards. Alberta won 15-3.

The situation was repeated in the Northern Ontario-Nova Scotia match. Tom Tod gave Nova Scotia skip Allan Kenney little to shoot at in winning 16-6.

Saskatchewan's Fred Hansen ran up a 7-0 lead by the fourth end against New Brunswick's Charles Sullivan. Sullivan, far off his form of the CANADIAN PRESS Standings after two rounds in the Canadian high-school curling championships:

Western Stars Must Have Certain Specific Standards

By BOB THOMAS

Find a big fellow — six feet two and a well-built 190 pounds, 28 years old with some stage training and a little movie experience, born in the western United States, though not on a ranch. Teach him how to draw a gun fast and how to sit a horse. Have him move slowly—unless provoked — and say his lines without much expression.

That's all there is to it!

Of course, it's not that easy. Those are merely some conclusions I have reached after studying all the adult westerns on TV and averaging the specifications of 15 top gunslingers on the home screens.

NO AVERAGE STAR

There is, however, no such thing as an average western star. They range from sagebrush veterans Ward Bond, 52, (Wagon Train) to 24-year-old Pat Conway of Tombstone Territory. Most of them were born west of the Mississippi.

One thing is certain: You gotta be tall. Maybe not as tall as Jim Arness (Gunsmoke) and Clint Walker (Cheyenne), who scrape the barroom ceilings at six feet six. But you can't be less than six feet and expect to cut the mustard.

These western heroes have shot down their opposition with deadly accuracy this season. The most notable being Maverick's riddling of both Steve Allen and Ed Sullivan. Why has this been overlooked all the shows in search of an actor and podner, that's a lot of gunplay.

The fact is that the western is steadily gaining. You have a background that is immediately recognizable — no build-up necessary. You have colorful characters and the basic struggle of good vs. evil. You have wide open spaces, a refreshing change from the cramped sets of live dramas.

NEW CROP OF STARS

Furthermore, the producers have come up with an attractive and convincing crop of western stars, most of them entirely new to the public.

Ojala is a ruddy - faced young man from the Yakima Valley of Washington who is deadly with a gun. He helps the TV gunslingers look as rapid on the draw as Billy the Kid.

Ojala have long been Ojala's hobby and now they are his business.

Ojala is the name is Finnish) has supplied holsters and coaching to James Garner, Hugh O'Brian, Wayde Preston, Clint Walker and others.

"First I teach them gun safety," he said. "You can hurt yourself badly, even with blanks. The important thing is to start the draw from a relaxed position with the thumb out to pull back the hammer as the gun is drawn up."

AT THE BELLE — Glenn Ford, a member of the navy public relations section stationed on a South Pacific Island during World War II, falls in love with a native charmer, Gia Scala, in "Don't Go Near the Water", playing for the last times today at the Belle Theatre. Also starring in the production are Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Shaughnessy.

Victor Borge Will Be Worth Twist of Dial on Wednesday

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Wednesday evening Victor Borge will offer the third "half" of his Comedy in Music on CBS-TV, an annual event that is well worth a twist of any viewer's dial.

Borge pre-ers not to call it a mere continuation of his two previous fine TV solo performances, but "something entirely new" — "sort of thing you can't do alone." He will be joined by dancers Bambi Linn and Rod Alexander, singer Loretta Morrow, 12-year-old piano prodigy Abbott Lee Huskin, and a 46-piece orchestra to this show which he wrote himself.

Each year before his show we drop around and make notes on whatever boss mots he drops. This time we found him in a more serious mood, perhaps because he was saving his jokes for the show. Nevertheless, Borge serious is as worthy of attention as Borge comic. For example:

"I've consciously limited myself to one television appearance each year," he said, "but as you grow older the passing of a year seems to come around more often. This month I'm constantly discussing plans for more frequent TV appearances, and there is one idea that's appeal to me.

"Once a month or once every two or three months I might like to do a show that would be something like a park concert—a band, orchestra and some of the leading instrumentalists and singers of our time who are also lovable and frequently enough. We are constantly seeing things on TV that are repetitive—like westerns, for instance. Why not something different?

"What has been ignored too often on television is musical value. It's too often forgotten that great artists are entertaining. I'd like to do a show that presents some of these great artists, not with the traditional stuffiness of the concert hall, but to make their work attractive to people who never have had fine music made attractive to them before.

"Because Victor Borge knows and loves good music and because I admires him, he undoubtedly is one person who can achieve this very desirable goal in television.

Ed Wynn Starts Whole New, Exciting Career at Age of 70

EDITOR'S NOTE: If you want to stay young, actor Ed Wynn thinks, you must think and act young. Wynn has certainly done that—but he had to overcome moments of despondency, like hearing, at 70, he felt, that life had shouldered him aside

By ED WYNN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It isn't given to many people to start a whole new, exciting career after the age of 70, but I have been so blessed.

For 54 years, I thought that God put me on this earth to make people laugh. I never worked at any other profession.

As I neared my 70th year, I was told I could not get work as a comedian. The men who run the television shows said the trend was against comedy, that the people wanted drama for their entertainment.

This was hard for me to take. I had never been anything but a star. I had produced and owned my own shows on Broadway. I had starred in the golden days of radio as the fire chief.

I was depressed; I felt that I had been passed by. But my son-in-law and others urged me to keep active. I was offered a serious role in the movie, The Great Man. I was hesitant because I had never played a dramatic role in my life. But I did it.

DRAWS RAVES

The results were beyond my wildest dreams. I found myself being hailed by the critics as a dramatic find, and I was sought by many film and TV producers for serious roles.

Naturally, this has been highly gratifying to me as an artist. But I have enjoyed even more the inspiration that my example has apparently given to other mature citizens.

I have been asked by several groups for my ideas on such matters as growing old and retiring, and I have been happy to oblige.

Some of my ideas are strictly personal. I may be unique in that I feel I have always had a Peter Pan mind. I have thought of myself as young all my life, and I still feel that way at 71. This latest boost to my career has been so exhilarating that it takes me back 25 or 30 years in outlook.

THINK, ACT YOUNG

This is corroborated by my doctor, who says that I am in the physical condition of a man much younger than my years. I feel that if you want to stay young, you must think and act young. If don't meet new people and keep up your interests, new activities, new friends to keep your mind alive.

MEET NEW FRIENDS

I believe it's a good idea for a retired people to move to a new neighborhood instead of staying where they have lived for many years. The reason is that your younger, married friends may be too busy to spend time with you and you are liable to become a very lonely person.

One of the dreadful things about old age is loneliness. It can be avoided if you remain an interesting person yourself.

Another danger of old age is exaggeration. If your mind isn't active, your fears can be blown up beyond all proportions. You begin to worry that each ache and pain is a portent of death, that your children don't love you any more. You worry about your financial status, even about crossing a street.

I've found a formula for avoiding these exaggerated fears of age: YOU take care of every day; let the calendar take care of the years.

Aussie Miler Gets Blast From Writer

MELBOURNE (AP) — A leading Australian sports writer has strongly criticized Australian mile champion Herb Elliott's acceptance of invitations to run in the United States in May and June this year.

Writing Monday in the Melbourne Age, Bruce Welch says: "This decision hardly seems in Elliott's best interests if the Empire Games mile title is his prime aim.

"Elliott's decision to go almost certainly is his own as coach Percy Cerutty said last week he favored quiet preparations for the Empire Games in July."

Elliott has agreed to race in the Modesto (Calif.) relays and the United States championships and presumably, says Welch, will go straight from there to the Empire Games in Wales.

ARREST YOUTH

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 21-year-old Grantham youth wanted for the abduction of a 16-year-old St. Catharines girl was arrested nearby Grimsby Thursday night. Eugene Pally was remanded without plea until Feb. 27 when cash bail will be appeared in court Friday. The girl was returned to her parents.

Speed Events At Barrie

BARRIE (CP) — Bob Snyder, United States senior men's outdoor speed skating champion, will participate in the international speed skating meet here this weekend. Snyder swept all events at last year's meet here.

Pat Thomas, chairman of the meet, said Monday other top competitors are Tom Garzatina, Terry Brown, Terry McDermott and Cathy Sullivan.

The meet here Saturday and Sunday will be on Kempenfeldt Bay.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was going an errand for ma, and Glasses Magee was in front of his house and I said, How about coming to the market with me?

I did if you give me one of those cigar bands, Glasses said.

Meening the 2 on my fingers out I says ah sure, and I went him one and we saw Flora and Dora the bewsy looking twins in the next block where they lived and I said, Hay, how about if you give your picture to Dora and I give mine to Flora, and if they wear them for rings that means they're engaged and we will be bi their fellows for real.

Well heck, then they'll expect us to do everything they say and spend all our money on them, Glasses said, and I said, I don't what ot? You know how quick they would wear out, and that we can use our own judgement about giving them another cigar band, and then we could get a new cigar broken I said.

Yeah, but they're libel to put fresh cigar bands on themselves without us knowing the difference, and then we'll be stuck for good, Glasses said. You can if you want to, but as for me I'm going to take a chance, he said, and I said, Well heck, I don't want to be responsible all alone.

Nobody's forcing you, Glasses said, and I said, Well okay, I'll just let them see them on our fingers, and if they ask for them at least we'll know they're willing to be engaged.

And we stopped to talk to them and waved our fingers around, but they didn't ask for the cigar bands so we didn't do anything Cits about it.

WORRIED ABOUT DOGS

TOKYO (Reuters) — Dog-lovers Monday asked Parliament to save 15 husky dogs left behind in the Antarctic when they were banished by the Japanese Antarctic expedition. They presented 1,000 letters from children and a petition with 3,000 signatures to the expedition's headquarters. The Japanese expedition was airlifted from Prince Island last month because the icebreaker Soya Maru could not reach them with relief supplies.

PEARSON BLAMES

"If the reasons put forward by the government are not valid, you cannot vote for the Conservative party."

RADIO TIME

Mr. Pearson, who speaks tonight on the CBC's English-language television network, said Monday night he hadn't time to discuss his own proposal of reducing taxes by $400,000,000. But he did not go back on a promise. "I can assure you that, as long as i am in public life, I shall never make promises which I know cannot be fulfilled."

He was the successor to former party leader Louis St. Laurent. He did not intend to "forget the example of frankness and sincerity he has set."

"Moreover, I do not intend to disown my past."

Mr. Pearson appeared on the program with Lionel Chevrier, one-time transport minister and now chief of the federal Liberals in Quebec.

The cuts were better than large-scale works programs as means of easing unemployment, he added.

HITS YUKON LOCALE

Unemployment was heaviest in the heavily-populated areas, especially in Quebec. But the Conservatives planned to build the $100,000,000 highway in the Yukon vicinity "because there is nothing — and therefore no unemployment."

Do the Conservatives intend to force the unemployed of our cities to leave for the Yukon in our country to find jobs?"

Mr. Pearson leaves by train for Montreal where midwestern Ontario tonight to resume his search for votes in an area that was in large-ly held by Conservatives.

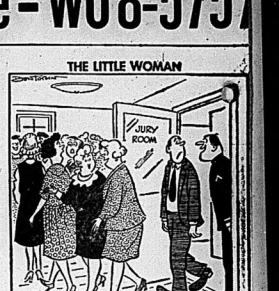
One of the first things he will do Wednesday night will find him in Scarborough, a Toronto suburb. Thursday, in the Kitchener-Waterloo area; Friday in the London area; and Saturday at Niagara Falls, St. Catharines and Welland.

He will fly to Vancouver Sunday to open an 8-day campaign across the four western provinces.

6th Tyendinaga

6TH TYENDINAGA — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Meredith.

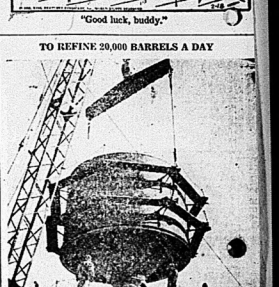
Mr. and Mrs. Roy Boldrick and Eileen were Sunday supper guests with Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodman and children.



Mr. Russel Boldrick called on his mother, Mrs. J. Boldrick on Monday, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodman and children called on Mr. and Mrs. Gray on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McKenzie spent the dinner hour Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McKenzie, Belleville.



Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton spent the dinner hour Thursday with Mrs. J. Emerson.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

TO REFINE 20,000 BARRELS A DAY

At Bronte, Ontario, a tower section of a new cat-cracker lowered into position in zero weather. The cracker is part of the $27,000,000, 20,000-barrel-a-day oil refinery scheduled for completion early in 1959.

Progressive Conservative supporters blamed whirling snow and icy roads for the theatre having about 300 empty seats.

Earlier at the Toronto luncheon, attended by Progressive Conservative members of the Ontario legislature, Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Frost exchanged compliments.

Said Mr. Diefenbaker: "Your co-operation, wise counsel and wisdom have meant more to me than I can ever possibly pay as adequate tribute to."

Said Mr. Frost: Mr. Diefenbaker's personality "was responsible for the "tremendous things that have happened" since last June.

The prime minister said Mr. Frost had given his support in the election last year "without hesitation for any course" to be taken by the new government.

At Brantford, Mr. Diefenbaker said that Liberal leader Louis St. Pearson, soon after he was appointed, had told a press conference that it would be foolish to pin responsibility for unemployment on the federal government.

Then at Hamilton last week Mr. Pearson had said the government must accept the responsibility.

"Ladies and gentlemen you pay your money and you take your choice," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This city, whose metropolitan area population is 55,000 was chosen for the prime minister's first campaign appearance in Ontario following a four-day swing through Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Six Conservative members of the last Parliament from this immediate area were on the platform including Jack Wratten, who won Brantford riding last year from the Liberals by a 1,805 vote margin.

Mr. Diefenbaker promised special aid in future for small business men through a special branch of government to be established.

This branch would provide advice, present the problems of small business to the cabinet, and recommend a system of special loans to small business.

FORMER

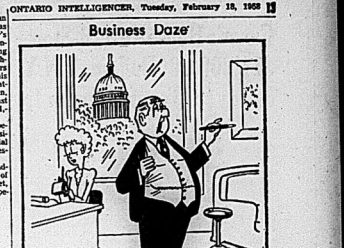
A candidate for Quebec East, the seat of former prime minister Sir Wilfrid Laurier and of the late Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, will be chosen later this month at a nomination convention.

Mr. St. Laurent is senior counsel in a law firm established by his sons Renaud and Jean Paul, member for Temiscouata in the last Parliament, and is expected to devote himself now to law, his first love.

He was a corporation lawyer with a $50,000-a-year practice when he was approached by former prime minister Mackenzie King, who sought him as spokesman for French Canadians following the death of Mr. Lapointe, his first lieutenant.

Mr. St. Laurent took a cabinet post as justice minister in the time duty in December, 1941, at the age of 59. In 1946 he became external affairs minister and helped found the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.



In 1948 he became prime minister and leader of the Liberal party on the retirement of Mr. King, and in 1949, at 67, led his party to its greatest victory: 193 of 262 Commons seats.

Mr. St. Laurent, who speaks perfect French and English, was the first French-Canadian prime minister since Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was defeated in 1911.

He again led the party to victory in 1953.

In Ottawa, Liberal Leader Lesage said: "I regret very much that his condition doesn't make it possible for him to be a candidate in the election."

He added: "I was delighted to learn, however, that he will be able to help us in the campaign in Quebec."

Trade and Finance Ministers Meet in Montreal in Sept.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commonwealth will begin the giant task of remodelling the 11-country partnership into a more powerful world trading force at an historic meeting to open at Montreal next Sept. 18.

Initiated by the Canadian government, the two-week meeting of trade and finance ministers will be held in the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Such vital issues as free trade, tariffs and the flow of capital will be discussed.

Out of those discussions may come plans for applying Britain's Anglo-Canadian free trade proposal to all Commonwealth countries, a move that would perhaps eliminate all artificial barriers to trade among Commonwealth countries.

Or there may be such suggestions, informants said, as the reorganization of imperial preferences that had been reduced or eliminated since the widely-discussed country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade came into force in 1948.

Ways of increasing the flow of capital investment into the less-developed parts of the Commonwealth also will be discussed, along with the impact of the proposed European industrial free trade area which Britain has stated she plans to join.

The conference was first proposed by the Progressive Conservative administration last year and a meeting of finance ministers at Mont Tremblant, Que., last September agreed to recommend the proposal for their governments. The Canadian government announced Monday night that the time and place for the conference have been accepted by all the Commonwealth.

Now the huge job of organizing the conference and developing the agenda begins. A meeting of Commonwealth officials has just been concluded at London and another one will be convened early next June to approve the agenda.

Canada House New 26-Storey $11,000,000 Building in N.Y. Ready for Tenants March 1st

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

The 26-storey, $11,000,000 structure is expected to be ready for the first tenants by March 1, says D. L. Cowger, project manager for the Walsh Construction Company.

The commanding edifice of granite, limestone, steel and marble stands on fashionable Fifth Avenue, on a choice location at 54th Street in the heart of the city.

The skyscraper became a subject of controversy after Ottawa decided last November it would not take space in the building, as had been planned. In New York associates in the venture breathed a sigh of relief when this decision was reversed by External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith following hearings by the Commons external affairs committee.

The minister announced the new decision after William Zeckendorf, millionaire New York realtor, told the committee he is willing to turn over to Canada his 53-per-cent equity in the building once its debt is retired.

This means that the government now regards Canada House as more than a "merely commercial undertaking," and opens the way for federal agencies to rent space.

A spokesman for Cushman and Wakefield Incorporated, operators of the building, said the government is regarded as the "bellweather tenant." Increased leasing activity is expected now that the air has been cleared. A number of firms with Canadian connections already have signed, as well as American, German and Swiss firms.

A reporter, touring the building, found Cowger amid stacks of blueprints in his third-floor headquarters, while workmen were hard at their tasks on every level.

Cowger said construction will be "substantially" completed by March 1, when the first tenants will be able to move in, and fully completed by April 1, except for such jobs as partitioning, which will be determined by tenants as they sign. This work will continue intermittently through the spring and early summer.

The main shaft, rising sheer to a height of 333 feet over Fifth Avenue, is set back from a nine-storey base section. An appearance of dignity and permanence is attained by the use of Canadian granite at the base and Alabama limestone on the upper storeys.

Canada House, conceived and originally promoted by Ray Lawson, former consul - general in New York and lieutenant - governor of Ontario, stands hard beside St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal Church, a stately limestone building. One block away is St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral, which in turn faces Rockefeller Center, where the Canadian consulate now is located.

Behind Canada House is the Museum of Modern Art, with a large garden and a narrow strip of empty land between the two buildings. The museum has re-

"You don't have to ask my permission to go out at night—only to come in again!"

Neighbors Save Two Children In House Fire

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Two neighbors raced bravely into a burning building Sunday to rescue two children, lost inside in thick smoke.

The children were almost unconscious, coughing and half-blinded. The three-alarm blaze left only a black shell of the Ledoux Building on King Street in midtown Sherbrooke. Damage was estimated at more than $300,000.

One fireman was slightly injured when he cut his foot with an axe while another was overcome by smoke and had to be treated in hospital.

Heroes of the blaze, though, appeared to be Romeo Ainslee and Antonio Hebert, neighbors who heard Mrs. Alfred Beaudoin shouting that her two children—Jean Marc, 13, and a girl, 11—were still in the smoke-filled structure.

One man rushed in, found the boy and carried him to the street. He couldn't face another try, and the second man ventured inside, emerging a few minutes later with the girl.

Canadian Centre

Nearing completion on New York's Fifth Avenue is Canada House, a 26-storey office building planned as a centre for Canadian government and business offices. Part of St. Thomas' Church can be seen flanking the building on Fifth Avenue and the large structure in the upper left background is the recently-completed Tishman Building. — (CP Photo.)

tained 150 feet of air rights over the strip, where it plans to erect temporary exhibitions in summer, as it has in the past. But no permanent structure is planned there, a spokesman said.

Outside, a handsomely sculptured panel of heraldic shields resembles a badge worn on the left lapel of Canada House. With representative symbols of the 10 provinces and the nation itself, the panel is 12 feet high and 10 feet wide.

In addition, the authentic coats-of-arms of the provinces and the federal government will appear along the polished granite base facing the forecourt, which forms the main entrance. These plaques in moulded bronze, with the brilliant heraldic colors in porcelain enamel, came from the Birmingham Guild in England.

Giant Federal Public Works Plan Announced

Govt. Plans to Spend Total of $1,185,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has announced a $1,185,000,000 public works program for 1958.

Award of tenders for $12,320,000 in new government shipping also was announced Tuesday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker unveiled the works program in a statement following a cabinet meeting. He estimated spending would total $280,000,000 during the first three months of the year.

Earlier, government figures showed unemployment in Canada has hit its highest point since the depression of the 1930s. The announcement in a public works game as Canada's top labor union leader called for "utmost" efforts by governments and employers to find jobs.

The leader, President Claude Jodoin of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, predicted the situation will get worse before it improves. He issued his statement after the government estimated 520,000 were jobless and looking for work in mid-January.

Transport Minister George Hees disclosed award of the ship building contracts in an election campaign speech in Kingston.

GIVES NO DETAILS

Mr. Diefenbaker's announcement gave no details about location or size of individual works projects with one exception — a proposed $15,000,000 addition to the $3,000,000 for the South Saskatchewan River project.

He said a schedule of the larger works and the provinces where they are to be undertaken will be announced later.

Mr. Hees announced award of contracts for three' ice-breaking, buoy and supply ships for use in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Maritime, Atlantic, and west coast waters; a redesigned $4,000,000 supply ship for the Bay of Fundy and other Maritime waters; and a workship and a lightship for the lower St. Lawrence.

An additional $600,000 was to be spent on converting two wartime landing craft to fit them for hauling petroleum and dry cargo in the Arctic.

Mr. Hees said it is expected work on these six vessels — all for his department — will get under way shortly.

The lightship for the lower St. Lawrence will be built at the Kingston shipyards at a cost of $500,000. The work ship for the lower St. Lawrence is to be built by the Russel Hipwell Company of Owen Sound, at an estimated cost of $950,000.

Mr. Hees said unemployment will be an important item before the CLC's executive council meeting here next week.

"Normally, the peak of unemployment is not reached until March," Mr. Jodoin said. So we can anticipate that unemployment will be worse before they get better. . . .

Government agencies blamed the drop in employment on reduced construction, declines in heavy industries and seasonal declines in construction, agriculture and manufacture of transportation equipment.

Opposition Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson—in an election campaign pause at Ottawa said that "the grim statistical figures will stop "the carefree, happy-go-lucky" spokesmen attempting to "minimize the unemployment problem."

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Athens news agency reported Tuesday that Greek shipping magnate Stavros Niarchos has issued instructions for Greeks to replace all foreign seamen serving in his tanker fleet.

Town Without Water as Workmen Can't Find Valve to Stop Flood

MEAFORD, Ont. (CP)—Workmen were out early today searching for the cut-off valve to stem a flood from a broken watermain which has cut off water supplies to most of the 5 miles east and west of Owen Sound since Monday night.

The runoff has left the general hospital and most industries with only enough water to run their heating boilers. Half the homes are without any running water.

Hospital official A. B. Hamer said the situation is not as critical as some reports indicated. "It is uncomfortable and more of a nuisance than anything," he said.

A major operation was cancelled today at the hospital because the supply of sterile water was used up Tuesday. Water now is hauled to the hospital in milk cans to supply drinking, laundry and cooking. There are 26 patients in the hospital.

Temperatures around strong winds sweeping in off Georgian Bay hampered workmen in their search for the cut-off valve. They worked until midnight Tuesday night and began at dawn again today.

They believe the valve is buried near the approach to a new bridge over the Big Head River about 2½ miles south of town where the watermain break occurred.

Kingston Goalie Charged After Officer Struck

KINGSTON (CP) — Doug Finney, sponsor and goaltender of Kingston Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A series, was charged today with assaulting a police officer. He will appear in Napanee court next Tuesday.

The charge resulted from an outbreak that halted a Kingston-Napanee hockey game Saturday night. Napanee won the game 11-7, scoring its last three goals after forward Tim Tinkess took over Kingston goaltending duties.

The keen rivalry between the two teams erupted in the third period and five police constables went on the ice to quell the disturbance.

It is understood that the OHA will consider the matter at a meeting Saturday in Toronto.

Three Powers Asked to Join Russia in Pact

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet government today appealed to Britain, the United States and France to join her in an international agreement creating a nuclear-free zone in Central Europe.

The proposal backed Poland's plan to establish an atom-free zone in East and West Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Tonight's statement said as atom-free zone on the lines suggested by Poland would help other steps aimed at eliminating the danger of atomic war.

It said the plan would help world security and that Central Europe is "one of the most dangerous regions."

The Soviet statement said NATO forces directly face those of the Warsaw Pact with an unusual concentration of troops and various modern weapons.

ASK NEW PACT

It said the Soviet government is ready to "undertake the obligation to refrain from the use of a nuclear-free zone in Central Europe"—provided Britain, the United States and France did the same.

The Polish plan, first proposed last October, calls for the prohibition of nuclear weapons in the designated countries.

In addition, it calls upon the Big-Four powers to pledge not to use nuclear weapons against the zone or to arm their Air Lifts within the zone with such weapons.

Today's Chuckle

Discretion is what comes to a man when he is too old for it to do him any good.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:
While it is still cold in Ontario it is considerably milder than it was 24 hours ago. Temperatures are near zero in northern and central regions but range from 10 to 20 in southern sections.

It is cloudy throughout most of the province and will remain so through Thursday. Snowfalls are mainly light and drifting is quite serious in many places.

SILLY TO ARGUE SLUMP WARNING GIVEN--PEARSON

Report Predicted Increase in Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says the Progressive Conservatives' argument that the Liberals were warned last spring of recession is "silly."

The government report which Prime Minister Diefenbaker maintains gave this warning also predicted that in 1957 national income, employment and business would increase, the Liberal leader said in a national television broadcast.

The broadcast Tuesday night along with Mr. Diefenbaker on the CBC's live political program devoted to campaign issues just before rejoining his campaign train in Ontario for votes in Toronto and southwestern Ontario. Mr. Diefenbaker was in the Maritimes.

"We both acted like statesmen," Mr. Pearson told a reporter in reference to the television statements of two political leaders.

But there were indications that Mr. Diefenbaker would stiffen his fight as he hit the tough Conservative strongholds in the Toronto area.

SPEAK IN CITY

Tuesday's televised campaign schedules him to speak tonight in Toronto's York-Scarborough riding, while Mr. Pearson will speak former health minister, speaks in the neighboring Toronto Trinity area.

Earlier, Mr. Pearson plans to speak in Hamilton to complete some television shorts for distribution in the Hamilton area.

He has maintained all through the early part of the campaign that the Conservatives are responsible for aggravating unemployment because they didn't take speedy action last autumn to meet the economic recession through a bold, frontal attack.

The Conservatives, he said Tuesday night, have a wrong diagnosis of the situation. They thought the cure was worse than the trouble after a brief decline.

Twelve Persons Removed From Fishing Huts

DUCLOS POINT, Ont. (CP)—Twelve persons, two of them women, were brought in by rescuers Tuesday after being stranded since Sunday on Lake Simcoe fishing huts seven miles north of here.

Those rescued, all from Orangeville, had been stranded by high winds and drifting snow which made it impossible to find their way home.

Mrs. Don Sheppard said the party, straggling in two groups was sighted by residents of this resort about 35 miles north of Toronto.

The rescued party said: "We just sat out the storm. We knew it would be futile to try to find our way out during that windstorm. We'd be dead today if we hadn't stayed."

Mrs. Gertrude Lamb of Duclos Point said Tuesday she picked up the party in his truck.

"They had lots of food but were cold and beginning to get scared."

24 Sailors Swept to Deaths After Lifeboat Is Capsized

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Twenty-seven sailors who had abandoned the sinking Italian freighter Bonitas were pitched into the stormy Atlantic when their lifeboat capsized Tuesday night as a rescue ship tried to pluck them to safety.

Three were saved and 24 were swept away by 30-foot seas.

Throughout the night, American Navy destroyer escorts and the French steamship Cavalaire searched vainly for the missing men in poor visibility.

The stricken freighter's crew abandoned ship in one lifeboat shortly before 6 p.m., several hours after the ship had sent an S O S from her position 120 miles east of Cape Lookout, N.C.

The President Adams reached the Bonitas about 8 p.m., but informed the coast guard in Norfolk that she had trouble getting to the lifeboat because of "high seas, blinding snowstorm and gale winds."

NICE, France (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill was reported this morning to have passed "a good night" despite an illness described as a chill which put him to bed Tuesday.

A staff member at the villa where the 83-year-old British statesman was recuperating said the former prime minister had suffered a "chill" and required rest. He insisted that Churchill's condition is not serious.

The informant also used the word "flu" in describing Churchill's sickness, but in Britain that term is commonly used to describe anything beyond an ordinary cold.

The elder statesman was put to bed Tuesday and his doctor, Lord Moran, was called from London. Moran was due later today and a medical bulletin was to be issued after he examined Churchill.

A local physician, Dr. David Roberts, who was called to attend the former prime minister Tuesday, said Churchill was in bed enough this morning "to enjoy his breakfast and smoke a cigar."

Churchill's son, Randolph, in New York on a lecture tour, said he had been in touch with London and was not alarmed about his father. He said he plans no change in itinerary at present.

Sir Winston's eldest daughter, Mrs. Diana Sandys, said in London: "I have been in touch with my father but cannot tell you anything about his condition. I have not made plans to go to Nice."

PRIME MINISTER PLUGS PROGRAM TO AID JOBLESS

No New Promises Made on Telecast

MONTREAL (CP)—John Diefenbaker continues to drum for his Progressive Conservative government's billion-dollar public works program this year as the answer to unemployment.

But Tuesday night he went further, promising to take any practical step to counter unemployment, which the government announces Tuesday stood at a post-war record of 520,000 in mid-January.

"As long as I'm prime minister of Canada," he said in a live broadcast, "everything that can be done—everything without regard to limit—will be done to the end that no one will suffer."

The prime minister unveiled no major new election promises in his speech but he did say for the first time on the CBC's free-time election broadcast series that a national television network.

Today he flies to Newfoundland for a speech tonight at St. John's and another Thursday at Grand Falls.

NEW EMPHASIS

A three-hour snowfall Tuesday left four inches of snow in Montreal, snow and high winds Tuesday night continued to disrupt the city's transportation. Some businesses closed early to allow employees to get an early start home.

Eight school children, unable to reach their snowbound homes, spent the night at the home of friends — at Royal Charles school in the Montreal suburb of Lasalle.

Falling wind velocities in Southern Ontario enabled parties of stranded motorists to get out of drifts while on fishing on Lake Simcoe to get back to shore.

Three Centres In Georgian Bay Area Isolated

High Winds Fill Roads In Again Behind Plows

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's snow-belt area struggled groggily today to open and clogged roads and restore communications to a number of cutoff communities.

High winds and blowing snow accompanying the winter's longest cold spell filled in many roads as fast as plows could open them.

The storm's impact was worst in the area between Barrie and Collingwood, south of Georgian Bay. Creemore, Wasaga Beach and Stayner have been isolated since Sunday. Highways in the district are clogged with drifts eight to 10 feet deep and littered with abandoned cars and trucks. The village of Cartwright near Stratford also was isolated.

NIAGARA SNOWED IN

Similar conditions continued to batter the Niagara peninsula. Snow was falling in the Niagara Falls area at a rate of 18 inches in 24 hours. All schools in the Lincoln Niagara area were closed for the third consecutive day. Bus services were cut after about two feet of persons battled drifts up to 15 feet deep to get to work.

LONDON (Reuters)—The traditionally staid BBC has become the target of furious criticism for its "This Is Your Life" television programme.

Critics have blasted the government television network on the air, in newspapers and in a town version of American keyhole show which specializes in "tear-jerking" emotional treatment.

Three newspapers with a combined circulation of more than 10,000,000 have ganged up on the BBC and its show in the past week.

The Daily Sketch columnist, Candidus, says the show has "reached the stage where its impact is purely emotional and is judged purely by the amount of emotion generated by its weekly victim." There is nothing to do with decency or human dignity."

The tabloid Daily Mirror's big-selling columnist, Cassandra, criticized the non-stop exercise in embarrassment wrapped up in unbearable sentiment" and says "it's about time this maudlin mush was broken up."

James Thomas, television critic of The Daily Express, says he saw the original version in the United States and then felt sure the "tactless sentimental saga" would not be imported by the BBC.

Churchill's son-in-law, Christopher Soames, said the "indisposition is very minor; we hope it will be only a few days."

Anxiety about Churchill arose when he did not appear at the airport to meet his wife. Reporters became more disturbed when his private secretary, Montagu Browne, said Churchill was "terribly tired" and appealed to reporters not to telephone the villa. Churchill looked fit when he flew here last month for a painting holiday. Rumors that he was selling were denied at the time.

Board Delays Final Approval Of 1958 Budget

Although the 1958 budget has been finalized, members of the Board of Trustees, High School Board, are hopeful that recently announced increased educational grants from the province will mean a reduction in the school rate.

Board members have worked out budget requirements for the year but, before the final approval until they are advised of what additional grants will be received.

At the regular February meeting of the board held this Tuesday night members considered salary requests from teachers.

Increases in maximum and minimum salary and an across the board salary increases are being asked. The decision of the board will be presented to the teachers.

The board heard a delegation headed by Rev. Hope Smith of Calvary Temple, asking for a reduction in the rental of the collegiate auditorium for religious functions. However, after considerable discussion, the board decided to make no change from the present rates.

Principal Ross Hamilton is having duties for one year was granted by the Board. Dorothy Hamilton, Collegiate staff member, and the resignation of Miss Donna Hopkins, commercial and mathematics teacher at Quinte Secondary school, was accepted, effective January 31st.

LETTER OF THANKS

The board authorized a letter of appreciation to Hastings county council for the loan of snow fence used to help stabilize the campus last summer after sodding of the campus was completed.

Letters to bus operators will also go out requesting adequate help be provided for all school buses. Drivers were also asked to keep the interior of buses near the school during school hours.

At a special meeting of the board on February 11, members decided that a proposed new third high school should be a composite building to provide for both academic and vocational studies. Eisenhower Asks Almost 4 Billion For Foreign Aid

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today asked Congress for $3,943,100,000 in foreign aid. He said any sharp cut would lead to a massive increase in defence spending and huge taxes.

A cut would also result in a heavy increase in infections of American ground into the armed forces, he said, and leave the United States economically beleaguered in a world dominated by communism.

Eisenhower called the aid plan a deterrent to general nuclear war, and added:

"For the safety of our families, for the future of our children and our continued existence as a nation, we cannot afford to slacken our support of the mutual security program."

HAS OPPOSITION

The strong appeal went to Congress against the background of an already-intense drive by some members to make sharp cuts in the program, particularly the economic-aid phase.

Eisenhower asked for $2,035,000,000 for military aid and $1,908,100,000 for related defence support. The balance—$1,307,100,000 — is mainly for economic aid.

In pressing once more for economic assistance for nearly-independent countries, he said the Communists are targeting many of the new countries with offers of such help.

Eisenhower last year asked Congress for just a shade under $4,000,000,000 in funds, as he did today for the new program. Last year only $3,800,000,000 was appropriated.

E. K. BRICKENDEN

Story of Terylene Subject of Talk To Kiwanians

A scientific success story — "from test tube to textile" — was told by E. K. Brickenden, chemical engineer at the Millhaven plant of Canadian Industries Limited, at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday evening.

The new synthetic "wonder fabric," formed by combining two raw materials which are petroleum in origin, contains a combination of qualities not found in any other material on the market today, Mr. Brickenden stated.

It can be a "wash and wear —no iron"—type of fabric. It is gentle to the touch, strong, resistent to chemicals and the elements, resilient yet won't stretch out of shape, and is durable. It can be combined with other types of materials such as cotton, nylon and wool to form a type of fabric which has the appearance of cotton, nylon or wool, but with the qualities of terylene.

A British invention (it was invented by two chemists by the names of Windfield and Dickson in 1941), it was introduced here by the Dupont Co. which was busy experimenting with another synthetic fabric — orlon, the speaker said.

Describing the potential of Terylene, the I.C.I. of Canada Ltd., in 1953 built the plant at Millhaven and to supply the Canadian textile market. Dupont later began manufacturing terylene in the United States under the name "dacron."

Today there are terylene plants in Holland, France, Germany and Italy, and even Russia is attempting to secure a license to build a plant there, he said.

The Millhaven plant, on the Bath road, west of Kingston, covers 40 of the CIL-owned 5,000 acres. Geographically, it is in the centre of the textile triangle, Hamilton and the CNR railway assist in conveying the raw materials to textile factories in Ontario and Quebec, where it is made into garments, pillows, curtains, rope, sleeping bags, and other such articles, he explained.

IT'S SHAPE BETTER

Men's suits, when made from a combination of terylene and wool, keep their shape to a performance better than any other type of fabric, and permanently pleated skirts of the same blend of material can be hand washed and skip dried, the speaker said.

"The pleats stay in even after washing and no ironing is necessary," he said.

Terylene is suitable for many other purposes, men's shirts, pyjamas. It is woven with cotton for nurses' uniforms, men's slacks. It is manufactures into rope that will not stretch, and into pillows which are soft, yet resilient, and non-allergenic.

"These are just some examples of the type of articles manufactured from terylene. Every day we are discovering, through experimentation at our plant, interesting number of uses for this wonderful fabric," he stated.

Mr. Brickenden during his address showed samples of terylene articles, terylene crystals and filament yarn.

The speaker is a native of Weldon, Alta. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1949 with a bachelor of applied science and chemical engineering degree. He joined the staff of CIL, in Toronto, in 1955 he was transferred to the Millhaven plant, following six months course at the Imperial Industries Tor; lene Co. in England. He is a member of the Chemical Institute of Canada and the Professional Engineers of Ontario.

Mr. Brickenden was introduced by past-president J. C. R. "Bud" Punchard, and thanked by Frank Creeggan. A token of the club's appreciation was presented by president Charles Lasak.

REQUIREMENTS OUTLINED

Emphasizing the main requirements for the safe operation of a motor vehicle Mr. Hunter as the guest speaker said that while the highway was no place for carelessness or cockiousness.

In illustrating this point he told the true life story of three boys who were killed instantly, after early war success in sinking over 300,000 tons of Allied shipping and the loss of other types of materials such as cotton, nylon and wool to form a lene.

In illustrating this point he told the true life story of three boys who were killed instantly, after early war success in sinking over 300,000 tons of Allied shipping and the loss of other types of materials such as cotton, nylon and wool to form a cause of carelessness with result that the Germans were able to pump their submarine warfare.

"It's just a reminder that all drivers can do a little bit to prevent accidents," he said.

Four main points are vital for the prevention of accidents were: 1—Knowledge of your vehicle, with enough "know how" to determine when motor or controls were not operating efficiently. 2—Knowledge of the road, and knowing what to do under different driving conditions. 3—Proper attitude — being safety conscious.

Mr. Hunter noted that the driver who makes up his mind that at all costs he is going to prevent accidents, is the one most likely to have an accident-free records.

The speaker commended Belleville district drivers on their improved record over 1956 with the number of accidents dropping from six in that year to only two last year. Of the latter, the district, 29 were receiving safe driving awards.

Mr. J. J. Cowan, personnel supervisor for Brewers' Warehousing Company, head office, introduced the speaker and brought greetings from headquarters.

Mayor Gerald Hyde welcomed district drivers and guests to the city and commended drivers on their outstanding effort in safe driving. Robert Hamilton also spoke briefly in praise of drivers for their safe driving record.

Belleville drivers receiving awards were: H. Magill, 1 year; J. Putman, 4 years; H. Lobsinger and H. Orr, 5 years; L. Lumniss, 6 years; W. Cox, 7 years; and H. Campney, Napanee, 10 years.

Six of the drivers receiving awards were from Kingston and two from Cobourg.

Police Hunt Armed Convicts

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Rural police were ordered out today to hunt for 21 armed convicts who escaped during a revolt in a Galapagos Island penal colony and forced an Ecuadorian warship to take them to the mainland.

There was little hope that the men would be found in the dense jungle area.

The Galapagos government reported that the other 75 prisoners on Isabela Island have been rounded up and returned to their quarters.

The convicts made their escape on a yacht owned and sailed by William Rhodes Hervey of Los Angeles, who was taking supplies to an observatory in the islands.

Hervey reported that the convicts locked his boat but did not harm his crew. The yacht later headed by Panama.

Teacher Rebels Against Working In New Field

OTTAWA (CP) — Teachers were advised Tuesday to expect greater community demands on their time, and a veteran Saskatoon woman teacher rebelled.

Steve Davidovich of Toronto, assistant director of the Ontario education department's community programs branch, told the Canadian Conference on Education that a trend involving teachers in community programs was indirectly "will probably continue as it appeals to many."

"In the whole field of extra-curricular work which involves community enterprises," she said "teachers should be relieved of more responsibilities than any other group in the town!"

DEMANDS HIGH

Teaching was becoming increasingly complex, she demands already left teachers little time for personal dealings with their students. Extra - curricular duties already were becoming overwhelming, and were preventing teachers from carrying a full academic load in the classroom.

Teachers even were being ordered to direct plays. Was such a shift from church and drama to be considered relief?

"So in my role as teacher I teach health: I counsel: I expound religion: author: I instruct safety patrols: I unfold the mysteries of family life; and through it all I feel the inherent strain in my class work as I deal with so many different personalities and with wide range of abilities and interests."

No Extension For Getting 1958 Markers

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario motorists will be disappointed if they expect an extension of the March 12 deadline for getting 1958 registration plates and drivers' licences, Highways Minister Allan said today.

About 72 per cent of the province's motorists have yet to get their plates although "the department has made it quite clear there will be no extension," he said. There could be "unprecedented inconvenience" in the last-minute rush if motorists continue to delay.

Finance Chairman of Council Favors Drawing Basic Budget

TRENTON — The setting of dates for Daylight Saving Time in Trenton, a caution that budget time is nearing and committee reports highlighted the last regular meeting of the town council held in the Board Room of the Municipal Building on Monday.

A letter from the Canadian Railway Association informing the town they will be arranging their time tables to suit Daylight Saving Time which they will be observing from 12:01 a.m. April 27, to 12:01 a.m. October 26, was read by the clerk. They asked the town to approve dates similar to these to make it more convenient for passengers and to inform them of their decision as soon as possible.

With little discussion the council approved the same dates as suggested by the Railways Association to be observed by the town for 1958. Council members were informed that last year was the first that Daylight Saving Time was carried through until the end of October.

The clerk was instructed to inform the Railways Association of the decision.

Councillor Vagn Lange, chairman of the Finance Committee, cautioned the council that it would soon be time to draw up the budget for the forthcoming year. He urged each member of the council to begin thinking along these lines and that they (the boys) are feeling the increased prices and expenses from all angles.

Mr. Lange told the councillors there should be some sort of a basic budget drawn up before the next weeks to give his committee some idea of the amount of money the town will need for operations this year.

WANTS NEW EXTENSION

In the reports from committees Councillor Gould, chairman of the Public Works Committee, recommended the erection of an extension to the yard building. This extension would be constructed of concrete and would be 60 by 40 feet. He also suggested that tenders be issued for its construction.

His committee also recommended that join the Good Roads' Association and have a representative attend the annual convention of this group which will be held in the near future.

Another recommendation from the committee was the erection of directional signs on the new 401 Highway to guide tourists into the town. The report also pointed the way to by-roads which would lead off the highway and connect traffic to highways leading into the town. He recommended two signs pointing towards Highway 33 and the other onto Dundas and Miller Road. The matter of the signs could be left in the hands of the town engineer, he said.

Council approved the items of the report.

Councillor Hilton, chairman of the Sanitation and Waste Committee, made only one recommendation. He urged the councillors to approve the town's becoming a member of the Institution of Sewage and Sanitation, and to send a representative to the annual convention which will be held in Quebec City in the near future. The recommendation was passed.

ASKS UNIFORM POLICY

Councillor Wood, chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee, reported that he had noted increasing dissatisfaction due to boards, which have been appointed by the town giving wage increases that may appear to be out of line. He recommended these boards get together with the council and finance committee and seek to work out a uniform policy for all. It was approved.

A letter from Winnifred L. Mitchell applying for the use of the town hall to hold a one-person showing of oil paintings was read to the council.

Finance Chairman's Budget Basic

As Mrs. Mitchell did not specify a definite date, stating only "some time in the near future", Councillor Wood was appointed to get in touch with her and agree on a date for the showing.

The proposal to remove a retaining wall on the corner of Shuter and Pinn Street caused considerable discussion in council. It was brought out that the wall had been built three feet out on the town property and that it should be moved back.

A letter from the owner of the property, J. W. Thomson, 87 Pinn Street, said the wall was there when he had bought the property. He also said the wall helped to beautify the corner and if he was forced to remove it he would loose all interest in keeping the corner looking pleasant. He said he has done considerable work to keep weeds in check in the particular area during the past years.

DANGER TO TRAFFIC

Town Councillors felt that the retaining wall was a danger to traffic and if a car should run into it the town could be held responsible because it was on town property.

Although most councillors were in agreement with this it was pointed out that the wall was built by the town and made a survey of the matter and if it was found to be a mistake made then, due to a corner post being in the building, that the wall had been built on town property. A survey later and four feet of the wall had been built from the error. The council was instructed to have Shuter Street 40 feet wide and Pinn Street 40 feet wide. Councillors felt that the front of the wall had been built with the town's approval and that other property departments must take it was in the wrong place, then it is up to them to have to move it back with no expense to the present owner. One councillor stated, "after all, it's not his (the owner's) fault and he should not be put to pay for the mistake, made by a man in the employ of the town."

The entire matter was turned over to the Public Works Committee for final disposal.

The council adjourned at 11:25 p.m.

No Recession In Canada Says Stock Broker

REGINA (CP)—R. H. Dean of Montreal, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, says any depression in this country is only an "election depression".

Interviewed here Tuesday during a western tour, Mr. Dean said there is no recession in Canada and no suggestion of a depression. Politicians were responsible for it, he said, when they were talking of an "election depression."

Mr. Dean who is vice-president and general manager of Nesbitt, Thomson and Company Limited, said he expects the gross national product this year to be as high as the $30,000,000,000 in 1957. He also expected capital expenditure to be just as high as last year's total of $8,000,000,000 was read to the council.

Two Suspended Sentences on Assault Charges

TRENTON — Elsworth Figenshaw and Francis Troke, both of Trenton, were given a charge of the peace and assaulting town police officers. They appeared before Magistrate's Court here yesterday.

Constable R. C. Jackson, QC, also warned the men to keep the peace during their term of suspended sentence.

The incident started on the night of February 13 when officers on Dominion Street and the assault on the police officers came the same night when they tried to restist being placed in the town lock-up.

Ronald W. Cass, Belleville, counsel for the accused men, asked the Magistrate for a suspended sentence or a fine as he felt there was no evidence that they intended to break the law but were perhaps more inflamed because of the beverage they had been drinking that evening.

In handing down the sentence the magistrate said he felt that the matter was in the style of many cases such as these and although his sentence may have been severe, he felt in this case he did not want the public think anyone can attack police officers and get away with it.

Both men had pleaded not guilty to the assault charge but had entered a guilty plea to the causing a disturbance charge.

William Druce of Sidney St., Trenton, was remanded for a week when he appeared before Magistrate Jackson on a charge of car theft which occurred on February 13th. It was stated in the charge that the car belonging to Leslie Bird was taken and entered a plea of not guilty and elected to be tried by Magistrate's Court. He will be heard next Tuesday, February 25.

14-Year-Old Girl Takes Brothers To Safety

TRENTON — A fourteen-year-old girl placed the safety of her two tiny brothers before herself or their home early yesterday afternoon when she had the presence of mind to rescue them warning and take them to safety after she detected the smell of smoke.

Janet Woolsey, 14, was alone in their Doug Hill Road home with her brothers Robert, 2, and Paul, three, when the fire broke out in the upper storey of the home. Only about three-quarters of a mile outside the town limits, the Woolsey family of children, Mrs. Pauline Woolsey, was at work at the Canadian Storage when the flames broke out.

Before getting the children to safety, Janet rushed to a neighbor's, where the Trenton fire-men were called to the scene.

However, by the time the firemen were able to get there, Janet had managed to get a good hold and the house was filled with smoke. The firemen soon put up the 160 gallons of water they carried on their pumper and as no other source of water available they were forced to stand by and watch the house leveled.

They pushed Mrs. Woolsey's car from the driveway near the house to keep it from being destroyed.

None of the contents of the building were saved and it was reported there was no insurance carried on the furniture. The house, owned by Colin Crews, was insured against fire.

Many offers of aid have been received on behalf of the family who are at present staying with relatives.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Slippery Roads Cause Accidents

TRENTON — Six accidents between cars, one-hit-and-run case and another mishap which involved only one car were reported to town police officials yesterday.

All eight accidents were blamed on the slippery conditions of the street and highways and were terminated at over $100 in pay of the incidents.

Six accidents, all slight, involved two cars in which one of them was unable to stop because of icy conditions and slid into the back of the vehicle ahead.

In the hit-and-run case Charles Perry of R.R. 1 Trenton reported estimated damage of $15 to the right front fender of his pick-up truck when an unknown car struck it and kept going. Mr. Perry said his car was parked on the west side of Dufferin Street, near the front of Jones Grocery Store, and was facing north when it was hit.

Donald H. Bleecher of Foxboro reported damages of about $85 to the right front fender and bumper of his 1956 car when it skidded on slippery roads and crashed into a hydro pole. He said he was proceeding west on Dundas Street East at Gilmour's Hill when he hit the pole at the corner of Marmora and Dundas East.

There was no damage reported to the pole.

Rockets Down Falcons 7-3

TRENTON — The Rockets showed their "sweat sisters", the Falcons, little mercy on Monday night as they pounded out a 7-3 victory to take first place in the regular league schedule. They are now tied with the Comets for top spot in the Big Four roundrobin series. They have, however, played one more game than the Comets and so far the Comets tomorrow night would again put them on the front.

Auld was the big scorer for the Rockets, getting two of the goals. Scott, Ellis and Moore helped Reid, Gilkie, Crowder, Ehler and Loignan defend the Rockets' "shrine" in the assist department as he lined his team - mates up for those tallies.

Spencer, Brown and Legrand got the three markers for the Falcons, with Spencer also getting the only assist for his team.

Rockets made effective use of sin-bin with the Falcons making three.

The short-handed Falcons, dressed only nine players and used one of them exclusively in the nets. They had the Rockets at a 2-1 disadvantage in the first period but the Rockets came back to outscore the Falcons 3-0 in the second period and 3-0 in the third.

In other RCAF games on the same night, Sparks and Sandquarters battled to a 5-5 draw. Scoring for the Sparks were Bennett 2, Taylor 2 and defenceman Quigley, a single. For the Headquarters it was Lt. Gillan getting two and two with teammates Sproule, Smith and Brown getting one each.

In the Combines vs 6 Repair Depot game, which was snowed under 12-0 by the Repair Depot, the Combines were without the services of their goals, with the other two going to Putnam.

Trenton Council Briefs

WANT DETAILS

TRENTON—Councillors agreed that a more detailed explanation should be given by the town's insurance company as to why it cannot pay for damages sustained by a car being destroyed by William Anderson after a piece of iron, from a drain cover, had damaged the manifold to the extent of $35. The accident took place on the corner of West St. and North Scott St. A letter from the insurance company rejected the claim. It was the opinion of the council that more detailed could be obtained as to why the action was taken. They felt that if the town wanted to pay this they should be able to give Mr. Anderson the reason. The clerk was instructed to write a letter to the insurance company on the matter.

CROSSING WARNING

A letter from the Board of Transport Commission was read to the town council Monday night stating it would like to put a halt on the level railway crossing on West Street. The Commission stated it had conducted a survey of the crossing following an accident last December and found that an average of 16 trains used the rail line which crosses the street. It also stated there have been several accidents there and felt a warning signal, which operated automatically, should be put to warn motorists of an approaching train. The rail traffic was fairly heavy in this region. The council approved the proposal. It was believed it was customary for the railway company to pay 40 per cent of the costs with the B. T. C. paying another 40 per cent and the town paying the balance of 20 per cent. The railway will maintain the signal.

ACKNOWLEDGES LETTER

Both the Commanding Officer of RCAF Station Trenton, Group Captain R. M. Cox, and Mayor Gerald Hyde of Belleville have acknowledged letters of thanks from the town of Trenton for help in the recent fire on Front Street. Mr. Hyde stated he appreciates them for the help in the fire-fighters and equipment which was made available to the town during the recent fire.

EXEVICE STATIONS

Councillor Vagn Lange reported to the council on the investigation into the question of open hours for gasoline service stations in town during the evenings and on Sunday and holidays. He said he found that 90 per cent of the service stations in question open when they should. He said he had been in contact with Jack Middleton, who is in charge of this. He said Mr. Embleton was confined to bed with the flu illness but would bring in a full report on the matter soon.

PRESENT AT COUNCIL

Present at the council meeting on Monday night were Mayor Ross Burtt, Councillors Vagn Lange, James MacDonald, Joe Gould, Charles Hilton and Lloyd Worrall, town clerk-treasurer O. W. Layng, the town engineer and town solicitor...

APPROVE SCENIC DRIVE

The council approved a resolution to endorse the proposal that the municipalities of Murray, Sidney and Frankford band join together to explore the possibilities of obtaining assistance from the provincial department in the promoting of the attractions of the Trent Valley, at least to Frankford, and further if feasible, through the picturesque area now inaccessible W. A. Goodfellow, minister of agriculture, and W. K. Sandercock, MPP.

MAKE APPEAL

An application from the Canadian Mental Health Association for a donation from the town was read and handed over to the Finance Committee, under the chairmanship of Councillor Vagn Lange, for consideration when the budget is drawn up.

A letter from the office of the Governor General of Canada informed the council Her Excellency Princess Margaret to Trenton had been received at Rideau Hall. KEEP THEM IGNORANT

Is ignorance bliss?

Some British doctors apparently think so.

They gave evidence of this attitude not once, but twice, the other day, in completely unrelated fields. By a coincidence, the BBC was involved in both.

Firstly, a representative of the British Medical Association took issue with the BBC for plans to televise cancer, brain and heart operations. He contended the show would make Britons "more neurotic" and declared the BBC chieftains were "determined to make peoples flesh creep."

This is not an unfamiliar attitude. Whenever anybody wants to widen the scope of knowledge, there are always some who believe such a course would be harmful. It is rather surprising, though, to find this view espoused by professional men whom most of us regard as essentially scientific.

The second instance of the advocacy of ignorance was of a different character. The BBC had announced annual physical examinations for its 88 leading executives. Annual physical examinations are widely endorsed on this continent. Some life insurance companies have gone so far as to encourage the practice by paying for examinations for their policy holders. They evidently believe this will reduce the death rate. Five British physicians, however, have written to The Times to say that such check-ups may be more trouble than they are worth. They go even further — in some cases such examinations may actually be harmful, they maintain. "If a middle-aged man has high blood pressure it is surely much better than he know nothing about it."

The layman can grasp the reason behind the last statement. Since high blood pressure can be affected by a person's nervous state, a man worrying about his blood pressure might thereby increase it. Yet most of us know instances where doctors have gone to considerable pains to warn their patients that they have high blood pressure and to explain how they should conduct themselves. Even with blood pressure, there seems to be a difference of opinion as to the value of knowledge. And when we remember the host of other conditions which may be detected in their earliest stages by annual physical examinations, the stand of the five British physicians appears inexplicable.

Or perhaps we should say that no reasonable explanation offers itself until one considers the letter to The Times in conjunction with the criticism of the BBC for its planned shows on surgery. Then one begins to wonder whether there is growing up in the British medical profession a new cult which believes that ignorance is bliss.

A LESSON IN MATHEMATICS

We heard the other day of a jet pilot flying from Winnipeg to Trenton in something under three hours That's travelling!

This swung around to the CF-105 "Arrow" that A. V. Roe Ltd. at Malton is building for the Royal Canadian Air Force. That jet plane is expected to fly at better than 1,500 miles per hour. Compared to the 450-mile-an-hour present day CF-100, the CF-105 will be capable of landing before it has become airborne.

Suppose a CF-105 pilot chose to fly from Malton to Vancouver, a distance, say of 2,500 air miles. If he took off from Malton airport at 8 a.m., he would land less than two hours later at Vancouver, where the time would be 7 a.m. That means he would land one hour before his scheduled take-off.

Or the man moves at the rate of 1,000 miles per hour. At 1,500 miles an hour or better in a CF-105, a pilot would, in effect, be growing younger, providing he flew westerly. If he flew easterly he would grow old before his time.

You think this is confusing? Consider the pilot's "plight" if he changed his east-west direction to north-south. Every time he reached the north or south poles, the time of day could be anything he wanted it to be. What's more, he would not be wrong, because all time zones converge at the poles.

Apart from the biological advantage that women have over men in their makeup, their chief aid to longer life spans is probably their zeal to make full use of modern knowledge concerning health. The industrial man still tends to hang on to the folklore that it is a sissy to pay attention to diet and to practice moderation in exercise or work. Often he wears himself out living up to the pretence that he is so rugged he can "stand anything." (Timmins Press.)

Loses Bright, Far World

New York Times

Not long ago the head of the house had an interesting experience. Telephoning from a cold box, he was asked by the operator to please give the number of the machine he was using. It was there, right before him, but was a blur. In order to go backward as far that he felt he could, he barely avoided leaving the store. After that he lifted an arrow to the eye man. The eye man made the usual sorry jokes about "bull's eyes" and shortsightedness, and then went on to tell how he spends his leisure doing crossword puzzles and similar things. In due time the glasses were fitted, giving the head of the house a surprisingly wide variety of appearances. They also brought the things of the near world so near that he actually could see them. They destroyed, however, all the things of the far world which he had been happily living for years.

On the whole, and with due respect to the eye man, he still prefers the world at a distance. He prefers it, that is, to technician, but he obviously lacked all understanding of his patient's basic philosophy. The head of the house always has had a wonderful way of getting by far off hills. He has enjoyed the theory that the wayward people and silhouettes on the horizon are of infinity. These are fun to him and, as he took pleasure in watching the gulls hover in the air over the waves but now, with glasses, he cannot see the gulls, or the ocean. Once he was able to glance at the horizon and immediately say whether there would be a storm. Now when he looks up he grows dizzy, and nothing whatever is on there. Deprived all of his unaided vision, he was able to spot a certain [illegible] and immediately [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FORSEY DERIDES TEACHING SYSTEM

Eugene Forsey, director of research for the Canadian Labor Congress, told the Canadian Conference of Education in Ottawa that we are in danger of "making our high schools adolescent playpens and our high school teachers glorified baby-sitters." He derided some of the tests and examinations in high schools and said the universities had to teach what should have been taught in high schools. Secondary schools were wasting their resources on pupils who were stupid and lazy.

M. MacDonald To Demonstrate Art of Painting

An interesting evening is to store for all Art enthusiasts on Wednesday, February 26th, at King George School, when Mr. Manly Macdonald, whose work is so admired by everyone in the Belleville area, will give a demonstration of painting at the local Art exhibit. Last year a similar demonstration was given and was so enjoyed by everyone that the Arts and Crafts Club asked Mr. Macdonald to be the guest speaker at a meeting in the Fall. Unfortunately at the last minute he was unable to attend, but promised to come later on in the year, and when contacted recently agreed to come on the 26th of this month.

Manly Macdonald finds inspiration in scenes along the waterfront of the Bay of Quinte and in the older parts of Ontario, and enjoys painting old mills, villages and homesteads set in fertile farmland, figures that form a natural part of the landscape, and trees and streams at the magical moment of transition from winter to spring. Because so many of these scenes are of familiar places in the Bay of Quinte area, because we are proud that this district has produced such an accomplished artist, and because his paintings are so pleasing to the eye, Mr. Macdonald's work is greatly appreciated by everyone in this area — even by those who are not ordinarily interested in any form of art.

EIGHT PAINTINGS IN EXHIBIT

The local exhibit, which is being held on the night of Mr. Macdonald's demonstration, is the exhibit from which pictures are chosen to represent the Art of the East Central Ontario Travelling Art Display. This is the fourth year for this exhibit, and Belleville's quota, which was originally five, has now been increased to eight, thus allowing a better representation from Belleville.

This exhibit is open to all amateur artists in the Belleville area. The East Central Ontario travelling art display planning committee has defined amateur artists as "Those who are not engaged in full time painting as their gainful occupation". Any paintings entered must be original - copies will not be considered for the travelling exhibit. Each person may enter as many as three paintings, but not more than one painting by an individual artist will be chosen for the travelling art display. Anyone wishing to enter pictures may obtain further particulars from the Recreation Office, phone WO 2-1903. This year's travelling art display will open in Bowmanville on March 21st, and will be in Belleville early in May.

This demonstration and exhibition, are all Arts and Crafts Club functions, is open to the general public.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, mayor of Deseronto, is shown with Mrs. McVicker, after receiving acclamation as Liberal candidate for Hastings South at Saturday's nomination meeting in Belleville.

CNRA Names New Directorate

Despite sno zero weather, the largest crowd in the nine-year history of the Canadian National Recreation Association, gathered at the new CNRA building to hear the annual reports and elect a board of directors for 1958.

The members were welcomed by association president L. J. Train who briefly reviewed the progress made by the organization during 1957 especially in the construction of the new building in which the meeting was held. C. C. Czechs Turn Thoughts to Land of Birth

With the abundant blessings that are ours in calm and keep, we hardly give enough thought to those in different circumstances whose desires and aims are similar to our own. February 23 is the day upon which the people of Czechoslovak origin throughout the world turn in thought to the land of their birth. These loved ones, while steeped in democratic tradition which they shared for two decades, are now hidden from the democratic world behind the iron curtain. They are victims of a poisonous propaganda machine which caught them up in the spell of complacency and trust and dashed them under the domination of an outside power for the second time in twenty years.

They are hopeful that the hand of righteousness will stretch forth and return their democratic rights again, but are fearful that people of other nations might be caught in the same trap. The drastic loss of freedom came about ten years ago when their Soviet neighbors performed the coup d'etat in the ancient and beautiful city of Prague. Here in 1918 the late Thomas Garrick Masaryk formed the Democratic State of Czechoslovakia and formulated the policy which carried the little nation to the highest peak of democratic development ever achieved by man.

Canadian - born people cannot help but feel the warning issued by fellow Canadians of Czechoslovak origin to be on guard against the deadly enemy of freedom, complacency. They watch the growth of their new homeland and sing with great fervor the words of our wonderful national hymn "O Canada". They ask every Canadian to always be on guard in closing words "O' Canada We Stand On Guard for Thee."

EVEN ELEPHANTS HAVE TO HELP

While Canadians groaned about wind, snow and cold, the weatherman gave U.S. citizens even more to worry about as far south as Florida, where snowballs were being tossed in areas which never saw snow before. At Paterson, N.J., one of the areas deluged by record snowfall, some motorists were lucky enough to become stranded near a circus and elephants were pressed into service to push them out of drifts.

Old Postage Stamps Needed By Scouts, Cubs

Looking for somewhere to throw those old postage stamps?

Don't throw them away. Keep them and give them to a Boy Scout or Wolf Cub in your district. He will take them to his troop or pack meeting, where his leader will collect them for forwarding to Ottawa.

Major-General D. C. Spry, director of the Boy Scouts International Bureau at Ottawa, has written an article which appears in this month's "Information". The article mentions that used postage stamps can help handicapped Scouts throughout the world.

Said Major-General Spry: "There are thousands of boys with varying degrees of handicap in many Scout groups throughout the world. In addition we know that there are over 1,400 packs and troops organized in hospitals, sanitoria and special schools in 39 countries. (This represents an increase of 400 handicapped Scout groups since 1953). The next 'Agoon', a regional camp mainly for Scouts with serious handicaps, is planned to be held in Great Britain in 1959."

Canada has some 30 special groups for handicapped Cubs and Scouts, mainly in hospitals and institutions, while hundreds of Canadian Scout groups have boys with handicaps in their regular membership ranks.

Across Canada many individuals, organizations and industrial firms are saving stamps from all incoming mail and forwarding them, through their local Boy Scouts Association, to the International Bureau Stamp Scheme, Room 300, Commdonwealth Building, 77 Metcalfe St., Ottawa.

THROWN ON STYLE

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)—Thirteen boys Monday were suspended from Whitaker Township High School for one day for violating the school's new "good grooming" code. Glenn Anderberg, dean of boys who ordered the suspensions, said the boys turned up for classes with duck-tail haircuts and blue jeans. He said the haircuts were "freakish" and the jeans "low - slung and beltless."

Kinsmen Observe National Week

The association of Kinsmen Clubs of Canada has announced the third annual National Kinsmen Week is being observed from February 16 to 22 of this year. Special ceremonies and activities in every club from coast to coast are marking this special event.

From the modest beginning in the city of Hamilton in the year 1920, the association of Kinsmen Clubs has grown to a total of 322 regional clubs and a membership far in excess of 16,500. The Kinsmen Club was founded to promote and direct fellowship among young business and professional men within Canada and it is dedicated to serve "The Communities Greatest Needs."

Kinsmen efforts have been devoted to the provision of medical, educational and recreational facilities for the community in which each club exists. Among their many projects, the Belleville Kinsmen sponsor the Memorial Swimming Pool, Eye Clinic (which ensures that no needy Belleville child is without proper eye care), and the Municipal-Kinsmen Boys' Band. They also aid organizations such as the Hastings Tuberculosis Association during their annual Christmas Seal campaign.

Wants to Be First Woman to Fly in Satellite

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)— Mrs. Jerrie Cobb, a woman pilot specialty in college, plays the harp and believes in positive thinking in addition to the U.S. government to be the first woman to fly in a satellite.

The offer is from Mrs. Robert Stigyers, a harpist with the professional name of Sue Evans. She asked a reporter not to make light of her proposal, which is not the first the government has received from women. Others have volunteered unofficially as have a number of men.

Women's Activities

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN W.A.

On Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Esther Neil, Byron Street, Trenton, 14 members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Lutheran church met for its regular monthly meeting.

To open the meeting, the group sang a well known hymn "There' s a Widness in God's Mercy." In accord with the devotional theme Mrs. Wodzack chose St. Mathew 5:1-17 as her Scripture reading.

A short story relating a news report where several lives were lost in a conflict between non-Christians and Christians was read. From this story came the question, "Why, after almost 2000 years since the birth of our Lord, are there still peoples in this world who do not know of Him?" An answer, plus failure to carry out His command.

The group sang a stirring Christian service hymn "Take My Life, and Let It Be Consecrated, Lord, to Thee."

Mrs. Gladys Hillman gave the biblical basis for a written lecture on "Christian Giving", which was read by Mrs. Irene Rolut and Mrs. Heidi Calbury. Mrs. Hillman answered questions and answer period followed. The top question, "I have little money, what can I give? spare time; small gifts; deeds of kindness; many talents put to worthwhile use and love even as taught to a child. The giving need not be large or daily. But it may be likened to the little drops of water the little grains of sand, "that make the mighty ocean, and the beauteous land."

Mrs. Irene Bolut extended an invitation to all to have their March meeting in her home.

The remainder of the evening was spent in social activities. Mrs. Betty Woodcock and Mrs. Annis Work assisted Mrs. Neil in serving refreshments and coffee to the ladies.

CANADA'S FASTEST-SELLING COUGH REMEDY

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

We are certain you are doing only necessary shopping these cold wintry days. Maybe we have become soft and spoiled by a few easy winters. This one may separate the men from the boys, as the old saying goes.

So if you are just thinking of buying something, and that something happens to be sheets, remember how important it is to get the correct size for your bed. (You've learned the hard way ourselves). This will give a longer life to your sheets, thus giving you more value for your money.

Single beds, up to 36 inches wide, require 63-inch sheets. For twin beds up to 39 inches, use 72-inch sheets. Three - quarter beds of 45 inches need 81 inch sheets and double beds 54 inches wide need 90-inch sheets.

Check for correct length as well, because it is important in providing comfort. For general coverage of the entire mattress, a sheet should have a finished length of 104 inches. A standard mattress is 6 inches long and 76 inches deep. Allowing for a normal turn back of 12 inches at the sides, the 104 inch sheet will permit at least 6 inches tuck - under at top and bottom. The 104 inch sheet fully meets the requirements as a guide.

Sheet size also affects wear. Sheets 104 inches long are not pulled and tugged by restless sleepers nor are they worn from abrasion under the mattress. For longer sheets this length provides a fold over to keep blankets clean and to protect the sleeper's face and neck from blanket fuzz.

As we have mentioned before, in Canada, "finished size" is the right size for sheets. Specially made sheets are quoted in sizes before hemming.

You also help to assure sleeping comfort if you measure your pillow slips before buying them. Pillows tend to become hard and uncomfortable if the cases are too tight. Pillows expected to loosely will wrinkle.

Fitter bottom sheets are a wonderful boon to homemakers. They are available in sizes for three-quarter and double beds, as well as standard size baby cribs. The corners are neatly made in pastels and with little rosebud patterns. Because fitted sheets have no top or bottom like hemmed sheets, you should mark one end with a colored thread and alternate it at the top and bottom of the bed. This equalizes where we are busy is so most noticeable at the top of the sheets.

Why have we gone on so about thoughts of nice warm sheets and bed? Possibly it is because since we started to type the column the thermometer at the kitchen door has dropped seven degrees to ten below. The back workroom where we are busy is so cold that we have an electric plate and a coal oil heater going. Even the typewriter keys are icy cold. So forgive us if thoughts of a nice warm bed have led us into the best way to purchase sheets.

To give you, and us, a lift if you wear any of winter, start planning what you are going to plant this spring, both flowers and vegetables. It might be a good idea to check your stored garden tools. If rust has coated tools, they should be cleaned and coated with oil. Broken equipment can be repaired or replaced. What a nice thought to leave shopping news with — Garden seeds and tools vegetables. Never mind, this too shall pass.

Good Shopping!

We recall reading about the trials and tribulations the Salvation Army endured when its founder and general, William Booth who, with his loyal followers established the movement in England. This week it was our privilege to interview this remarkable man's grandson, Commissioner Wycliffe Booth. The Commissioner, in the few moments we were not on the air, told us that he remembers clearly the early days. He has vivid memories of the time when the members of the courageous little band on the streets could not be out after at least a few days when they were pummelled; when they were booed; when they had been poured down their necks. What a glorious name the Salvation Army has earned for itself, justly merited by people all over the world within the brief span of three generations! The humanity of their work is the monument to their devotion to God and mankind. Commissioner Booth carries on the work so bravely started by his grandfather, and Canada is fortunate to have him here.

Want Woman Appointed as Vice-Chairman

TORONTO (CP) — The Provincial Council of Women Thursday petitioned the Ontario government to appoint a woman as vice-chairman of the Ontario hospital services commission to be set up Jan. 1, 1959.

In a brief presented to Premier Frost and cabinet members Mrs. Robert Duff of Kingston, provincial president, also requested that women representatives be appointed in proportion to the number of patients will be affected by the hospital plan.

The brief urged that the cost of training, retraining or refresher training of older people to reenter employment be shared equally between federal and provincial governments.

Delegates called on the government to make changes in the Ontario Succession Duty Act so that the estate of a deceased husband's estate be conceded, for tax purposes, as earned by his widow.

In addition, instead of exempting estates up to $50,000 for beneficiaries in the direct line, as it was asked that this amount be made a true exemption deducting from the value of all estates before the calculation of duty.

British Woman Enjoys Driving In Car Rallies

By SYLVIA HACK

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The thrill of danger and a fascination for motor cars are food and drink to Nancy Mitchell, a 43-year-old British housewife who has been driving in rallies for 10 years.

Tall and lithe, Mrs. Mitchell, mother of three children, pumped home as champion European lady rally driver, until she can claim the title a third time she says as "work - relax" - is tall, friendly woman with an elegant air, Mrs. Mitchell is eloquent about her attachment to automobiles.

"It's not just that I'm fascinated by their mechanism. Cars are personalities to me, and I seem to do incredible things with them."

Last September, she was the first British woman to win the cup at the marathon rally from Liege, Belgium to Rome and back to Liege. The rally lasted seven days and nights. Contestants covered 3,000 miles and Mrs. Mitchell enjoyed every minute of it. "I wouldn't make be any dizzy, driving at high altitudes doesn't worry me long as she's at the wheel. "But I'd hate to be a passenger," she says.

Driving in rally conditions are various. They include the excitement of racing other cars and pulled off her hat trick.

After that, I'll relax a bit, but don't give up rally driving until my reflexes slow up."

Last year's 1953, Mrs. Mitchell financed herself before a British car company took an interest. "It was a pretty expensive business," she says. "Sometimes I managed to survive and used to request odd presents on anniversaries, such as a set of tires or new tools, but I often myself with watching gunsmoke sunset and I've seen them in every European country I've been to."

Health Baking

By Mary Moore

To M.E.H.—I made a promise to give her some whole wheat flour recipes that she requested. One that I think will take you other whole wheat addicts by storm is for a cake. It calls for a cream filling but no icing. Nuts in the batter are optional but recommended. Highly recommended for citizens of a country with a whopping wheat crop.

WEDNESDAY
(Ash)

Whole Wheat Layer Cake: Two cups whole wheat flour, 1 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup skim milk powder, ½ cup soft shortening, ½ cup fresh wheat germ, 2 eggs, unbeaten, 1 cup fresh milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup nuts, chopped (optional). Sift the flour into the whole wheat flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and powdered milk. Place shortening in mixing bowl. Sift dry ingredients over soft shortening. Dip in hand from sifter. Add wheat germ, unbeaten eggs and ½ cup liquid milk. Mix until dry ingredients are moistened and beat 1 minute. Add remaining ½ cup liquid milk, vanilla and nuts, and beat 2 minutes longer. Pour into 2 buttered and floured layer cake pans and bake 30 to 35 minutes in 350 deg. Fahr. When cool, put together with Cream Filling: Combine ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tea-spoons cornstarch, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ cup warm milk, 1 small egg yolk, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Mix in saucepan sugar, salt, corn-starch, and flour. Stir milk in gradually. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir a little of the mixture into egg yolk, slightly beaten. Then blend into hot mixture in pan. Boil 1 minute more, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Blend in butter and vanilla. Cool, stirring occasionally. The top of this whole wheat cake may be sprinkled with icing sugar.

Matrimonial Squares: One and one-half pounds dates, 1½ cups boiling water, grated rind and juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup sifted whole wheat flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ cup brown sugar, 2½ cups quick cooking rolled oats, 1 cup shortening. Add water and lemon rind to dates. Cook over low heat until thick. Cool. Add lemon juice. Sift into mixing bowl, flours, salt, baking powder, soda and sugar. Add oats. Cut in shortening. Spread ½ of flour mixture in greased pan, 12" x 8" x 2". Press down. Spread with dates. Cover with remaining flour mixture. Pat to make smooth. Brush one beaten egg mixed with 2 tablespoons water over top of cake to prevent crumbling. Bake at 350 degs. Fahr. for 1 hour. Cool in pan. Cut into squares.

TARD AFTER IRA

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard Monday joined the hunt for members of the Irish Republican Army after the outlawed organization spread its operations to England. The IRA has made four raids in the last 24 hours, one in England and three in Northern Ireland, in an attempt to seize arms. The raids were unsuccessful.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

BASIC PATTERN OF SEATING GUESTS AT DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I don't know quite how to word my question, but I would appreciate your advice. We were married several months ago, now have moved into our new house, are practically settled, and are planning to give an informal dinner party every week or so (seated), because I want to use our lovely wedding gifts, and also because my husband doesn't very much like buffet service). With the help of a local woman who is available for such service, I am sure I can manage to have six or eight guests. How about the seating of the guests: my mother says that guests really pay attention to the positions that are assigned to them, and that, even in the informal dinners I'm planning to give, I should be careful about this. Will you please give me some suggestions to guide me? Thank you if you will. — C.H.

Your mother is right about this . . . that guests who know what's what do give thought to the seating arrangements the hostess has planned. There is a basic pattern that should be followed for the seating-arrangements at all dinners, even informal. The hostess has the place at the head of the table, and the host sits opposite her, at the foot of the table. At the right of the host is the woman guest of honor (or if she is not definitely designated as "guest of honor", then the woman of first importance for some reason, because of distinction, perhaps of age, or as visitor-from-out-of-town); and at the left of the host is seated the woman of next importance. At the right of the hostess is seated the man of honor; and at the left, the man who is to be given the second place of importance. The other guests are seated alternately, women and men, according to what the hostess thinks (hopes!) is their congeniality. And it is, of course, correct to seat a man and his wife next to each other.

GROOM'S BROTHER, AN USHER, SHOULD ESCORT HIS MOTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the groom-to-be. I have two brothers: my older brother will be my best man and my younger brother will be one of my ushers. My bride-to-be lives with her family in a city quite a distance from where my family and I live, and because her brother naturally will know more of the wedding guests, I thought it wise to ask him to be head usher, and he of course would escort his mother up the aisle. But my mother, who is a widow, and always inclined to be self-conscious, will not know many of the guests, and (although I have not mentioned this to her) I would like my brother, her son, to escort her up the aisle, instead of having the head usher do this, as I know is usually done. If my bride-to-be or her mother do not suggest this, would it be out-of-order for me to suggest it? — R. J.

Not at all out-of-order, sir. As a matter of fact, you, as groom, are the one who arranges your attendants-procedure as you think best. Also, as a matter of fact, when the groom's brother is an usher, customarily he is given the privilege and honor of escorting his mother to her place in the front pew on the right of the aisle. And I am sure, as I know you are too, that this will give loving reassurance to your mother. (Also if your mother is to stand in the receiving-line, it is I might hint to the bride's mother that she ask your mother to stand next to you in the line . . . your bride on your right, your mother on your left.)

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Jean Love
DIETITIAN OF 30

Toddlers are, by nature, inquisitive and acquisitive. As a consequence, temper tantrums often develop when baby is denied the right to inspect every household object he can lay his hands on. Cereal, brio-a-brac breakables are always most interesting, too.) A few simple tricks to stave off these upsets:

- Let baby have things to play with by himself. Pots and pans have lots of play and pot-together value.
- Remove non-touchables before baby sees them. Be surprised how many "no-no's" this will eliminate.

Many thrills for Junior Jacks 'n Jills. All savory goodness and substantial nourishment—that's the sum of Gerber's Junior New Meat Dinners. For they have 3 times as much meat, and therefore much more protein than regular vegetable and meat combinations.

vegetables and cereal are blended with this extra meat for exceptional flavor and excellent nutritive value. 7 varieties—ground meat, no coarse chewing. 7 strained versions for younger babies.

Great copycats, toddlers. Sometimes we, as parents, cannot resist amusing ourselves by making assorted funny faces or humorous gestics. But it isn't so funny when they ape your image imitates you and keeps it up. Sensible rule on discipline: Try not to entertain baby with antics you don't want copied for keeps."

Small-fry salad to provide fruit and vegetable in pleasant form.

Carrot and Pear Salad
1 env. gelatin
½ c. cold water
½ cup Gerber Junior Carrots
½ cup Gerber Puree & Pineapple
½ cup Orange Juice

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat carrots. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add fruit and orange juice. Pour into lightly oiled molds and chill till firm. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Rose F. — I can't live with him or without him.

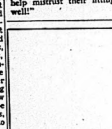
Rose F. — My husband and I are in our early 40's and have been married for 15 years. I should say we have been married off and on because we have separated three times for periods lasting from six months to two years.

I love my husband, yet I can't seem to live happily with him — or without him. Shortly after our marriage we learned we could not have children. Greg didn't want to adopt a child. I wasn't sure — and we just dropped the idea.

I suppose the fact that we have no children has a lot to do with my feeling that life is empty and meaningless. But it isn't t h e whole thing. Greg is an antisocial person and we have few friends. He has interests and hobbies, but I don't share them. I want to leave him again, but I hate being alone.

* * *



Gregory F. — Rose shouldn't blame me for the fact that we didn't adopt a child, because I told her I felt her wishes in the matter were more important than mine. I told her to go ahead if she felt she wanted children.

I feel all torn apart by Rose's misery. I realize I haven't been a satisfactory husband to her, and I am willing to let her go to find happiness in her own way — if only she wouldn't keep coming back, as unhappy as ever.

It is true that I am antisocial. I can't help that. It's the way I am. Most people annoy me. But I would have no objection if Rose went ahead and made her own friends. I love her and want her to be happy, but I can't seem to do anything to please her. We are both old enough to want a little peace.

Detailed With Care

BY ALICE ALDEN

Soon available in smart stores is a series of slim suits in light tweeds. Perfect under winter coats, some spring they will take to. Hustleigh does such a suit in olive green tweed tailored in a semi-fitted line. The jacket boasts such handsome detail as tabs over buttons and a finely stitched, winged, notched collar. Great emphasis is placed on the curved torso and hour seaming, so important to perfect fit. Incidentally, green is shaping up as a very important hue for spring.

POT LUCK

STIRLING

River Valley W.I. Holds Family Party

STIRLING — On Thursday evening approximately 70 persons, men and women and children enjoyed a delicious pot-luck supper at the I.O.O.F. dining hall. The conveners, Mrs. Harry Vandervoort, and Mrs. Allen McDonell, with their assistants prepared the three long tables and as the guests arrived the food was placed. There was an abundance of foods both hot and cold, and everyone did justice to the meal. Valentine serviettes were used in honor of the occasion.

Mrs. Ernest Carr, vice-president opened the meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe presented the financial statement and read thank-you letters.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman reported over $35, proceeds from January card parties.

A letter was read from Mrs. James Haggerty, president of F.W.I.O. on motion it was decided to forward the 25 cents per member for A.C.W.W. and F.W.I.O.

The project is layettes and sweaters for the, Victorian Service of Canada to assist Korea and Arab refugee babies. The articles do not need to be new. All the members were asked to contribute an article for the March meeting.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen was appointed delegate to attend the quarters conference at Guelph, in May.

River Valley W.I. will cater for the Federation of Agriculture meeting at the community hall on February 24th.

Mrs. Allen McDonell distributed prizes to those who had lucky red hearts.

Mrs. Harry Vandervoort presided over the program and read a poem entitled, "The Empty House."

PRESENTATION

At this juncture, Mrs. Percy Utman spoke briefly on "The Lampshade Course". Four meetings were held with 11 entrants. Mrs. John Kane presented the leaders, Mrs. Vernon Harry, and Mrs. George Heasman, with gifts on behalf of the group. Another gift was presented to Mrs. Allen McDonell for making a descriptive poster for Agricultural Day. The slides and poster were on display for all to view at this meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heasman presented a series of colored slides taken on their recent trip to the sunny south. Mrs. Heasman gave a descriptive account of the various places visited. The scenes began with coal mines in Pennsylvania; Gettysburg Memorial park; Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia; a special cave which is one of the seven wonders of the world; at Augustine, Florida; The Wishing Well; Cyprus Gardens; Orlando; Key West, and other notable spots.

The pictures of flowers, gardens, fruit trees, country farm land were most colorful and the scenic beauty was of exceptional interest. The group thoroughly enjoyed their trip to Florida on such a cold night.

The River Valley 4 H girls calf under the direction of Mrs. Phil Cosby presented their skit entitled "Cereals Around the Clock." The girls who gave the commentary were Misses Margaret De Bruyn, Louise Zuidena and Margaret Morrow.

Miss Marion Carlisle voiced appreciative thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Heasman and to the girls club for their fine entertainment.

The conveners were also thanked for their efforts in arranging the supper and program.

KHRUSHCHEV NOT BLUFFING, REPATRIATE GERMANS SAY

Three of the many German scientists released by Russia after 12 years behind the Iron Curtain are shown on their return to West Berlin. They are Mrs. Marta Schulz, centre, 76, who was known as "grandmother" to the captive scientists; her son-in-law, Hans Kuhl and her daughter, Gerda, who holds the cat, "Nikl," they brought with them. The Germans said that Khrushchev was not exaggerating when he said Russia had an intercontinental ballistic missile.

NOT ENOUGH CARS

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Many Russians are giving up the idea of buying a private car because waiting lists never seem to move forward, a Soviet engineer complains. P. Kerenov, the engineer, wrote to the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda that "huge queues of people who for years have been waiting their turn to buy a car have now thinned out a great deal." Relatively few cars are released for private sale each year in Russia.

Highway Work Is Debated In Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway construction and industrial development — perennial problems in Canadian provinces—came up for heated discussion in three provincial legislatures Tuesday.

The New Brunswick legislature opened with traditional ceremony to become the eighth in session. Only Alberta and Prince Edward Island have not yet opened.

In Quebec Highways Minister Antonio Talbot defended his department's expenditures and in Nova Scotia those of Minister George Smith were attacked. At Regina, A. H. McDonald, leader of the Liberal opposition, accused the CCF government of driving investment money out of the province.

Mr. Talbot said the Union Nationale government has given Quebec the finest roads system in Canada — a total of 27,000 miles, 10,000 of them paved.

TRYING TO "WIGGLE"

At Halifax Earl W. Urquhart, L—Richmond) said the Progressive Conservative government in Nova Scotia is trying to "wiggle out from under" its responsibilities by appointing a royal commission to investigate alleged highways department pull in irregularities in his riding.

He said the RCMP and a department official had already investigated and reported and the government is not "facing up to its misconduct." The commission's report is expected to be tabled shortly.

Mr. McDonald said the Saskatchewan government has no progressive industrial program and industry will not be attracted while the CCF calls industrialists "racketeers" and a privately-owned pulp mill in Prince Albert, first mentioned in 1937, will not be built "as long as you jokers are sitting over there."

At Fredericton the speech from the throne opening the New Brunswick legislature praised improvement in federal-provincial relations and federal moves to strengthen the Atlantic economy but gave little indication of proposed legislation.

EXILED CUBAN JAILED IN U. S.

Former Cuban president Carlos Prio Socarras, who was indicted by a federal grand jury in New York, is shown in his lawyer's office in Miami, Fla. Prio was indicted with eight others for conspiring to finance and "take part in military expeditions" against Cuba. He said that the charges in the indictment were false.

FIREMEN'S BODIES FOUND

NEW YORK (AP)— Weary firemen, after removing more than 7,000 tons of debris, Monday night recovered the bodies of two fire patrolmen from the remains of a downtown factory. The search continued for 5 other members of the patrol, in hope of finding them alive had been abandoned. The four were trapped Friday night when a factory collapsed during a five-alarm blaze. Two city firemen also were killed.

SHOOTS SELF IN LEG

HATHAM (CP) — Mrs. Carl McEachran, 12, was taken to hospital Friday night after she accidentally shot herself in the leg while hanging up her coat in a closet. She was in satisfactory condition. Police said Mrs. McEachran bumped into a gun leaning against the wall of her closet, causing it to fall to the floor and discharge.

P.S. Board Studies Plans For New School

CAMPBELLFORD — The February meeting of the Campbellford Public School Board was held on Wednesday night with Mr. Vanderburg of the Department of Education, and Mr. C. W. Young, Inspector of Schools, present. They studied the plans for the new school with the Board with Mr. Vanderburg advising that the department, it is expected that final plans will be completed by the end of the month, at which time the Board will call for tenders for construction.

Mr. E. R. Steele, property chairman, reported that a much larger hopper had been made for the heating system and now the temperature was not allowed to drop too low at nights or on weekends, thereby making it much easier to get the rooms to a comfortable temperature for school opening. Several changes and improvements to the heating system are planned and it should soon be in much better working condition. Mr. Steele also reported various other repairs to the building.

The question of new teachers for the fall term was discussed and the secretary asked to advertise for two teachers for the primary division for the fall term.

In the absence of the chairman of finance, Dr. D. Burgess, the chairman presented the budget, prepared by him. This was carefully studied by all members and some changes made before being accepted by the Board.

The chairman asked the members to begin thinking of names for the new school and also for the older school which has never had a definite name.

Unemployment Main Issue In Election Campaign as Leaders Hammer at Question

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unemployment and the election itself continued to predominate as issues in the campaign for the March 31 federal general election.

Unemployment came sharply to mind Tuesday with the announcement that the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has estimated the number of Canadian jobless in January reached a post-war peak of 530,000.

In a Montreal television appearance Tuesday night, Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised that he and his Progressive Conservative government will do "everything that can be done" to see that no Canadians suffer from unemployment.

Elsewhere, Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson and his followers continued to hammer at the government for allowing a winter election instead of trying to solve the problems facing it.

CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, continuing to campaign in his Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, proposed a federal subsidy to ensure reasonable minimum farm prices without jeopardizing salaries of railway workers.

In his first major speech of the campaign, Mr. Low said Tuesday night at Minnedosa, Man., that the government has no reason to call the election, by doing so it has put its own desire for a Commons majority ahead of the welfare of Canada.

Mr. Low said the real issue of the election campaign is the situation of Canada's economy. Canadians needed new purchasing power quickly and a place to start would be by providing dividends to the aged, the blind and the needy.

Before setting out by train for a tour of eastern and southwestern Ontario, Mr. Pearson said in Ottawa he speeds that claims made by Mr. Diefenbaker that the Liberal administration a year ago had the means with which to "stop developing economic situation were silly."

Mr. Pearson said experts emphasized last spring that inflation was the acute and pressing danger. The Liberals had taken measures to fight inflation.

Mr. Diefenbaker, meantime, said a week's program he announced in Ottawa was "to ensure development of our country and to provide, as well, help to Canadians, work to Canadians and an opportunity for the better things of life."

At Ziggar, Sask., Mr. Coldwell said a federal subsidy would be said to railways if necessary to enable them to meet salary demands of their employees, concurrent set requesting "self - defeating" freight rate increases to compensate. Canadians, especially farmers, should not have to shoulder further freight rate increases.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming in Toronto described as "utterly false and irresponsible" Mr. Pearson's charges that the Conservatives called the election because they were frightened of the financial chaos into which they plunged the country.

The minister said Canada's finances are sound and healthy "much healthier than they would have been . . . had there not been a change of government last June."

Hal Halifax, former Liberal immigration minister J. W. Pickersgill said the Conservative government didn't want to stay in office long enough to present a budget and have its trade policies debated.

Another reason for the election was that the government knows unemployment will get worse all through the year, wants to be re-elected for a four-year term before the public has a chance to realize this.

In London, Ont., Labor Minister Michael Starr predicted unemployment figures will start dropping in four weeks.

Mr. Starr said the Liberals, with their $400,000,000 tax - cut proposal, are trying to confuse voters with money previous Liberal governments took from them in over-taxation.

Liberal Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, in St. John's, moved adjournment of the legislature until Thursday so these legislators could take part in Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign.

Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith was prevented from meeting in Ottawa meeting in Rannock Ont., in his riding of Perth by a blizzard which forced him to turn his automobile back to Stratford.

Opposition Liberal transport minister Lionel Chevrier said in Toronto: "The government apparently is one that has "no policy and is afraid to face Parliament."

At Vineland, John Charlton, parliamentary assistant in the transportation minister in the last House of Commons, said in a speech the government could help fight unemployment.

The Progressive Conservative meeting in Aberdeen, Alberta, told a meeting that "if we can maintain Canada in an economic position relatively fair compared with the rest of the economy, we will be in a position to be able to solve unemployment."

Low Would Pay Pension Bonus To Spark Buying

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Solon Low has outlined a three-point program to help relieve Canada's unemployment problem, predicting the total number of unemployed will reach 600,000 by March 15.

Mr. Low said the problem should be met by:

1. Reduced income and sales taxes.

2. A huge public works program on a national scale.

3. Immediate boosts in dividend payments to old age pensioners, the blind and needy families.

Mr. Low said the bonus payments would have an immediate result. Persons receiving them would spend them at once and revive local business. The result would be that a public works program would be long — range plans designed to keep business active and bring investment.

TALKS FARM POLICIES

In his opening election campaign speech Tuesday night before a crowd which filled the legion hall in this small southwestern Manitoba farming community. Mr. Low dealt at great length on the Progressive Conservative farm policy legislation and the inter - dependence of farm and city.

Reviewing highlights of the farm bill debate, Mr. Low said the big stagnation of the opposition supplied the criticism while the Liberal party's government amending its original bill. The Liberals agreed to accept the original bill only "we took the stand that if the bill was only to be passed it should be dropped for Act, why bring it in at all."

Mr. Low said unemployment was the result of low agricultural farm prices, which saw western farmers with about 16 per cent of the Canadian population receiving only nine per cent of the national income. When the farmer loses a dollar on spending power, industry is forced to curtail production and layoffs and unemployment begins.

HITS ELECTION CALL

The Social Credit leader criticized Diefenbaker government for calling the mid-winter election. The opposition was not prepared for confrontation and, instead of Mr. Diefenbaker trying to give the real situation of the country's economy and unemployment, he called an election to give the party a majority. The Conservatives were elected with a record place the welfare of Canada.

Mr. Low said the real reason for the election was that Mr. Diefenbaker had no answers to Canada's problems and wanted to ensure the party would stay in power by getting a majority before it had a complete control of the situation and the voters learned on them.

Social Credit farm policy included a two-price system with financial reference for agricultural sales, cash advances and low cost loans. "We don't believe that the farmers should live on farms and we believe in retreat to the city where unemployment is already high."

Favors Keeping Diesel Firemen On North Railway

TORONTO (CP) — The vice-chairman of the Ontario Municipal Transportation Commission said Tuesday he is in favor of keeping firemen on diesels in Ontario Northland Railway.

A. R. Herbert (Port-Timiskaming) was questioned by Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) in the legislature whether the commission intends to implement the Kellock-Angus report approving removal of diesel firemen on all railways in rail freight and yard service.

Mr. Herbert replied: "The commission will soon be discussing this matter and personally I would like to see the firemen retained on our railway." He said the railway is making "every effort" to retain workers normally subject to seniority shuffle, despite a decline in traffic last year. Section gangs and shop employees have been retained if possible.

Ontario Northland appreciates the loyalty of its staff and is making a concentrated effort to "maintain a stable employment."

In a survey of the railroad's activities, the Timiskaming member said its northern terminal in Moosonee may soon be "of greater importance in the development of the iron ore deposits on the Belcher Islands and the nickel - copper deposits in Ungava."

The railway it "one of the most efficient and necessary services to the people of northeastern Ontario."

Establishment Of Steel Mill In North Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Establishment of a steel mill in northwestern Ontario was called for in the legislature Tuesday by G. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur).

He said a "phenomenal" process for making steel with natural gas has been devised by the Ontario Research Council.

With adequate supplies of Alberta natural gas on the way and the St. Lawrence seaway being built, it now appeared feasible to develop the "immense deposits" of iron ore in northwestern Ontario.

Mr. Wardrope suggested the advisory committee to the lands and forests department make an investigation of the situation.

Competent authorities—such as Cyrus Eaton of Cleveland, president and chairman of Steep Rock Mines Limited—had said a mill could be built even before the natural gas was available.

Roberts Warns Police Against Use of Guns

John Wintermeyer L — Waterloo North) asked the attorney-general in the legislature whether he agreed with recent statements by municipal leaders threatening to arm police with guns.

Mr. Roberts said the Criminal Code of Canada makes it a criminal offence for a policeman to use more force than necessary in making an arrest.

"A policeman who uses a gun needlessly leaves himself open to prosecution and what may be more serious, an action for damages," he said.

Fewer bank holdups would occur if banks had more armed guards on duty, the attorney-general added.

Plan to Speed Child Adoptions By Amendments

TORONTO (CP) — Adoptions would be speeded up and greater protection given mothers of illegitimate children under new legislation planned by the Ontario government.

The time a child lived with its new parents to make an adoption final would be reduced to six months from 12.

Adopted children would cease to be offspring of their natural parents and would become children of the adopting parents "for all purposes"—including designation of relatives.

"In order to prevent unduly protracted adoptive proceedings," said Mr. Cecile, "it is provided that a new application must be made if the first application has not been heard by the court for 12 months after it was signed."

PROTECTS MOTHERS

Protection for unmarried mothers would be given in a section providing that consent only of the mother be needed for adoption of children born out of wedlock.

The section says consent would be effective only if the child is at least 15 days old and the mother could cancel her consent within five days.

Another provision would enable garnishee proceedings to be taken against the father of an illegitimate child, providing a portion of his wages for the child's support.

Regulations governing nonpiecing children would also be changed. Municipalities would have to support a neglected child for only 42 days before the cases go to court and such children could be kept in care of a Children's Aid Society for 24 months at most.

Plane Overloaded By 1,200 Pounds Board Is Told

MONTREAL (CP) — The aircraft involved last summer in Canada's worst air accident was at least 633 pounds overloaded at takeoff on its last flight, a transport department witness Tuesday told the three-man board conducting a public inquiry.

The overweight may have been about 1,200 pounds, suggested Don A. McLellan, a civil aviation inspector.

He said discrepancies existed in the weight and balance manifests filed with Refuelk, Newfoundland, and London, England, by the crew of the Maritime Central Airways plane.

It crashed near Quebec City Aug. 31, killing all 73 passengers and the six crew members, striking a bog during a thunderstorm. It was bound for Montreal on a refueling stop scheduled at Montreal.

Mr. McLellan's testimony followed that of five present or former MCA officials familiar with the transatlantic route and the aircraft CF-MCP.

WOULD DIMINISH

The five had said under company cross-examination that any overload of 1,200 pounds or 1,800 pounds would cause only "slightly more" fuel to be consumed. The extra weight would vanish as fuel burned off, they testified.

Mr. McLellan said the actual weight totals compiled on the flight were taken from figures from MCA for various flight equipment items. The plane's actual takeoff weight of 74,453 pounds as against the approved maximum of 73,800 pounds.

In addition, he said, the possible discrepancy in the passenger list, supplied officially at 150 pounds exceeded 700. He had been told by MCA catering officials that such DC-6 charter flights usually ran short of beer, soft drinks and utensils weighing that much.

Mr. McLellan, in the plane manifesto, he said, was 120 pounds of lead recovered at a crash site and presumably carried in the nose as ballast.

Canadian Coal To Get Edge By New Order

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet decided Tuesday to give Canadian coal a 50-per-cent competitive advantage over imported coal in purchases for government departments in the Montreal area of the country.

The cabinet order, effective immediately, means that Canadian coal will be purchased when it delivered at the Montreal end of the laidown price of imported coal.

An unofficial estimate is that it might, mean something over 100,000 tons a year for the government's fuel bill.

The government annually buys about 1,000,000 tons of coal, mostly for heating buildings. Of this amount, about 600,000 tons now comes from the United States.

It was estimated that the new policy might gain 50,000 tons for Canadian producers in Maritimes and in the West and retain another 50,000 tons that might have been lost to U.S. competition in the near future.

TORONTO (CP) — Administration of the Canada Grain Act has been transferred from the treasury-department to the agriculture department, it was announced Tuesday.

The board controls distribution and price of natural gas, operation of gas and oil wells and the installation of pipelines.

A. C. MacDonald, chairman of the management committee of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, said in Halifax he is "delighted" with the announcement.

"It's what extent Maritime coal operations will benefit won't be known until all the details are worked out but I think they ought to be beneficial."

The government employs about 10,000 miners in Nova Scotia, and he announced Tuesday night that some of these men will be laid off "in the foreseeable future" despite expanding markets. He said the company was conducting an "aggressive" sales campaign.

ENGINEER KILLED

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—R. A. W. Bond, an engineer from Hawkesbury, Ont., was killed Saturday at Chutes-des-Passes, 90 miles north of Lake St. John, when a 30-ft. belt fell. Mr. Bond, employed by the H. J. Acres Company of Niagara Falls, was investigating an air shaft at a site of the Aluminium Company of Canada.

University Professors Don't Have to Be Interesting Says Teachers' College Principal

OTTAWA (CP) — It's asking too much, a teachers' college head said today, to expect that university professors be interesting.

Canon G. E. Carter, principal of Montreal's St. Joseph's Teachers' College, told a teacher-qualification workshop at the Canadian Conference on Education that in any case "it is virtually impossible to set forms for the training or recruiting of university professors."

The 4½-day conference convened by 19 sponsoring organizations with 3,000,000 members throughout Canada and attended by 850 delegates, was swinging into the second of two days devoted to workshop discussion of education's needs. It ends Thursday.

Indications are that workshop recommendations will include:

1. A demand for increased grants from the federal government, business and industry to help universities and students.

2. A suggestion that teachers' qualification standards be raised throughout Canada, regardless of shortages in the profession.

3. A proposal that English-language schools improve methods of start instruction in French as a second language in Grades III and IV level, and that French-language schools start English at Grade IV.

4. That high school curricula be "in such a way as to meet demands for greater emphasis on mathematics and sciences.

Courses in "personal relations" should be introduced at the elementary school level as a result of such DC-4 charter flights usually ran short of beer, soft drinks and utensils weighing that much.

Canon Carter in addressing the teacher - qualification workshop, said a teacher's ability to teach interestingly could be out of all proportion to the level at which he instructs. It could be top in primary grades, tapering off at the other end.

"Heaven knows it would be a valuable acquisition for many of our university professors if they learned how to make their lectures interesting as well as informative. But it is not always absolutely essential."

"At that level of learning a student must be prepared to put up with much for the sake of knowledge. There is a shortage in our university professors it, even at a high level of academic competence.

In another speech, principal of H. H. Kerr of the Princeton Institute of Technology, Toronto, said the Canada needs more engineers technicians annually and is producing "only a fraction of that number."

Chinese Troops To Leave Korea By End of Year

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Red China today said it will withdraw all its troops from North Korea by the end of this year. The move was immediately labelled by American authorities as another attempt to get United States forces out of South Korea.

The Communist "volunteers" who poured across the Yalu River from Manchuria during the Korean War will begin recrossing the border, whether United Nations forces in the south leave or not, said a communique issued by Premier Chou En-lai and North Korea's Premier Kim Il Sung in Pyongyang.

But the two Communist premiers challenged the UN forces and South Korea.

The announcement was greeted with skepticism in Seoul and Washington. American officials have rejected earlier Red demands for withdrawal of U.S. forces, and show no sign of acceding to this one.

COULD EASILY RETURN

The UN Commander, U.S. Gen. George Decker, pointed out that only the Yalu separates China and North Korea. Chinese troops could return to North Korea easily "within a matter of a few days."

The nearest major American troops are in Japan, although some U.S. ground forces are based in the island of Okinawa, 500 miles east of Korea.

The South Korean defence minister, Kim Chung Yul, called the announcement "smacks of cunning intrigue and appears to be a pretext for propaganda" we can never take it seriously."

The Communist communique warned that if the U.S. and South Korea "think the independence and national qualities a weakness and attempt to exploit it, they will meet a fate beyond their imagination."

The South Korean Army estimated last month that there were 350,000 Chinese Communist troops in North Korea and "not less than 1,000,000 across the Yalu River in Manchuria."

Communist Poland Carrying Ball With Kremlin as Coach

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Communist Poland is boldly promoting its plan for a neutral European belt free of nuclear weapons.

Although the Poles are carrying the ball, the coach is in the Kremlin. A move of this kind considers it a good talking point in East-West diplomacy leading to a summit conference.

Discussion on the proposal has gained momentum in a more worthy way since it was broached by the Poles at the United Nations General Assembly in Grew York Oct. 2, 1957.

Some observers immediately saw in it similarities to a plan submitted earlier by Britain, the U.S., France and also to eight other countries, including Canada, which has troops in West Germany.

Rapacki, who went to Moscow for talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on the subject, obviously has aimed to outline answers to Western objections as they emerged.

He proposes aerial and ground inspection to enforce the no-nuclear agreement. This differs significantly from past Russian policy in the deadlocked efforts for disarmament.

Rapacki also suggests that the country include a Big Four agreement to ban the use of nuclear weapons against the proposed neutral zone.

This appears an attempt to meet the argument of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany that the outlawing of nuclear weapons in his country would be no guarantee of immunity in the new missile age.

British Liberals Beginning To Break 2-Party Monopoly

LONDON (CP) — The political tide of the day is that Prime Minister Macmillan is taking out third-party insurance.

This is a brief reference to the sensational result of last week's byelection in Rochdale, where the Conservatives dropped from first to last in a three-cornered poll.

The Labor victory attracted less attention than the unexpectedly high vote gained by the candidate Ludovic Kennedy, who finished second with nearly twice as many votes as the third-placed Tory.

Since Rochdale is an "indicator constituency" — one that usually votes the way the country votes in a local election—the Liberals are suddenly being taken seriously as a potentially potent electoral force, a real "third party."

Fifty years ago, the party of David Lloyd George and the Earl of Asquith dominated British politics. It went into decline after the First World War, leaving the field almost exclusively to the Conservatives and the growing Labor party. The Liberals subsisted in three-figure numbers in the House of Commons, said in a speech the government could help fight unemployment.

The Progressive Conservative meeting in Aberdeen, Alberta, told a meeting that "if we can maintain Canada in an economic position relatively fair compared with the rest of the economy, we will be in a position to be able to solve unemployment."

Warrender Says Interest Drops In Local Govt.

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender has asked Ontario's rural municipal leagues to help maintain interest in local government.

"People are not as interested as they used to be," he said in a speech to the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities.

He asked delegates to find occasions "to give a little boost to the interest of citizen participation in public projects." Encouragement could be given to young people through the organization of student councils to take over the administration of a municipality for a day.

Mr. Warrender also described research by his department to provide orders settling doubts as to a municipality's date of incorporation and boundaries.

HAVE OLD RECORDS

About 120 orders had been issued for northern municipalities and now the department was working in Southern Ontario in the counties of Haliburton, Victoria, Peterborough, Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox, Addington, Frontenac and Lanark.

"Occasionally our representatives find that township clerks have records dating back 125 years.

"Unfortunately, in too many instances fire or mildew have completely destroyed all records and in a court of law the legal status of the municipality could be challenged, causing much embarrassment and possibly considerable expense."

Dealing with assessment, the minister said his department's regional offices have found assessments in municipalities varying between 14 per cent and 139 per cent of actual value.

"In school sections in the unorganized townships the variation is between four per cent and 305 per cent," he added.

$2,594,151 Claim Filed Under Mechanics' Lien

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A claim for $2,594,151 under the Ontario Mechanics Lien Act was filed Monday on behalf of Farini Limited, a construction firm, against Consolidated Denison Mines Limited, the world's largest uranium mine.

The lien was filed at the Algoma district court house by Sos awyer James D. Greco, acting for a Toronto law firm.

Legal sources here described it as the largest claim ever filed under the act, passed in 1873.

Few details of the action were known but it was learned that Farini is building a large mill for Consolidated Denison at its Elliot Lake mine. Mr. Greco said he understood the uranium firm has not met payments on the contract.

Under the Mechanics Lien Act, the properties and assets named could be sold to pay the claim.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was asking pop different questions such as if 2 people each had a good compass and started from the exact same spot and walked strate around the world in opposite directions at exactly the same speed whether they would meet again at the exact same spot they started from. Pop says he hoped they would if they liked each other, and I said, Hay pop, me and Puds have been practicing lasso throwing with long ropes.

It may come in handy if we happen to move to the cattle country, pop said. Besides, mastering any skill helps to coordinate the hand and eye, which are 2 very important things to coordinate, he said, and I said, They're really 3 things, if you count both eyes.

I accept the correction, pop said, and I said, Anyways, pop, it's a cinch to lasso a stick stuck in the middle of the yard.

You'll find it harder when you graduate to moving objects like steers and calves, pop said, and I said, I know, pop, we graduated speedy Mrs. Simkins says if her cat dost come out from underneath the porch in tonight she's going to call you up and talk to you, because Puds told her it was all my idea, but it wasn't, we had it together. Anyways, pop, I think I'll give up lasso throwing, I said.

I think you better, pop said.

Probably better be end of the subject because Puds's mother didn't call up.

Says Hamilton Cannot Benefit By Ontario Plan

HAMILTON (CP) — Mayor Lloyd Jackson says conditions imposed by the Ontario government in its $8,000,000 plan to end unemployment has made it practically impossible for this city to take advantage of the program.

Premier Frost announced Friday his government will pay 70 per cent of direct labor costs for special municipal projects incurred between now and May 31.

A meeting of board of control and representatives of various independent boards and departments heads Monday set out a list of projects which could be undertaken by the city.

The mayor said most of the projects would not come under the provincial plan since they could not be considered extraordinary measures.

A committee appointed by the mayor will meet Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender today to determine whether the conditions can be widened.

Purpose of PTA Outlined at St. Mary's Assoc.

CAMPBELLFORD—The monthly meeting of St. Mary's Parent-Teacher association was held in the school with a large attendance. The president, Mr. A. Morris, presided.

Mr. John Heffernan introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. McTurnon of Peterborough, the provincial president of the Association.

In her talk, Mrs. McTurnon stressed the purpose of the Parent-Teacher association is primarily for a better understanding and co-operation between the teacher and pupil. She added that, above all, the parents must never take sides with the child against the teacher, as in doing so, the parents destroy the teacher's authority in the school and indirectly this destroys the parent's authority in the home.

Mr. Garskey, president of the P.T.A. for the Sacred Heart School in Peterborough, briefly outlining the work of the Association as a unit, the various committees to be formed and their respective duties.

Mr. Jack Cleary thanked the speakers for their instructive addresses and added that he hoped they would be able to return.

Ask Moratorium For Unemployed

VICTORIA (CP) — A debt moratorium for all British Columbia unemployed was urged Monday by the B.C. Federation of Labor in a brief presented to the labor committee of the legislature.

The B.C. government should take the lead in arranging a debt moratorium for the unemployed, the federation said in presenting a five-point program to relieve unemployment.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, in the brief, said that a debt moratorium would be called to prevent unemployed persons from losing "their homes, cars or other goods."

WINTER MAGIC

Head-scratching is in order thinks Robert Woonig, 5, as he ponders the problem of how a kettle can support itself in mid-air—and upside down to boot! Ole' man winter is the answer, Robert, as he flooded your area around West Allis, Wisc., with sub-freezing temperatures. But patient Robert, spring is said to be just around the corner.

Storm Easing, Economic Loss In U.S. Huge

NEW YORK (CP) — The season's coldest and stormiest weather in the eastern half of the United States appeared easing in some sections today, but the over - all picture was not bright.

There was no letup in the monumental task of snow removal in the storm-battered areas hit by record falls last weekend.

Business and industry, dealt staggering blows by the violent weather, worked to restore operations to normal.

The economic loss is expected to run into the millions of dollars.

DEATHS LISTED

The latest count of deaths attributed to the weather reached 209 in areas from the east to Missouri and Iowa and from Maine to Alabama.

Ice threatened to close the Mississippi, Ohio and Hudson rivers. More than 100 barges and their tows were tied up in the Mississippi River at Cairo, Ill.

Snow piled up at Pittsburgh and Wheeling, W.Va., may be forced to close because of lack of water and coal.

Areas which reported temperatures Tuesday as low as 40 below zero—in Keene, N.J. — had more sub-zero marks this morning. Below - zero readings also were reported in northern midwest regions, but they were not as low as the last several days.

RELIEF FOR FLORIDA

Warmer weather was the outlook in the eastern half of the nation with morning temperatures into parts of Florida.

New York State snows mixed with sleet and rain on foot into rural areas and converted to sleet still blocked by high snowbanks of diamond-hard pinpoints of snow. Air travel basins were called out.

The New York Central railroad said it had 800 extra men clearing snow between Albany and Syracuse at an "astronomical" cost.

New England railroads, beset by snow and cold that caused delays ranging up to 20 hours, struggled to clear one of the worst transportation snarls of recent years.

Montreal Man Faces Charge of Armed Robbery

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Belair, of Sunnyside was remanded without plea to Feb. 25 for preliminary hearing.

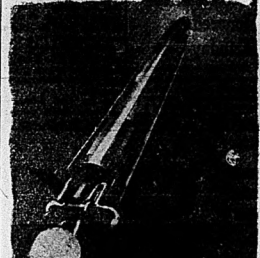
Both were charged in the shooting Thursday of Constable Raymond Charbonneau, with his squad car partner broke up an attempt at robbing a north-end branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale.

Belair also was charged in the shooting of Sergeant Albert Dan-phin, who suffered a bullet wound in the hip when he walked in on a September holdup of the bank which netted $7,000.

The men have been sent to penitentiary in the case.

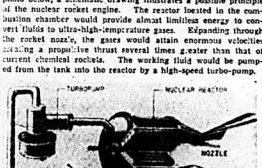
Thursday's attempted robbery was foiled when police were called by employees who spotted strangers in the bank.

Constable Charbonneau was shot in the thigh when two men attempted to break out of the building. One suspect was captured on the spot, the other a day later.



Water Main Freezes

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Two fire boats were strung across the Chippawa bridge Tuesday to restore water services for about 1,200 or 2,200 residents in the nearby village of Chippawa.



The water main on the bridge froze during the morning and water supplies were cut for an hour. A civil defence fire pumper was sent to the scene to hook the hose to hydrants.

The main was thawed out when an eavestrough was placed under it, filled with oil and ignited.

DESIGNED FOR INTERPLANETARY TRAVEL

Here is an artist's concept of a nuclear rocket missile theoretically capable of hundred-fold increases over the power of today's missiles. A nuclear rocket missile could make interplanetary travel possible with single rather than multi-stage engines. In concept, the engine would use energy of nuclear fission to convert a working fluid into propulsive gases. In the photo below, a schemstic drawing illustrates a possible principle of the nuclear rocket engine. The reactor loested in the combustion chamber would provide almost limitless energy to convert fluids to ultra-high-temprature gases. Espanding through the rocket nozzle, the gases would attain enormous velocities creating a propulsive thrust reveral times greater than that of current chemical rockets. The working fluid would be pumped from the tank into the reactor by a high-speed turbo-pump.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was starting to do my homework and I remembered something. Anyway, I was back, I guess along the luck.

Do I detect a note of despondency in your remarks? pop said. And I said, Sure, heck I went and lost a dime this afternoon. I was showing Puds how I could make it vanish by shooting it into my other hand quicker than his eyes could watch, and I lost it the wrong and it flew into the street and rolled through the grating of the sewer before I could catch up to it, I said.

That's too bad, but maybe you will cheer up when you hear about my friend Rosten Tooten, pop said. The same thing happened to him, but he come through all right. He lost all his savings in an unfortunate investment, but he gritted his teeth and stiffened his upper lip and took it like a man.

And he nodded his shoulder and put it to his wheel and started life all over a an errand boy, although he was 60 at the time, and now he is the richest man in the modrest nayborhood where he lives, pop said, and I said, Well that's not fair, I didn't make any investment.

Didn't you invest your savings in your ability as a slite of hand artist? pop said, and I said, No sir, I hadn't even saved it, I just found it, and it was the ferst time I was ever that lucky, so that's that makes it worse.

That's serious, if you lose your faith in your own luck you may disregard the knockings of opportunity pop said. By golliss it never happens to a dime mixed up in my change, I'll let you have the $5-said.

And he looked; and there happened to be, and he gave it to me, making my lucky feeling come back perfect.

Urges Go-Slow Plan in Control Of Brucellosis

TORONTO (CP) — Livestock Commissioner W. F. Watson said Tuesday his branch is reluctant to recommend test-and-slaughter control for brucellosis until compulsory vaccination has been in effect for five years.

He appeared before the Ontario legislatures' agriculture committee.

Questioned by W. A. Stewart (PC—Middlesex North) he said parts of adjoining Middlesex County could not easily be brought under the test - and - slaughter plan to be instituted in Oxford County.

Middlesex would have to wait for at least two years to be included, he said, because vaccinations have not been carried out over a long enough period.

Without long-term vaccination there might be too many cattle slaughtered—a go - slow policy recommended itself.

Committee chairman W. E. Johnston (PC — Carleton), Leader Donald MacDonald, P. M. Cass (PC—Grenville - Dundas) complained — over — stringent qualifications as loan director E. A. Weldon appeared before the committee.

Hog Producers' Duty to Stop Illegal Traffic

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Goodfellow told the Ontario Legislature Tuesday it is up to the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board to stop the illegal shipment of hogs out of the province.

"I understand 300 to 600 hogs a month are being shipped into Quebec and no steps have been taken by the hog producers' marketing board," he said in answer to CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald.

The violation was covered by the federal Agricultural Products Act and not Ontario legislation. "It's entirely up to the board as to which steps should be taken."

Mr. MacDonald referred to reports that Edgar Martin, Kent County hog producer, intends to challenge the board's authority by shipping hogs to Montreal. Mr. Martin had said he was taking the action because no penalties were being made for a new vote on the marketing plan among producers.

Mr. Goodfellow said the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board does not intend to hold the vote at this time but was leaving itself "in a flexible position."

CHARGE ENGINEER

LONDON (Reuters) — A summons alleging manslaughter has been issued against William Trew 61, engineer of the express train which crashed into a local train at Lewisham Dec. 4. Ninety persons died in the crash. He is to appear in court March 7.

$500,000 Fire Loss at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Fire, fanned by strong winds, destroyed the 75-year - old Park Hotel at nearby Long Branch Tuesday. Loss was estimated at $500,000.

Fifty patrons fled from the hotel's two beverage rooms. Twelve permanent guests were not in their rooms at the time. No one was injured.

WIND-PACKED SNOW RENDERS ROADS IMPASSABLE

Repeat this scene hundreds of times and it gives an idea of Southern Ontario's highways in the grip of the season's fewest snowstorm. This is the Highway 27 road to Stayner, where high winds kept plushing snow on the roads faster than snowplows could clear it off. On some roads, even heavy plows find it almost impossible to move the snow, packed into concrete-like hardness by 40 mph winds.

3rd Sidney

3RD SIDNEY — Winter has really arrived with plenty of snow and 10-12 degrees below zero weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart are basking in Florida sunshine. Mr. Elwin Hart is in Toronto on business.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Langstaff spent week or so in Toronto while Mr. Langstaff underwent an operation, they are home now and he is feeling much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Trent, of Toronto, and daughter spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Latlin. Their baby daughter, Sharon D'an. was christened at the Albers church on the 3rd concession during the Sunday morning service.

Mr. Ken Knister, of Gravenhurst, visited his father, Herbert Knister, also Mr. Knister's son-in-law, Mr. Harold Evans from Bowmanville.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Valliere and children, Ivan and Sus-ann, of Madoc, spent the dinner hour on Saturday with the Knisters. Mr. H. Knister is some what improved since taking treatments at the Kingston hospital.

NO JINGLE BELLS

ROCKWAY, Ont. (CP) — A sleigh-riding party by a church group in this hamlet near St. Catharines had to be cancelled Monday night. The reason: too much snow.

SILLY TO ARGUE

Instead, things worsened. Money and "political tranquillizers" were running out as the Conservatives called an election to avoid a national accounting.

TAXES-INFLATION

The Conservatives have maintained the Libera's should have reduced taxes last spring if they wanted to avoid unemployment. Big at that time, Mr. Pearson said, the Liberals were fighting inflation.

They had received reports emphasizing that inflation at that time was still the most pressing danger and with that report Mr. Pearson agreed.

The Liberal administration took action in halt the threat of runaway inflation. Now the country was facing a recession, Mr. Pearson's party's $400,000,000 tax-cut program was designed to meet that "emergency" situation.

It would mean a budget deficit, but previous Liberal administrations had reduced the national debt by some $2,500,000,000 in post-war years. It was time now to turn some of that reduction back to the taxpayers so that their spending power might be increased, stimulating the Canadian market for goods.

ONTARIO PLANS

Mr. Pearson will mix a little

Measure with his work during the next few days. On Thursday he will stop at Milton, northwest of Toronto, to visit his daughter, Mrs. Pat Hanna, and his two grandchildren.

He'll also be in Kitchener and Guelph that day. Friday will find him in the London area and Saturday at Kingston, Napanee and Cobourg, in Eastern Ontario.

He previously had planned to spend Saturday around the Niagara Falls area but this was washed out at the last minute. He will make appearances there later.

SPACE MAN RETURNS TO EARTH

Wearing a broad grin, airman Donald G. Farrell, 23, of Bronx, N.Y., is assisted by Dr. Julian Ward, left, as he tries to straighten up after emerging from the space cabin he had been confined to for seven days at Randolph air force base in Texas. Farrell was reported "raring to go" on a real trip to the moon after winding up the seven-day simulated space flight in the space cabin.

More Navy Men Will Be Put Afloat by Plan

LONDON Reuters — The Royal Navy announced Tuesday big slashes in its shore establishments to that more of its men can be put afloat.

The move, which includes plans to close three historic installations, is in line with the navy's program of streamlining the service to meet the needs of nuclear-age sea warfare.

The navy disclosed its intention to close the Portland and Sheerness dockyards by next July and April, 1960, respectively. The other historic installation — the Royal Naval Barracks at Chatham—will be shut down by April, 1961.

The navy said it will close the two dockyards because its need for repair work is declining under the new policy of a smaller and more streamlined fleet.

Also, it said, two commands are to be abolished along with six naval air establishments.

The commands are East Indies, serving the Indian Ocean, and Nore, based in the North Sea off the Thames Estuary.

The navy said that over the next three years, the moves announced Tuesday plus previously-published reorganizations will save about 7,000 shorebased sailors for sea duty, abolish 23,000 civilian jobs and save an annual £15,000,000 for expenditure on stand-driven submarines and new rocket weapons.

Many Good Shows Readied For TV Viewers This Week

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Wide Wide World (NBC-TV) is always interesting when it focuses its wide scope on ordinary rather than extraordinary life. The examination of middle age last Sunday was a good example.

It's a long time since television has offered a more absorbing study than the sequence on the pleasures and problems of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reed and their family in a St. Louis suburb. Another interesting segment was a discussion by Walter Pitkin on why he abandoned book publishing in New York to run a book store in Westport, Conn.

As sometimes happens with Wide Wide World, however, the program was at times carried away by its own rhetoric. There was too much lush prose and not enough English in the study of middle age.

A viewer's problem for tonight is which of these programs to watch:

On NBC-TV at 9 p.m. EST Milton Berle returns to television in a serious dramatic role as the star of Material Witness on Kraft Theatre.

At the same time on CBS-TV Victor Borge presents his third television hour of comedy and music with some guests this time, including dancers Babi Lunn and Alexander and singer Doretta Morrow.

Next Sunday Omnibus will devote the entire 90 minutes (NBC-TV) to the presentation of a drama by Peter Ustinov, Moment of Truth.

This is a provocative four-act play that examines the weaknesses of diplomacy as it develops the character of a career-soldier warrior whose life had been filled with glory—and who lived too long.

Clint Walker Getting Tired Of Grinding Out Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clint Walker is the very model of a modern movie cowpoke.

Clint is handsome, rangy—six feet six — and serious. Making western movies is no adventure to him, as it was to pioneers like Bronchs Billy Anderson and Jock Mahoney. He's a serious actor who takes in the acting business very seriously, save what money they can and try to take a long-range view on their careers. They work long hours, grinding out products for the insatiable appetite of television, and have little time or inclination to raise hell.

Two years ago Clint Walker was just another big actor trying to get work in Hollywood — you can see him as one of the pharaoh's guards in Ten Commandments. Then a smart agent took him to Warner Brothers to try out for the role of a big western, Cheyenne.

He got the role and the series was a success. So much so that it launched more westerns at Warners, and this year the studio will pull in $15,000,000 from its TV enterprises.

Cheyenne has made Clint a star — but not necessarily happy.

"I'm tired," he said as he hunkered through his 32nd hour-long western. "There ain't much fun making these pictures when we started out and had plenty of time and budget to work on them. But now we have to grind them out on a schedule, and there's no kick in it for me.

"I want to get out. I got into the acting business with the idea that I wanted to excel in it and make it my life's work. To do that, you've got to continue growing as a performer. I don't think you can continue growing when you have to work so fast. I want to get like Gary Cooper, who can continue growing when you have to work so fast. I want to get like Gary Cooper, who is the Cadillac section of this business."

Whether he will be allowed to abdicate as Cheyenne is a moot question. He is under exclusive contract, and studios have a way of continuing what appears to be a going enterprise.

UAW WANTS VOICE

DETROIT (CP) — Ken Bannon, United Auto Workers Ford director, said Tuesday the UAW wants more say in investment of the union's $1,000,000,000 pension trust funds. He said the union wants some of the funds invested in areas close to auto plants, as an aid to employment. Most are invested now mainly in office buildings and other business investments along the eastern seaboard, union officials say.

AND RIGHTLY SO!

The Eastern Ontario senior league brass at its meeting in Kingston last night let the top moguls know they were not going to be kicked around in the forthcoming playoffs and playdowns.

They scoffed the OHA suggestion that their playoffs be three-of-five and demanded, on record, that they be given the same privileges as other senior groups. With the exception of a single date change they unanimously adopted a proposed best-of-seven series for both semi-finals and finals.

They rose on their hind legs in righteous wrath over the fact their league had been told to play a best-of-five series so the winners could take on those of the northern section of the NOHA, to wit, either Kapuskasing, Timmins, Porcupine and Abitibi. They adopted an unanimous motion that they be given equal best-of-seven playoff rights with those already granted the OHA-NOHA senior league.

They unwillingly agreed to take on the northern champions, feeling it was their privilege, since the Eastern crown had predated the 1957 Allan Cup winner, to play out their best-of-seven finals, and let the western-northern winners play the other northern group.

They agreed, however, to play this series if the northern champions were ordered to come south to play the first two games of the proposed best-of-five series.

They turned down the OHA suggestion that group semi-finals be restricted to best-of-five instead of best-of-seven. They will play these series out regardless of a day's difference in entering to the western Ontario group. They felt the best-of-seven series was Okay for the OHA-NOHA league, it was good enough for the Eastern League. And that was that.

They adopted playoff dates. These will be published as soon as standing positions are finalized.

GO GET IT, BART!

If Barton Bradley is not superstitious he had better begin kicking black cats out of his way, tossing salt over his shoulder, opening umbrellas in the house; bury himself on Fridays the 13th, and do other things people do to ward off the evil spirits.

Number thirteen was nailed to Mgr. Barton's high-scoring bandwagon. The smooth centre who unveils himself in, and out around the centre spot with all the ease of an eel slithering through a pond of oil, and is lamplighting poison when in front of an enemy net, had better treat the odd number with respect in the future.

Bart had rung up seventeen goals in thirteen consecutive games and was breezing along nicely to a neat record. Then Old Man Thirteen reared its ugly superstitious head, slammed a double-whammy on the puck artist's game. Bart a big dose of slipped discs. The discs slipped either just past the posts or on one in that fateful fourteenth game against Cornwall, and Bart's consecutive record was clipped neatly, but not gaudily.

However, according to the latest scoring statistics, the high-scorer from the west, is leading the Eastern League in points, 29 goals and 23 assists, par for the course with Bobby Allersley of the Whitby Dunlops. Bart, however, has two games left in the season to take over from the Whitby wizard, but he may be given a stretch battle for the points-getting championship of the league.

One big threat is young Billy Colvin of the Kingston CKLC's, at the moment the leading goal-getter of the loop with 21, with a points total of 59, three in arrears of Bradley. However, Colvin has three more games to tuck under his belt, and he could overtake the McFarland's centre.

Another threat is Bert Giesebrecht, of the Pembroke Lumber Kings, who with any degree of consistency in five games to play could take over the scoring leadership. Giesebrecht has 19 goals and 35 assists for 54 points, tied with Moe Savard of Cornwall, who has four games to play (unless different arrangements were made last night.) The Lumber Kings, however, have five games to go.

Bradley picked up five scoring points, four goals and an assist in the past week, while three other Macs entered the chartered circle of the ten top points-getters of the league. He Hilderbrandt with 16 goals and 18 assists for an assist for a total of 53 points for sixth place. Incidentally, He is the top assist-getter of the loop with 38.

Wiener Brown roared up into the Big Ten with 26 goals, and 23 points for 49 points, as did Jean Paul Payette with 13 goals and 36 assists, for the same number. Jean-Paul holds down the tenth position in the circle.

Gordie "Shutout" Bell, who has been flirting with the top spot in the goalie division mostly all season, is now well out in front with a quartet of shutouts to his credit, tops in the league with a goal-against average of 2.49 for 47 games played. His nearest opposition is Plummer Craig of Pembroke who has seen 173 pucks slither past him in 44 games for a GA average of 3.93.

Fergus Makes Badminton Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Bert Fergus of Vancouver was named Tuesday to the sixth and final playing position on Canada's 1958 Thomas Cup team which will represent the United States in the triennial international badminton competition.

The Canada-United States tie, North American zone final, is to be held at Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 28 and March 1. The winner will go to Malaya in June for the cup quarter-final against Thailand.

Stan Cutts of Montreal, who will coach the team, said, "I believe Don Smythe and Fergus can turn the title for Canada." Pick expressed confidence that the two are the strongest combination Canada has ever sent into Thomas Cup play.

BOWIE STILL CLOSED

BOWIE Md. (AP) — Bowie race track remained closed today because of drifts of snow on roads leading into the strip.

Whip Local Swede Team 12-0 Then Go Into Roughing Act; Five Dunlops Get the Gate

GOTEBORG, Sweden (CP) — Wren Blair, manager of Canada's hockey entry in the world championships, said a few days ago it was "good to know that even European teams can go for a little rougher play."

The play certainly was rougher Tuesday night when the Canadians defeated a local side 12-0 in an exhibition game.

Half a minute before the end, Whitby ran into the first fracas of its tour which culminates in the world championships at Oslo Feb. 23-March 9.

Charlie Burns, the baseball catcher who also helped Whitby win the Allan Cup last year, travelled with Sigge Broems, one of the local Calle players.

The referee ordered Burns to leave the ice. He refused. Then he got into an argument with the Swedish goalkeeper, Karlstroem. Spectators came into the act, too. They tossed snowballs from the open-air arena and bottle caps and other debris onto the ice.

TOSSES SIX OFF

When the referee finally restored order he dismissed both Burns and Broems and another four Canadians who took part in the squabble — former playing-coach Buz Gagnon, Gamel Myles, Harry Linden and Al Treen.

Burns and Smith, with two goals each, in the scoring parade, were two goals in the first period, seven in the second and three in the third.

The win was the Canadians' eighth in as many exhibition games in England, West Germany and Sweden.

The team left here for Oslo today to play in two other exhibitions games, then Thursday and Friday. They return to Sweden for three more exhibitions next week before the world tournament begins.

The Canadians have presented a hockey stick to Sweden's 11-year-old Crown Prince, Carl Gustaf. The prince is on a holiday in the north of Sweden and may not get the stick until his 12th birthday April 30.

Injuries Affect US Hockey Team

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)— The United States' crippled hockey team takes the ice here Tuesday for Oslo and a final series of exhibitions in preparation for the opening Olympics.

Two players, forward Paul Johnson of St. Paul, Minn., and defenceman Ed Kirrane of Brookline, Mass., have been forced to the sidelines.

Kirrane suffered a broken wrist in Leningrad. He may not be able to play for another two or three weeks.

Flyers Edge Biltmores 2-1

GUELPH (CP) — Barrie Flyers edged Guelph Biltmores 2-1 here Tuesday night to virtually clinch sixth and last playoff spot in the Ontario Hockey Association A race.

The win gave Flyers a nine-point edge over Biltmores. Both clubs have six games remaining leaving hatters only a slim mathematical chance of catching a playoff spot.

Bernard Cote of Barrie opened scoring in the first period and Ron Brain tied it up.

TROPHY FOR MOSS

LONDON (AP)—Stirling Moss, British racing car driver, was awarded the Segrave Trophy Tuesday in recognition of his 1957 track accomplishments.

Whitby Dunlops Get the Gate

Rangy Ed Litzenberger joined Chicago Black Hawks late in 1954, one of six players obtained by the team by Chicago from Montreal Canadiens.

It was one of a series of deals with other National Hockey League teams in a "help the Hawks" move. Chicago had finished last in six of the eight previous seasons.

Because of the timing of his shift, the Neudorf, Sask., native played 23 games—the schedule calls for 70 for each team—and contributed 12 goals and 28 assists from his right wing position. HAWKS STILL LOWLY

The performance won Litzenberger the Calder Trophy as the league's outstanding rookie—but the Hawks remained out of the cellar.

In fact, while Litzenberger's fortunes have ebbed and flooded since, some of his efforts have made much impression on the Hawks' standing.

Chicago finished sixth in 1955-56 when Litzenberger slumped to 10 goals, and sixth last year-when he bounced back to second in the league's second all-star team at centre.

Litzenberger is on his way to another good season although his scoring punch is not the best in the league, are behind last year's pace when he finished fifth with 29 goals.

But he's the only Hawk in the top 10 and what is important to a rebuilt team is still last.

MAY PASS TORONTO

The Hawks may be on the verge of climbing out of the cellar. They are tied for fifth place with Toronto Maple Leafs six points behind Boston Bruins and are at home for three games, the second-place Rangers tonight in the only action scheduled.

Litzenberger, 22, six-three and 193 pounds, had trials with Montreal and was considered a top prospect except that Canadiens were loaded with right-wing talent.

So Ed was expendable when the owners decided to sell the Hawks. He went for cash. Other Canadiens who shifted were Lorne (Gump) Worsley, Gordon (Bucky) Hollingworth, Dick Gamble and Paul Masnick.

Masnick is the only other still active in the league. He was called up by Toronto earlier this season after three years in the minor leagues.

Here Is a Guy "Who Knows"

CLEVELAND (AP) — How do the American League's great hurlers since the Second World War rate with the man closest to them as they step—the opposing catcher?

That the hitters have some respect for Regan's opinions is evident from a remark by Williams to Ted Williams: "The greatest concentrator."

Mickey Mantle: "The most powerful."

Eastern Senior 'A' Division Standings, Scoring

Belleville's Barton Bradley has taken over leadership of the scoring race among players active in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" loop and has pulled into a tie with the absent Bobby Attersley.

Bradley has scored 29 goals and added 33 assists for 62 points, the same as Attersley had before he left with Whitby Dunlops for the world hockey tournament. Kingston's Billy Colvin is giving Bradley a close race for his money with 59 points, consisting of a head-shaking 31 goals and 28 assists. Bob Boucher of Ottawa-Hull, is in third place with 55 points, while Moe Savard of Cornwall, and Bert Glossbrenner of Pembroke, follow with 54. Bradley has only two games left to play while Boucher and Savard have four, Colvin three and Glossbrenner five.

Colvin's 31 goals gives him top spot in that department, while playing-coach Ike Hildebrand of Belleville, is the assist leader with 33. Russ Kowaluk, Belleville, is the loop hadman, with 167 minutes served.

Gerd Bell of Belleville, is the loop's top netminder with a 2.49 average in 42 games and also is tops in shutouts with four. Newcomer Andre Payette of Pembroke, has a 3.23 average but has only played three games.

Trappers Whip Maroons 5-1

Victory for the Trappers moved them into a third-place tie with Sudbury Wolves.

The league's leading scorer, Ted Power, scored Chatham's lone marker with one second remaining in the game to spoil Dennis Brodeur's shutout bid.

SCOTS STRONGHOLD

Only once has Edinburgh Castle been stormed and captured from the outside—in 1313 when it fell to the Earl of Moray.

Alberta Hot Over Curling Ban

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Curling Association will oppose any move by Ontario to invoke a classification of professionalism in curling when the Canadian association meets next month in Victoria.

An ACA spokesman announced this Tuesday.

The Ontario association recently banned Garnet and Don Campbell, noted curlers from Avonlea, Sask., from competing in the Ontario championships because they had been paid as instructors.

"We feel strongly about the Campbells being banned from all competitions in Ontario," the ACA official said. "There is no valid reason for the action against the Campbell boys."

TIGHT FINISH

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—The Pakistani cricket team beat Jamaica Colts by 10 wickets Tuesday with only three minutes to spare in a two-day match. The score was 307 to 306.

Eleven Curling Rinks Are Ready for Dominion Test

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All 11 rinks which will contest the Dominion curling championship in Victoria March 3-7 now have been decided in provincial bonspiels.

Ron Redding made his Kenora rink the last entry Tuesday night when he skipped it to triumph in the Northern Ontario championships at Fort William. Ontario is the only province sending two rinks to the Dominion bonspiel.

Alberta will once again be represented by Matt Baldwin's Edmonton Granite rink. Baldwin skipped the Dominion champion in 1956 and '57.

In Oshawa last week, Murray Roberts led his Unionville rink to the Ontario title with an undefeated record. Runner-up was the Toronto Granite rink, skipped by Dr. Robert Marshall, whose only loss was to Unionville.

Gordon Grimes' rink from Estevan won the Saskatchewan title, defeating former provincial champion Harold Horeak of Regina.

YOUNG CONTENDERS

In Manitoba last week, 18-year-old Terry Braunstein of Winnipeg Granite skipped his teen-aged rink to a win. His rink will be the youngest ever to represent a province in the Dominion championship.

At Halifax, Don Bauld, veteran of three Dominion spiels, led his Halifax rink to an extra-end 11-10 victory over Bridgewater to take the Nova Scotia championship.

Queen's Beaten By Clarkson

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP)—Clarkson battled far behind for a 5-4 hockey victory over Queen's University Tuesday night.

Grant Childerhose, Mel Tumulty, Doug Wilson, Jerry Howell and Louis Mcmartino scored for the Knights as they won their 12th of the season against two defeats.

Daryll McKenzie scored twice for the Kingston, Ont., unit which now has four victories, three losses and two ties. Pete Grossi and Andy Backagorge got the other Queen's scores.

Bud Fisher's Corner Brook rink will represent Newfoundland, backed by record of six wins and no losses in the provincial winding-up.

One of the newcomers to the event will be Doug Cameron, who skipped his Charlottetown rink to victory in the Prince Edward Island final. He is a former Dominion schoolboy finalist.

Bombers Boost Football Tab

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg football fans will have to dig a little deeper next season if they want to sit in the choice seats at Blue Bomber home games, but a survey shows the other Western clubs hope to hold the price line.

Announcing increases of 25 to 50 cents on about one-half of the seats in Winnipeg Stadium, Winnipeg officials said the boost is needed to keep the club out of the red for a second season. Bombers won the western crown last year, but lost $11,000.

The other four clubs in the western division of the Canadian Football League have no plans for similar action.

ALL-STAR RUGGER

'Winnie' Winning Over Pneumonia, Pleurisy And Age

Has Fairly Good Night, Fever Is Little Lower

Blame Shift In Jet Stream For Weather

WASHINGTON (AP)—A shift in the jet stream—not really unusual—is the weather bureau's explanation of what's causing extreme cold over the eastern two-thirds of the United States while the far west enjoys a relative warm spell.

And there's no real hope for warm weather for much of the eastern area for the next 30 days.

The jet stream is also known as "the prevailing westerlies"—the normally west-to-east wind currents of the upper air at from 10,000 to 40,000 feet. Into these winds have become northerlies, blowing southward over the central part of the continent.

NOT BLOCKING COLD

At this level a year cold Arctic air builds up over Canada. Normally, this icy air would be pushed out of the Atlantic by the westerlies without too much trouble.

But now there's a neat ridge on which the cold air can slide right down through the United States to Florida and the Gulf of Mexico, bringing the freezing temperatures.

On the fringes of this cold air mass, low pressures or stormy areas develop such as the one that dumped bigger amounts of snow along the Atlantic coast last weekend.

WARM AIR TROUGH

While the Arctic air has been sliding down the north-south air ridge, west of the Rockies "the" air is being forced up from the south and southwest to fill in a trough there.

This jet stream shift occurs on occasion every winter, but it has been worse this year and of longer duration, Florida, the weather bureau notes, has had six freezes where it might normally get about two.

Just what causes the jet stream to make such about faces?

"You'd have to go way back to the sun—we don't know what causes it," a weather bureau spokesman said.

ROQUEBRUNE CAP MARTIN, France (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill was comfortable and his fever is a little lower today, a medical bulletin said this afternoon.

The bulletin said the condition of the 83-year-old statesman, battling pneumonia and pleurisy, "is not greatly changed since Wednesday."

But, it added, "he is comfortable, his strength is maintained and his fever is a little lower."

Earlier today, a member of Churchill's household said Churchill had a "fairly restful night."

So far Sir Winston, a warrior in military and political campaigns throughout the century, seemed to have the upper hand in his new bout with illness.

His secretary, Anthony Montague-Browne, said Churchill spent Wednesday in "good spirits . . . reading papers, talking to his family and dealing with correspondence." He smoked two cigars and drank milky tea.

NO SIGN OF ALARM

There was no indication that those in attendance on the former prime minister were alarmed.

A handful of reporters stood guard along with two gendarmes at the villa la Pausa's gate, which was located in the bright Mediterranean sun.

The diagnosis of pneumonia at the base of the lung and pleurisy was given Wednesday night by Lord Moran, who flew here from London.

Churchill came to the Riviera Jan. 15 for his annual winter visit. Monday he visited the yacht of Greek millionaire Aristotle Onassis, Montague-Browne said Sir Winston apparently suffered a chill during the visit. He returned to his villa Monday.

MAKING PROGRESS

Mary Soames, 35, left London by plane for the Riviera Wednesday to be at her father's bedside.

"I don't take a few days," said Mrs. Duncan Sandys, wife of Britain's defence minister. "I understand he is going on all right. It is encouraging."

Mrs. Sandys, the former Diana Churchill, spoke to reporters after receiving a personal message from the Riviera villa.)

Atlas Missile Explodes Just After Takeoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile blasted off at 12:48 a.m. today but apparently blew up about two minutes after leaving its flight pad.

The Atlas roared straight up for about 30 seconds, then arched slowly toward the east, leaving a vapor trail in the sky.

Two minutes after the start of the flight, observers saw a huge ball of fire and the Atlas could not longer be seen.

There was no immediate confirmation that the U.S. Air Force or what happened.

The Atlas was the same one the air force attempted to launch last Saturday. It belched fire and steam on that occasion but its engines were cut off by the test conductor a split second before it would have roared skyward.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:

Skies were mostly clear across the province this morning and although temperatures remain on the chilly side of normal, they are substantially higher than was experienced early in the week. The trend toward moderating winds and temperatures continues, with marked rises in daytime temperatures expected throughout Southern Ontario Friday. Increasing cloudiness and milder air will move into North-ern Ontario tonight and light falls of snow are forecast for localities near and north of Lake Superior.

PEARSON LINKS FLEMING WITH DONALD DUCK

Voices Confidence In Party Victory

TORONTO (CP) — Lester B. Pearson has described Finance Minister Donald Fleming as having the "irascibility of a Donald Duck without his more endearing qualities."

The Liberal chieftain, expressing confidence of a party victory March 31, launched new attacks against the Progressive Conservatives in such a fervent, hard-punching speech Wednesday night that political reporters following his campaign commented: "This is a new Pearson."

The former external affairs minister pleaded for a mandate so that he could help end the Mackay of "suicidal terror" that stalked the world and to restore Liberal relations between Canada and the United States.

He spoke at the new Conservative cabinet ministers who went to Washington last year "to deal with the U.S." on trade and other matters as "four power hitters who ah' struck out."

His urged voters to examine Prime Minister Diefenbaker's record "and decide what worth we planned projects "very carefully," pointing out that many months to launch and that others may never see the light of day.

Mr. Pearson's first briefing for the first time in the campaign, Mr. Diefenbaker had obtained that Mr. Pearson had made an irresponsible charge when he stated the government had plunged the country into "financial chaos."

Earlier in the campaign, Mr. Fleming had given the provinces inaccurate figures on how much they would get from the government's new tax-sharing deal; he had failed to keep his word to get last fall and give the country a national accounting. And when Liberals asked him in the Commons whether he would honor a commitment to allow examination of all the departmental estimates before Parliament was recalled, he replied that he could not control the forces of destiny.

Frost Agrees To Meet Phillips On Relief Plans

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost, Ontario cabinet and Mayor Phillips and board of control have decided to suspend negotiations of the Ontario government's plan for unemployment relief.

Mr. Phillips was given only 40 minutes notice at the 9:30 a.m. meeting. Until today only Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender was slated to meet the city board.

The government last week effected to pay 70 per cent of labor costs of municipal public works programs supporting unemployed not receiving unemployment insurance is hired for the jobs.

Board of control protested the conditions and asked for an unconditional 50-50 share to the grant of $504,000 in 1953. Controller Fred Brand, who Wednesday called the plan a dud program, said today: "We can't accept it as a basis for real nimsies."

An outright grant to the city would "cut out all this nonsense," he said.

Army 'Copters Rescue 60 Persons From Snowbound Homes in Indiana

NEW YORK (AP)—Temperatures continued to moderate in the eastern half of the country, but more snow in parts of the storm-stricken northeast slowed rescue operations.

There was increasing relief from the severe cold as the center of the Arctic air mass moved eastward into the Atlantic. However, subzero readings were reported in the upper Great Lakes region as skies cleared.

Rescue operations are under way in the hardest-hit storm section, Pennsylvania, New York State and Indiana, but many rural families remain isolated.

Food and fuel have been brought to many of the marooned families. In northern Indiana army helicopters have rescued about 60 persons from snowbound homes this week.

Governor Harold Handley of Indiana Wednesday night declared a state of emergency in

Back of Cold Wave Broken By Balmier Air From South

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Quebec began to relax today as balmier air moved in from southern climes and the low pressure storm centre which caused drifting barriers of snow began to dissipate its energy off the Maritimes coast.

Temperatures in the two provinces today were expected to be about 10 degrees below normal and steadily climbing. The creeping wind was expected to grow gentler under clearing skies.

The weather man said it appeared the back of the cold wave is broken.

The southern prairies had temperatures ranging in the high teens and lows generally much warm air from the south. But the northern areas were very cold from disturbance building up in the Northwest Territories. The weatherman said it is likely the disturbance will continue to build up until another mass of frigid air begins to move over Eastern Canada, but this will happen after Ontario and Quebec has had a chance to enjoy normal temperatures for at least a few days.

The milder weather allowed most Ontario and Quebec townships and villages isolated since Sun-day to dig through to outside contact.

Reeve Frank E. Grey said the village of Creemore, 35 miles southwest of Orillia, was opened Wednesday afternoon after a snowplow had worked steadily for 12 hours.

Cartingford, near Stratford, was still isolated late Wednesday as highway department plows finished clearing main roads and started on township roads.

In the Ottawa valley, the five-day snowstorm abated Wednesday. But it was slowed considerably to three drifts.

Mrs. Helen Bowie, 71, of Burnetts Rapids, and William Henry Graham, 73, Perth, died while shovelling snow at their homes. Mrs. Margaret Cameron, 85, Beckwith, died of exposure soon after being found last Saturday unconscious on a concession road.

At Port Erie Wednesday, police broke down the door of a one-room shack and found the frozen body of Thomas Huby, 81. It is believed he had been dead for days, possibly as the result of the fire going out in his stove.

Tunisia Says French Forces Kidnapped Official, Soldiers

TUNIS (AP)—Tunisian-French relations took another turn for the worse today as the Tunisian government charged French soldiers invading a Tunisian settlement building in southern Tunisia and kidnapping a Tunisian official and two soldiers.

The French Embassy said the Tunisians were only sought out for questioning following the blowing up of a fortified building by a land mine. The embassy added that the Tunisians were released this morning and it considered the incident closed.

Two French soldiers were reported injured in the Jeep explosion.

The incident Wednesday at Remada, a town of about 400 in the Tunisian desert, is a small French post is located, came as the Tunisians and the French appeared to be backing away from the crisis caused by the French bombing of a Tunisian village Feb. 8 in reprisal for Algerian rebels who have agreed to let the United States establish what they call "good offices" in an effort to smooth relations between France and her former North African protectorate.

The Tunisian foreign ministry termed the Remada incident "extremely serious." It charged in a communique that the French troops — officially restricted to their bases throughout Tunisia — since the air attack on Sakiet Sidi Youssef—invaded the local administrative buildings and carried off the local governor and two soldiers.

The French said nothing about the Tunisian charge that French soldiers invaded Tunisian French-ment buildings to get the three men.

The latest incident is certain to further inflame Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba for the withdrawal of all French troops from his country. He has also ordered the closing of French consulates in the four interior of Tunisia and today the Tunisian government said all French consuls defying the closing would be treated as ordinary citizens.

The Remada incident became known here only this morning. However, it happened at sundown Wednesday. Telephone communication with the town was cut off during the night.

France has kept some 15,000 troops in Tunisia under the terms of cerstandings reached following the granting two years ago of independence to the former North African colony. However, the Tunisian government ordered all these troops restricted to their bases following the air bombing of a Tunisian village Feb. 8.

The bombing cost 78 lives, and set off the present crisis. France said the bombing was aimed at sehind the Tunisian frontier.

PARIS (CP)—France is sending 50,000 more troops to Algeria to fight the rebellion the French government says is the work of agitators in the war.

The French cabinet Wednesday approved the new reinforcements for the 400,000 army, navy and air force men already in the North African territory.

The new troops will go to eastern Algeria, the weakest French position because of rebel infiltration across the Tunisian border.

PM MAINTAINS PC VICTORY SEEN BY SMALLWOOD

Request for Federal Aid Is His Evidence

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—John Diefenbaker, a skillful lawyer before he became prime minister, has depicted Newfoundland's Premier Smallwood as forecasting a March 31 federal election victory for the Progressive Conservative government.

The jury before which he built up his case was an audience of some 1,600 here Wednesday night. His "evidence" was a letter received from the Liberal premier earlier in the day. He said gleefully that Mr. Smallwood "with unusual prescience" had asked in the letter for legislation in Parliament to provide federal aid for power distribution lines.

Mr. Diefenbaker was heeds: That could only mean the premier expects there will be a Conservative government to take such a step in the post-election Parliament.

UNEXPECTED AID

"I wouldn't have expected such assistance so early in the campaign" the Conservative leader added.

He also aimed some shafts at J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal immigration minister seeking re-election in Newfoundland's Bonavista-Twillingate riding.

"It was only yesterday that Jack Pickersgill said we had no problems," he said. "The premier of Newfoundland knows whereof he speaks . . . that's the attitude of all."

Today the prime minister was to travel by car to Gander and Grand Falls.

That will wind up his two-day campaign in this province, represented in the last Parliament by two Liberals and two Conservatives. Those two, W. J. Browne of St. John's West, and James M. Ottenbrath in St. John's East, were nominated to run again. Mr. Browne is a minister without portfolio.

BIG AUDIENCE

Mr. Diefenbaker's audience, second-largest in his week - old campaign, included Premier Conservatives. Those two, W. J. Browne of St. John's West, and James M. Ottenbrath in St. John's East, were nominated to run again. Mr. Browne is a minister without portfolio.

214 Indians Die As Blast Shakes Three Coal Mines

Explosion in One Mine Causes Floods in Others

CALCUTTA (AP) — At least 214 miners are believed to have died in disasters Wednesday night as three Indian coal mines near West Bengal's Bihar border, reports reaching here said today.

The most serious accident was at Chinakuri colliery, India's most modern, where 186 night shift miners were trapped below ground when a blast wrecked the workings.

The Chinakuri blast, said the reports, touched off flooding in the neighboring Central Bhowrah mine, and at least 20 lives were feared lost there.

FLOODS KILLED 28

Further west, the Mahalbani mine was also flooded, and 28 miners were reported drowned below ground.

The British-owned Bengal Coal Company, owners of the Chinakuri colliery, said the cause of Wednesday night's explosion was unknown.

Rescue teams toiled in a bid to reach more survivors there, but had to be withdrawn because of leaping from the pit mouth and possible further surface explosions.

CNR and Union Begin Talks On New Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — The public-owned Canadian National Railways and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) today began negotiations on a new labor contract. Major issue is the union demand on diesel locomotives.

The CNR's notice Feb. 2 It plans to ask that in the new contract it be given sole discretion in the assignment of firemen on other than steam locomotives.

The railway said it would be guided in its actions by the report of the Kellock royal commission which recommended that firemen are not required aboard freight and yard diesels.

The Kellock commission was established last year after a minor-day tie-up of CPR's Montreal terminal service by the firemen. The union was called in to settle the efforts to remove firemen from freight and yard diesels.

Relations between the CPR and the union in the wake of the Kellock report have improved in last Friday, with the company charging that the brotherhood had repudiated signed agreements.

Feeding the union's negotiators for the CNR were Glen Miller, vice-president of the firemen's Brotherhood. CNR negotiators included W. T. Wilson, vice-president of personnel; T. A. Hutchinson, director of labor relations, and E. K. House, assistant vice-president of operations.

Move Eskimo Band After Killings And Burial of Children in Snow

OTTAWA (CP) — A band of Eskimos, two of whose members were slain last week, is being moved from the barren shores of the Keewatin district to Eskimo Point on the western shore of Hudson Bay, 800 miles northwest Winnipeg, it was reported today.

The decision to move the band was made following an undeclared violence resulting in the shooting of two Eskimos, the burial of another and the burial of two Eskimo children in the snow, one of them apparently alive at the time, to be alive.

The move started following reports by the RCMP that an Eskimo child buried as dead in a snowbank a few days previously was found alive by police investigating the shooting of his father and the killing of another Eskimo.

The child was one of two the RCMP said were buried alive. The child died while she was being sought for questioning in connection with the double killing near Henik Lake, 200 miles west of Hudson Bay.

R. A. J. Phillips, chief of the Arctic division of the northern affairs department, said the move of the band of about 46 Eskimos to Eskimo Point is temporary.

He said the decision to take this step was reached in an effort to solve the problems which developed following the murder of Eskimo Ikkikk from Ennadai Lake, 200 miles to the southwest. It is believed the murder occurred in March when the Henik Lake area stemmed to move.

The mother, Kikkik, was found Sunday after an air and ground search following an undeclared the double killing. When found, three of her five children were with her.

RCMP headquarters here said the Eskimo band which was reported to have died of exposure and been buried in the snow by RCMP patrol has since found one child, Annacatha, alive and the other, Ikkikk, dead, headquarters said. They were wrapped together in a sleeping bag and buried in the snow.

The condition of the dead child could not be found perhaps also was alive when abandoned," the RCMP said in a statement.

Annacatha has been taken to Eskimo Point where she is recovering.

There was no indication of how long the children were buried. Information about the temperatures or the weather in the area was not immediately available.

53 Die as Ship Burns and Sinks In Persian Port

BAHREIN, Persian Gulf (AP) A British freighter that put into this oil port with a fire and 150 tons of explosives aboard exploded at her anchorage Wednesday night, burned and partially sank.

The ship's agent said 53 persons were killed and 19 were injured.

The fire and explosion came as no surprise to oil tankers nearby and did not endanger harbor installations.

The 7,440-ton Seistan, one of the most modern ships in the British merchant fleet, was burning when she entered the gulf three days ago, en route from Liverpool with the explosives and other supplies for the Iraqi oilfields.

BEGAN UNLOADING

The Welsh skipper of the year-old motorship, Capt. W. A. Chappell, dropped anchor here to put out the fire. About 80 tons of explosive gelignite had been unloaded and the ship was being towed to the open water for flooding when the explosion rocked the harbor.

An injured seaman from the ship said: "It seemed to jump out of the water. Flames were burning everywhere." Some wreckage was found two miles away.

The Seistan sank up the stern but parts of her superstructure still smoldered today above water as rescuers went aboard to look for more survivors.

Capt. Chappell was among those reported killed. The ship's owners said it carried a crew of 69 Britons, 50 Indians and a Chinese. There were others aboard assisting the unloading.

Quinte, Albert Students Decide Prejudice Communicable Disease

Prejudice is a communicable disease and people should do their best to eliminate it as soon as any evidence of these hostile feelings is observed in themselves and others.

This is the conclusion reached by a study group composed of students from Albert College and Quinte Secondary School, Trenton, under the chairmanship of Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, of Western Methodist Church, discussed prejudice and how to combat it, as part of an observance of Brotherhood Week in the area.

Suggestions offered by panelists to combat this "disease", included changing the attitude of parents, but they can also be infected with it from teachers, newspapers, books and magazines.

"There is no racial prejudice at Quinte, but racial prejudice is not the only form of prejudice," stated Clare Brant. "There is a good deal of resentment towards students in other courses, in lower grades, and from different schools, but this should be curbed now."

Suggestions offered by panelists to combat this "disease", included changing the attitude of parents, friends, making sure when each student has a home of his own there is no room for prejudice, and adhering to central Christian beliefs.

The beliefs of Christianity teach us that God is the Father of all, and we are all brothers in His eyes," Mr. Spearman said. "This is also borne out by science, which tells us there are no superior and inferior races; by democracy, with the basic principles of equality, and of our own common sense," he concluded.

SAVED EVERYTHING

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Four buses had to be used to take away a mountain of books, office stationery, cement blocks, steel and tin plates hoarded for 21 years by a kleptomaniac worker in a Prague factory, police said.

Hazel Kellar, 9, Badly Burned As Dress Ignites

Suffering third degree burns about her face, beneath the chin and on her hands and arms after her dress caught fire from an electric heater, Hazel Kellar, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kellar, 78 Station St., was rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto last night.

The little girl also suffered burns about her legs and stomach but these were said not to be as serious as the burns about her upper body.

The girl was taken to Belleville General Hospital where she was treated by Dr. K. M. Douglas, who later ordered her to be taken to Toronto. The girl's condition was not said to be critical but it was feared that the extensive plastic surgery required for burns about the face and chin could be better done in Toronto.

The accident occurred shortly before seven o'clock last night as Hazel and her small sister were upstairs.

The girl had apparently stood too close to the coil type electric heater with result that the bottom of her nylon dress caught fire. The entire front of the dress quickly ignited and the girl ran screaming to the head of the stairs.

Mrs. Kellar raced up the stairs and tore the flaming dress from her daughter but already the flames had seared the girl's chin and the upper chest and arms.

Mrs. Kellar suffered burns to her hands and arms as she frantically tore the burning dress from the girl.

Page-Hersey Tubes added 1¼ points-at 113 and Dominion Glass was up a point at 65. Bank of Nova Scotia, Canada Cement, Ford A and Power Corp. each gained ½ point. Trans Mountain, down ½ to 44¾, had the biggest loss in the industrial section.

Senior base metals and high-priced uraniums were fractionally higher. Low-priced mines moved in a narrow range with few changes of more than a few cents. La Luz was up 10 cents to $5.85 among golds while Campbell Chibougamau lost 10 cents at $4.75 in copper.

Western oils had more losses than gains, Fargo was off 15 cents to $2.90 and Hudson Bay Oil lost ¼ at 16½.

Trading was the fastest in a while this week. Sales in the first hour totalled 635,000 shares compared with 518,000 at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Brucellosis Control Area In County Widely Discussed

Four meetings were held this week in Hastings County at Stirling, Cannifton, Tweed and Madoc regarding the establishment of the Brucellosis Control Area. Dr. Ken McDermid, Ontario Livestock Branch, Toronto, Sidney MacDonald, Agricultural Representative and Jack Riddell, Assistant Agricultural Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Stirling, were present at all meetings to discuss the program with those interested.

Dr. McDermid pointed out that for the past few years vaccination of calves to prevent Brucellosis has been carried on in most areas and the Quinte District has been conducting the campaign for quite some years. Last year the Province of Ontario was designated a Supervised Area and as a result, it then became obligatory for all cattle owners in Ontario to have their female calves vaccinated after reaching the age of four months but before becoming six months of age. The cost of this vaccination was borne by the Province.

In April of 1957, the Federal Government approved regulations providing for the establishment of Brucellosis Control Areas.

When an area is classified as a Brucellosis Control Area, all cattle with the exception of calves under eight months; steers; spayed heifers and heifers under 36 months that have been officially vaccinated, have to be blood tested for Brucellosis.

These blood samples will be drawn by veterinarians from the Health of Animals Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture at no charge.

Dr. McDermid noted that since it is the desire of the cattle owners to eradicate Brucellosis from the area, all positive animals must be disposed of for slaughter under inspection. The owner of such animals receives the market value of the animals.

Restrictions on the movement of cattle into control areas, are: 1. Calves under 8 months of age, steers, spayed heifers, and vaccinated up to 36 months and animals for immediate slaughter may enter a control area. 2.Animals having a health status equal to or higher than those within the Control Area may enter provided they are accompanied by a health certificate issued by an accredited Veterinarian or an Inspector in the employ of the Health of Animals Branch. 3. Cattle of classes other than those already described entering for permanent stay are not eligible to enter unless they have passed a negative blood test within the previous 30 days and after entering the area such cattle must be kept isolated from other cattle for a period of at least 30 days, at which time they will be subjected to a further Brucellosis test.

Calfhood vaccination will be maintained on a compulsory basis and the procedure will continue to be the same as at present.

One of the reasons for the establishment of Control areas is that there has been an increase in interest in export to the United States and if Canada wishes to continue it must be done on a control area basis. Application for consideration must be given to the establishment of Brucellosis control areas.

At these meetings canvassers were appointed and petition forms were distributed and canvassing of the area has now commenced. It is hoped that the canvassing will be completed by the end of the month.

World Wide Airways Plans Daily Service for Trenton

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald M. McVicar, president of World Wide Airways of Montreal, said here Wednesday the company has asked permission for passenger air services in Ontario.

The firm, now engaged in charter business, has applied to the air transport board for permission to operate a regular service from the eastern Arctic from Montreal.

If this application is successful, Mr. McVicar said, the company would start planning for a proposed Ontario operation.

Mr. McVicar said the company would seek a franchise to fly daily passenger and freight services between Montreal fusing a field at Massena, N.Y.; Prescott, Ont.; Cornwall, Ont.; Belleville, Ont.; Trenton for Belleville, Peterborough and Toronto.

Bloor Subway Route Favored

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto planning board Wednesday night voted 12 to 6 to recommend to metropolitan council adoption of a Bloor-University east-west subway route advocated by the Toronto Transit Commission.

The board's recommendation came by a vote short of three years after extension of the rapid transit system was suggested. A Mt. Pleasant north-south route beneath Yonge Street was opened in March, 1954.

Thrill-Killer Nathan Leopold Granted Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Nathan Leopold, convicted murderer of the Loeb-Leopold thrill murder team of 1924, was granted a parole today.

The Illinois parole and pardon board's announcement said Leopold can get out of prison after investigation of his background by a job and a home. The division of parole supervision has the same duties now, and there was no indication how long that would take.

Leopold, who has served almost 33½ years in prison for his part in the slaying of Boyscout Bobby Franks in May, 1924.

Leopold received the news at Stateville penitentiary at Joliet, where he had waited with his lawyer, Elmer Gertz.

Leopold has told the parole board he wants to work in a rural hospital operated by the Church of the Brethren at Castaner, Puerto Rico.

His partner in the wanton killing of young Franks was Richard Loeb—who shocked to death by a fellow convict in prison in 1936.

Juniors Outplayed by Kingston But Gain 6-6 Overtime Deadlock

TRENTON — Trenton Juniors worked hard to earn a 6-6 tie with the Kingston Frontenacs after one period of overtime but were badly outskated and outplayed last night in the Community Centre here.

The masterful work of Trenton goalie Dick Wright held the Kingston counters to a minimum as his team-mates played loose hockey and were continuously caught off guard as they failed to cover their opponents behind their own blue line.

However many fans felt it was "one of those nights" for the local squad as they outshone the visitors in making incomplete passes. It was the second game of the best of five semi-finals with the Kingston Juniors who won the first game on home ice.

The next game will be played in Kingston tonight and Trenton fans will see the teams back in Trenton on Saturday.

Fresh from their recent line shake-up, Trenton came out in the middle frame when they outscored the elite Kingston line by three a one-goal lead after two periods of play. In the third Richard Lewis tied the game when they out-gunned the Trentonians 3-2. The game went into a five-minute overtime period but neither side managed to get the winning light" machine.

Referees for the game were Ken Bertis of Kingston and Mike Rain of Belleville, with both officiating well in a game unbiased manner. They missed few, if any illegal moves by players.

Two players, one on each side, were ejected during the closing game, but their hurts were of a minor nature. They saw an opportunity penalty box for fighting and one Kingston man cooled his heels there during a 40-minute misconduct.

Station Hockey League Near End of Schedule

TRENTON — Only three nights of hockey are left for the regular league play of the R.C.A.F. inter-station teams. They have however made arrangements for extra ice time to end off their round-robin series and it is expected their season will end during the month of March.

Three games were played Monday night and because of a late start one of them was cut which lasted only 45 minutes was washed out by the league president.

The game between the Continues and 6 Repair Depot and, in which the 6 RD boys took a close 5-4 win over their opponents was rated as the best game of the year by league officials.

Thursday, February 27, Headquarters vs Comets; Rockets vs FIS; Comets vs Falcons.

Commencing at 8 o'clock between Combines and 6 Repair Depot, which had been washed out by the league president said it will not be replayed unless at the end of the season the officials dwelling Combines have a chance to make the playoffs, if they win all their games and the chance of it being replayed is there.

In a game last Thursday between the FIS and the Rockets in which the officers' team had used a goalie who had not been registered by the team in time, his eligibility to play will likely end up in the FIS forfeiting the game and there before giving the Rockets the win. The Rockets protested the use of the FIS goalie the night of the game and the protest had been upheld by league officials but it is believed the FIS may carry the issue further.

Trenton—Austin (Lewis, Carradus) 11.37
Kingston—Stephenson (Faulkner, Hegarty) 12.22
Penalties — Lewis, Carradus, Scaletta (five minutes), Hegarty, Decker (five minutes), Aylesworth (10 minute misconduct).

Overtime (10 minutes) No scoring.
Penalties—none.

RCAF Group Taken on Tour Of District

TRENTON — A group of airmen and airwomen, all married couples and members of the RCAF at Trenton, were taken on a tour of business establishments in the Trenton area recently.

The tour started at RCAF Station Trenton and first stop was the Bata factory at Batawa, where they visited the schools, the modern housing development and then inspected the engineering department of their shoe factory. In both the engineering department and shoe factory they were interested in looking over material that will eventually find its way to the service of which they are members.

The engineering department is manufacturing components parts for both the CF-100 and CF-105 aircraft and an assembly line in the shoe factory was turning out running shoes on a government contract.

The party was welcomed to the area by Arthur Duncan, public relations officer, who, along with John Moore, conducted the tour.

A social period was enjoyed in the cafeteria where refreshments were served and an address of welcome on behalf of the company was delivered by Frank Vozobule. Each member of the party received an attractive booklet outlining the developments of the company which was born in 1939 and has flourished since that time, now employing approximately 900 on this one site alone and turning out between 4,000 and 40,000 pairs of shoes per week, as well as a large amount of engineering products.

The tour's next stop was at the Trenton radio station where Joe Snider, popular announcer of CJBQ, conducted interviews of the young couples and they listened in on broadcast of news and records.

After dinner at a local restaurant, the couples were taken to the show at the Odeon by Laurie B. Dunbar, manager of the theatre, and all enjoyed "Three Faces of Eve."

Those included in the tour which was accompanied by members of the local press were: LAC W. T. Critchley, Yarmouth; LAW C. M. Critchley, Chatham, Ont.; LAC R. E. Cockshock, Saint John, N.B.; LAC R. E. Craddock, Brantford, Ont.; LAW K. Davis, Alta; LAC V. M. Wood, Cole's Island, N.B.; LAW R. Davis, Edmonton, Alta.; LAW R. Townsend, Aikenskan, Ont.; LAW D. Anderson, Moncton, N.B.; LAC A. Anderson, Scotland; LAW E. Davis, Bow, N.S.; LAW Cpl. J. Davis, Toronto.

At RCAF Trenton there are eleven service married couples employed at various flights in the establishment, with most of the airwomen working at clerical trades.

OLD GRENADE

LONDON (CP)—A hand grenade believed from the First World War, was found by Ronald Trovey in the cellar of his Uxbridge home. It was removed by a bomb disposal squad.

A more certain way of travelling even city streets when sudden snowfalls stall cars, is shown by Janet Benson, the wilderness girl from Northern Ontario who was sent to Toronto to publicize a rate. When Janet saw the snow on the city streets she just hitched up her dog team and mushed along the roads while operators of stalled cars gazed enviously from their windows.

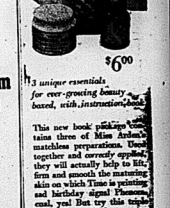
Conservative Meet Disrupted By Fist Fight

MONTREAL (CP)—A Progressive Conservative meeting to choose a candidate for the March 31 federal election broke up in disorder when several minor fist fights started over distribution of ballots.

Eight police cars arrived on the scene when the trouble erupted at an open meeting in a downtown hotel that drew 1,500 persons to select a candidate for the riding of Montreal St. Ann.

The skirmishes had abated when five constables rushed into the meeting hall and there were no arrests. The meeting was adjourned at the request of the candidates—Steve Trudeau, Conrad Pard and Gerald Sullivan.



Ivan Sabourin, Montreal lawyer who was chairman of the meeting, said a candidate now will be appointed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, or chosen at a meeting of appointed delegates.

The riding now is represented by Liberal Gerard Loiselle, elected June 10, 1957 in succession to Thomas Patrick Healy. Another Liberal who first won the seat in 1949.

The fist fights started after the ballots had been distributed. Several officials said they had received, five, or six, ballots and demanded an explanation.

BOY SCOUT WEEK

This is Boy Scout Week in Canada. Fifty years ago Lord Baden-Powell, a British career soldier who distinguished himself in battle in India and Africa, founded the movement which now embraces 67 countries, for a total membership of more than seven million boys.

Scout population in Canada is 235,000, with approximately 1,100 of them being in Belleville. Saturday is the 101st birthday of the late founder of Scouting. This year's target in Scouting is to recruit an additional 10,000 boys in Canada.

It is interesting to note that the Canadian Boy Scout population has risen from 102,600 in 1948 to today's 235,000. The population has more than doubled itself in less than 10 years. This is a tribute to the wonderful reception the movement receives from Canadian boys between eight and 18 years.

Another interesting point is that of the 4,537 registered Scout groups in Canada, 60 per cent are sponsored by churches. Largest church sponsors are Roman Catholic, 756 groups, United Church, 698, and Anglican, 626. Home and School Associations and various educational institutions sponsor 259 groups. Service, civic and community organizations are sponsors, as are fraternal organizations, the armed forces and Chambers of Commerce. Thirty-one groups are for deaf, blind, crippled or mentally retarded boys.

Few are the youth movements which can compare with the Boy Scouts for graduating worthy citizens. Many distinguished Canadians once were Scouts. There is good opportunity in the movement for boys to learn a variety of interesting things, from woodcraft to citizenship.

Hats off this week to the army of boys and young men — Canada's leaders tomorrow - - who are observing the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement.

LET'S DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT

Over the weekend both Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and M. J. Coldwell, the leader of the CCF, advocated the establishment of a world food bank.

Coming during an election campaign, this similarity in the viewpoints of the leaders of too such diametrically opposed parties as the Progressive Conservatives and the CCF caused some raised eyebrows.

The truth of the matter is, though, that almost anybody with an ounce of sense and a pound of feeling recognizes that an international food bank is needed.

The difficulty is that while so many support it in principle, nobody seems to be willing to make a blooming sacrifice of himself until the nations put the idea into practice.

Perhaps the leaders of Canada's political parties could agree that, no matter who holds the reins of power after March 31, they will take the gadfly at the United Nations until a food bank is finally established.

Or do we have to wait until after some nation burns its surplus produce at the same time that the inhabitants of another nation starve by the millions?

NASTY THOUGHT, THIS

The latest letter in the exchange between President Eisenhower of the United States and Premier Bulganin of the USSR does not seem to heighten chances of a summit meeting.

One of the main points raised by Eisenhower was the question of an agenda for any such gathering, while Bulganin insisting that all proposals be made discussed should be accepted as the agenda, but demanding that there be unanimous agreement of all participants as to the necessity of considering other proposals.

Wouldn't it be nice if the peoples of the world could bring the leaders together, tell them to talk about anything or nothing, but to continue talking until they reached an agreement?

And then shut them up, like a jury.

No vodka and no golf until the jury had reached a verdict.

JUST FOLKS

A COMPLIMENT

"I know that I am pretty,"
A charming maiden said:
"I never knew until today
My cheeks are flushed red.
I was not sure until today
That every grace is mine,
That I am fair to look upon
And have a form divine.

"By men I have been told such things,
But compliments, I fear,
That come from creatures masculine,
Are seldom quite sincere.
They ring too much of flattery,
Are often flat and trite,
For men the self-same praises sing
To every girl in sight.

"But just this morning I was paid
A compliment, I swear.
The truth of which I cannot doubt,
I know I must be fair.
Although no word was said to me,
No phrase I can repeat,
A man upon a crowded bus
To me gave up his seat."

Queen Broke Rule of 'Pub'?

Peterborough Examiner

We notice without surprise, since the Monarchy is becoming more and more identifiable with the general public, that the Queen lunched in a public house in Norfolk recently. What does surprise us is that the public house party took its own food; we can remember when such behavior was infra dig and to take food to a hostelry was likely to bring the landlord to the door with the cold eye of discouragement rather than the warm smile of welcome.

It is not long since almost every public house in Britain displayed a sign "Own Food Not Allowed" and certainly in summer resorts these signs are still hanging. Many hotel keepers found them necessary to keep away customers who were only looking for a place to eat their meals (out of the usual sort of inclement weather of summer resorts in Britain) and who justified their table space by buying a drink.

The landlord of the King's Head which was visited by the Queen has hung a sign reading "Queen Elizabeth Lunched Here." Since she did so under circumstances we have described above, we wonder whether he will alter it to read "Queen Elizabeth Ate Her Own Food Here," and hang it beside (if there is still such a notice) the one reading "Own Food Not Allowed."

Bad Moments Of an Actress

BBC London Letter

British actress Thelma Ruby spoke in a recent BBC talk about some of the "ghastly moments" she had experienced in her career on the stage. She would certainly never forget, she said, the time when she was playing in repertory and a total amateur actress was engaged to play the part of "Blind Girl" in "Peter Pan." On the first night the luckless amateur brought in the tea-things on a tray, but as she turned to make her exit tripped, fell with a crash and scattered the tea-cups on all fours. The following night, the girl — now a seasoned trouper — dropped the breakfast tray on the floor, and the boiled eggs which were made of rubber, bounced all the way into the audience. The third performance, the rest of the cast waited in some terror for her entrance. She entered gravely as Ruby, quite carefully picking up her feet and deposited the breakfast tray without mishap. Then, to our horror, the false bun of hair at the back of her head fell right off. Instead of leaving it, or kicking it under the edge of the picture, she got it between her feet and with a wild scuffle, by manoeuvered it across the stage your wings."

and out of the door. We were all so helpless with hysteria it must have been two minutes before we could get on with the play."

Miss Ruby herself was the cause of some embarrassment when she had to play the part of a body falling out of a cupboard in "Murder on the Second Floor." During the final scene that ensued, she was shaken by a sudden attack of hiccoughs, and while the rest of the players kept saying "One, two, three," quite quite calmly, there was nothing at all she could do to prevent the loud "Hic-hics!" that kept convulsing her supposedly inanimate frame. Even actors of the top flight can sometimes mix their words. Miss Ruby recalled, he said by accident, No, no, dear fellow — go into the queue and wait for your cue." One unforgetable night, Miss Ruby recalled, he said by accident, No, no, dear fellow — go into the queue and wait for your wings."

"- - - and the instant the ambulance left with you, this little tease climbed right down the flag pole!"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 20th, 1938

From our file copy at this time in 1888: Something should be done to prevent boys from climbing up the waterworks stand pipe near the Tabernacle Church.

The job of dismantling the disused Canadian National railway bridge across the mouth of the Moira River is about one third completed. The bridge is being taken apart in sections and it is reported that the bridge is needed for a Quebec replacement.

The building projects in Belleville during last year amounted to $150,295. In 1936 the amount was $85,065.

From our file copy at this time in 1888: The complimentary concert given last night was a marked success. The house was well filled and the program was excellent. As the usual courtesies were not extended to the Intelligencer by the management we were denied the opportunities of giving a fuller notice of it.

From our file copy at this time in 1888: Ald. John Doyle was the only member to put in an appearance at the meeting of the executive committee of the city council last night, consequently there was no meeting.

Do Best Work At Early Age

Scientific American

At what age does a scientist do his best work?

Dr. Monniche of the Washington Public Opinion laboratory and G. Falk of the University of Washington), looking into this question, have found that the average age of Nobel prize winners in physics (i.e., the age when they published their work) was 34, in chemistry 36, and in medicine 44.

About 20% of the physicists and 10% of the chemists did their work before the age of 30.

The two investigators, analyzing their findings in Scientific American, suggest that physics has been a young man's science because discoveries in the past half century of upheaval in the science have come from brilliant inspirations about new concepts rather than from patient accumulation of data.

Prince Has Two Pipes

Ottawa Journal

Prince Souvanna Phouma, Prime Minister of Laos, has been visiting Canada with good news of his country's good-will and of the battle it is waging to repel the acceptance of Communist neighbors in China with whom it will try to get along.

The Prime Minister came primarily to thank Canada for its participation in the Indo-China truce commission of which Canada is the only country make its way to complete self - government, and also for Colombo Plan help which looks after the education of 10 students from Laos now in this country.

Reporters in Ottawa who talked with the prince could hardly examine all the problems, political and otherwise, of Laos. They had the impression of a thoughtful, tolerant leader. This impression was aided by Prince Phouma's smoking equipment — a very large white pipe often in his mouth, another pipe carried in a case, a well-filled pouch of tobacco, a metal instrument for tamping down the tobacco and a lighter with a substantial flame.

When Prince Phouma has his political going well he has a time of peace and content unusual with statesmen. Sometimes when he has come to Ottawa often looking as if the hounds of despair were snapping at their heels.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES MAY START FROM THE DAY ONE IS BORN

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes hardening of the arteries? Is there anything to arrest it? — F. C."

I wish we knew the cause exactly. An enormous amount of study is proceeding in this important field, and many ideas have been advanced, but the whole answer is not yet here. But some of it is.

Most of us over the age of 30 have some "hardening of the arteries. It is a process of aging, and is thought to start from the day we are born.

Thus the mere fact that we have some arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, isn't disconcerting. It's natural. Rather, the significant question is the degree of hardening, and also the matter of which arteries are affected the most. More on that later.

Another aspect is heredity. Some families seem to have a higher degree of arteriosclerosis, and are plagued with strokes and heart attacks.

Blood pressure has something to do with it, too. Dr. Paul Dudley said that hardening of the arteries is "a relationship between pressure and time." This probably does not tell the whole story, but it is valid to the extent that persons with high pressure over a period of time will have more than the ordinary amount of hardening.

Diet? There's a lot of interest currently because of the cholesterol factor. Fat is one of the forms of hard arteries, the inner lining of the arteries collects deposits of fatty material called cholesterol.

Whether these can be reduced, eliminated or controlled by a low fat diet after they have formed is a question.

It would seem reasonable, in view of this, to go on a low fat diet, but those of us with hard arteries should have been doing it 20 years sooner. The reason is that our researchers emphasize that we simply do not have the whole story on this, and that there is no point in trying to tinker with the nation's dietary habits until we know what we are doing.

DON'T GO TO EXTREMES

I see no harm, and perhaps some good, in young people going easy on fats, but with the warning that there is difference between being moderate, and going to extremes. Trying to eliminate all fat from the diet is not only impossible to achieve, but it would be wrong. We need a certain amount of fat.

There are different types of hardened arteries. People in the 70's and 80's often have the walls of the arteries loaded with calcium, yet the inner diameter of the artery is big enough that the flow of this type of hardening can exist without having high blood pressure.

What, after all, really concerns us when an artery hardens? Mainly it is the well-being of the organ served by the artery. The heart attack known as coronary thrombosis is due to arteriosclerosis leading to a plugging of an artery supplying one of the heart muscle. Apoplexy is the clogging or rupture of an artery in the brain.

Certain forms of kidney disease are related to arteriosclerosis, and in some cases the leg cramps suffered by people with age are from the same cause. Gangrene of the feet sometimes is traceable to arteriosclerosis, as is a matter of arteriosclerosis.

I guess you have a basic outline of the problem, along with the fact that we have much to learn of the riddles involved. But I think we are on our way to some answers and solutions.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There are no average people in villages. You have to come to cities or large towns in order to look for average people.

And when you do start looking for them in cities, you have quite a lot of trouble, at first, to begin with, your neighbours are not average people. Each of them is a character. They have their peculiarities. They are distinct from each other. You can't average up the people next door, on either side of you, or across the road. You feel as helpless looking for average people around you, in cities as you do in villages.

Then, as you start walking along the block a little distance from your own immediate neighbourhood, you see people who begin to look average. By the time you get to the next street two or three blocks away, and see forty or fifty or sixty people together, you realize that these must be the average people you are always hearing about.

Once you get down town, and find yourself swamped in milling throngs of hundred and even thousands of people, your search is ended. Obviously, these must be the average people.

Obviously, the average person is someone you do not know. And the more there are of them, and the less you can know them, therefore the much more average.

THINGS ETERNAL

What is Heaven like?

People often ask this question, and when they go to the Bible for an answer, they find little which satisfies their curiosity.

The Bible does make it plain that heaven is a place of activity beyond the grave, personality persists, there is undoubtedly recognition among friends and loved ones and a continued fellowship. Furthermore, there are many indications that we may very well be amazed upon arrival in heaven to find that it resembles earthly existence in more ways than we might have expected.

Yet-on the whole, heaven will be so different — probably so much in contrast to earth — that it will be an experience the like nature of which could not be explained to us in human language. This is a fascinating subject and the Bible has so little to say about the nature of heaven, there are conditions and categories of reality there which the human mind simply cannot comprehend. Eternity — can you comprehend it? Heaven — can you imagine such a thing? The Bible says that there will be no more sun, for there is abundant light, no darkness, fellowship with the saints on earth is to be stretched to take in such realities?

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INWARD CALM

More now than at any other period of our history is it essential to have the best of control over one's emotions. We need inward calm, and to get it we must tap all the resources that we have. Inward calm is always reflected, and those who have it are our benefactors.

The power of inward calm is not fully realized! It conserves energy, rests the nerves, and gives a healthy flow of blood to the heart. We cannot overestimate the value of inward calm! That visit of Edwards, an old classmate of Dr. Johnson's at Pembroke College, is amusing. The old friends had not seen each other for fifty years. Said Edwards: "You are a philosopher, Dr. Johnson. I have tried, too, by my time to be a philosopher, but I don't know how. Cheerfulness was always breaking in!"

Cheerfulness is always breaking in to the mind and heart of a person who endeavors to calm the forerunning itself to bless all within its influence. You can tell the moment you meet a person whether or not they have this inward calm and poise. These are the kindly and influential ones those to whom you wish to tie.

Look for those who have it and our greatest scientists. He was forever seeking to enlarge the frontiers of knowledge, so as to save the many. He abhorred all war. He couldn't see the sense in killing or maiming a person and destroying property. And that together again. May God grant that never again shall there be a world war — or any kind of a war. Said the poet Galsworthy:

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article nineteen in a weekly series contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society)

REMARKABLE DISCOVERIES

A large part of Hastings County history was saved last week by the prompt action of the County Historical Society.

Notified that a considerable amount of old material stored in the Court House in Belleville could be destroyed to make room for more recent documents, a crew of society members went to work, and salvaged a quantity of historically valuable materials.

The earliest piece recovered dates back to 1837, when Hastings County was part of Upper Canada, King William IV of Great Britain had just died, and Queen Victoria had ascended to the throne, when the Commercial Bank at Kingston filled a suit against a Belleville farm for non-payment of a bill. The case was represented at the hearing by a Kingston lawyer, James MacFarlane.

Two years later, the Commercial Bank of Canada, Kingston, proceeds in Belleville was John A. Macdonald, later Prime Minister of Canada.

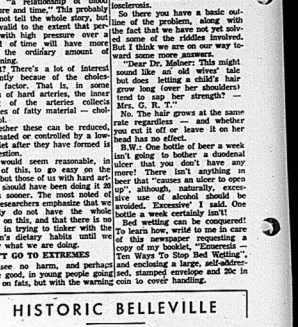
In January, 1839, Macdonald passed his twenty-fourth birthday, the "Commercial Bank of the Midland District affixed its first impressive seal to the cities of his professional merit". The following year Macdonald was the political office for the first time.

In this Belleville appearance, the judgment was in favor of Macdonald and the Commercial Bank.

From the records stored at the Court House in the 1840's, the Historical Society rescued copies of writs issued in the district, and complete inventories of several businesses. These latter are examples of much about the early commercial life of Belleville.

Collection of newspapers were also recovered from the 1840's.

The earliest of these was The Intelligencer of March 14, 1846, published by George Benjamin. Headlined in that issue were accounts of recent meetings of the District Council (at which it had been decided to put a bridge across the Trent River at Frankford), the approaching war between the United States and Mexico (by which the United States was to acquire Texas), and the mutiny in India.



Among local advertisements was one offering for sale "50 North West Buffalo Robes, first quality, cheap for cash."

Other early newspapers recovered include Belleville Gazette of March 21, 1846; February 6, 1847; September 4, 1850; and January 18, 1851; and Victoria Chronicle for July 5, 1849, also located.

A word of appreciation should go to County Judge J.H.C. Atkinson and other county officials who assisted the Society members in their search.

Council Votes Not to Purchase New Police Car

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of the town council was held on Monday night in the town hall. The mayor was absent for the opening of the session, but arrived shortly before the meeting adjourned to take over the chair from Reeve A. S. Walker.

Councillor Sweetman reported to the council on the procurement of suitable pictures for the advertising brochures. It was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the publicity committee with power to act.

At the request of the Legion permission was granted them for the use of the town park on July 17-18-19 for a Jamboree.

The resignation of Dr. Duffett as medical officer of health was read and accepted. The appointment of a new medical officer was left fun considera-tion.

In the passing of accounts Councillor Howard questioned the account for the police department and investigation proved the account to include meals for prisoners, batteries and some gas that had been purchased in November last.

The chairman of the streets committee, H. Howard, requested permission to enforce parallel parking on the south side of Main St, but was advised that such action would involve the rescinding of a by-law. The streets committee received permission to pave street employees for any overtime they worked.

TENDERS RECEIVED

The tenders for the purchase of a new police car were then opened. They included prices from three local dealers and one from Kingston. After the reading of prices quoted, Councillor Howard stated that he could not see the necessity for a car for the police. He said that in former days there were more people in town and the police had got along without a car. It was moved by Councillor Howard and seconded by A. Marks that the town do not buy a car for the use of the police. A request for a recorded vote showed the voting in favor of a police car were Councillors Knight and Neal and Reeve Walker. Those opposed were Councillors Howard, Marks, Stubbs and Sweetman. As a result of this the police will have to do their work on foot.

NINE TENDERS FILED

There were nine tenders opened for the garbage collection job and after Councillor Howard refused to take the matter under advisement with his committee the council as a whole had to deal with the tenders. As a result the contract was awarded to P. Sinclaire at a price of $2,500 a year. It was at this point that Mayor McVicker took over the chair.

Councillor Knight, chairman of the police committee, asked council regarding the use of personal cars for police work. A motion was passed that the police were not to use their own cars. They are to hire taxis as soon as a settlement is reached regarding the damage to the former police car. Councillors Marks and Howard spoke regarding the disposal of the damaged car. They were advised that the matter was one for the insurance company as the car was a total loss.

Local officials were advised last week that the contract for the work on the back part of the post office has been awarded to Felix Rashotte of Tweed. The back part of the building is to be altered for use as a clinic for the Indian Health Services of Tyendinaga Reserve. On the ground floor there will be waiting rooms, doctor's office and a dispensary. On the second floor will be the office of the nurse and a room for a clinic. The work is to begin as soon as possible and will be completed in the early summer.

Booster Club Holds Meeting

A general meeting of the Belleville Mars Booster Club was held at city hall last night with about 45 members in attendance.

President Ted Beare conducted the general business and reported that all went well. It was announced that excursions will be handled by the Booster Club for the Macs out-of-town playoff games.

The Booster Club will definitely send a broomball team to Trenton next Wednesday night to play the Trenton Booster Club at a special night in the Community Gardens.

It was also announced that the next Booster Club dance will be held following the completion of the playoffs.

In attendance expressed hope that it will be a victory dance with the Macs as guests of honor.

C. A. Milligan Is Unanimous Choice of PC Convention

PICTON — Eleven were nominated but all withdrew in favor of Clarence A. Milligan at the Progressive Conservative convention for Prince Edward-Lennox held in the Regent Theatre, Picton, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Milligan, Napanee dairyman and farmer, and past president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, was first elected to the house of Commons in June with a majority of 3102 over the Liberal candidate.

There were around 200 spectators admitted for the first time to such a convention.

Others nominated, but who withdrew to give Mr. Milligan an acclamation were George J. Tustin, M.P., for 22 years; Fred McPherson, Col. Babcock, Col. R. R. Church, Mayor Ross Parks of Picton; Mayor D. Allison-Brack of Napanee; Phil Farland, Lloyd Jackson, Lance Nethery, Q.C., and Charles Hepburn.

DELEGATES WELCOMED

A welcome to the town was extended by Mayor D. McFarland and by the county by Warden Howard Gyde. Col. R. R. Church presided as president of the riding association. Secretary-treasurer was Mrs. Ethel Addington who had been added to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. Prince Edward would be developed in the same way from the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed. The Sand Banks is now a parks project, rather than a forestry project. The Outlet beach will be developed as a provincial park.

BASIC ISSUE

The basic issue of the election campaign is to provide Canada with a stable government, a government with a mandate capable of carrying out long range plans, declared Richard E. Bell, M.P. for Carleton and parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Finance, at the Progressive Conservative nomination meeting.

The gifted speaker, a lawyer and a farmer, introduced by C. A. Milligan, declared a minority government must live from day to day, unable to make needed long range plans; living in a period of crisis and emergency not conducive to long range planning. "It is a miracle that in eight months the government has been able to carry on as it has," said John Diefenbaker alone can secure stable government.

"There are two alternatives, one to return the Diefenbaker government which has accomplished so much and which deserves an opportunity to show what it can do, or return to the Liberal party.

The Conservative party is the only true national party today. Members from Quebec are expected to increase three-fold now that the people have seen that the caricature of the party over the years has been false. They have seen equity and respect for the rights of all in Canada.

Liberals last June asked how the Conservatives could form a government, how the leader's pledges could be carried out." "We have seen the shoes of former cabinet ministers more than filled and pledges carried out. Now, in contrast, the Liberals profess co-operation, but it was professed only. They attacked legislation, then voted for that which they criticized. They were prepared to bark, never to bite."

Quoting the Financial Times, the speaker said: "Diefenbaker's meagre plurality has given better government and done more things than any majority government in Canada."

SOCIAL SECURITY

"Do you remember Walter Harris and his $6 a month old age pension increase, he said it was all the government could afford. First legislation of the Diefenbaker government was to increase pensions to $55, to reduce the length of time, 20 to ten years, a new Canadian resident must wait.

"We must recognize social security has grown topsy-turvy. The government has appointed Prof. Clark of the University of British Columbia to study USA social security, added benefits of which could be integrated with our own program—war veterans allowances and benefits have been increased.

The Hospital Insurance scheme promised since 1919, no longer has the provision that six provinces must enter into the agreement. It will be in effect by January 1959.

To meet the demand for more hospital beds the Federal government has doubled its grants for construction, said Mr. Bell.

AGRICULTURE

The new agricultural bill is a much better one by reason of Clarence Milligan's work on the committee on agriculture. Although attacked in the House, the farm legislation, with its far reaching effects, passed without a dissenting vote. Support prices will be linked to the cost of production and prices set before March 31 each year.

It will be a boon to agriculture, said Mr. Bell.

A price spread investigation is designed to find why the farmer's share of the consumer's dollar has declined.

Legislation passed saved the poultry, and especially the turkey industry, through import and sales controls.

TIGHT MONEY POLICY

The basic cause of unemployment was the tight money policy of the Liberal government, declared Mr. Bell. Canada was following the example of the Federal Reserve Board in the U.S.A. Unemployment and reduced capital expenditures to a halt. Relaxed credit and reduced bank interest are proving wise. House building has hit the 300 million dollar mark—a boost for the general economy.

TRADE

Prime Minister Diefenbaker was praised by the speaker on his efforts to promote Commonwealth trade. A conference is being held in Canada in September.

Better deals with the provinces will be reflected in higher grants to municipalities.

Income tax reductions will remove 100,000 people from tax rolls and aid others. Excise tax on motors have been cut. Loans to encourage small business have been announced by the prime minister.

"All this has been accomplished in eight months. By their acts ye shall know them."

It might be emphasized, "Never have so few done so much for so many in so short a time."

"Everything that Liberals said couldn't be done last June, Pearson says can be done now. It is a revealing commentary."

The P.C. party has a broad national program, using Canadian materials to build up our own country. Give us a mandate to carry on," Mr. Bell urged.

A. O. T. S. Club Hears Stirring Address on 'The Deadliest Enemy'

The February meeting of the Bridge Street A.O.T.S. club was held on Wednesday preceded by "pot-luck" supper served by the ladies which was enjoyed by all.

After supper, Rex Chaplin thanked the ladies for their assistance. Congratulations were extended by Glenn Shaver to Ray Gunsolus, Dave Thompson and Rev. H. M. Davis whose birthdays are celebrated in February and to Mr. and Mrs. Phil Allcorn who celebrated their wedding anniversary recently.

Eric Morris, Bert Brown, Allen Skinner and Dave Vice were guests and later Bert, Allen and Dave were initiated as new members of the club by Don Williams. After the ceremony the new members were welcomed to the club by president Ray Gunsolus.

Rev. W. J. Morrison conducted a brief worship service.

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker of the evening, Dr. Reg. Anderson, was introduced by Dr. Don Scott. Dr. Anderson has been practising in Belleville since before World War II except for the period during the war when he served with the R.C.A.F. After the war, he retired from the air force with the rank of squadron leader, and returned to his practice.

One of Dr. Anderson's major activities is his position as president of Physicians Services Incorporated. His favorite hobby is history and particularly the history of the American civil war with its relation to medicine.

Dr. Anderson explained that his best interest in this particular part of history is due partly to the fact that the war was fought practically on Ontario's doorstep and that the fields on which the fighting took place are within a day or two's drive in an automobile. He also pointed out the fact that it was a war where neighbors and even brothers fought against one another and casualties were enormous; but mainly due to the primitive medical aspects of the war, since it took place before the discovery of most sulphas and bacteria as well as that anesthesia was practically unused.

FOUR YEAR WAR

"This war was fought less than 100 years ago — lasted for four years from 1861 to 1865 and resulted in the killing of almost as many Americans as would war II. It was a total war — the south fought till it was all over. The U.S.A. considering that the casualties totalled almost 40 per cent of all participating.

"The north, with 23 states and a population of 22 millions, had an army of over one and one half million men of which 370,000 were killed. The south with 11 states and a population of nine millions had an army of over one million (two and did not participate) had one million soldiers and suffered 270,000 dead.

"The DEADLIEST ENEMY"

"It was a war in which disease was the deadliest enemy. It killed more men than were killed by the enemy. The most devastating diseases were measles; dysentery; diarrhea, and malaria. Other diseases such as smallpox and typhoid fever added to the misery.

"Bacteria and microbes were unknown at that time. The only known control for disease was the vaccination for smallpox and this was so crude that often the results of inoculation put many men out of action. At one battle, Gen. Lee had 5,000 men out of action with an infected inoculation. While anesthesia was known they were either not available or rarely used.

If a man was wounded in the abdomen the result was inevitably fatal. If in the limb, the best he could hope for would be amputation. If a major operation such as an amputation were performed, the patient might receive a drink of whisky if available, or a piece of leather to "chew on" while the area held down so that the operation could be performed.

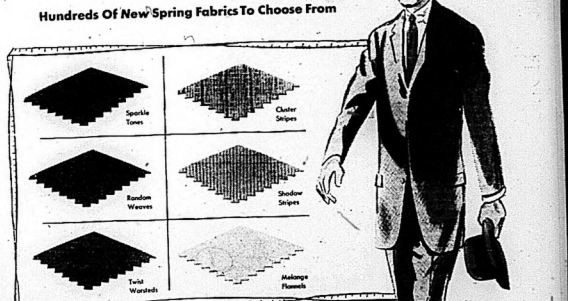
"After a battle, those with abdominal wounds were left to die. Others with lesser wounds left to transported for miles in springless steel-tired wagons to the nearest shelters and finally to more emergency treatment available.

"Sanitation was not practised; soap was 'not' available. The men were infected with skin diseases, contracted with flies and mosquitoes for which there was no prevention. The men had to look after their own food individually in the field and transportation was so bad that there was often no real food for prolonged periods.

Dr. Anderson's vivid and interesting picture of the civil war left little to the imagination. The lack of physical fitness of the recruits, The ages of soldiers varying from 12 to 78 — the lack of immunity to disease — the inadequate diet — the lack of sanitation, of disease prevention, and of medical care, all these combined to add to the misery, and resulted in the enormous losses. It seems incredible that this took place less than 100 years ago.



Byron Leslie thanked the speaker for his informative and interesting talk, and for "sharing his hobby" with the members of the club.

Many Kinsmen Activities Benefit Local Communities

The Kinsmen Clubs of Canada are, this year, celebrating over 38 years of progress and expansion. Since its inception in Hamilton in February of 1920, the organization has spread to every Province in Canada, and there is scarcely a community that has not benefited from the efforts of Kinsmen whose motto is "The Greatest Service Greatest Need."

The public service by Kinsmen Clubs usually takes the form of providing medical, educational and recreational facilities for the community. In every major city there is a Kinsmen-sponsored park or playground for the youngsters, and in some cities there are several of these, in addition to athletic grounds for older groups. Ambulances, hospital equipment and clinics have been provided in many places and in some instances hospital beds are maintained for research purposes.

During and after World War II the Kinsmen "Milk for Britain" and "Food Parcels for Britain" drives went a long way toward alleviating the critical situation in the British Isles.

Among the Kinsmen projects the Belleville Kinsmen are particularly proud of the Memorial Swimming Pool, the Eye Clinic (which ensures that no needy Belleville child will be without proper eye care), the Municipal Kinsmen Boys' Band and the aid given to the Hastings Tuberculosis Association during their annual Christmas Seal campaign.

Beside the community activities, the Kinsmen are continually building, within their own membership, a true appreciation of parliamentary procedure, the upholding of constituted authority, the improvement of business and professional ethics, and the development of co-operation, tolerance and understanding amongst all races and creeds are internal projects that are going on continuously.

In its 38 years history, the Kinsmen Clubs now number 322 with a membership of over 10,500 public-spirited young men between the ages of twenty-one and forty.

Puppets are also made for sale and the revenue from these sales carries the cost of materials for the project. Toys for the children in isolation were also bought during the past month with these same revenues.

JANUARY PROFITS

January was a successful month at the Opportunity Shop with almost $40 earned. Spring merchandise is urgently needed and it is to be hoped that generous donors will not forget the Opportunity Shop when doing their spring cleaning. Everything is saleable at the Opportunity Shop and what has become useless to one household is of value to others, including the discarded kitchen sink and even scrap metal and rubber.

The Coffee Shop at the hospital topped previous records in service to the public, nurses, doctors, staff and patients during the month of January. Volunteers are required for an hour every afternoon to assist from 3-4 p.m. One women's organization has volunteered food donations for every Tuesday and similar gifts would be greatly appreciated. The Coffee Shop is to be freshly painted in the near future.

The lounge at one of the nurses' residences is in the process of complete redecoration and will be most attractive. $900 was voted to cover the cost of furnishings, draperies and floor covering.

The sewing committee volunteered to make 150 abdominal binders within the next two weeks to fill an urgent need at the hospital.

The monthly bulletin mailing list has been brought up to date by the addition of names to the 1957 paid up membership of 1 plus 38 volunteers.

Flowers were voted to be sent to Mrs. W. C. Mikel who has been ill in hospital in Toronto since November.

MOVIE SHOWN

A excellent movie was shown depicting the teamwork required in a hospital. This dealt with the patient from the emergency admission to final discharge.

Tea was served following the business meeting and movie.

Mrs. W. H. Pinkle, president, reported the finalization at a recent Hospital Board meeting of the setting up of an Endowment Trust Fund for the hospital. The auxiliary's investment is made up of nine shares of Bell Telephone stock left to the hospital by an estate, plus a sizeable bequest from the Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie Bell estate, which has been included in the endowment fund as a specific memorial fund. It is to be hoped more individuals and organizations will see fit to add to the capital of this endowment trust fund either through gifts or bequests.

Canadian-Born Hindu Woman Looks Forward to Working In India With Government

VICTORIA (CP) — An attractive Canadian-born Hindu woman is looking forward with pleasure to work in India where she will interpret Canada to Indians wishing to come here.

Miss Nicky Lal, a member of one of only three Hindu families in Victoria, is going to New Delhi to take a post in the Canadian immigration office.

Small in stature, she has dark eyes and wears a jewel in her left nostril. The jewel, called a bekha, is sometimes a ruby, sometimes an emerald or a diamond, depending on what she is wearing and upon the time of day.

Three years ago her parents, who own a sawmill here, took her through Europe and North Africa, and finally to India. They lived there two years and Miss Lal has planned to return.

"I feel there is work I can do there," she said. "You see I am in the position of having been born and educated here, studied commercial law, psychology at the University of Washington, I speak Punjabi and Hindustani, and feel I have an insight into problems of those living in modern India."

India the yearly quota for immigrants to Canada is only 50.

"In India the young and old are advancing and changing together," Miss Lal said. "Here the young have the double struggle of living in a modern country and yet keeping all the old traditions as their parent s would wish.

"Too many come here not at all prepared for Canadian life and they suffer great hardship."

There is less rush and routine in India than here. People take time to contemplate the beauty of ancient buildings and to meditate. Many things from the past are revered.

"In spite of famine and great hunger, India is far more spiritual than political," Miss Lal said. "We still honor our saints. Many feel Gandhi is like the reincarnation of India which died too soon."

SUNDAY DESSERT—
Banana Cream Pie

By Mary Moore

Pete was home for the week-end and very notably dismantling Gary's crib. I called from the kitchen: "What would you like for dessert for dinner tonight?" Without a moment's hesitation he called "Banana Cream Pie." Danny was coming, too, so with two man-sized appetites to satisfy, I was making pie crust in two minutes.

By the time the meringue was ready to go on, the two of them were hovering over me—drooling.

Your boys will too, for this is velvet smooth, flavor rich, and gratifying to gourmets.

PERFECT BANANA CREAM PIE

Pastry: For a 9-inch pie measure 1¼ cups stirred flour into a bowl, add 6 tablespoons best quality shortening and two tablespoons butter and ½ teaspoon salt. Cut shortening and butter into flour until crumbly with pastry blender. Then slowly stir in with a fork, 1 tablespoon at a time, 3½ tablespoons ice cold water. Press dough into a ball, roll out on lightly floured board to fit pie plate, sheer off excess dough at rim, and make a ragged firm fluted edge. Bake at 450 degs. Fahr about 12 minutes, but watch it like a hawk and snatch it from the oven when it is exactly the right shade of pale gold.

Filling: Heat to nearly scalding 3¼ cups milk. In a heavy saucepan—not necessarily the top of a double boiler—mix together ⅔ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2½ tablespoons (2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon) cornstarch, 1 tablespoon flour. When it is well mixed, slowly stir into it the scalded milk and cook over medium heat until mixture thickens and boils, stirring constantly. Stir it while it boils for 1 minute. Remove it from the heat and add a little to 3 large beaten egg yolks, then return this mixture to the hot mixture, stirring over medium heat for 1 minute. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Slice into pie shell 3 medium large bananas making the layers even and slanted up the sides a little. Pour some of the filling over, then lift the banana slices here and there to be sure filling flows through to bottom. Fill filling high.

Meringue: Beat the leftover whites with ¾ teaspoon cream of tartar until frothy, then gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar, beating until all is stiff. Spread over filling, carefully sealing meringue to edge of crust to prevent weeping, and swirling it attractively. Bake at 400 degs. Fahr. about 10 minutes. Cool to room temperature, then chill at least 2 hours in refrigerator before cutting—longer if possible.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sandra F. — Erik wants a secret engagement.

Erik R. — I can't break my promise to my parents.

* * *

Sandra F. — I am 20 and very much in love with a young man of my own age who is now a junior in college.

Erik says he is head over heels in love with me and wants to get married as soon as possible — but he has promised his parents that he won't get married to anyone until he is 23.

Neither of us wants to go out with anyone else — but aside from that Erik is terribly jealous. He is so afraid I will go out with others that he wants to become secretly engaged. Of course I want to be engaged and sure of Erik, but I know my parents won't understand why I don't go out with others. I would have to tell them. Erik says that would ruin everything.

* * *

Erik R. — I would marry tomorrow, but I just can't break a promise to my parents after they have done so much for me. They made many sacrifices to get me through college and have promised to help me through graduate school.

If I told them I was getting engaged now, they would take it just as though I'm getting married. They wouldn't believe that I will wait three whole years to get married. Yet I'm prepared to do this.

If Sandra tells her parents, the whole thing will be out. They'll never keep it quiet. I want to give Sandra a ring, but I don't like the others should have to know. She can just tell her parents that she is in love with me and we plan to marry eventually.

* * *

The Council: For a young man who prides himself on honorable behavior, Erik seems oddly filled with plans for deception and with mistrust of Sandra and himself.

He says he plans to keep his pledge to his parents, but he acknowledges that it will be kept only in the letter, not in spirit. He knows that his parents do not wish him to commit himself for another three years, but he slurs this obvious aspect of the case.

No wonder Erik is full of mistrust. He connives behind his own back. He knows that the ring given in secret appears to tie him and Sandra — yet is not quite so binding as a public announcement. No, Erik isn't a cad — just terribly unsure and immature.

Engagements, according to current custom, are public announcements of intention to marry. There is good reason for the publicity. The young man and woman get to know how it feels to be socially accepted as a couple. Relationships with each other's families and friends become adjusted. Sound and definite plans for the future are formulated. Secret engagements have none of these values.

Erik's jealousy of Sandra is just one indication of his fear that he cannot and should not claim her at this time. If he were more sure of himself, he might be willing to let things take their natural course — or he would honestly and manfully tell his parents how he feels and ask them to consider a compromise. It is possible that they wouldn't be quite so rigid as Erik believes if they saw signs of maturity on his part.

ST. PAUL'S LADIES' GUILD

St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. William Lavender with a good attendance and three new members joining.

After the devotional period committees were appointed to look into the purchase of new table linen and dishes for the parish hall.

A unique social idea was adopted, that of "Hobo Breakfasts," and as of now, all ladies of St. Paul's parish may look forward to unexpected guests for breakfast.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses in charge.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W. I.

MARMORA — Marmora branch of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Parsouk on February 12 with 12 members and one visitor present. The president, Miss Grace Warren, presided. Each member gave an item on "Current Events." The study on the provinces was postponed until more were present.

Mrs. G. Empey acted as auctioneer for the Valentine sale and $5.75 was added to the treasury.

The plans for catering to the teachers' banquet took up most of the evening. A sick member was to be remembered.

The March meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. F. Grant.

Two Couples Presented With Fine Gifts

MT. VIEW — On Saturday evening neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jackson (nee Joyce Storms) gathered in the church basement and "tendered them a miscellaneous shower."

The gifts were many and varied. Both Joyce and Elmer thanked everyone for the gifts. Mr. and Mrs. James Cretney, who for many years have resided at Mountain View, and who recently moved to Belleville, were called to the front and they were presented with two lamps, one tri-light and one table lamp, on behalf of their many friends of Mountain View community. Mr. and Mrs. Cretney, who were taken by surprise, were very pleased and thanked everyone and invited all to visit them in their new home in Belleville.

First Brownie Pack Holds Valentine Tea

FRANKFORD — The Valentine tea and home cooking sale was held in the community hall, Frankford, on February 15th at 2.30 p.m., sponsored by the First Frankford Brownie Pack.

The hall was decorated with red streamers, Valentine hearts and cupids. Miss Linda Hart, Gold Cord Guide, was the treasurer for the afternoon, assisted by two Brownies.

Mrs. S. Sharpe, Brown Owl of the 1st Frankford Pack received at the door and officially opened the tea.

The head tea table was decorated with a white linen cloth, centred with silver candleholders and red candles and at one end a gleaming silver tea service and red streamers, Valentine cupids and hearts adorned the front of the table.

Those pouring tea for the afternoon were: Mrs. Cecil Reid, badge secretary; Mrs. R. Rowe of the local Frankford associates; Mrs. Harry Geldard of the Ottawa association and Mrs. Bruce Service, captain of the First Frankford Girl Guides.

The tea tables with their dainty white cloths, decorated with Valentines, hearts and cupids were served by the Brownies. Mrs. C. Gilmour and Mrs. C. Mikel, Tawny Owls of First Frankford Brownie Pack and Mrs. K. Johnson of the Stockdale Girl Guides, replenished the plates in the kitchen, assisted by a number of Brownies.

The home cooking table with its variety of pies, cakes and cookies proved to be a success and was convened by Mrs. B. Servos and Mrs. A. Silcox.

A special thanks to the Brownies, leaders and guests for making the tea so delightful.

A Bowl Of Breakfast

It's child play to be able to make a good bowl of porridge; and downright common sense to eat it on these cold winter mornings. And the time it takes! That depends on the type of cereal you buy:

An instant cereal needs only the addition of a hot liquid to prepare it for eating. A quick-cooking cereal may be cooked in 3 to 5 minutes. For both these types, directions for preparation are given on the package.

A regular cereal, that is, one which has not been precooked before packaging, may be cooked either in a double boiler or over direct heat, but the direct heat method is quicker. The home economists of the Consumer Section Canada Department of Agriculture recommend the following proportions and times for cooking regular cereals over direct heat:

Cereal	Water (cup)	Salt (tsp.)	Ap. time (min.)	Yield (cup)
Cracked Wheat	1	1	30	4
Rolled Oats	1	½	20	2
Oatmeal	1	1	20	4
Farina	½	½	15	2

While stirring constantly, sprinkle cereal into rapidly boiling, salted water. (Fine granular cereals such as oatmeal are less likely to lump if added to cold water rather than boiling water.) Cover pot when cereal begins to thicken, and set over low heat. Cook for length of time indicated on timetable. Stir cereal thoroughly several times during cooking. If cereal sticks to the bottom of the pot add a little more water. Regular cereal may be cooked the day before serving. If you remember to pour a thin layer of water over it and cover pot closely, a skin will not form on the top of the cereal overnight. Reheat over hot water. To avoid lumps do not stir until just before serving.

A SHOWER PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

I have a girl friend who is getting married in the near future. I would very much like to give a bridal shower for her, but I don't know enough of her friends to have one. Since I would like to help her get started in her new life, I am wondering if I would be doing the wrong thing to ask a relative or friend of hers who is going to give her a shower, to invite me and let me bring my present to this shower. — M.

I strongly advise against your doing to be invited to a shower. If the hostess wanted to include you in her list of guests, she would invite you; if she didn't invite you, and you ask to be invited, it might create a very awkward situation all around. I'd like to have you give the bridal shower you so much want to give. Don't try to give a large shower; invite a few friends of your girl friend, and plan a charming, intimate shower. If this isn't possible, give her your present as perhaps an "extra" wedding present.

WHEN HUSBAND ISN'T INCLUDED IN WEDDING INVITATION, SHOULD WIFE ACCEPT?

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

1. Several of us friends have received wedding invitations that do not include our husbands. These invitations were sent to us by a friend whose daughter is being married. But we don't intend to accept this invitation because we think that (a) it is not a proper thing to do and (b) it is an insult to our husbands. The reason given to us by the mother of the bride-to-be is that there are so many relatives and friends of both families to be invited that there won't be enough room for extra guests, but that she does want a few of her own closest friends present.

However, I still insist that if both husband and wife can't be invited, then neither should be. This, I think, could be more readily understood. Do you think that we are doing the wrong thing in not going to this wedding?

2. How does one answer such a wedding invitation?

3. If we don't go, is a wedding present in order? — Reader

Sudan Plans UN Appeal in Border Dispute

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Egypt's dispute with Sudan over two border areas that both claim headed for the United Nations Security Council today after top-level talks in Cairo broke down.

Meeting in an urgent session after midnight, the Sudanese cabinet decided to appeal to the UN after Foreign Minister Mohamed Mahgoub reported from Cairo that negotiations with President Nasser had been fruitless.

One portion of the disputed territory sought by Nasser is 6,000-square-mile desert triangle along the Red Sea. It has been run by Sudan to unify administration over the 10,000 wandering tribesmenin the area who move back and forth across the parallel.

The other is a finger extending north from the parallel along the Nile Valley for about 25 miles.

The Egyptians claim the people in the disputed areas have a right to vote in Friday's plebiscite to approve the new United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria, and to elect Nasser as its president.

MIGHT AFFECT CLAIM

Sudan holds parliamentary elections one week later. For either country to permit the territories to vote in the other's election might affect its claim to them.

Negotiations between the two countries had been going on without fanfare since Feb. 1, but the dispute broke into the open Monday when troops were reported moving into the areas from both sides. Sudan and Egypt denied the troop movements.

An Egyptian source said the plebiscite will be held Friday in the two areas as planned. He discounted the possibility of violence.

If the dispute reaches the Security Council, it will mark the first time one Arab League member has taken a complaint against another to the UN. Normally, inter-Arab quarrels are settled through the mediation of a third Arab state.

SAID ON WAY OUT

"Well, he's not going to control the financial destiny of this country after March 31," said Mr. Pearson, his face flushed and his voice charged with emotion.

He recalled that Mr. Fleming was once a student of his when he was a professor at the University of Toronto. Mr. Fleming was, in a sense, a favorite of his. Now he had the irascibility of a Dour-ald Duck without his more endearing qualities."

The Conservatives had brushed their own convention resolutions "under the rug." The Liberals had printed theirs for all to see. And when the Liberals got power, they would implement them "one by one," said Mr. Pearson as his audience applauded.

"You can't do it without spending money but I know of no better way of spending it than by bettering the lot of Canadians."

APPLY FUNDS TO PEACE

Canada was spending more than $1,000,000,000 a year on defence. If world tensions could be eased, Canadians should think of what could be done with that money for resources development and other projects.

Mr. Pearson hoped that as prime minister he would be in a better position to fight for world peace.

He spoke at a meeting where Frank Enfield, defeated in the June 10 election, was renominated as party standard-bearer in York-Scarborough. The Conservatives hold 17 of the 18 Toronto-York ridings.

Today, Mr. Pearson heads by motorcade to Kitchener and Guelph, stopping off en route to visit his daughter, Mrs. Walter Hannah, wife of a doctor at Milton.

Earlier, Mr. Pearson spent about five hours at Hamilton recording television shorts, held in a private meeting with a group of unemployed workers, sped to Toronto for a reception with some 50 ethnic editors and then dropped in at the East York riding.

He told the foreign-language editors that one of the best ways of gaining headway towards world peace is to split the forces of national communism and Russian imperialism. The next step would be to get the deviating country to decide its own fate.

PM MAINTAINS

He emphasized his government's recent action in boosting federa' tax-sharing payments to Newfoundland by $1,686,000 a year and in giving the province $7,500,000 in special fiscal aid grants; was part of $25,000,000 annual special grants to the Atlantic Provinces.

The government didn't have to do this, he said. It could have stood pat on the tax - sharing agreements signed by Premier Smallwood with the former federal Liberal government.

The total of $9,186,000 annually for Newfoundland was "more than would have been received had the last government returned to power" in last year's election.

MONEY PROPOSALS

Mr. Diefenbaker reminded the audience of announced federal plans to implement $12,000,000 in labor improvements here.

He made these other points:

1. That an "informal" federal-municipal conference later this year might lead to a new tax-collecting resources for municipalities to ease heavy real estate taxation.

2. That Newfoundland might be eligible for low-cost federal loans for hydro power projects.

MODERN POLICE CENTRE

This is the heart of a $500,000 communications centre for the Metropolitan Toronto police force. The force of 2,300 officers was born January 1, 1957, four years after Toronto and her 12 neighboring municipalities were joined in a metropolitan area of 1,400,000 persons. Incidents reported by radio and telephone come to this centre and are whisked to the investigators by conveyor belt. The system is the first of its kind in Canada and one of the most elaborate in North America. (CP Photo).

First Metro Police Force Is Working Out Better Than Expected Says Commissioner

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — For the last year, criminals raiding into the 240 square municipalities surrounding Toronto have found they're up against more than a village constable with an odd-fashioned pistol.

They have run head - on into Canada's first metropolitan police force — 2,300 officers armed with modern communications, scientific detection methods and long experience.

"We have had requests from all over the continent for information on how our system works," says Magistrate Charles O. Bick, police commissioner. "It has worked out even better than I had hoped."

The force was created Jan. 1, 1957, four years after Toronto and her 12 suburbs were welded by provincial legislation into a metropolitan area of 1,400,000 population.

AMALGAMATED POLICE

In 1957, the force investigated 15 murders and eight attempted murders; hunted down most of 3,720 stolen cars and was called in on 2,711 burglaries. More than 5,650 persons were arrested, fingerprinted and photographed.

There was political opposition to the amalgamation from the beginning, with only four of the 13 in favor of the change.

"Many of these areas lost quite a bit of autonomy when the metropolitan set-up came in 1953," Magistrate Bick said. "Amalgamating the police forces was viewed by some as a further curtailing of their authority."

The 13 municipalities were united in six main police districts. Former headquarters at Long Branch, Mimico and Swansea were closed. But there was no reduction in manpower in the suburbs.

REORGANIZE RECORDS

"It would appear on the surface that there had been a great increase in crime in the last year, but actually that is not so," Magistrate Bick said. "Until the metropolitan system came in, there were no accurate records kept in the suburbs. We have set up new recording and reporting methods."

Too hunch-tying in the 250 square miles with a communications system, Toronto's original radio network, covering the 33 square miles of the city area, was expanded at a cost of $500,000.

Police costs increased. Total 1956 budget for the 13 partners was $11,000,000. Last year it was $12,300,000.

"Much was initial investment. The difference is actually less than $500,000 when you consider the expensive communications system, pension contributions and normal police car costs."

Steps taken in the metro force's first year of operation included setting up a promotion procedure. Land is being sought for a school to train recruits and keep veterans up-to-date.

"We will set up a juvenile squad this year, because prevative work among juveniles is police work at its most effective and important level," the commission said.

In 1957, a score of "police cadets" were hired—youths of 17 to 20 wearing regular uniforms and used on headquarters and traffic work.

"We have to compete with business for the services of good police material," the magistrate said. "The minimum age for a police officer is 21, but by that age, most boys have found jobs. We will hire 50 more cadets this year if the proper material is available."

With much wooded suburban area under its control, the metro force is "setting up a deal for the use of tracking dogs."

A horse trailer, with room for two mounts, has been purchased to have mounted officers quickly on the scene of parades or labor unrest. The force has 25 mounted men and 28 horses.

WAVE OF HOLDUPS

Toward the end of 1957, the holdup incidence increased sharply and Magistrate Bick set up a 10-man squad of specialists. The incidence is still climbing and the squad has been bolstered to 14.

"Metropolitan enforcement is here to stay. In the increase, any more than any other single factor," the commissioner said. "I think this present condition is a sporadic outbreak that will pass. Maybe unemployment has something to do with it, but I don't think it is a major factor."

It will be another year before comparative figures are available to show how the metropolitan system is working, even longer before the force reaches peak efficiency based on experience.

"We do know that criticism should leave the suburbs unpoliced has not been justified," the commissioner said.

Frost Willing To Let Pearson Speak at OAC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost said Wednesday he hasn't "the slightest objection" to Liberal Leader Lester Pearson speaking on the campus of Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

He spoke in the legislature in answer to a question by Harry Nixon (Brant), who referred to a report that the college principal had denied permission by saying:

"Authority to grant permission is not in my hands."

"Whose hands is it in?" asked Mr. Nixon.

"It has not been referred to me," replied the premier, "but if it is there will be a clear right-of-way given."

CCF Leader Donald MacDonald said he himself had been denied permission to appear on the campus for the last four years. Would the premier clarify the entire policy?

"I would have no objection to the students hearing my honorable friend from South York," said the premier. "I don't want to offend any unwritten rule at the college but in this matter I am free-wheeling — the students can hear anyone they want."

Maritime Central Airliner May Have Run Out of Gas

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCAF expert testified Wednesday that the Maritime Central Airways plane that crashed and killed 79 persons last August had 46½ minutes of fuel left when it passed over Quebec City.

A short time later—the exact moment is unknown so far—the big airliner plunged through thunder and lightning clouds into a swamp near Isaoudun, Que., about 16 nautical miles from Quebec City.

The testimony—and that of aviation inspector Don A. McLellan is the first direct indication the plane might have run out of gas.

Lieut. Wm. Bell of Ottawa, an RCAF specialist on aircraft performance, testifying Wednesday, converted the time element—46½ minutes of fuel—into terms of distance. He said it meant the plane had enough fuel to fly another 193 nautical miles.

DISTANCE TOO FAR

Montreal airport officials, queried by a reporter later, said the direct distance between Quebec City and Montreal is 130 nautical miles.

Lieutenant Bell's calculations were made on the basis of various information including cruise reports dating to last January's survey from former pilots of the TCA plane that crashed.

Mr. McLellan, former pilot, said similar calculations made by the transport department, the RCAF and others showed the plane "would not have had sufficient fuel to reach Montreal."

The three-man board investigating the crash also heard the views of Dr. William Prowse, a specialist on aviation medicine.

WOULD BE TIRED

Dr. Prowse said an airline pilot with 24 hours duty would be tired but not necessarily fatigued. Capt. Norman Ramsay of Toronto, pilot of the MCA plane, had been on duty—in the air and on the ground at London, England, and Keflavik, Iceland—for about 22 hours. Witnesses have said he normally took rests in a crew bunk aboard the plane on long flights.

The MCA charter flight was carrying 73 passengers and six crew members from London to Toronto when it crashed.

Education Conference Ready To Report Its Conclusions After 4 Days' Deliberations

OTTAWA (CP) — A gathering of 850 Canadians from coast to coast, representing virtually all occupations, religions and economic levels, was to spell out today its recommendations for meeting the country's needs in education.

The Canadian Conference on Education, which opened here last Sunday under the sponsorship of 19 professional, commercial, labor and veterans' organizations combining more than 2,000,000 members throughout Canada, has concluded workshop discussions on particular aspects of the problem. The conference ends today.

Indications were that increased federal aid for universities, their students and their research projects would be sought, that higher teacher training standards would be recommended, and similar would be suggested in provincial requirements for high school entrance and matriculation certificates.

START FRENCH EARLIER

Also indicated was a unanimous resolution that French be introduced into public-school curricula at the Grade III or IV level of English-language schools from coast to coast, and that English be taught at the same level in French-language schools.

Recommendations from eight workshop studies were scheduled to the conference's resolutions committee, whose selections were before the conference this morning. Voting was to take place during the afternoon session.

The conference was told Wednesday that Canada's higher-education program should be based on making university-level training available to a greater number of college-age population.

WOULD BE BIG RISE

S. H. Deeks of Toronto, executive director of the Industrial Foundation on Education, said this would mean an annual enrolment of 225,000, rising within 10 years to 360,000. Present enrolment is 86,500 undergraduates, he said.

Operating costs of universities, to cope with such a demand, would rise to $330,000,000 annually by 1967, against the present $92,000,000. Capital costs of providing the additional places required would be $960,000,000 — $90,000,000 a year.

To ensure institutional autonomy, he suggested budgets that would see universities derive 50 per cent of income from governments, 10 per cent from business, 25 from students and 10 per cent miscellaneous.

Says Liberals Lose Members And Confidence

DURHAM (CP) — Transport Minister Hees told a Progressive Conservative nominating convention here Wednesday the Liberal party has lost many of its members and most of its confidence.

He said the Liberals are "finding out that learning to be the opposition is tougher than learning to be the government."

Mr. Hees spoke at a Grey-Bruce riding convention at which Eric A. Winkler was nominated as candidate. He defeated former finance minister Walter Harris in the election last June.

Mr. Hees said Liberal party members in Parliament objected and criticized but eventually fell in line with the government.

"They appear to be lacking in spirit, guidance and courage."

TAKE FLAG POLL

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday announced it is carrying out a cross-country poll to determine whether Canadians want a distinctive flag. National President Douglas A. Fisher of Aurora, Ont., said more than 30,000 members are carrying out the poll. The chamber planned to petition the government on the question later.

Quebec Approves Higher Taxation Rate on Incomes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fiscal programs were a chief topic Wednesday in the provincial legislatures.

Quebec's Legislative Assembly gave final approval, 79 to 0, to the Union Nationale government bill imposing an additional 10 per cent personal income tax for the calendar year 1958.

Premier Duplessis said called the bill an affirmation of the rights of Quebec in the field of income tax. He said the 10 per cent additional revenue from the new tax will go to pay increases in needy mothers' allowances.

At Halifax, the Nova Scotia public accounts were tabled in the Premier Stanfield's Progressive Conservative government. The accounts show a net deficit of $2,663,818 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1957. Both Liberals and Conservatives were in power during the year.

The fourth session of the 13th Alberta legislature opens today.

Saskatchewan's CCF government, sitting in Regina, was told the province is moving toward a diversified and stable economy.

Premier Douglas said in the throne speech debate that 52 per cent of production last year came from non-agricultural industries.

The Liberal - Progressive government of Manitoba defeated a motion of non-confidence, 27 to 21 in the first test of strength of the current session.

The New Brunswick legislature held a 45-minute sitting following Tuesday's official opening. Reports were tabled and several petitions presented for private bills.

British Columbia's Social Credit government under Premier Bennett rejected a motion for an inquiry be made into the province's mental health services.

Claims Pilot Filed Incorrect Flight Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Former transport minister Lionel Chevrier said Tuesday night the pilot who flew the prime minister to Quebec City on the day the last Parliament was dissolved filed an incorrect flight plan.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and a party which included Transport Minister Hees slipped out of Ottawa quietly Feb. 1 on the flight to Quebec to meet with the gover-general. After his return to Ottawa Mr. Diefenbaker announced dissolution of Parliament and the calling of the March 31 general election.

Mr. Chevrier said it was embarrassing to the pilot and Ottawa's control tower officials when the pilot filed a flight plan for Winnipeg and then flew to Quebec "contrary to air regulations."

"The pilot could lose his licences," Mr. Chevrier said. He did not name the pilot of the transport department plane.

Mr. Chevrier described the Diefenbaker government as not "no policy, no principles and no doctrine."

He spoke at a Liberal nominating convention for Toronto Trinity which named Dr. Stanley Haidasz candidate in the coming election.

Move to Curtail Labor Contracts' 'Open Seasons'

TORONTO (CP) — More stability in long-term labor contracts is intended under amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act introduced in the legislature Wednesday, by Labor Minister Daley.

The new provisions would permit "open seasons" only in the last two months of a contract or at one-year periods prior to then. None would be permitted midway through a two - year agreement.

An "open season" is a two-month period during which rival unions may seek certification or dissatisfied members of the contracting union may seek decertification.

Under present provisions there can be an "open season" in the 11th and 12th months and in the 24th and 25th months if a contract has that duration.

Another amendment would permit the provincial cabinet to appoint additional members to the labor relations board. The board would still have only five members, but extra ones could act at the request of the chairman or vice-chairman.

Second-Line Party Stalwarts Make Voices Heard Across Canada as Election Warms Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Political leaders campaign today at widely-separated parts of the country in their quest for votes in the March 31 federal general election.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's plane found a hole in Newfoundland fog Wednesday and set him down at St. John's. In Toronto Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson threw away texts and spoke off the cuff to win warm applause. CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell spoke Wednesday night at Hanley, Sask., while Social Credit Leader Solon Low attended a meeting in Brandon, Man.

JOBLESS THEME

Veterans Minister A. J. Brooks spoke to a meeting in Chipman, N.B., that unanimously nominated him to run again as Progressive Conservative candidate for Royal. He said:

"The Conservative government has achieved more for the Maritime Provinces since coming into power (last June) than has been achieved since Confederation."

He said the Conservative administration is meeting the unemployment situation with an expanding program of public works.

In Hamilton, however, former Liberal finance Minister Walter Harris said many of the projects listed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the $1,185,000,000 works program his government plans in 1958 were included in Liberal estimates he himself tabled last year.

TRICKY LANDING

The Diefenbaker plane ran into fog over St. John's, Nfld., but after two low passes at the field and an hour's circling, captain Jim Fleet of Montreal landed the North Star aircraft. The fog closed in again almost at once.

Mr. Pearson centred his activities around Toronto after making some film records for television at Hamilton.

Speaking without a text, the 1957 Nobel peace prize winner won round after round of applause from a Liberal nominating meeting of 600 persons in York-Scarborough riding as he voiced a new plea to be given a mandate March 31 to try to end the threat of war.

He described East and West as two men each with a loaded pistol to the other's head and each trembling for fear the other would fire.

"PROGRAM FOR POVERTY"

Mr. Coldwell told his Hanley audience that the Progressive Conservative government's farm prices stabilization legislation is "a program for poverty."

"It does not even guarantee farmers their present level of income, which is far below parity, for the guaranteed prices under the act are lower than present prices."

The Conservatives had "ultimately" retired to place in the legislation a formula providing parity between prices for farm products and farmers' costs. The legislation, passed at the last session of Parliament, "repudiates the Conservative promise to assure agriculture a fair share of the national income."

BOOST FROM JOE

At a night meeting in St. John's Mr. Diefenbaker gleefully interpreted a request from Premier Smallwood for Conservative government action on Newfoundland power development after the election as an indication the Liberal premier has already conceded the election to the Conservatives.

Labor Minister Michael Starr told a Woodstock meeting that Canada's current unemployment woes are due to a lack of foresight on the part of the former Liberal government.

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin in Toronto described Mr. Diefenbaker as an economic ignoramus and one of the most ignorant people in Canada.

Rangers Take Firm Hold On Second Place In NHL Beating Hawks

Red Sullivan, Peterborough Native, Comes up With Big Goal to Sink Chicago's Ship

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

George (Red) Sullivan likes to play his hockey in the other team's half of the ice. He's noted in the National Hockey League for his exceptional skill at forechecking.

It's the type of hard-digging game that occasionally pays off in an unexpected goal. The other team starts a play, seems to be in control, and suddenly Sullivan's long stick has the puck.

That was the story Tuesday night as New York Rangers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 and took a firm hold on second place, three points ahead of Detroit Red Wings.

Hawks missed a chance to move out of a fifth-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, six points behind Boston Bruins. It was the only game scheduled.

SET UP TWO GOALS

Sullivan set up Rangers' first and last goals by dogging Hawks' Ab Demarco and Bronco Horvath in the Chicago end of the ice. In the first period he set up a New York power play and Parker MacDonald to bang in Harry Howell's rebound. It was MacDonald's seventh goal.

In the third period Joe and Andy Hebenton fed the puck to Bill Gadsby, the league's highest-scoring defenceman, and Gadsby scored his 13th goal.

Sullivan's hard work earned him the rangers' captaincy this year, a post that bogged Howell down last season. But Sully's effectiveness has not been hurt and he now has 36 points, fourth best on the team.

Hitting the NHL was a long job for the 26-year-old Peterborough native. A star with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, Boston brought him up for two games of the 1950-51 playoffs but demoted him in subsequent seasons later.

SET ABL RECORD

Sullivan won another NHL trial when he set an AHL scoring record in 1953-54 with 32 goals and 72 assists. He scored 19 goals for Chicago in 1954-55 and 14 the next season.

He had only 23 points in 42 games with New York last season when he was slowed by injuries. But his dogged play won the respect of the fans and coach Phil Watson and he was named captain.

So far this season a considerably healthier Sullivan has been living up to that title.

New York's middle goal was scored by Hebenton, 15th from Andy Bathgate. Chicago scorers were defencemen Allan Morison, his third, and Ed Litzenberger, his 22nd, both coming in the last eight minutes.

Chicago replaced goalie Glenn Hall with an extra forward with more than a minute left but couldn't beat New York's Gump Worsley. Worsley stopped 24 shots. Hall 18.

Granites Have Four Rinks Left In Top Trophy

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Granite Club today was in a commanding position to claim top prize in the Ontario Curling Association's bonspiel.

Other survivors were Rev. J. Perryman, Orillia; R. Lawrie, Unionville, and Col. J. Brown, Oakville.

Only Granite rink which has any trouble Wednesday was Dr. C. E. Turnbull's. He played an extra end to come out 9-8 over Stu Graham, Toronto Victoria. The other three Granite skips— Jack Bolton, Joe Hooper and Dr. J. Morrison — had their opponents easily.

The survivors meet in today's opening draw.

Play also continues for the secondary Kirk's Trophy and the North American Life Trophy.

The eight rinks left in the Kirk's trophy event include Don Crowe, Guelph.

WIN HOOP PLAYOFF

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford's undefeated Pauline Johnson Collegiate Junior scored a 67-43 win over Kitchener Waterloo Collegiate in a sudden-death basketball playoff game here Wednesday. Pauline Johnson now moves into the finals against Galt for the Central Western Ontario Secondary Schools' Association basketball championship.

Hershey's Lead Now Whittled To Two Points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hershey's once "run - away" lead in the American Hockey League is down to a mere two points today and tempers are about as short a stbe bolge.

Second-place Cleveland closed in with a 2-0 decision over the Bears Wednesday night that wound up with a free-for-all. Bo Elik, who assisted on the opening goal by Jimmy Moore late in the second period, tussled with Hershey's Gordon Hollingworth and both things off just 35 seconds from the finish.

The Hershey net was knocked off its anchoring pins during the melee which saw referee Eddie Powers banish six players, three from each club.

Springfield gained sole possession of fourth place by clobbering last-place Buffalo 10-3 in the only other game scheduled.

TIES TEAM RECORD

Hershey, with three more games remaining against the Barons, one on the final day of the regular season Mar. 23, had already clinched but couldn't dent Johnny Bower's defence. It was Bower's eighth shutout of the season, tying the Barons' record set by Bill Beveridge in 1941-42.

Moore's goal gave Cleveland the lead at 16:01 of the middle period before Hollingworth and Elik counted the insurance goal in the last period.

Norm Dennis, Real Chevrolis and Cal Gardner each scored twice to lead Springfield to its first win since March of Rochester. Singles were scored by Gerry Ehrmann, Bud Armstrong, Tony Schneider and Kenny Schinkel.

Buffalo marksmen were Bob Hassard, Wally Hergesheimer and Gerry McNamara. Just returned from the injured list, left in the second period with a twisted leg and was replaced by Hank Kasberman. Indians scored their final three goals on Kasberman.

Charlie Burns May Be Reported To Commission

GOTEBORG, Sweden (CP)— Centre Charlie Burns of Canada's entry in the world hockey championships may be reported to the Canadian Ice Hockey Association for his part in a last-minute fracas in the Russia's exhibition game against a local team.

Reports circulating here Wednesday said the CIHA will decide if there is little chance of the association taking any action. Association officials were reported ready to write off the affair—which saw Canadians and one Swede ordered off the ice—as high spirits.

There was no such attitude in some newspaper reports of the outbreak. However, several stories implied that Burns bared a fist-fighting streak that endangered his participation in the championships to be held at Oslo Feb. 28-March 9.

FANS PELT PLAYERS

Fans watching the open air game also showed disapproval. They pelted the Whitby players with snowballs, bottle caps and paper. Canada won the game 12-0.

The outbreak started when Burns tangled with Sigge Browns of the local Gals. Burns was ordered from the rink and, when he objected, the Swedish goal-keeper intervened. Then all set of shoving and yelling match that resulted in the wild exhibition.

Besides Burns and Broems, the Canadians who missed the last 30 seconds of play were Bus Gagnon, Gord Myles, Harry Sinden and Ali Treen.

The outbreak was the first the team has got into in its series of exhibitions.

Manchester Scores Crushing 3-0 Victory Over Sheffield

By JOHN FARROW

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP)— This city is proud of its soccer heritage today — proud of the players who carved their own memorial to Manchester United's killed and injured in the Munich plane crash Feb. 6.

Manchester's new - look team soccer world with its crushing 3-0 victory over Sheffield Wednesday in an English Cup match Wednesday night.

It was United's first match since that tragic day in Munich when seven of the team's stars were killed and others seriously injured.

"I told my players to give all they had," re ceiling manager Jimmy Murphy said. "Youthful enthusiasm and team spirit made up for lack of experience. I am proud of them."

Manchester, too, was proud. And manager Matt Busby, lying in a Munich hospital, would have been equally proud had he seen his youngsters taking the place of his stars.

ONLY TWO REGULARS

The Manchester team included only two of the original squad that made Manchester United's world-famous name—crack forward Dennis Viollet and goalkeeper Harry Gregg and fullback Bill Foulkes.

They were the backbone behind the team's victory. Ernie Taylor, 32-year-old inside forward signed from Blackpool, and Stan Crowther, 23-year-old halfback leaped from Aston Villa only 24 minutes before the kick-off, threw their experience into the United team.

The other players were untested youngsters.

Winger Seamus Brennan, a 19-year-old playing his first big game, got two goals. Centre forward Alex Dawson, only 18 and a replacement for England star Tommy Taylor killed in the crash got the other.

The crowd of 60,000 went wild with excitement over the result they had hoped for but scarcely expected.

Patterson Must Soon Defend Heavy Title

NEW YORK (AP)—The World Championship Boxing Committee, headed by Chairman Truman K. York, is ready to take definite action on the heavyweight title situation within a reasonable time.

Helfand, also chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said Wednesday both the calendar and the quality of opposition will be considered in the proposed action.

Floyd Patterson, heavyweight ruler, last defended Aug. 22 against Pete Rademacher in Seattle. His six-month period of grace expires Saturday but Helfand said he will ask the champ to meet the exact letter of the law.

Patterson's manager Gus D'Amato, recently reached an agreement with promoter Harry Levesee of London, for the champ to defend in London next summer against Joe Erskine, British champion, if Erskine defeats Ingemar Johansson, European champion, in their Friday match in Sweden.

Helfand would not say what type of action the committee might take but he hinted broadly when he said there might be no problem if Erskine lost.

Putouts, Assists Will Be Taken Out of Boxscore

NEW YORK (AP) — A new baseball boxscore, which eliminates individual putouts and assists, will be put into effect for the 1958 reason.

This was decided Wednesday when a nine service poll showed a 5-1 ureference for the revised boxscore with four columns of information — at bats, runs, hits and runs batted in. All major press services will adopt the revised boxscore.

Another change in the boxscore making for easier reading occurs in the summary where the pitching performances have been put in tabular style. The information in the summary will be grouped in paragraph making for more coherence.

Although the new box will exclude individual putouts and assists, the team totals in these categories will be included in the summary. Pitchers' won and lost records will be listed on the same lise as each patcher's game performance.

EXPECT BIGGER 1958

Elimination of individual putouts and assists represents the first major boxscore change since 1952 when runs and earned runs for pitchers were added. Runs batted in were added to the summary in 1920.

The latest shift was taken after many sports editors reported a decline of interest among readers in the fielding records. Several of them pointed out that:

1. Baseball never had an unusual number of putouts and assists in reception of it is made by the story of the game.

2. When a player performed at his peak in a game there was no breakdown of his putouts and assists at each position.

2. Since many defensive standouts do not rank at or near the top in the batting averages, fielding records and averages were often misleading.

Campanella's Future Remains Most Clouded

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP)—The future of Roy Campanella remained clouded today.

Time lopped as all-important factor in determining whether the Los Angeles Dodgers' catcher will recover from the broken neck he suffered in an auto accident Jan. 28.

The 37-year-old athlete, a patient in the Glen Cove Community Hospital, still is paralyzed from the hips down. Campanella's condition is unchanged and the muscle strength has not improved since his admission three weeks ago.

A statement issued Wednesday by Harry Gifford, administrator of the hospital, said, "the longer the paralysis remains unchanged, the less one can expect for the future."

No mention was made about the likelihood of Campanella ever playing baseball again.

There was no hint whether further improvement was expected but the statement said "we are still hopeful that the patient's paralysis will improve."

Kingston CKLCs Take Chevies 6-1; Kings Down Canadiens

Nothing went right Wednesday night for Sudbury Wolves and the Chatham Maroons, both fighting for a playoff spot in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series.

Wolves, after taking an early lead against Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, also outshot the power - packed league - leaders 36-34. But they still lost—3-1.

The two squads still remain in the same places in the standings. Sudbury is tied in third place with North Bay Trappers, Chatham is a point behind in fifth place.

In the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern series, Kingston CKLCs hopped out of the loop's cellar with a 6-1 victory over Cornwall Chevies and Pembroke Lumber Kings nipped Ottawa-Hull Canadiens 5-4.

HURLEY SPECTACULAR

Spectacular goaltending by Kitchener's Boat Hurley, the loop's leading netminder, thwarted Sudbury. Hurley stopped 29 shots, 15 in the first period when the goalkeeper's fellow Leafs got a lead on a goal by Joe Zorica.

Goals by Ken Laufman and Buddy Horne put Dutchmen ahead in the second period and Wiggie Wylie added an insurance marker near the end of the third.

Soo right winger John Lumley knocked off Chatham, with a save at 19:32 of the final period.

The goal was Lumley's third of the night and his 31st of the season. Lumley, with two goals, had defencemen Ivan Tennant and Jerry Odrowski counted the other Greyhound tallies.

Northern Ontario Only Rink Undefeated in H. S. Curling

By ED SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Tom Ted, a 17-year-old skip from Fort William, has his Northern Ontario rink in first place with a 6-0 record as the Canadian high school curling championships enter the final first series.

Three rounds are scheduled today at 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. AST. The first two rounds of the round-robin tournament will be played Friday.

Northern Ontario meets Ontario this morning, has a bye this afternoon and plays New Brunswick tonight.

Ontario, Alberta and Prince Edward Island all have 4-1 marks.

Ted's neighborhood crew toppled Alberta from among the unbeaten in sixth-round play with a 9-4 decision. In the afternoon round they took Quebec by a 7-4 score.

MANITOBA WINS TWO

Double victories also went to Pete McLeod's Manitoba foursome which won 12-3 over British Columbia in the evening round and upset Prince Edward Island, unbeaten entry by an 11-8 decision in the afternoon.

Nova Scotia topped a fading Saskatchewan team 14-8 in the evening and British Columbia 7-4 in the day draw. New Brunswick stopped Quebec 13-3 in a follow-up to their 13-4 win over Newfoundland.

Prince Edward Island remained undefeated from its afternoon win over Manitoba to stop Newfoundland 9-7 in the evening.

Ontario had the night off after losing 7-3 to Alberta in fifth-round competition.

The game that some consider may be the break in the bonspiel was the tangle between Northern Ontario and Alberta. Ted's mixture of brew and take-out had veteran curlers amazed.

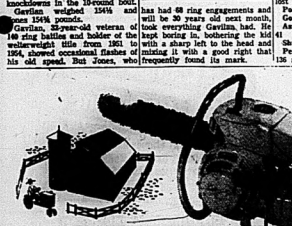
TOOK THE LEAD

The big break came in the 7th end when Northern Ontario scored three to erase a 3-3 deficit. Skip Fort Williams' rink was lying three when Alberta's Doug Sinclair measured for a takeout. He made it but rolled out himself leaving an easy three for Ted.

Northern Ontario posted singles in the fifth and sixth and a two in the seventh. Spankes had singles in the eighth and 10th.

Manitoba, a pre-bonspiel favorite, began to show some of the curling it couldn't uncork in the earlier rounds. The Fort Frances rink was consistent on the draws against a hard - working British Columbia crew.

Nova Scotia's Allan Kenney continued to prove himself a top contender. He had Fred Kassen missing his last shot wide on the hit ers throughout. The Nova Scotian posted a four in the second end and had threes in the fourth and sixth to insure against an comeback by Saskatchewan.



Kid Gavilan's Comeback Bid Halted by Jones

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Brooklyn's Ralph (Tiger) Jones clobbered Kid Gavilan's comeback attempt with a split decision Wednesday night and the Cuban boxer admitted afterward "he good fighter—better than I expect."

Jones claimed Gavilan butted him over the eye in the ninth. The Kid decided the swing "I feel right hand lead real good—bang on the eye." There were no knockdowns in the 10-round bout.

Gavilan weighed 154½ and Jones 154¾ pounds.

Gavilan, 32-year-old veteran of 96 ring battles and holder of the welterweight title from 1951 to 1954, showed occasional flashes of his old speed. But Jones, who has had 68 ring engagements and will be 30 years old next month, took everything Gavilan had. He kept boring in, bothering the kid with a sharp left to the head and mixing it with a good right that frequently found its mark.

Teepees Break Jinx, Defeat Marlies 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees, leagueleaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, have broken a jinx haunting them all season.

They failed to get a single victory in their first six games against Toronto Marlboros. Marlboros won two of the games, tied the other four.

Wednesday night St. Catharines turned the tables winning 4-3. A goal by Chico Maki, two minutes before the end of the game, ended Marlboro's domination and pushed Teepees lead to eight points over Hamilton Cubs.

Only other action saw cellar-dwelling Oshawa Eblimcos, beaten in 20 of their games this season, chalk up their 12th win—an upset 5-3 decision over third-place Toronto St. Michael's.

Biltmores stormed into a 4-0 first period lead against St. Mikes.

Harvey Kuenn Signs Contract

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, slated to be shifted from shortstop to the outfield, signed his 1958 contract with Detroit Tigers Wednesday.

The club spokesman said Kuenn took an undisclosed salary cut. Kuenn previously rejected Tiger offers, which Detroit wanted to perform "an amputation," not just cut the $30,000 he drew last season.

Kuenn, American League all-star shortstop the last three seasons and in 1953, dropped off at the plate and afield in 1957. He hit .277, compared with .322 in 1956. His fielding average slipped to .955 from .968.

Canadiens Will Call up Bownass

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Wednesday that defenceman Jack (Red) Bownass will be called up from Montreal Royals for tonight's National Hockey League game here between Canadiens and Boston Bruins.

Whether defenceman Doug Harvey will be able to play was still not known. Harvey is suffering from a thigh-muscle injury.

The management confirmed that Maurice (Rocket) Richard will rejoin the team after a three-month layoff because of a severe injury. The Rocket worked out Wednesday with his usual linemates, brother Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard and Dickie Moore.

OSLO (AP) — The U.S. amateur ice hockey team defeated Norway 7-2 Wednesday in an international match witnessed by 6,000 spectators.

Canada's Team For Games May Be Curtailed

MONTREAL (CP)—Jack Davies, president of the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, says Canada's team for the 1958 games may have to be curtailed "unless there is a big upswing" in results from the financial campaign.

Davies said Wednesday the situation will be considered at the association's meeting here next Saturday. The 1958 British Empire Games will be held in Cardiff, Wales, in July.

As of Feb. 13, less than 36 per cent of the association's objective of $150,000 had been received or pledged, said Davies.

The association has aimed at sending about 100 athletes to compete in all nine sports that comprise the games. At Vancouver for the 1954 games, 79 Canadian athletes competed. For the long and expensive trip to New Zealand in 1950 the Canadian team was 72.

Davies said "we will have to decide whether to continue hoping the financial objectives will be reached in time or planning at once for a reduced team." The team will sail from Montreal July 2.

Leading the campaign in the Ontario zone is Senator Rupert Davies

Noranda Will Be Site for Title in 1960

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The Canadian School Curling Committee Wednesday selected Noranda, Que., as the site for the 1960 Dominion high-school curling championship.

Official allocation must be made however, by the Sanctioning Curling Association which meets at Victoria, next month. Its approval is usually automatic.

The committee considered applications from Trail, B.C., Montreal and Sarnia, but selected Noranda, centre of a large mining area of curling population. Noranda has not had the playoffs during the schoolboy section's nine-year history.

It was another wide - open game between these clubs. Fairly clean despite 17 minor penalties handed out, 10 of them going to the victors. Most were for tripping, holding or interference, especially in the first period. Only one instance was referred through the middle chukker. Petes have dropped but two games in 25 played so far this season.

Belleville were short several top players and the Petes were minus a couple. The visitors put up a stiff battle all the way but lacked the scoring punch of the speedy Petes, who also had some fine outstanding again by Ron Dobson.

Two assists apiece were earned by Dave Greenaway, Danny Pearson, Jewell and Frank Daly, as McCormack, Armstrong and Ferguson had one each.

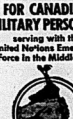
Bowie Track Still Closed Due to Storm

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Bowie race track in the southern Maryland pines was in hibernation again today. It probably will be Friday, too.

In many respects, the scene was the same as it was last Sunday after a near-record blizzard trapped thousands of cars and delayed many racers.

But they're making progress. Only about a thousand cars are still on the snow-covered parking lot. Million Dollman, track publicity man, put the last six cars on a train Monday night.

The track's plowed strip at a truck with a reported $900,000 behind its wheels. Uniformed watchmen have been keeping an eye on it since last Saturday.



About 900 horses are standing idle in the snow-covered stables.

Bowie has let the 18-inch snow remain on the track to keep the turf from freezing in the near-zero cold wave that has hung on since Sunday. Ground crews say they can have the track in running order six hours after they get the word.

Little Benny's Notebook

This morning ma was eating her grapefruit diet and thinking to herself thoughtful, and she said to pop, if you only had some little bits of what you'd like for dinner, it would take some of the weight of planning and choosing off my shoulders.

Well not as a matter of fact, my dear, I do happen to have a little idea, pop said, and ma said, Well, that's a pleasant serprize.

Well, how did you guess? p o p said, I meet my idea was for you to completely and pleasantly serprize me, he said, and ma said, William, you couldn't of made a better suggestion if you thought from now till Doomsday.

Heh? pop said, and ma said, Absolutely. I promise you that you won't know a single item of t h e ments until you sit down in a state of pleasant expectancy.

Good, I look fallward to a happy day at the office, with an extra platter to take care of my discreetly watering mouth, p o p said, he be sure erly, he said, and ma said, That wont be necesserry, you can meet us there.

Meet who where? pop said, and ma said, About 6 therly you can joig us at a wonderful new Japanese resterant Maud H e w s simply raved about. It's called the Hearthside Gates and they serve Sooky Yocky with all kinds of extras that will serprize y o u even after you get there. Even if you guess what kind of fish it is, you'll still be serprized to find it practically raw, she said.

On 2nd thoughts my idea is to stake and potatoes right here, pop said, and ma said, Now that's really extreme news, William, because I have a bizay day ahead of me and the lest time I spend in the kitchin the more time I'll have out of it.

Canada's Former Chief Electoral Officer Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Jules Castonguay, who for 30 years was responsible for the detailed mechanics involved in Canada's federal elections, died in hospital Wednesday night.

The, 76-year-old former chief electoral officer for Canada had been in a coma since suffering a heart attack at his home on Jan. 21. He turned 76 last Saturday.

Mr. Castonguay retired 10 years ago and his son, Nelson, succeeded him in the job of overseeing federal vot-taking in Canada.

Nelson was still at his office Wednesday night working on details for the March 31 election when he learned of his father's death.

Surviving besides his son are two daughters. His wife, the former Florence Valois of Vaudreuil, died last September.

ALASKA SHORT OF SNOW

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Officials preparing for the annual Alaska sled dog championship have run into a slight snag—not enough snow. It had been traveled on to cover the course which usually is deeply covered at this time of year.

Ken Venturi Favored to Win Tourney

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The oddsmakers favored Ken Venturi but top money seemed to favor veteran Jimmy Demaret today as a field of 155 players began the $50,000 Houston Classic invitation tournament.

Venturi, a professional only 15 months but the 1958 champion at Palm springs and Phoenix, will be the favorite to capture the winner tour's longest course and grab top money of $6,000 for the 72-hole tournament.

Weather forecasts encouraged golfers indicating no change in the biting cold and strong wind of the last four days. Demaret often is at his best in bad weather and at times plays brilliantly in a wind of the type that has whipped across the 7,200-yard, par 72 Memorial Park course all week.

Chinese Papers Hail Withdrawal From Korea

PEIPING (Reuters) — Communist Chinese newspapers have hailed the announcement of the withdrawal of Chinese forces from North Korea with banner headlines and flashing editorials attacking the United Nations allies.

Premier Chou En-lai and Korean Premier Kim Il Sung announced the withdrawal in a joint statement issued Wednesday in Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

They said all the Chinese "people's volunteers" fought against the UN in the Korean war will be withdrawn from North Korea this year, and called on the United States to take its troops out of South Korea.

The People's Daily, newspaper of the Communist party, devotes the entire issue to this news. It claims that troops of some countries under UN command intended to withdraw from Korea.

"Now, if the United States still insists on maintaining troops in Korea and refuses to leave, it is the crystal clear to all the world that the Americans are deliberately impeding the peaceful unification of Korea."

The newspaper of this city's branch of the Communist party, the Peiping Daily, says the U.S. is attempting to wreck Chinese-North Korean peace efforts by trying to stage a "defection" of South Korean airliner to North Korea.

The Peiping Daily says other planes also have "defected" to the North Korean side, but the U.S. seized on this particular incident to "escape from its encirclement" and protect the Chinese peace moves.

The UN command claims Red MIGs forced the DC-3 to fly north.

Milton Berl Is Outstanding In Straight Dramatic Role

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Milton Berle gave an outstanding performance in a straight dramatic role on Wednesday evening right when he played the lead in Material Witness on NBC-TV.

A suspenseful drama by Henry Denker on Kraft Theatre cast Berle in the role of a man whose placid life suddenly was shattered after he became the only witness to a gangland murder.

There were excellent performances by Richard Kiley, Nancy Marchand and Tim Hovey in the well-produced drama. Sound psychologically, Material Witness developed as absorbing theme without the melodramatic gimmicks that mar so many TV, "suspense" dramas.

It is more than a year since the home audience has seen Berle as a comedian, and never before has it seen him as a straight dramatic actor.

FINE RESTRAINT

The fine restraint and authority he demonstrated in the dramatic performance were memorable.

Berle has suffered from the curse of all television comics—over-exposure. But interestingly, many TV comedians who have endured this fate have demonstrated great talent as straight actors. Ed Wynne, Jackie Gleason, Art Carney, Eddie Cantor—the list of comedians who are basically fine actors is long. Berle's performance adds his name to the distinguished roster.

Perhaps what every first-rate TV comedian needs to restore the interest of his audience is a good dramatic role.

Cowboy B. Steele Represents Middle Period of Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's a safe bet that Bob Steele has led and been chased by more ponies than any other westerner ever. Steele represents the middle period of the western movie, when Hollywood ground out dozens of low - budget horse operas by the yearly to satisfy the public's craving for outdoor adventure. He started in films when he was 14, starred in 180 westerns, has appeared in dozens of others.

Now, still trim and handsome at 51, he is enjoying new activity, thanks to television. The old Bob Steele westerns have been played and replayed on the home screens, creating a new generation of fans for him. And he's playing roles in the new crop of adult westerns, the latest being as a killer in The Californians.

"Oh, we really turned them out in the old days," said Bob. "I did eight western features a year. For two years, I did two series, making 16 a year.

FAST WORKERS

"In the silent days and even in the early talkies, we could grind out a feature in 6 to 8 eight days for $18,000 to $20,000. Once I did two five - reel features in five days. For that would get $3,000 to $5,000, which wasn't bad considering the times."

He admitted that the quality of the films was not of the best. "We didn't have time to be subtle. We were working too fast; 90 per cent of the pictures were chases or some form of action. The plots were variations of the same theme — the settlers vs. the cattlemen, sheep owners vs. cattlemen, water rights, fences vs. the rustlers, desperadoes, etc."

Working and reworking the same lode, the program western prospered in the silent and talkie period. Besides Bob Steele, favorites included Tom Mix, Buck Jones, Ken Maynard, Hoot Gibson, Tim McCoy, Johnny Mack Brown, William Boyd, Tom Tyler, George O'Brien, Tim Holt, Charles Starrett.

Then came the period of the singing cowboy, which pained Bob started in films he was most of the 1940s.

PAUSE FOR A SONG

"We all thought it couldn't last," said Steele. "It did not make sense; the whole action stopped while the hero played a guitar and sang a song."

But the warbling cowhands led first by Gene Autry and then Roy Rogers, dominated the western field until after the war.

Unlike some old - timers, Bob has good words to say for the new crop of gun slingers: "They have much better scripts than we had, and they're remarkably good on the draw. Their horse riding is another matter, but fortunately, they don't have to do much."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, February 20

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—What appears to be a headache since you want to get off to exciting new ventures and pleasures can easily be eliminated by planning your time wisely. Do important things only, then off you go. P.M. wonderful for new kind of fun.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—While experts do not agree with your plans for plunging into some expensive venture, you may decide today to go ahead with it anyway. Be sure to use your mind, not your emotions. P. M. be happily engaged.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Here is a day that, if you permit your natural inclination for having a great, good time, could cause much worry later and attract thoughts of visiting, etc., out of your head. Tonight, have a little trip with friend and be happy.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)—If you plan your work more efficiently today, you can clear it up in a very short time and then dash off to some delightful place, do things that uplift your soul and increase mind-power. P. M. swell on fun alone.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—During A. M. hours do not plan any new investments, etc., but concentrate on getting your credit up higher, holdings well organized and safely adjusted, security records in order, etc. P.M. are better psychology on mats.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Morning could be fraught with worry over some pending agreement between a close tie and a stranger. See that the two are kept out of each other's way. P.M. excellent for more efficient, important work being done.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—The labors that must be performed today will necessarily keep you confined, so make up your mind to clear them up and get them out of the way. Tonight, have a little trip with friend and be happy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—That lovely smile of yours today can help your fellow man no end and so use it often. Also, it will help tide you over a rather difficult money situation. P.M. ideal for planning the coming weeks ahead very cleverly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—It is hard for you to know why close family ties are in the mood they are in, take the attitudes they do. Don't try to figure them out. Do some gardening, other pleasant simple chores.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Be particularly careful on the road today, driving, etc., and do not criticize others and get them upset. Kindness and gentility will pay large dividends today. Tonight, excellent for conference with important personage.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—It would be fatal to spend your hard-earned savings today. Spend time instead figuring ways of increasing same and in safe fashion. Economy will bring wonderful ideas. P. M. a dear friend will make the evening delightful for you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—It seems to you that someone in a political life is giving you quite a cleaning, or you want to strike out at somebody else in power. Relax, stick to your knitting. P.M. make wiser time schedule, plan better investments.

If your child is born today ... The wonderful child born this day is the type who, despite the rather harsh rebuffs and vicissitudes of life which he or she will have to meet, can still rise above them and do a very great deal. Hence, do not try to shield your youngster too much in childhood. Be your best to give your progeny a fine education, and the latter years will then be full of abundance and serene happiness.

Marketing Act Change Sought

TORONTO (CP) — A bill permitting adoption of a marketing plan with approval of 60 per cent of those voting was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Ross Whicher (L—Brant).

The bill is similar to one introduced Feb. 5 by CCF Leader Donald MacDonald.

Both would set aside the requirement of the Farm Products Marketing Act that adoption of a plan needs a majority of those eligible to vote, not those voting.

UAW MAKES PLANS

DETROIT (CP) — Representatives of 95,000 Chrysler, workers will meet here today to put finishing touches on United Auto Workers' contract demands for 1958. One of the chief topics will be work standards, which have caused strike threats against Dodge and Chrysler plants.

INQUIRY OPENS

HALIFAX (CP) — The first officer of the hydrographic ship Baffin which grounded on the south coast of Nova Scotia last summer said Tuesday he issued four warnings before the ship crunched on the rock shelf. Sydney Baggs was one of three witnesses testifying at the opening session of a public inquiry into the grounding of the $40,000,000 ship.

IT'S JUST PLAIN CHILLY EVERYWHERE

The below-normal temperatures that of Canada is experiencing now will continue for three weeks, says the weatherman as he prepares his long-range charts. Coldest area will be that from James Bay to Toronto and from Montreal to Port Arthur. Snowfall, however, is expected to be light.

SANTA IN FEBRUARY?

When Eskimo sculptor Charlie Arnaltok visited the Winnipeg home of Professor and Mrs. George Swinton, their four-year-old twins figured he should be Santa Claus. Here, Moira (left) and Neida try a false beard on Arnaltok, who lives at Povungnituk on the west shore of Hudson Bay, 1700 miles northeast of Winnipeg. Harris States Many of Works Projects Old

HAMILTON (CP) — Walter Harris, Ontario Liberal finance minister, said Wednesday night many of the projects listed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in his public works program were included in estimates laid by himself last year.

He told a Hamilton East Liberal-Labor meeting:

"If the prime minister is trying to suggest this is something new, it is the grossest fraud perpetrated by a government of Canada."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has announced plans to spend $1,183,000,000 in public works and departmental projects during the 1958 calendar year. The totals include protected expenditures for new construction and maintenance, alteration and repair of existing works.

Mr. Harris said he has not carefully examined the program but he believes a great deal of figures were included in a blue book he tabled in the estimates.

William Jones, a lawyer, and was nominated to contest the riding.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was talking and arguing with Pudy Simkins about different things such as whether we would be the first to volunteer to be passengers on the first rocket to the moon if the first one came back alive, right, and we saw Dopey Burke Judge coming up eating a big apple, and I said, Hay, let's pretend we think he's a grate king and we're 2 of his subjects with a petition asking for a bite.

Which we started to do, me saying, Hay Dopey, how would you like to be a king?

I wouldn't mind if the crown didn't hurt so heavy, Shorty said, and Pudy said, You'd make a swell king, Dopey. Let's play that's what you are, and we're nothing but your subjects. Greetings, your majesty, how are your royal feelings today? he said.

Okay, subject, Shorty said, and he kept on taking bites out of his apple, and I said, We're glad to hear it, your highness, because you're the swellest king we ever had, and we want you to stay healthy and alive so you can keep on ordering us to do your royal bidding.

Thanks, subject, Shorty said, and he started to bite faster bites, and Pudy said, Hay, your royal majesty, we've got a petition here asking your royal kindness for a few bites out of your royal apple.

Way didn't you say so before there wasn't anything left but the royal core? Shorty said.

Which there was, after he hurry up took more quick bites, and his subjects changed the subject by accusing him of being a miser instead of a king.

Which he is.

Filters Replace 125 Million Pounds Of Tobacco in Cigarets in 3 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) —, Government tobacco experts see a possible pain for American tobacco growers in a congressional committee's criticism of filter-tip cigaret advertising.

They say it could help stem the swing toward filter types and open the way to use of more tobacco in each cigaret.

The House of Representatives government operations committee Wednesday adopted a report charging that filter-tip cigarets offer no more health protection than ordinary cigarets, and called the United States federal trade commission to crack down on what it called misleading and deceptive advertising of the filter tip.

The agriculture department's marketing service estimated the filter tip cigarets has replaced upwards of 125,000,000 pounds of tobacco during the last three years. This tobacco would have brought growers almost $70,000,000.

It noted also that the length of filters in some cigarets has been increased, causing a further reduction in tobacco use.

Joseph R. Williams, director of the tobacco branch of the department's commodity stabilization service, said there is increased evidence that the increase in the demand for the filter tip is slackening.

Commenting on the accusations against filter tips were Lewis Gruber, president of P. Lorillard Company, and Bowman Gray, president of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco.

Said Gruber: "We attach no significance to the measurable quantity of solids (tars) and nicotines reported to have been found in the smoke of cigarets."

Acceptance of Tax Division Called Political Expediency

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal Opposition processed its assault on the government in the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

And Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver served notice he intends to press the issue of Hydro chairman James Duncan's trip to Britain with the Canadian trade mission.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the premier had demanded an extra $100,000,000 in tax money when a Liberal government was at Ottawa but accepted $22,000,000 from the new Progressive Conservative government.

"He chose political expediency rather than principle, he perverted the machinations of the Conservative party to the little people of Ontario."

Liberal Leader Oliver filed a question with the clerk demanding full particulars — including who paid the costs of radio speeches by Mr. Duncan after the return of the trade mission.

Last week Premier Frost rejected the Liberal leader's demand for Mr. Duncan's resignation on the ground he became a political partisan by defending federal trade policies.

Mr. Wintermeyer, the Liberal financial critic, also called for suspension of beer licences in speeding cases and suggested granting of mortgages through provincial savings offices.

He said Connecticut reduced its annual traffic toll to 250 from 350 after imposing 30-day licence suspensions for speeding.

Trapped in Ice-Hut, Find it Only Boring

Enough ice - fishing for a lifetime was experienced but not enjoyed by this foursome, Ken Kaws, Harvey Clarke, Harold Palmer and Bill Henderson of Orangeville, Ont. They were marooned in an ice hut on Lake Simcoe for 47 hours in the worst storm of the season. With a surplus of fuel for heat and plenty of food in addition to the fish they caught, they were at no time in danger. But they were bored almost to the point of trying to reach shore in spite of the storm.

A great contribution to low-cost housing would be made, he said, if the government made contracts with savings-office investors providing for mortgages. Investors would get higher interest rates and home - builders would get mortgages for lower rates than those being charged by banks.

Oil Import Curb Favor to Canada Novel U.S. View

Prevented Price Break Say American Officials

WASHINGTON (CP) — U. S. officials take the view that the United States actually may have done Canada a favor by restricting imports of Canadian oil on the west coast.

That view isn't spelled out in the discussions which started Thursday in Ottawa and Washington, in which the U. S. rejected Canada's protest over the restrictions, but it does form part of the background thinking that went into the American decision to include Canadian fuel in the oil curb.

This, as U. S. officials explained it here Thursday night, is the Eisenhower administration's reasoning on the oil curb:

Foreign oil, including crude from the Alberta oilfields, was pouring into the U. S. west coast at an excessive rate and adding 100,000 barrels a day to west coast inventories. Had the imports continued, they would have produced a break which otherwise would be spread into Canada, causing greater harm to Alberta producers if they will experience as a result of the restriction on imports.

WORRY TWO WAYS

This argument, of course, also has its domestic side. American officials feared that a price break would deter many millions of dollars of oil business, discourage domestic oil exploration and undercut the long-term capacity to produce oil in the event of war.

The note said the U. S. feels the restrictions will have "relatively little impact" on imports from Canada. Officials here said they estimated the curbs would reduce by only 4,000 to 5,000 barrels a day the amount of Canadian oil U. S. west coast importers had planned to take from Canada in the first half of 1958.

They said they foresaw a reduction from the 64,000 barrels from the 62,400 barrels a day which the importers had scheduled for that period and suggested the importers might decide to cut from other countries and leave the Canadian supply untouched.

Under the program, importers have been requested by President Eisenhower voluntarily to cut their import from all sources—the Middle East, Asia and Venezuela as well as Canada—by 15 per cent. While the curbs are voluntary, there is the implied threat of government-enforced quotas if the importers do not comply.

A spokesman indicated the Eisenhower administration feared that it would offend Venezuela and the strategically - important Middle East nations if it provided a specific exemption for Canadian oil.

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States has announced it will not exempt Canada from new restrictions on import of oil.

In a note to the Canadian government it insisted the restrictions are necessary and said it could not discriminate in favor of countries or companies.

The note, handed Wednesday to Canadian Ambassador Norman Robertson in Washington and made public here Thursday, was the reply to a Canadian protest note delivered to Washington Jan. 31.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said the government is "naturally disappointed" that restrictions applying to Canadian oil have been limited.

The American note, however, said Canada's views will be further considered after figures are available on U.S. import levels for the second quarter of 1958.

President Eisenhower last Christmas Eve asked the American petroleum industry to cut voluntarily its oil imports by 15 per cent, effective at once, unless said Canada could find no justification for the exemption of oil entering from Canada.

In his statement Thursday Mr. Fleming said he understands U.S. reluctance to discriminate in favor of particular countries or companies.

However, the American restriction was ordered on the grounds of defence, and "the action appears to be inconsistent" with assurances given by the government to be contrary to the principles of economic co-operation on defence matters formally agreed between the two countries in 1950 and still in full effect, the finance minister said.

The U.S. said it considers that strong petroleum industries in both countries contribute greatly to the support of defence efforts with which the two countries are concerned.

The note said the American government recognizes the importance of maintaining a vigorous U.S. petroleum industry engaged in continuing search and production and development effort.

The Canadian protest said such artificial restriction of markets could be held to have a "direct" damaging impact on the search for additional oil in Western Canada which is of "considerable" strategic importance to the U.S."

Winnie Shows Very Definite Improvement

ROQUEBRUNE CAP MARTIN, France (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill's physician today reported "a very definite improvement" in his condition.

The daily medical bulletin this afternoon said there are signs that the 83-year-old statesman's pneumonia is resolving. It added that his progress is so far satisfactory.

Earlier he was reported to have spent "rather a quiet night."

PEARSON CLAIMS PRIME MINISTER NOT BEING FRANK

Gets Big Receptions At Kitchener, Guelph

KITCHENER (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says Prime Minister Diefenbaker is not being "frank and honest" with the Canadian people.

The Liberal leader, who got rousing receptions at rallies here and at Guelph, Thursday night, repeated charges as he enumerated some of the items in Mr. Diefenbaker's $1,185,000,000 works program to aid the unemployed.

Such items as the trans-Canada highway, maintenance of winter ports, the Welland and the St. Lawrence seaway could hardly be considered as something new. How could they be considered as new measures to aid the jobless?

"In fact, they have been going on for years. A lot of projects have, in fact, been initiated by the Liberal government," How could they be considered "emergency measures?"

ATTACKS 'FLEXING'

Mr. Pearson's Kitchener rally before some 700 supporters in a well-filled auditorium was the first attack at Mr. Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Donald Fleming. Mr. Fleming had been speaking before an audience of about 900 in Guelph at 8:30 p.m. EST to hear him.

He referred to statements made at a Kitchener rally by External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith. The minister was reported to have stated that Mr. Pearson was seeking a mandate on the basis that the Liberal opposition would bring peace to the world.

This Mr. Pearson denied.

"I never said such a thing. I don't believe for a minute that Canada can buy peace," he said.

But what the voters will have to decide in election day, he added, is what party can do the most to prevent a devastating "third and last" world war.

SURE WILL CHANGE

He was sure Canadians who voted on election day last June 10 "are sure" what seemed like very good reasons at the time will change their minds March 31 and bring the Liberals back into power with a majority, unimpeded through tax cuts and other emergency measures.

At Kitchener he toured three bakery industries, gave a television interview and dropped into the local press club where his remarks to newsmen were to be viewed.

He was told by A. W. Hopton, general manager of the Dominion Rubber Company, that some $5,000,000 worth of tires is unsold in the company's warehouse.

"That's awful" the party leader exclaimed.

"We are producing about 2,000 tires a day and we are not selling." Mr. Hopton said. "We will operate for only one shift on election on March 31, that we'll sell 2,000 more than we make."

HOPES FOR BEST

"I certainly hope that is so," Mr. Pearson replied with a smile. Dominion is working at only 75 per cent of capacity employing about 1,250 workers. Six months ago it employed 1,600.

Mr. Hopton remarked that he himself had worked in a rubber plant at nearby Guelph some 40 years ago.

He wrapped tires in paper and played ball with the old Parkbridge Company baseball team.

Snowbound New York Seeks Help To Rescue Cold, Sick and Hungry

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The entire state of New York was under an emergency basis today following an appeal by Governor Averell Harriman for federal aid for the cold, hungry and sick stranded across snowbound highways.

The weather jigsaw to co-operate—sick-call, food and fuel—proceed and temperatures crept up into the 20s.

Recovery of an asphyxiated family of five on a farm home in North Creek, Warren County, sent the state's death toll in last weekend's storm up to 46.

Harriman asked for helicopters for food drops and for army and navy forces to move snow-removal equipment.

Many people "are in desperate condition," he said. "Their fuel and food supplies are near exhaustion and medical help is needed for farm animals. All state and federal snow removal equipment is being used."

Meanwhile, isolated families were told by radio to stamp distress signals in the snow to attract attention from planes flying over today.

The Great Lakes region, the Red Cross, the air force and police teamed to explain a gigantic rescue effort. Drifts were reported piled to the second-storey windows in many homes.

A helicopter pilot who dropped supplies to a farm near Rochester Thursday said "people scrambled out of their houses like ants and swarmed over the fields waving and knees—and ripped open the packages before I got off the spot."

New York and other parts of the snow - covered northeast states also were warned by the weather bureau to brace for a potential flood situation, but no immediate threat. A sudden thaw, with widespread rains, could raise rivers and streams dangerously.

It was freezing again this morning in northern state, with temperatures in the 20s in parts of Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Special Legislature Session Debates Aid to Unemployed

TORONTO (CP) — A majority debate broke out in the Ontario legislature Thursday over Premier Frost's $5,000,000 plan to combat unemployment.

The House went into special session after the premier made a statement clarifying the plan by 70 per cent of labor costs in special municipal works projects up to May 31.

Mr. Frost said major construction will not be included in the basis for grants, nor will work done by contractors. Park improvements and drainage projects were the types of projects considered.

"The other day the premier talked about bridges, roads and sewers," said Liberal Leader Walter Pitman. "Let's have a proposition," he said, "not a proposal."

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver.

Mr. Frost also emphasized the grants would be paid only for work done by unemployed persons receiving unemployment insurance or persons whose insurance benefits are supplemented by relief.

Hans Wilhelm (Lc-Bruce) had made a "ridiculous" claim in saying municipalities would have to pay $90,000 to take advantage of the $5,000,000 plan. Toronto had applied for grants for 250 jobs with materials amount-

Need 'Reasonable Earnings' To Maintain Rail Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Continued employment of the railways' labor force can be achieved only through "just and reasonable" earnings by the companies, the railways said Thursday to the Canadian Transport Commission move to have the ministers kill the latest freight rate increase.

A Railway Association brief filed with the cabinet a written reply to earlier submissions by eight provinces which unsuccessfully opposed the rise had led to the commission's decision March 1 a 3.6-per-cent rate boost awarded by the board of transport commissioners Dec. 27.

The written submissions of the railways said the increase is needed to be followed later by a cabinet hearing of the opponents. Officials here said Thursday that when this has been set, and it appeared likely the March 1 suspension date would be extended.

The railways said Thursday freight rates in Canada are "stifled by fair" to provide the level of net rail income which they said is necessary to keep the CPR, "yardstick" line in rate-setting.

"Delay in implementing the rates authorized by the board in the final Dec. (P) judgment," the carriers said, "imposes a further severe handicap on the railway of Canada and seriously impedes the railways in their efforts to adapt to the changes in Canada the services which by law they are obliged to supply in the interests of the economy of Canada."

The railways took issue with the main provincial contention that, in awarding the $15,000,000-a-year increase, the board was mistaken in charging against freight rates the CPR's dispositions into a deferred income tax fund. The railways argued the board's $500,000 a year for the yardstick line.

The railways said that the provinces, in declaring that the CPR has enough money, had alleged wrongful treatment of the income tax, "have a complete misunderstanding of the findings of the board."

The railways' estimate of a net rail income of Canadian Pacific involves consideration of the basis of all rail revenues and all rail expenses, of which income tax is only one item." the companies declared.

Candidates Search Through Wind and Snow for Votes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Should Canadians support a third party in the March 31 federal election? Here are the views on the Progressive Conservatives or Liberals?

Works Minister Howard Green says no, there isn't room for more than two parties in Canada's political system. CCF leader M. J. Coldwell says not because his party has been the only "really effective voice of the people" in Parliament.

It was all part of the continuing search for votes in wind and snow for votes at the end of next month.

Thursday produced plenty of snow for Prime Minister Diefenbaker as he made a quick trip to visit to Newfoundland while Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson had to be content with a few members in southwestern Ontario.

Mr. Coldwell discussed his party's contribution to Canadian politics as he spoke to a CCF rally in the constituency of Rosetown-Biggar. He moves into Saskatchewan Friday night.

The Socialist leader said credit for any gains won for Canadians "must go to the CCF-Labor group in the House." Parliament must go to the fact the CCF party has consistently maintained that Canada faces a "decade of decision" and has offered a real efficient two-party system of federal government.

The Conservative minister referred to the CCF and Social Credit parties as "niggling" politicities.

"There is no room for them under the British system of government," he said.

A blizzard closed in on Gander airport Thursday night minutes before Diefenbaker's plane landed from St. John's. The

Diefenbaker Hits Export of Iron Ore

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP)—John Diefenbaker says the Liberals can't have it both ways on whether he should have called an election this winter.

Speaking here Thursday night the prime minister replied to Liberal charges that he had run away from the responsibilities of governing by calling the election.

The Progressive Conservative leader said that in the last Parliament the Liberals claimed repeatedly that the Conservatives "didn't put forward."

"Now they're saying we should have stayed there and governed the country without seeking recourse to the people."

Mr. Diefenbaker also returned strongly to his promise of encouragement for secondary industrial processing in Canada of natural resources.

"TRUE ONLY" ONE

It was "the only policy that could be justified" in the light of the country's lack of resources, he said.

If Canadian voters don't want that policy, he said bluntly, they will have an opportunity to vote against it March 31.

About 200 persons turned out for his speech during a blizzard first of the season—that dumped more than 12 inches of new snow on this area.

This papermaking town is in the province of Newfoundland, but nearby Windsor, together have a population of 5,000 and is the biggest centre in Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador, a huge constituency that extends from Labrador coast.

The election closed in on Gander airport, 60 miles east, minutes after the crowded North Star tourist aircraft carrying the prime minister landed from St. John's. He continued his campaign in a special three-car train.

Today Mr. Diefenbaker will address a Progressive Conservative meeting in Botwood, visit to Botwood, 20 miles east of here, before flying back to Central Canada. His next major engagement is Saturday night at Bonavista.

EMPHASIS ON IRON

His talk of processing of natural resources put special emphasis on the huge Ungava area iron ore deposits. He said that Canada's iron ore, now mined annually will be shipped from there to the United States "there" to be manufactured into jobs."

The Conservative party's national campaign committee disclaimed "at building a nation of 50,000,000 people within the lifetime of many of you."

It would be carried out by co-operation of all three provinces, he said — charge legislation to put Canadian investment money on a more equal footing with foreign capital, and by programs of conservation and development.

"I ask you to catch the vision of the great opportunities open to us as Canadians."

Award Contract For 15 Houses At Napanee

OTTAWA (CP) — A $143,344 government contract has been awarded to Ralph Henderson of Stratford for construction of 15 new houses at Napanee, it was announced Thursday.

The three-bedroom houses and three two-bedroom units will be built in the Strathcona Park subdivision of Park Lawn at Napanee. Twenty-one housing units are completed in the first phase of the project.

The federal government is to pay 75 per cent of the cost of the houses and the provincial government 25 per cent.

Flare And Lights Seen In Atlantic As Plane Is Missing

RCAF Joins in Search For U.S. Radar Craft

HALIFAX (CP) — A red flare and small lights were sighted Thursday night by planes searching for a missing U.S. Navy four-engine Constellation with 22 men aboard, a U.S. Navy spokesman at Argentia, Nfld., said today.

He said the search now is concentrated in an area about 600 miles southeast of Newfoundland where the plane disappeared on a North Atlantic radar patrol ferry flight.

A red flare was sighted by the U.S. coast guard cutter Yakatat at about 400 miles north of the plane's last reported position. Later a U.S. Air Force plane saw small lights on the surface about 150 miles north of where the flare was seen.

The U.S. Navy carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, a cruiser and 16 destroyers have been diverted to the search area.

The Argentia weather office said waves were 15 feet high in the area. There was no flare was sighted. The search was being hampered by low clouds and rain and snow.

The navy revised its count on the number of men aboard the plane to 22 instead of 23 as reported earlier.

The missing jet-packed aircraft, belonging to the distant early warning squadron which operates from nearby Windsor, together have a population of 5,000 and is the biggest centre in Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador, a huge constituency that extends from the Labrador coast.

The election closed in on Gander airport, 60 miles east, minutes after the crowded North Star tourist aircraft carrying the prime minister landed from St. John's. He continued his campaign in a special three-car train.

Beck Stands in Shaken Disbelief At 15-Year Term for $1,900 Theft

SEATTLE (AP) — Podgy Daverstein his prison time to two years.

"I am no more guilty than anyone in this courthouse," said Beck after he was sentenced.

The recently deposed labor leader leaned his elbows against a long fight in the courts to escape the prison sentence.

"I am sure that in due time justice will prevail," he said.

Beck's lawyer said they would appeal the conviction, and Beck remained free on $3,000 bail.

Superior Court Judge George H. Revelle sentenced him to 15 years for grand larceny and misappropriation of funds from the sale of a union-owned car.

Beck's wife, Dave, also had sentence deferred earlier in the day on two counts of grand larceny for misappropriating $4,650 from the sale of two union cars.

A twitching muscle was the only movement from the face of Dave Beck before when Judge Revelle told him:

"You are dealing with a relatively small amount of money in your case, but you have done what you have done. If I were in such a position of trust and had committed such a crime myself I would expect to answer for it in the same manner consistent with society permits."

Judge Revelle and prosecutor Charles O. Carroll both said they would recommend to the state board of prison terms and paroles, which sets minimum sentences, that Beck, 63, serve at least three years less time off for good behavior, which could

Union Demands 'Startle' CNR; Adjourn Parley

MONTREAL (CP) — A company request was found unacceptable by union officials termed "startling" as negotiations for a new collective agreement began Thursday between Canadian National Railways and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC).

The meeting adjourned until Feb. 25 after the brotherhood turned down a CNR request to negotiate the contentious firemen issue and placed a demand for an 18-per-cent wage increase for 9,000 members.

The wage increase headed a list of demands, which included employing firemen on specialized rail liners. The existing contract expires March 31.

A statement issued by the CNR following the meeting said the union's demands were a "startling departure" from the policy "made known to us for the first time during this morning's discussions."

"The union informed us that there was no flexibility in regard to our proposal to them," the statement said. "The (CNR) brotherhood) insisted that firemen are still necessary in all classes of service."

The CNR and the Canadian Pacific Railway seek the right to remove firemen from freight and yard diesel locomotives. Negotiations are also between the brotherhood and the CPR are deadlocked.

"In its demands on the CNR the brotherhood asked that the 8-per-cent increase date from April 1, 1958.

A railway spokesman said firemen earn $16 to $18 a day depending on mileage, hours of work and the type of equipment they serve on.

The brotherhood's other demands included:

1. Doubling the $8.50 from $4.25 the railway's monthly payment to firemen in lieu of a health and welfare plan.

2. Another paid statutory holiday—Victoria Day—making the total seven.

300 Students of High Schools Visit Entomology Laboratory

Three hundred students from Quinte Secondary School, BCVS and St. Michael's Academy toured the Dominion Entomology Laboratory Thursday afternoon.

Divided into groups of 30 or 40, the students were escorted through the recently-built federal building by members of the laboratory staff. Keen interest was shown by the visitors in the various departments, technicians and scientists were besieged with a barrage of questions by the students.

The tour was arranged with the co-operation of Dr. B. P. Beirne, in charge of the laboratory, who remarked that although tours through the building are not encouraged, he was happy to see so many young people interested in this aspect of science.

Arriving by bus, private car and on foot, the army of students were shown a preliminary exhibit in the seminar room on the top floor of the building. Here they learned that insect pests and weeds cause millions of dollars of damage to Canadian agriculture and forestry every year. Damage is reduced or checked by insecticides, weed killers or by biological control. Biology is increasing and encouraging beneficial insects and diseases — the parasites, predators and disease-organisms that attack and ultimately help to keep down pests.

"The Entomology Laboratory in Belleville is a product of the federal Department of Agriculture and is the centre for biological control research in the whole of Canada. It is the largest lab of its kind in the world — and the only one in Canada," the guides told the visitors.

Over 70 men and women are employed at the laboratory, about 25 of whom are qualified scientists. In addition, about 20 high school and university students are employed every summer to assist the scientists.

EFFECTS ON PESTS

After being shown in simplified form the work and functions of the laboratory, the students moved into another room where Drs. R. L. Edwards and T. Burnett told them of the effects of the parasites on pests. Any one kind of insect may be attacked by from some and in some places, but rare in others. Such changes in numbers depend on the proportions that are killed by weather, disease, parasites, etc.

Exhibit showed students a species of beneficial wasp searching for a host in this case a greenhouse whitefly) on a tomato leaf. There were some diagrams of the life-histories of the two insects, results of experiments and effects of attack by one on the other, and the relationship between beneficial insects and pests.

Dr. D. A. Chant and Mrs. T. Burnett are located in the insect taxonomy room. A scientist must know the correct name of an insect he is studying so that he can find out all he can already known about it and so that he can inform other workers of the results of his researches. The students learned that there are over 100,000 species of insects in Canada and over 300,000 still to be discovered. They learned the basis of the classification and identification of insects. A demonstration showed how insects are classified and named, with examples being shown of the different groups of insects.

Every part of every living organism consists of countless number of microscopic units called cells, the students were told by Dr. Joan Bronskill and Mr. T. Sweetman in the insect embryology and histology room. Insect embryology is the study of how a single cell develops into a many-celled insect, and histology is the study of the cells of the different organs.

Drs. Barker and H. L. House told the group that investigations are in progress on how insects are needed by insects for life, growth and reproduction and on what happens to these substances inside the insects. Results show the most suitable food for rearing beneficial insects, foods that overcome pest species and those make them more vulnerable to attack by beneficial insects and diseases. The results also show how poisons affect insects.

By means of an exhibit, G. F. Maybee showed how beneficial insects are reared from abroad, handled and reared under quarantine conditions. Here the students had opportunities to peer into microscopes and to see captive, insects at work comfortably in wire mesh cages.

Also in the quarantine area of the laboratory, Dr. A. P. Arthur stated that most insects are in active stages of their life-histories only in summer. A demonstration showed how insects are reared on special foods and the special conditions of temperature and moisture stages are available for study by scientists at all times of the year.

Research on how parasites find the insects they attack is being carried on by Lloyd G. Monteith. They are attracted to pests by color and shape, movements and odors. An exhibit illustrated how these stimuli are identified and used.

When insects are made radioactive their movements can be followed by means of a geiger counter, explained D. F. Riordan. Insects that eat radioactive insects become radioactive themselves, so that by use of geiger counters scientists can discover what insects are beneficial because they attack pest species. A demonstration was used to illustrate his remarks.

In the basement of the laboratory, George Wishart is studying the habits of sounds on insects. A number of male mosquitos were attracted to the humming ring of a tuning fork and to the almost inaudible sound produced by a signal generator. He explained that many insects can hear sounds, especially ultrasonic that are beyond the range of human hearing. Experiments are in progress to determine what may attract insects to traps, sounds that may repel insects and thus prevent them from biting man or attacking crops, and sounds that may kill insects. The tour was arranged an interesting display of photographs and laboratory apparatus used in these experiments. The students were able to hear the various recordings of the sounds made by some insects.

Murray Laing, biology of "trained" ants attracted the students like bees to honey. Mr. Laing has a quantity of several hundreds of ants, many of which are intelligent enough to know that in order to get something to eat, they must leave their "city" through a narrow passage and cross a narrow bridge to an island of sand. These insects carry their dead to unfrequented spots in the colony and, in effect, build graveyards.

The tour was arranged so that students would get a glimpse of one branch of Canadian science.

'Act of Death' By Hypnotist Quite Thrilling

How good are your teeth? Do you think they could stop a bullet fired at close range?

Well Dr. Morton Carson, billed as the world's foremost hypnotist, gave a demonstration of his dental prowess when he stopped a marksman's .22 calibre bullet fired at his pearly white teeth by pretty Hollywood starlet, Sabrina.

His "Act of Death" was the main attraction of the hour and a half "command performance" show presented Thursday night at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium. The show was sponsored by the Belleville Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion.

A small crowd, little more than half filling the auditorium, turned out to witness the variety show, which included exotic dancer, Sabrina, and rock and roll singer, Big Richard, as well as audience participation by Dr. Carson's hypnotic demonstrations.

At the beginning of the show, a local girl, who "slept" all day (with the aid of hypnotism) in a local store, was on stage, was awakened by Dr. Carson.

Then followed an impersonation of the late Al Jolson by Big Richard, who sang "Mammy" as Dr. Carson "hypnotized" the audience into thinking they were singing the song

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market dipped in the fastest morning trading in seven sessions.

All major indexes were down with industrials leading off more than three-quarter of a point. Base metals and western oils each lost one-half point and golds were off one-quarter of a point. The 11 a.m. index was 178.7 on 29 shares compared with Thursday's 626,000 at the same time. Western oils showed little life in action to Thursday's announcement that the U.S. has removed to lift import restrictions on Canadian oil. Prices in this section drifted lower from the start in heavy selling. Home Oil B, Triad and Canadian Atlantic were narrower losers in index groups.

Industrials had a number of moderate losers scattered through the list but a wide majority of index stocks lost ground. Biggest loss was recorded by Trans Mountain Pipe Line, down two points to 41%. Brokers said no statement or news item might have been the reason for the loss.

Base metals were dowd fractionally with the exception of Noranda, which gained ¼ at 63. Algom Uranium dropped 1% more than it recorded by Denison which settled at 13¾. Lowerpriced mines were down in a 15 point range but most changes were 10 cents or less.

Woman Falls Seven Feet Into Cistern

PICTON — A fall into a cistern at Bloomfield United Church proved a shock to Mrs. Arthur Moore, wife of the village rector. With other ladies she was preparing for a banquet. She was carrying a tray of silver and did not notice that the trap door over the cistern had been left open. She fell seven feet and landed in three feet of water. Fortunately she did not hit her head in falling through the door which is 30 x 18 inches. Her husband rushed to her aid but man had to be called to help lift her out. She suffered little ill effects as a result of her experience.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — All classes of slaughter cattle sold sharply higher with gains of fully $1 a hundredweight and more, at the Ontario Public Stockyards this week. Veal calves gained fully $4 and more a hundredweight higher and sheep and lamb prices were unchanged.

Sub-acro weather, high winds and blizzard conditions held receipts down to a bare minimum for the first three market days of the week. These factors coupled with liberal buying orders caused heifers and steers to gain fully $1 and more a hundredweight higher. Near the close heavy and rough medium steers appeared in numbers too numerous for the trade to absorb at the high price levels resulting in a price ease on these kinds. All other cattle and grades held steady.

Cattle receipts were some 1,200 head fewer than last week and 1,200 head fewer than the same week a year ago, 2967. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 86 head, a decline of 47 head from last week. Two carloads were shipped to eastern Canadian slaughterers and there were no exports to the United States.

Prices:

James Hedges 'Blacked Out' On Way Home

PICTON — Suffering an injury while working in the furniture room at the armouries in the early morning hours, James Hedges, 61, collapsed in the snow while attempting to reach his home across the street. When found by a neighbor who heard a cry, Hedges was unconscious and his clothes were frozen stiff in zero temperature. His son, James and daughter Mollie assisted in getting him to the hospital. His legs and hands were badly frozen and attempts are being made to save them. His face was badly frost-bitten.

It is believed Hedges fell and cut his head while working on a broken water pipe and that on the way home he blacked out.

Farmers Agree On Prices Set For Corn, Peas

PICTON — Prince Edward County farmers today expressed satisfaction with prices and terms of contract reached by canners and growers for sweet corn and tomatoes for processing.

Prices and terms of contract for green peas are still subject to arbitration. The processors felt that a substantial increase in price was necessary, while growers stress that in view of the general production costs they could not accept lower prices.

Prices set for tomatoes and corn are the same as those paid in 1957 with $40 per ton for tomatoes grade and $25.50 for number two grade. Both are subject to $30 per ton floor price remains in effect for tomatoes.

Tenders Called For 58-Bed New Hospital

PICTON — Tenders were called today for a new 58-bed Prince Edward County Hospital at Picton.

This action follows discussion at the annual meeting of the hospital's members voted in favor of calling for tenders, according to revised plans.

Last year when tenders were called the tenders generally exceeded the money raising campaign started five years ago.

At the annual meeting directors elected were J. M. Hartley, W. H. Keans, Sam Gentile, Bruce Hyatt, Donald Baxter, Ira Sharpe. Subsequently Mrs. Hartley was elected president and Sam Gentile vice-president.

Calling of tenders has been made possible, by federal and provincial government grants. These total $280,000 or $150,000 more than available for general. A total of $753,660.

Financial report of the year revealed an operating loss of $37,558. Unpaid accounts pose the greatest problem, Sam Gentile stated.

Secretary of the superintendent, Miss A. Arnold, showed the present 28-bed hospital operated at 94.5 per cent occupancy last year with 1419 patients admitted.

Flyers Take Comets Into Camp 6-4

TRENTON — FO. Henderson teamed up with FO. Pelletier last night to account for five goals between them to help the F.I.S. came from behind to beat the Comets 6-4 in an RCAF Interstation hockey game at the Community Centre.

The Comets had a 2-1 lead at the end of the first 20 minutes but the officers went with it the second to outscore them 4-0 to go ahead by three goals. In the final stanza the Comets again took over the lead in scoring but failed to quit ahead of the plucky F.I.S. team. The Comets scored two to the F.I.S. one.

It was a rough game all the way through but the F.I.S. spent "pulled up their socks" in the second after a slow first. In the third they played more on the defensive to protect their lead but the Comets got through for two more markers.

In standings the win places the F.I.S. in top spot on the regular league play giving them a one-point lead over the Rockets who were idle last night.

But in the Big Four roundrobin series standings the win for the Comets puts them in a solid first-place tie with the Rockets. Two teams in the tie mets will meet next Monday in an all-important game which could mean the decisive one in which team will represent the section in the Commonwealth playoffs.

Also on Monday night the Falcons will play host to the F.I.S. in the second game.

In last night's game Henderson performed the hat trick with his four-goal effort in getting a brace. Austin rammed in the opener and added the score again but was on the assist end of another.

Wilson got the lone goal for the Comets with two goals and his mates Davis and Kaulback, assisted singly.

In other games last night the Combines claimed their second win of the season by downing the Sparks 3-2. Headquarters outscored No. 6 Repair Depot 7-3. Headquarters had a new player in their line-up, LAC S. Gilbert who made a outstanding showing and accounted for four goals.

The Liberal leader, seeking his first mandate since the Conservatives had been "sneering" at the Liberal party policy of deficit financing—pulling the government into debt—during hard times in general, and on a host of other measures to give the economy a much-needed lift.

Now, he said, the Conservatives expect to pay for a $1,185,000,000 surplus "by resorting to enough deficit financing." It appeared the Conservative party had "swallowed itself" on this issue.

SHOULD "HANG HIS HEAD"

As for Mr. Fleming, he said, he should "hang his head in shame" for he, said Mr. Pearson, had been the most "sneering" about the Liberal policy, criticizing deficit financing. Many of the works programs outlined by the Conservatives didn't make much sense in emergency unemployment measures. Some of these had been announced by the Conservatives last summer "to save money." Now they were "pulling them out." But it would take months to get the projects started, the stages where they could provide work.

What the country needed was quick action to get the men employed. That was what the Liberals were prepared to give, he said.

OLD TRICK

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — A 26-year-old man was committed for trial on a charge of theft in which police say the old Trojan horse technique was used. The man is accused of hiding in a wooden vaulting horse in a youth centre until it closed, then making off with an £18 record player.

Planning Board Holds Meeting

TRENTON — With only two members absent the Trenton Planning Board met in the Board Room of the Municipal Building last night, under the chairmanship of Councillor Jim MacDonald to discuss financial problems for the coming year.

The activities of the past year were also reviewed during the meeting and a resolution was passed which thanked Lex Elliott for his work and help on the Planning Board over the past three years. Mr. Elliott will be leaving for Montreal where he will take up a new position and the meeting last night was his last with the local planning board.

Those attending last night's meeting were: Councillor James MacDonald, Dr. MacDonald, Les Elliott, Don Sutherland, O. W. Phillips and Messrs. Ari Hoornweg. Absent were: E. M. Parker and Harold Blakely.

NEW MEMBER INDUCTED

"Turning on" Ceremonies For Natural Gas in City Held by Lakeland Gas Co.

Service within a few weeks for many city commercial and industrial users and city wide domestic distribution by early summer, was promised here yesterday by officials of Lakeland Natural Gas Ltd. following official "turning on" ceremonies held at Firemen's Park.

Mayor Gerald Hyde turned the valve inaugurating gas service in the city at a brief ceremony held Thursday noon at the intersection of Dundas and Front Streets. Approximately 75 civic officials, together with representatives' from industry, county councillors and council members from nearby Thurlow and Sidney townships attended the ceremony.

Later those attending the official "turning on" ceremonies were guests of Lakeland Gas at a luncheon held at the Hotel Quinte.

Official ceremonies at the park were dedicated to by G. R. Gardiner, Toronto, president of Lakeland Gas who said the availability of natural gas could open up a new industrial area for Belleville.

He noted that gas initially available will be the largest field in Western Ontario, but eventually local users will be supplied with Western Canada gas following completion of the Trans-Canada Pipe line.

Mr. Gardiner said that the available energy in gas sent through the Trans-Canada Pipeline when completed would be equal to seven times the potential of power generated at the St. Lawrence Seaway power station.

MAYOR TURNS VALVE

Mayor Hyde then turned the valve igniting the first natural gas available in the city of Belleville.

Later at the luncheon meeting at the Hotel Quinte, Lakeland Natural Gas vice president and general manager C. Wade McCoy, announced that the first industrial use of gas in the city are W. T. Hawkins Ltd., manufacturers of cheese and potato chip products.

He said that Belleville was one of the first cities in the Trans-Canada distribution system.

Irvine Newman, general sales manager for Lakeland, said that representatives of his firm would soon be calling on potential domestic users and city wide domestic distribution by early summer, was promised here yesterday by officials of Lakeland Natural Gas Ltd. following official "turning on" ceremonies held at Firemen's Park.

99 OUT OF 100 INSURED

Only one out of every hundred motorists applying for 1958 car markers at the motor licence office here lacks public liability and property damage insurance.

That information, imparted to a member of The Ontario Intelligencer staff as he acquired the markers for his car, may surprise some.

There are so many cases in which court judgments are obtained and claims have to later be filed against the Unsatisfied Judgments Fund that many people must have gained the impression that the proportion of uninsured motorists is much higher than one per cent.

Four explanations occur to us.

It is possible that the number of uninsured motorists in the Belleville area is considerably lower than in the province as a whole. It would be pleasant to believe that this were true.

It may be that the Ontario Government's action in requiring an extra $5 fee from uninsured motorists has resulted in a sharp increase in the number of motorists taking out insurance. That it has had some effect is probable, but that the results have been spectacular seems somewhat doubtful.

The third explanation is almost certainly the true one. It is that a large proportion of the accidents involving motorists with insurance are settled out of court, while court action is the only way that the injured party can obtain any satisfaction in the majority of cases where no insurance in carried.

The fourth explanation also probably is an important factor. It would appear reasonable to suppose that a motorist who is so irresponsible that he will drive without taking out insurance will combine that irresponsibility in his driving, resulting in uninsured motorists having more than their share of accidents.

There may be some who will argue that when only one per cent of the motorists lack insurance, the case for compulsory insurance is weak. It seems to us that the facts invite the opposite conclusion. If 99 out of 100 motorists are drivers carrying insurance, then a law requiring all drivers to carry insurance would not affect them and there is no reason why the government should concern itself unduly about the feelings of the irresponsible minority.

INVASION OF PRIVACY

"Haven't you got an ad lib here?" inquired Pearl Bailey of Perry Como on the latter's television show last Saturday.

From the flustered look on Como's face, the viewer was forced to conclude that he had had an ad lib written, but that he had forgotten it or, more likely, had overlooked it in reading his cue cards.

Then the incomparable Bailey came up with "You ab lib with me and I'll ad lib you to death, Perry boy," which had all the earmarks of a real ad lib, for a change.

If it wasn't, it was extremely clever writing.

Clever writing is perhaps one of the major obstacles facing a television producer. There has been so much of it, so many carefully designed efforts to suggest spontaneity, that the average viewer now suspects that even the cleverest ad lib is uttered according to plan.

All of which brings us to a current controversy in Britain, where the BBC is under fire for its version of "This Is Your Life." It seems that the veteran screen star Anna Neagle collapsed in tears at the beginning of a review of her life, weeping uncontrollably she was so startled.

We suspect that most TV viewers have long since concluded that the same shows on this side of the Atlantic is carefully rehearsed. The BBC incident casts doubt on this assumption. Perhaps the guests really do not know what is planned.

But if they do not, are not the producers taking a large chance. What if the surprise brought on, not tears, but a heart attack?

In any event, one is forced to agree with the TV critics of British papers who regard such a surprise show as an unwarranted invasion of privacy.

JUST FOLKS

THE PESSIMIST

He would not see the cheery side
Of anything or any place,
And any task he ever tried
Was greeted with a frowning face.

"I'm sick of such a job," he said,
"I'm sorry I was ever hired."
They thought to please him, but he scowled
And cursed the morning he was fired.

"A dirty maker me sick," he said,
"It but a pack of fools you meet."
He'd rather spend my time in bed
Than face life on the street.
Their invitations I detest,

And this, by now, they ought to know."
That might be mingled with the best
And homeward was the last to go.

Through life he grumbled all the way.
The world was like a tomb, he said,
And swore he'd welcome fast the day
That he was called to join the dead.
Until at last his summons came
To journey to the other shore,
In death we find him just the same:
Sad as life seemed, he wanted more.

Gobbling Fertile Acres

Thursday Daily Press

North Country residents making occasional excursions beyond their home environment look with misgiving upon the rate of development in the larger communities of the south. Using Toronto and Hamilton as convenient examples, they note that wherever there's sprung up, new housing schemes are in operation and new shopping districts are being developed. Most of them on good soil which until recently was producing crops in abundance. There is some thing depressing about the massive bulldozers that clear out of cultivation by 1960.

The observer points out further that land employed for such purposes is also land most suitable for farming. Depressing evidence for his view comes through a news report of a Toronto man who which told how two British firms have taken options on more than 1,000 acres in Brampton district to be incorporated into an industrial, commercial and residential development. Encroachments of similar nature being made on the Niagara fruit belt have attracted comment and suggestions from many sources, one of which observed no laboratory or industrial plant can make a peach or a bunch of grapes from inorganic materials.

Two geographers of McMaster University, Dr. L. D. Stamp and Dr. Harold A. Wood, take a different view. They hold that excess fine land is not lost by new housing are displacing fruit in that part of Ontario it is evident that it does not produce as high an income from the land as the urban user, and is not as valuable to the economy. But their McGill colleague reasons that Canada cannot go on being promiscuous with land and may have to determine limits to the extent of urban expansion in certain directions when protection calls are being sacrificed unheeded.

And Norman Pearson, director of the Hamilton - Wentworth Planning Board, believes a complete inventory of land is necessary and planning is called for and also the establishment of an industrialized society cannot be caged within the confines of amalgamated boundaries and outdated functions. The problem is not pressing in the Belleville area but further districts are mining, and woods products and where much land is not suitable for agricultural purposes. That there is a problem elsewhere than in the industrialized society cannot be evidenced by those northerners who on business or pleasure bent visit the lower parts of this province or the Montreal district of Quebec.

What to Call Lively Folk?

Sudbury Star

A headline in a Sarnia newspaper the other day carried the words "Lively" and "Sudbury" in a story referred to a resident of Petrolia, a nearby community ends with a vowel or a consonant. But where does that leave us in Sudbury?

Should we call the people from Lively by the name of Livelyites or Livellites? Under this rule Capreol people should qualify as Capreolites. And what happens to Sturgeon Falls? Should we know the people as Sturgeonites? Failing in that way we note our southerly neighbors, Parry Sounders.

Near the town of Brampton, in Southern Ontario, is a township called Chinguacousy. This would seem to be the place where we came in.

HABIT

Whoever we may be, we are ruled by habit. And that ruler-ship defines the measure of the man that is. Psychologists, thinkers and philosophers have written upon the subject of "Habit," but none so expertly and deeply scientifically as did the great Harvard scholar William James. His chapter on Habit, in many of his books, including the one used in my school work, is perhaps the most famous of all.

The breaking of a habit, as suggested by James, should be an adventure, with the one fixed habit in the suggestions of James experiencing many a difficult climb of great influence to anyone in after life.

James said: "Never suffer an exception to occur till the new habit is securely rooted in your life. Each lapse is like letting fall of a ball of string, which one is carefully winding up; a single slip undoes in a moment a great many turns will wind again."

James further said: "The great thing, then, in all education, is to make our nervous system our ally instead of our enemy. It is to fund and capitalize our acquisitions, and live upon the interest of the fund."

Could anything be simpler or more worth attempting? We should we allow a dominating habit to grow in our lives, when this wonderfully constructed body or mind of ours?

Most persons who have given up a harmful habit are surprised to discover how much better they feel, and how much more they are the master of themselves!

GOD AND HIS CREATURES

Are you greatly inspired as you look on humanity as a whole?

Personally the writer of this article is not. He finds it hard to understand how God can be interested in a creature that makes so many mistakes as man does, and keeps making them over again and again, apparently learning nothing from experience. It is also hard to understand why God goes on loving us who return so little of His love. From the time we get up in the morning until it sets in grandeur in the evening, there is scarcely a minute of continual evidence of His love for us. And what do we do? Go to church Sunday (perhaps), and then dust off our religion and put it away in a cellophane bag until the next Sunday and get out a system of ethics on Monday based not on Christian gospel but on expediency and use that twenty-four hours a day until the next church service.

Is this too severe? Maybe; and yet again, maybe not severe enough. Certainly it is true that God pours love and light into our world and life, and we on the whole are content to live happier if loyal to Him, and often downright more ungrateful.

Yet he loves us. He strives to have us as sons and daughters who will be like Him. He has told us that we become fellow-workers with Him.

Truly He has said: "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts higher than your thoughts."

Fifty tables were in play throughout the city. The winners were as follows: first, Mrs. James Boyle; second, Mrs. Roy Logie; third, Mrs. Clive Ham; fourth, Sergt. H. Thompson.

From our file copy at this time in 1887: "The Ashley Carriage Company of this city is doing a flourishing trade. Carriages are being shipped to all parts of the Dominion. About 70 men are employed." (Note 1958) The Ashley Carriage Company was on Pinnacle Street, opposite the Court House. The building was later occupied by the Belleville Hardware Company. The stone building was later owned by the city, recently demolished by the city and the land is converted into a parking space. There were also the Ashley Manufacturing concerns here at the same time, namely George Ashley & Sons, Thomas Brick and James St. Charles Co. The latter also built coaches, sleighs and from coast to coast in many places when you enter-tain. The plant is not a bad looking lot, but it is not the best we have seen. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Recently the medical profession in Britain came out flat-footed in a decisive pronouncement on cigarettes as causes of lung cancer. Since then, a number of men I know have tried to switch to pipe smoking, with varying success. On an old-time in-and-outer in pipe smoking, I have certain suggestions to offer those now tempted to take up the pipe.

Cigarette lighter wrist watches, got their greatest boost during the first world war. Thousands upon thousands of non-smokers picked up the habit during the endless waiting periods between attack and attack and vast numbers of pipe smokers switched to cigarettes on grounds of handiness. The fag became an instrument of war, the diplomat's friend when he crossed the Channel. Every parcel from home was loaded with them.

What those changing from the handy, mild-scenting cigarette to the pipe first complain of is a burnt tongue. Beginners with pipes should always buy their first pipe and first supply of tobacconist, not from the corner drug store or the news stand. The tobacconist will see to it that cheap pipes would burn the tongue even with real cooler. Mild tobacco is hotter than medium blends. It takes a tobacconist, not a dealer in cigarettes, to know how to advise the beginner what to buy and how to proceed for the first few days, until inured.

Interestingly enough, most tobacconists are pipe smokers.

Why Do Some Men Grow Bald?

Why Do Some Men Grow Bald?

By Dr. Lawrence Galton

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TEENAGERS GLANDULAR IMBALANCE CAN BE CORRECTED

"Dear Dr. Molner: When a girl is growing rapidly, is it harmful to give tonics to help to check it? Are there any after-effects? Are young people taller than in the last generation? Is it due to gland activity?—B.B."

Growing which way — up or out, or both? Either way, indigestion or retard growth needed not be given indiscriminately, and there certainly is no need to unload unless it is known definitely what is to be accomplished by the shots.

As to controlling height, if that is what you have in mind, my answer is simply this: We have no means of control, and I doubt whether we would, be warranted in attempting any such thing even if we did know of drugs which would do it.

On the other hand, if you mean that the girl is putting on far too much weight, or is developing at an unusually early age, then it is quite possible that some gland disturbance is present.

In that case, it is more than likely that you expect to find the behavior of glands (endocrinologist) can determine exactly what is wrong, and then control it — perhaps by injections of suitable medicines, or by giving them by mouth.

I have seen too many cases, over the years, of apparently recent years that this has been possible, but while I have no doubt that some scientific studies would make treatments even more successful, the practice of correcting glandular imbalance is no longer a matter of guesswork. It has become a matter of specific, local and useful process. It must, however, be done by a physician who has specialized in this type of work.

NORMAL INSTEAD OF ABNORMAL

After-effects? The only after-effect, physical or mental, is that the child will be normal, instead of abnormal.

Young people in general, are gradually becoming taller, and there is everything to make us think that it is a matter of better diet — supplies and fruit the year round, plus a better understanding of the value of a balanced diet.

This increase, however, is small compared to the individual differences in height that we inherit from our parents.

Teenagers have spurts of sudden growth. What about parents? If one, or both parents, have been tall, the growth pattern has been determined by heredity and there's not much you can do about it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 22, gave birth to my first child 11 months ago. My hair has been falling out rapidly. Several of my friends say there did, too, in this due to the anesthetic, run down condition, or what? What can I do to help this condition.?—G.S."

I don't know exactly what caused it, but it has been observed for a long time. There seems to be no doubt that it is a result of either anesthetic or a run-down condition—just one or both. Having that sometimes happens in pregnancy, but without any obvious reason, is also common. Unless something else is wrong, your hair will be as good as ever. After all, what about your friends? They told you it happened, but you had not already noticed that their hair was thin. In short, don't worry about it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any harm in taking large doses of vitamin B-1, and what is your appraisal of it is worth.—C.S."

There are instances in which large doses of this individual vitamin — that is, B-1 — or some other B component — are helpful, but by and large the whole B complex probably is more of a fad than a help. There is no danger of an overdose, since any excess is readily eliminated in the urine. A dose is not true, of course, of all vitamins. Any excess of dose is still wasteful, however.

BBC London Letter

The expanding waistline, which panics the modern male into all sorts of experiments, diets and exertions, held few terrors for this ancestors. In the eighteenth century Robert Walpole, Lord North and Charles James Fox of British political fame, from "well-padded" personalities, Maurice Hussey pointed out in a talk about them in a broadcast in the BBC program "Through Eat and Drink and Fire." He was convinced that the "average weight was a good deal higher than it is today" in those days, and though there must have been fat persons in almost every region "we are especially lucky in the area from Lincolnshire to Kent, for it was here that doctors were saying that the fog and damp of the fens and coast created this to a large extent."

The Earl of Bedford "who started the great farm of Woburn as a commercial thought" from his site to be striving to outdo his prize beasts, Hussey said, and then there was the English colossus Daniel Lambert, who lived at Stamford, and where they treasure some of his enormous garments, each large enough for three people. "At Ipswich they keep the chair that straight-limbed, fat-bellied Master of Edward Bright, a grocer who reached 44 stone (616 pounds)." His measurements are on official record as: chest 66, waist 82, height not quite 5ft 11in. Bright died at Maldon.

Lambert, who was born in Leicestershire, substance in Cambridgeshire included a miller named Jerman who lived at Wimpole, and Daniel Dullingham who each weighed 28 stone, while Adam Fitch from Lincoln weighed 30 stone. John Fitch of Lincolnshire, who was possibly a relation, tipped the scales at the same weight.

"I have found some dialect words used in East Anglia in the past which I have not met elsewhere," Hussey said in his humor. "a scallywag, a pulky man, and a stanhous. I assume they were considered a term to describe local inhabitants."

Price Climb Amazes Him

Out of prison after serving 14½ years, a Montrealer was amazed at how much money he had on hand, compared with those of the old days. "The most I ever handled would have been around mid-1947. They invite a backward glance," he said. "I've been into it. Not emerging from, a period of hibernation, but I've been in slow for many reasons for who had things to sell, and they were not backward about asserting that if released from the fetters of prison they would receive what recreation would increase and prices would come down.

Education Needs More Support Conference Told

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Called to consider "the crisis" in Canadian schooling, the Canadian Conference on Education has wound up with an assurance that all it needs is more money.

Dr. Wilder G. Penfield of Montreal, addressing the windup session of the conference here Thursday, told the 850 delegates from coast to coast that "Canadian education is fundamentally sound" but "it needs more support."

Sponsored by 19 professional, commercial, labor and veterans' organizations with 2,000,000 members throughout Canada as a seminar to define Canada's education needs, the delegates already had anticipated Dr. Penfield's prescription.

Of 32 resolutions approved, six were demands for more federal funds, four for increased or new forms of federal-provincial agreements and one for increased provincial grants.

BASIC QUESTION

No resolution dealt with the fundamental question thrown at the delegates by Dr. Penfield in their working papers:

"What sort of person—in broad general terms—do we want our educational institutions to try to produce, irrespective of the academic level at which formal education is terminated?"

A University of Ottawa forum discussion of the conference's accomplishments Thursday night agreed that the conference had succeeded in arousing public opinion on education but had resisted the temptation to recommend what's to be done about it.

Participating were Dr. Claude T. Bissell, classical-designate of the University of Toronto; Rev. Henri Legare, vice-rector of the University of Ottawa; Gordon S. B. Hawkins, acting director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, and George Cumming, public relations consultant for the E. B. Eddy Company, Limited. All had attended the conference.

Said Father Legare: "The conference could have produced a few sound principles on educating youth for the modern world."

Mr. Hawkins said: "If there has been a great deal of preparatory research there would have been a different kind of conference, which could have achieved a great deal more, but perhaps at the expense of arousing public opinion."

Mr. Cumming: "I came in ignorance, and ignorance and lack in ignorance, with no more statistics now to make decisions than I had before."

ON RECONVENING

Of a conference resolution that the gathering be reconvened within its two to five years, Mr. Hawkins said:

"The case for another conference or this kind is practically non-existent. And if there is to be a sequel it should be as a result of more study undertaken by the same groups which took part in it this one."

Father Legare said a follow-up is important, but should deal with specific problems on which detailed preparation has been made.

Conference director G e o r g e Croskery told a press conference that delegates showed a hesitancy "to speak out and be forceful in their resolutions."

Discussion in the workshops had been stimulating but the conclusions had not found expression in the resolutions accepted by the over-all conference.

The ideas expressed would not be lost, however, since all proceedings were to be published, distributed to the delegates and made available to other interested.

GAVE NEW SENSE

Meanwhile the very act of drawing teachers, business, industry, commerce, labor and other fields together had enabled "a new sense of oneness in education" to develop.

"Also, it has given education a new prestige, made education newsworthy. For the first time education has had front-page play throughout the country."

The planners had injected "the whats wheres and hows of education," but such a gathering was bound to be aware of education's primary need, "which is finances."

Major conference recommendations included the resolutions were that teacher - training be lengthened and toughened; that teachers start with the state in setting teachers' qualifying standards and certification requirements; federal-provincial grants for handicapped children plus provincial subsidies of $1 a day children; uniform statistics on education; a national organization for the promotion of educational research; and government grants towards the eradication of inequalities of education.

AUTHOR DIES

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Herbert Ravenel Sass, 75, one of the best - known American writers on wildlife and nature subjects, died Wednesday night. A former newspaper man, he published several books and his articles appeared in national magazines since 1915. His first book, The Way of the Wild, was published in 1922.

NEW CAREER

Chuck Templeton (left), former syndicated sports cartoonist and evangelist, interviews Toronto heavyweight fighter George Chuvalo for the CBC. The 42-year-old former football player has turned to writing, radio and TV as a career after 20 years as an internationally known evangelist. He took up evangelism after five years as a sport cartoonist. He has written a murder mystery and plans to write novels. (CP Photo).

Chuck Templeton Quits Pulpit To Accept Position With CBC As Foreign TV Interviewer

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Chuck Templeton, in break as clean as the one which switched him from syndicated sports cartoonist to international, well - known evangelist, has left the pulpit, after 20 years, for typewriter and microphone.

The 42- year -old former hellfire - and - brimstone evangelist's crowds wherever he preached his quiet evangelism, is en route to Europe and Russia in his new capacity as television interviewer for the CBC.

"I thought the move out fully for two years before I made it," Chuck said. "this was no sudden thing."

NOTED PREACHER

It is the second time that Charles Bradley Templeton has abandoned a way of living for something he "had to do."

The first was when he was 20 and a following what he calls a "sudden emergence into Christian" experience." During prayer one night, he says, he suddenly recalled "there must be something more to life than this," and began looking for it. "It was not an ecstatic thing," he recalls. "There were no visions, nothing like Saint Joan."

His quest carried him preaching through Canada and the United States and 12 countries in Europe, part of the time as platform mate to Billy Graham — "I gave Billy his first job in the Youth for Christ movement."

He still believes "religion, in the broad sense, is the single most important thing in the world today.

Where he began to drift from it, or even the reasons, are hard to pinpoint. "I never knew. I sensed I wasn't equipped to give what preaching demanded."

YOUNG CARTOONIST

Now divorced from his Mexican wife, Templeton is a former singer who used to appear with Fats Waller, Chuck alone and Siamese cat atop an apartment block next door to Maple Leaf Gardens. He spends church regularly — "different ones. Some are held by old friends."

He was 17, a "second string" halfback with Balmy Beach of the OHPJFA, when he submitted two cartoons to the Toronto Star Weekly and was accepted and for the next five years he drew a daily sports cartoon for the newspaper which was widely syndicated in 24 other newspapers.

After "my conversion," he spent two years finding himself, then went out as a travelling evangelist. Then he gave this up and went to Princeton Theological Seminary for his degree and was ordained in 1951, becoming a travelling evangelist for the United Church of Canada. His early "platform-pounding" style gave way to his later quiet style.

"I never threatened with hell fire, and judgment day. preached a positive faith, that love is the answer to all problems. He worked on a salary of $5,000 a year, claiming the "lovely offerings" collected by some evangelists have no place in religion.

"I could make $35,000 to $40,000 a year," he says, "and this is a conservative estimate, but I never thought it was wrong for a minister to get rich working for God."

NOTHING, NOTHING

After his work with the United Church in Canada, Chuck went to Billy Graham as director of evangelism for the Presbyterian Church in addition to his preaching duties he learned to pilot a plane and travelled "literally millions of miles" across Canada, the U.S. and Europe.

He wrote two books, Evangelism for Tomorrow, and Life looks Up. For a time he wrote a television series for the NBC network called Frontiers of Faith and later a series for CBS called Look Up and Live. One of his Christmas stories was published in a mass-circulation magazine and Chuck was convinced he had to try writing as a career.

He wrote a mystery melodrama, The Absentee Murderer as a self-contained novelette and an hour-long drama, Matter of Principle. CBC bought them both. Two more plays followed — Love Is a Punch in the Jaw, and Drought at Cooper's Creek.

With the exception of Absentee Murderer, his plays have churchmen as their principal characters. "But they weren't written to prove a point. I'm not looking for a pulpit on television. I don't want to preach in drama but I do want to say something. I am not going to write 'message' plays."

A novel, based on the life of a Methodist minister in Ireland and Newfoundland, is "making progress." It includes a grandfather, whom he never met, was a Methodist minister in Ireland. His father, Bill Templeton, is head of the Better Business Bureau in Toronto.

His mother died two years ago and he has three sisters, one married to a United Church minister. His brother operates a Toronto restaurant.

MOVING ASSIGNMENT

CBC, through his work on Close - Up and a radio panel show, gives Chuck "a weekly salary and enough free time to carry on with my writing."

It also throws him assignments like his trip to interview a "typical Canadian" family on how it is coping with modern living; to Russia where we hope to interview President Nasser,"

Hastings Agriculture Federation To Hold Safe Driving Campaign

STIRLING (Special) — Hastings County Federation of Agriculture under the leadership of their new president, Miss Ketchem, Melrose, and secretary, Donald Leeming, R. R. 6 Belleville, and George Carlisle, treasurer, Stirling, are set for cooperation from other member organizations and are staging a rural safe-driving campaign. The meeting is scheduled for Monday evening, February 24th in the Community Hall at Stirling. The ladies of River Valley Women's Institute are serving refreshments.

Some 600,000 farm people have pledged themselves to do all in their power to assist the provincial government in their intensive drive to reduce highway accidents, and above all, to improve the safety of rural living.

In the first two months of 1958 about 350 Farm Forums in the various counties of Ontario discussed the topic, "We We Start Life Safe or Style and Speed in Today's Automobiles?" Prize money valued at $600 will be paid for the best essays in the forums.

The judge for the first and second prizes will be Clifford Graham, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. The Federation of Agriculture is providing the prize money.

Last week special organizational meetings were held in 20 counties of Ontario when preparations were made for the "Night" on February 24th.

Attorney General Roberts has granted permission for Provincial Policemen to talk to the audiences in the various rallies. Those in charge have also arranged for other prominent guests including films.

RURAL ONTARIO ACCIDENTS

In 1956 there were 36,951 motor vehicle accidents in the rural areas of Ontario, and it is also noted that many accidents are never reported. These figures mean that an average of 100 motor accidents occur daily; in rural Ontario. This same year of 1956 the records show that 910 persons were killed and this is an area of direct concern killed daily in rural Ontario.

Property damage that year was about $221 million, which is over $50,000 per day in rural Ontario. Surely it is time to stop, look and listen and try to remedy the situation in 1958.

Personal carelessness was responsible for about one-third of these accidents, which occurred at rural intersections and at private driveways.

Then, too, there were 57 railway accidents in rural Ontario. Many railway crossings have automatic gates, gates and try to on duty, yet accidents occur.

When he returns, there's an assignment waiting to take him to California to do a story on the Canadian colony in the movie industry.

He has turned down 30 calls to churches in the last two years.

"I hope this is the beginning of an end" he says of his writing. "I hope to do a stage play eventually and finish my novel. It does seem to me this is the area in which I want to work."

Hees Defends Flight Plan for PM's Journey

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Transport Minister Hees says that the flight plan for Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Leonel Chevrier has changed him with responsibility for a breach of air regulations "shows how threadbare the Liberal campaign is."

Mr. Chevrier said Tuesday in Toronto that on the day Parliament was dissolved, the pilot of a transport department plane filed a flight plan for Winnipeg and then flew to Quebec with the prime minister contrary to air regulations.

The transport department later issued a statement saying there was no violation of air regulations.

However, Mr. Chevrier replied Wednesday night that the flight was not in fact made by the minister of transport "must take the responsibility of breaking the air regulations."

Mr. Hees said Thursday: "The fact that Mr. Chevrier can't find anything more important to talk about shows how threadbare the Liberal campaign is."

ORDERED STAND BY

He had ordered the pilot to "stand by" just in case Mr. Diefenbaker decided to dissolve Parliament.

"I had to give the pilot a destination in ordering a stand-by flight from Winnipeg—it could have been anywhere," he said. "It naturally would be Quebec as everyone would have been forecasting dissolution before the prime minister made up his mind."

The press boys knew I was holding a plane but they let it slip through their fingers when they left him Winnipeg—it could have been anywhere," he said. "It naturally would be Quebec as everyone would have been forecasting dissolution before the prime minister made up his mind."

Correction

The heading on a report of the monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, appearing in yesterday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer, gave the erroneous impression that the Endowment Trust Fund set up for the hospital was the work of the Auxiliary. This is not so. The fund was established by the hospital's board of governors. The establishment of the fund was merely reported to the Auxiliary members.

The Experts Say Families Should Be Sold On Fish for Lenten Season

By MARY FRAN BURKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—If you have some tasty fish dishes up your sleeve just a nibble and a bite should sell your family on sea food during the Lenten season.

The popularity of fish in any household is usually determined by the skill of the cook. Ability to cook fish in a variety of ways is a must. And it is equally important for the housewife to know how to prepare a garnish or sauce.

When boiling fish, tie it loosely in cheesecloth. This helps to keep it from falling apart during cooking and makes it easier to lift from the water. For extra flavor, add a piece of bay leaf and several pepper berries while cooking.

When breading fish for frying or baking, grate a little lemon rind into the fine crumbs before rolling the fish in them.

TASTY DISH

For a tasty baked fish medley-oysters and scallops in shrimp served with toasted carrots and baked potatoes. Dip cooked whole carrots in salad oil, roll in crushed corn flakes and slip under broiler for 5 minutes. Baste twice with salad oil. To speed potatoes' baking, core through centre crosswise.

A quick fish dish that's easy to prepare is this. It's rich and shrimp served with toasted carrots and baked potatoes. Dip cooked whole carrots in salad oil, roll in crushed corn flakes and slip under broiler for 5 minutes. Baste twice with salad oil. To speed potatoes' baking, core through centre crosswise.

A quick fish dish that's easy to prepare is this. It's rich and heavy and is packed with food values. Drain off the cans of tuna. Put into a skillet and sauté for 3-4 minutes, sprinkle with ½ tsp. garlic salt and 1½ tsp. paprika, then add 1½ cups thick commercial sour cream.

Heat gently until it's warmed through. Serve over rice with added salt and pepper. Toss and garnish with hard-cooked egg.

Tart sauces, a zippy relish, pickles or cranberry sauce all make for tastier fish dishes. Cooking experts advise adding some tarragon or tarragon vinegar to fish sauce for a delightful tang.

MACKEREL AU LIT

For a special dinner "macherel au lit" is recommended. The recipe calls for a small mackerel, ½ cups cream sauce, 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped, ½ cup pimento, chopped, 2 cups water, 1 tbsp. salt, ½ tsp. celery salt, 1 stalk celery, shredded, 2 whole green peppers, 1 tbsp. salt.

Boil and remove the backbone of the fish and stuff with a third of cream sauce which has been mixed with the chopped pimento and chopped hard cooked egg. To make cream sauce, thicken 1 cup milk and 1 cup cream with 3 tbsp. flour. Season with ½ tsp. salt and a dash of pepper.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

BRIDE-TO-BE HAS ALREADY HAD EIGHT SHOWERS!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be a bridesmaid for a very dear friend of mine. Quite a few people have told me that this means that I just must give a shower for the bride-to-be. I would love to give a shower for this friend, if you think I should, but I am hesitating because eight showers have already been given for this very popular girl. Since many of the guests were invited to most of these showers, this has certainly meant a big expense for them.

We are all girls who are employed in offices, and while we don't want to be selfish about giving as many presents as we can afford, it does seem to me that there have already been enough showers. What do you advise me to do? — G. S.

I advise you not to give a shower. In the first place the people who have told you that the bridesmaid "just must" give a shower are not right; this is not necessary, depends entirely on circumstances. Buying gifts for so many showers is mighty hard on any pocketbook, and all these friends of the bride have been most generous already. Why not give a tea or other late-afternoon party, perhaps on a Saturday or Sunday soon, and invite the girls and young men of your group, with others if you wish.

NEWSPAPER ANNOUNCEMENT OF BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter and her fiance have just broken their engagement, and my husband and I are insisting that it is proper for us to send in the two local newspapers a formal announcement of the broken engagement. Naturally, the engagement was formally announced several months ago in these two newspapers. If you advise that this is the correct form, my daughter will agree to your advice. If so, please tell us the correct form.

You and your husband are right . . . the announcement of the broken engagement should be sent to the newspapers in which the formal announcement of the engagement was published. This is logical practical for all concerned.

This is the standard form: "Mr. and Mrs. John Lane Hall of 123 Park Street, announce that the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Hall and Mr. Paul Thompson, has been broken by mutual consent." (That phrase "by mutual consent" must always be used . . . it is very important.)

ABOUT GODPARENTS AND GIFTS TO THE CHILD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently my husband and I were asked to be godparents to our friends' child, and of course we very happily accepted. I am sure we should give the child a baptismal gift, shouldn't we? But do we also during each year give the child a birthday gift and a Christmas gift?

2. Also we are invited to the party being given after the christening of a child of other friends of ours. We weren't asked to the actual christening in the church. We gave the infant a gift at birth. Should we also take a gift to the christening party? — M. P.

1. Yes, it is customary for a godparent to give a baptismal gift to the child. And although it is definitely not an obligation for a godparent to give the child a birthday and Christmas gift each year, this is quite often done.

2. Since you have given this child a gift, it is not at all necessary for you to give it a christening gift.

ATTIRE FOR THE SECOND WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) For my second wedding (in church in the afternoon) would you advise that I wear an afternoon dress and hat, or a suit and hat? (2) And for my one attendant and me, corsages or bouquets? — Reader

(1) Either is correct. A street-length afternoon dress in your becoming color (but not too light, please) would be appropriate, and doubtless very effective. But if you particularly want to wear a suit, I suggest it be one of this season's fashionable dressmaker-type suits of an interesting, light-weight material. Give special attention to your hat . . . small, smart, close-fitting, perhaps made of small flowers or tiny feathers, or silk or satin or velvet leaves.

(2) I advise you to wear flowers rather than to carry them . . . a very simple corsage is in best taste.

W.I. Views Bird Films

MADOC — The February meeting of Madoc Branch of Women's Institutes was held at the home of Mrs. E. T. Nayler, on Friday afternoon, and despite the cold weather, there was a splendid attendance of members and several visitors.

Mrs. Aylesworth presided at the meeting.

Business arising out of the minutes and communications was dealt with. It was decided to have 'Achievement Day' at the home of Mrs. S. R. Beatty. A communication from Provincial President, Mrs. Haggerty read at a previous meeting regarding layettes for the Arab women and wool cardigans for Korea, were mentioned and several beautifully knit sweaters were on display. Donations to be left at Mrs. B. Tanner's.

An afternoon rally to be held in Guelph was announced and Mrs. E. T. Nayler chosen as representative from Madoc Branch.

Mrs. Kerr Hutchinson gave a reading on the motto, "Years Teaches More Than Books".

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. E. Moore introduced the guest speaker, Miss Alma Moorcroft, of Cooper, who has as a hobby, "Bird Watching", and who also is interested in Folk Schools which she explained as to its ideals and functions. Assisted by her sister, Miss Minnie Moorcroft, she showed pictures of the different birds which stay or come early in the spring to their neighborhood and told of her bird watching since she has counted over 100 species. Her address was most interesting and the pictures were lovley; many taken out in the wide open spaces bordering their farm home.

Mrs. Beatty extended to the Misses Moorcrofts thanks on behalf of the members.

Mrs. Earl Burnside gave an interesting paper on 'Home Economics', relating the difference in home decorations and color schemes used in the modern homes of today and the homes of former years.

Mrs. Beatty announced that the receiving boxes for the 'March of Dimes' had been placed in several of the stores in the village, and as they were collecting at this time, she hoped that everyone would contribute towards this worthy cause.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Alyea and Miss Holmes.

Mrs. Allore thanked the hostess for the use of her home and also the assistants for a lovely lunch.

QUESTION:

(Letter with request for Charlotte Russe with Lady Fingers and asking that letter not be published.)

ANSWER:

CHARLOTTE RUSSE

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1-3 cup scalded milk, 1-3 cup icing sugar, ¼ pint heavy cream, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, lady fingers to line inside of bowl. Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes then dissolve it in the scalded milk, then add the sugar and vanilla. Cool until it begins to congeal — about the consistency of liquid honey, then fold in the cream which has been whipped until stiff. Split lady fingers and trim to fit inside of medium glass bowl, one-half inch apart. Turn in mixture, being sure it flows between lady fingers, and chill. This may be made in individual moulds when it is often garnished with some of the mixture forced through decorating tube.

QUESTION:

. . . . have you a recipe for Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy . . . have missed on that recipe somehow . . . Mrs. C.

ANSWER:

Yes Mam. Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy: One and one-half lbs. ground beef or one-half lb. ground beef or one hamburg, 1 egg, 1½ cups bread-crumbs (or 3 slices stale bread soaked in hot water and wrung out), 2 tablespoons each chopped parsley, onion and celery, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1½ teaspoons each salt and Worchestershire sauce, dash of garlic salt or ¼ teaspoon rosemary leaves. Mix all ingredients and press into small buttered loaf pan. Bake at 325 deg. 1¼ to 1½ hours, basting 2 or 3 times with a little butter melted in hot water. Serve with Mushroom Gravy: Melt 4 tablespoons butter and in it sauté 1 cup sliced mushrooms until they are limp but not brown. Stir in 4 tablespoons flour, then 2 cups stock until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste.

NOTE:

Liquid from Meat Loaf pan may be used as part of stock or use canned mushrooms and the liquid from them as part of stock, or use water and flavor it with beef bouillon cubes.

QUESTION:

. . . is it possible that you might have a recipe requiring a minimum of preparation and at same time reasonable in price for 100 people? Mrs. H. M.

ANSWER:

You will have to make up the recipe below 10 times for it serves 16 or multiply recipe by 2½ times and use restaurant size 105-oz. tins of peaches and bake it in very large pans — filling 4 of them by making up the multiplied recipe 4 times.

PEACH CRUMB PUDDING:

Drain 2 2½ cans peach halves, saving syrup. Arrange peach halves cut side up in large shallow baking dish 12 x 10". Beat 4 eggs very light, beat in 1 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Fold in 4 tablespoons margarine, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 cups soft breadcrumbs. Pour over peach halves. Bake at 350 deg. 35 minutes. Cut into 16 squares. Serve warm with Sauce: (3½ cups) Combine ¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Add 2 2-3 cups peach syrup and stir over low heat until thick; add 3 tablespoons margarine, juice of ½ lemon, ¾ teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Dramatic Turban

By TRACY ADRIAN

There's plenty of glamor in this picturesque turban designed by Emme, one of the eminent milliners of America. Made in orange silk, the head-hugging cap is draped in a towering silhouette decorated with a flurry of self flowers.

Shown worn off the forehead to reveal bangs, it is equally as flattering when pinned to the hairline at the back. Cutting it provides a sophisticated note bf color a-top cocktail and informal dinner dresses.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems of how have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Bernhard H. — I gave the wrong answer.

Hilda H. — He shouldn't have said it — even if he believed it.

Bernhard H. — Mine is a real dilly of a problem. My wife of six months has left me because I gave the wrong answer to a question.

We had been talking about a friend of the family who got married recently after having been a widower for less than a year. My wife thought it was a terrible thing to do, but I said the poor guy was probably lonesome.

Then came the $64,000 question: "If I died, would you marry again?" My answer was, "Probably." It seems to have been the wrong answer. Hilda burst into tears, packed her duds and went home to mother. She is 36 years old. Isn't that a bit ancient f o r such pranks?

Hilda H. — Bernhard thinks he pats himself in the back by making me sound like an idiot. He knows perfectly well I had good reason to feel as I did.

We happened to be talking about this friend who had always seemed to be so much in love with his wife. She was really an unusual woman and we both agreed that our friend couldn't possibly find another like her. Bernhard always tells me that I am unique, unlike any other girl he has ever known, so naturally I identified myself with this heroine who died.

It seems to me that if Bernhard really cared, he wouldn't say a thing like that — even if he believed it.

The Council: We have a question for Hilda.

If Bernhard so readily sympathizes with the loneliness of his friend and if he admits he would "probably" marry again if he became a widower, what will happen if a very much alive Hilda leaves him alone indefinitely while she passes the time with Mama?

We suspect that Bernhard will find mighty lonely and might consider a substitute for his off-scene wife.

So we advise Hilda to repack her duds and go back to her rightful place.

It may comfort Hilda to know that psychologists find that persons who had the happiest marriages are more likely to remarry than those who were unhappy.

It is a tribute to Hilda that her husband feels, after only six months of marriage, that he would not want to be single again if the event of a divorcement for he did not have her exceptional qualities.

Should Bernhard have said what he believed? Perhaps not. Hilda is too childish to appreciate the respect shown in the honest, noncoddling answer.

Sunday School Lesson

Not Perfect But Sublime

By ROY L. SMITH

In spite of our tendency to attribute great piety to the first century Christians, simple honesty compels us to confess that a very great many of them were far from being perfect people. Recruited as they were, from among the lowliest of the times, and being in the great majority of cases ignorant people, they brought with them into their Christian life a very great deal of the paganism in the midst of which they had grown up.

Yet to such people as this was given one of the most thrilling and amazing promises ever given to men. "Whenever two or three of you gather together," they were told, "then you may be sure that the Spirit of Christ is present with you." This was —and is—the glory of the Christian's faith in the resurrection. Christ is a part of every congregation that ever comes together in His name.

SINNING AGAINST SPIRIT

As must be confessed on a great many occasions, Christians fall far short of being perfect Christians. That is, they lack much if the Spirit of Christ characterized the life of their Lord.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 23: "The Church at Worship," Matthew 18:19-20; John 4:23-24; Acts 1:12-14; Colossians 3:12-17.

In a certain church, for example, there were two rival leaders who watched one another like hawks. So relentless became their attitudes that they took to sitting, one on one side and the other on the other side of the sanctuary on Sunday morning. In board meetings it could be depended upon that if one of them was for a proposal, he could be depended upon to be against it. Time and again their contentions sent the entire board home at the close of the meeting with a great spiritual depression within their souls. Yet each of the rivals said he was "only fighting for a principle."

Anything that sins against the spirit of good will inside the Church of God can be called a sin against the Holy Spirit. And the strength of any church consists of that portion of the Holy Spirit that pervades the congregation.

There was something almost sublime about the way the humble and destitute Christians gathered in the little churches of big houses, during that first Christian century, in the firm confidence that the Holy Spirit was one of their number.

It is this same holy daring that constitutes the assumption that a Christian service of worship is different from any other assemblage of mankind.

It makes little difference whether the service is high or low, liturgical or non-liturgical, if the people present become convinced that they have entered into the presence of the Lord Christ.

John, the evangelist, seems to have taken great pride in the story of Jesus and the woman at the well. At least he is the only author of a Gospel who includes it in his work. And it can almost be said that the key to his entire writing is to be found in the statement that God is a spirit.

This means that God is present wherever a certain spirit is present. The anthem may be the most cultured and artistic music, or it may be the humblest gospel hymn, but if it opens the gates of a man's mind to apprehend the presence of God it is true worship. And the sermon may be delivered by a scholar or an illiterate; if it does not make vivid the presence of Christ, it is equally a failure.

In other words, the "spirit" of the service is an indication of the presence or the absence of God.

It sometimes happens that God stays away from a very pretentious service on Sunday morning, because He knows He will not get a chance to get a word in edgewise.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Pembroke Lumber Kings, apparently back into winning form, indirectly clinched the Belleville McFarlands' spot at the top of the Eastern League schedule standing by defeating the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens 5-3 to put the youngsters out of reach of even tying for the perch. The victory also made the playoffs battle between the Kingston CKLC's and the Cornwall Chevies strictly a private affair for the third and fourth spots.

And it looks like the Kingston crew is up to its old tricks, coming up with a last-minute uppercut to snatch play-off victory out of what looked like a hopeless situation. Last season, it will be recalled, the CKLC's were on the verge of elimination in the five-team playoff battle. They pulled up their socks and by a series of brilliant victories snatched the fourth and last berth out of the hat to eliminate the Lumber Kings and enter the semi-final against the Whitby Dunlops.

While they are not out of the woods by a long shot, it looks like Bun Cook's merry men have once more grabbed the victory bit in their teeth in a desperate stretch drive, and with the Chevies injury list giving them a free first strike, once more bid fair to take out the opposition and finish in third place.

Right now they have but two games to play with a point advantage over the Chevies. The Cornwall crew has three games coming up, one of them with Kingston, and on that game might hinge the final standing of the clubs. If Kingston wins third place they will go to the playoffs mat with the Lumber Kings in a best-of-seven series, while the Cherubs battle Cornwall in a similar series. If Cornwall takes third, the positions will be reversed and the Macs will take on their arch-feudists from Kingston in the semi-finals.

At the senior "A" meeting the other night in Kingston, the Limestone City Seniors got re-said, television and newspapermen, made no secret of the fact that the piece-de-resistance of the Eastern League season would be a finals series between the Allen-Cook crew and the Hildebrandters.

"That," solemnly declared Jim McCormick, genial manager of the Community Centre down thataway, "would be a fitting finish, and in my opinion, the best thing that could happen so-til concerned, Kingston and Belleville, that is."

The rivalry between Kingston and Belleville hockey clubs is of long standing. It has been bitter, boisterous and sometimes blitter. Both clubs drop any semblance of friendship the minute the puck is dropped and from there in, it is a battle to the finish.

And it is this rivalry that makes both clubs, and this opinion is general, the best drawing card in their respective areas. This corner has no hesitancy in saying that should the league finals resolve themselves into a battle between these clubs, packed houses would greet the teams, both here and in Kingston. Hockey-wise, with Kingston showing dangerous form in the stretch, the series would be a natural. Financially, nuff sed.

But while that might appear to be wishful thinking, neither club is selling the Lumber Kings and the Chevies short. The Cornwall club has been riddled with injuries, but two or three of their top stars are rounding into form and the Chevies should be in fair shape by the time the play-off bugle sounds.

The Lumber Kings with victories over the Chevies and the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens, appear to be whipping back into form and will be a force to be reckoned with in the money-down series. The only thing certain about the league right now is the McFarlands have clinched the top spot, and on their performance to date are fayored to win the group title.

In any event, unless ordered otherwise, the McFarlands start the best-of-seven semi-finals here next Friday night with either Kingston or Cornwall as the official opposition. At the same time, Pembroke meets either Kingston or Cornwall in a similar series.

The Kings will be the opposition for the McFarlands at Memorial Arena tonight in their final schedule appearance on what is called "Presentation Night."

Trophy and other awards will be presented to the players selected as the "most valuable" and "most gentlemanly", while two Carlings silver tankards will be presented to Bart Bradley and Minnie Menard in the final awards of the season. The ceremonies will take place between the second and third periods in the centre ice zone.

This department has been requested to extend the appreciation of the McFarlands' management and players to the Carlings Breweries for their splendid donations of the silver tankards throughout the scheduled season. The tankards are handsome mementoes and greatly appreciated, especially by the various winners. To Carlings, the Macs say a great big "Thank You," in general, and to Harold "Speed" Weller in particular.

American Says Dunlops Will Win Puck Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — A Canadian victory in next week's world hockey championships in Oslo was predicted Thursday by the president of the United States Amateur Hockey Association.

"The Whitby team was a very good one even before they added two former professional stars in Sid Smith and Jean Paul Lamblande," said Tom Lockhart. "Now they will be even tougher to beat. They must be given the edge with the Russians, Swedes and Americans the runners-up."

The eight - country competition will run from Feb. 28 through March 9. Also entered are Czechoslovakia, Poland, Finland and Norway. Sweden defeated Russia in the 1957 championships in Moscow.

Lockhart, who saw the Russian- perform on their Canadian tour two months ago, was favorably impressed by their skating ability.

"They came up with some tricky manoeuvres we had never seen before," he said. "They play a wide open game with excellent passing.

"The Russians told us in Toronto that some of their better players did not make the Canadian tour. And if the team I saw wasn't their best, you can imagine how strong it will be for the championships."

Colorful Canadiens' Star Scores Two in 4-0 Victory; Plante Records 9th Shutout

By MARTY GOODMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maurice (Rocket) Richard has returned — as opportune, skilful and colorful as ever.

Mico suffering an almost-severed Achilles' tendon Nov. 13, the Rocket returned before a home crowd in Montreal Thursday night.

He scored two goals, his 17th and 12th in 15 games, as Montreal Canadiens defeated Boston Bruins 4-0 and moved 24 points ahead of the second-place New York Rangers.

The loss cost Bruins a chance to move into a third-place tie with Detroit Red Wings, three points back of New York. Boston leads Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks, tied for fifth, by six points.

FAVORITE NETMINDER

It was all Richard's show and he had his favorite netminder back to help him. Harry Lumley, back after 1½ seasons in the minors by Boston when Don Simmons was injured, now has been scored on 506 times in 16 games. He now has 506 in 16 seasons.

Richard favored his right foot at times and appeared to be unsteady when cutting sharply to his right. He said later he felt a slight pain and some stiffness.

FROM 15 FEET

In the last minute of the first period he took Dickie Moore's pass and beat Lumley from 15 feet out. In the second period a shot by brother Henri (Pocket) Rocket) Richard deflected in off skates.

Claude Provost counted the first goal banging home Andre Pronovost's rebound for his 14th goal. Provost and defenceman Jack (Red) Bownass assisted Jean Beliveau on the game's last goal, Beliveau's 18th.

Lumley, despite the four goals, played a steady game. He stopped 45 shots from the blistering Montreal offence.

Richard, who had only one minute minute penalty in his early games, picked up two, for tripping and highsticking.

The second came late in the third period when Richard and Larry Hillman pushed mildly each other. Hillman dropped his gloves as if to fight but Richard skated away. Referee Frank Udvari tagged Richard alone with the penalty.

TAKES PAY CUT

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tiger pitcher Frank Lary, who had a disappointing 15-15 record last year after leading the American League with 21 victories in 1956, signed his 1958 contract Thursday, for what Tiger officials said was an unannounced pay cut. The 32-year-old righthander was said to have made $14,000 in 1956.

Petes Topple Teepees 3-2; Cubs Beat Irish

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The jockeying for playoff positions in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series has increased with only four points now separating the third, fourth and fifth-place teams.

Peterborough Petes toppled the leading St. Catharines Teepees 3-2 Thursday night to move within a game of fourth - place Toronto Marlboros.

Second - place Hamilton Cubs dumped Toronto St. Michael's 6-5 to leave St. Michael's in third spot, just a game above the Marlboros.

Wayne Connelly, Guy Black and Larry Babcock fired goals for Peterborough's upset win. Petes had a 2-1 lead in the first period and made it 3-1 at the end of the second.

Ron Quenville and Matt Ravelich tallied for St. Catharines.

Hamilton now is undefeated in their last 10 games.

Norman Defelice, Ed Cooke, Jack Price, Gerry Sullivan, Lloyd Haddon and Earl Baker got the Hamilton goals. St. Michael's scorers were Barry Sly and Dave Keon.

While the two top rinks fight it out, the finals in the other five classifications are also played in the same draw.

Cornwall Hopes Are Lofted With 4-3 Defeat by Kings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Sudbury Wolves loomed today as the teams to watch in playoffs of the Ontario Hockey Association - Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series

Kitchener whipped North Bay Trappers 8-3 Thursday night and moved 22 points ahead of the second-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds. It was their 15th straight game without a defeat.

With a week of the schedule left Sudbury has still to assure itself of a playoff spot. But a 4-1 victory over Chatham Maroons, the Wolves' fifth in six starts, gave Sudbury a firm grasp on third place, two points ahead of North Bay and three ahead of Chatham.

OVERTIME WIN

In the OHA Eastern Division, Pembroke Lumber Kings climbed into third place by defeating Cornwall Chevies 4-3 in overtime. Coach Bill Durnan's Dutchmen trampled Trappers with a solid display of goal-getting.

Buddy Horne and Bill Graham scored two each. Jerry Theberge, Billy Flick, Jim Morin, Ken Laufman, and Charlie Brooker each scored one.

Gail St. James, Pete Banando and Jack Taylor scored for North Bay.

Nick Tomiuk, who coached Sudbury for five weeks before relinquishing the job to John (Peanuts) O'Flaherty, led Wolves with two goals. Armand Lemieux and Jean Therrien got the others.

Bruce Giesebrecht scored for Pembroke after 3:22 of overtime. The win jumped Pembroke a point ahead of the idle Ottawa-Hull Canadiens.

Jack Giesebrecht, Jim Farelli and Frank Chiarelli scored the other goals.

Guy Henri, Rene St. Hilaire and Moe Savard scored for Cornwall. Ray Frederick stopped 42 shots in the Chevies' goal, Andy Paquette 31 for the Lumber Kings.

Eddie Arcaro Third to Ride 4,000 Winners

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Another chapter has been added to the brilliant racing career of Eddie Arcaro.

Thursday he became a member of the exclusive "4,000 club" the third man in the history of horse racing to ride 4,000 or more winners.

The fabled 4,000, which has eluded the 42-year - old slakes king of American racing since the 4,000th mount was won by Arcaro last Tuesday, came in the eighth and final race.

It was aboard a five-year-old gelding named Ban, no more nor less distinguished than the first horse Eddie rode to victory in a thoroughbred contest at Latonia track in Mexico.

That one's name was Eagle Bird and he started Arcaro on the road to the greatness in one of the most gruelling, dangerous and exciting tests of an athlete's sporting.

JUST ANOTHER DAY

Arcaro received a fine ovation from the 31,207 fans on hand Thursday. But, for a man with some 27 years of riding behind him, Eddie was the least excited.

"Actually, it was just another day of racing for me but I'm glad to have reached the 4,000 mark and to get it over with," he said.

"I'm going to go right on riding . . . probably not another 27 years but a few more years, anyway."

Only two other jockeys in the world have ridden 4,000 winners. They are the still active Johnny Longden, with 5,092, and the now retired Sir Gordon Richards of England, with 4,870.

Arcaro, the blue-chip rider, has won some 443 stakes where purses ings amount to more than $22,000,000

New Canadian From Finland Wins Ski Race

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KIMBERLEY, B. C. (CP)—A New Canadian from Finland dazzled a tiring cross-country course almost at leisure Thursday to capture the 15-kilometre classic race at the Canadian ski championships in Kimberley.

Lean, towering Antero Rauhanen, 22, of the Sampo Athletic Club of Sudbury, Ont., skied the eight-metre distance (9.58 miles) in 68 minutes and five seconds, a good five minutes faster than his nearest competitor.

Second place also went to a Finn—Uno Mutka of the Jehu Athletic Club of Beaver Lake, Ont. His time was 73.18. In third place with 74.34 was the long-legged Montanari figure of North American cross-country racing, Veikko Servaci.

A student at the University of Colorado, he raced under the colors of the Quebec, Alta., Ski Club.

The gruelling course circling North Star Mountain, near this southeastern British Columbia town was icy as-first but the top open spots soon turned to heavy, wet snow as the sun and unseasonable weather did their work.

WIDE-OPEN RACE

Anyone who might have speculated on possible winners shied away from the job. There were 39 entries among the women, barring late scratches, and 37 starters among juniors in both categories.

The field included two Americans, Beverley Anders of Bishop, Calif., an alternate on the U.S. Olympic team, and the Alpine combination at this year's Sun Valley Open, and speared third in the American - National Aspen, Colo.

Ken Lloyd, also from Bishop, was the Alpine at the Sun Valley meet.

Among the Canadians mentioned as possible winners was Cecil Ganong, 24, of Port Arthur, Ont., Canadian junior slalom champion the past and now in his first senior year.

The top Canadian women were all from B.C. Ruth Sleik is from Rossland while Inge Andreen lives in Edmonton. Lyn Sutile and Lorna Turner are from Vancouver.

There were three entries for the open or professional men's downhill championship. They include Bill Irwin of Fort William.

Canadians Blank Norway 5-0 Attersley, 'Bus' Top Scorers

OSLO, Norway (CP) — Veteran Ed Smith is functioning more and more in the workmanlike manner which earned him a reputation as one of hockey's most gentlemanly money players in his days of stardom with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Now playing coach of Canada's entry in the 10-day world hockey tournament beginning here next Friday, Smith has taken hold of his charges and contributed a heaping measure to their outstanding European success.

Among his club's leading scorers, the 30-year-old left winger has averaged a goal a game in the victory string of the men from Whitby on their exhibition tour.

THIRD STRAIGHT SHUTOUT

Smith has scored in all but one of the nine victories chalked up by the Canadians who have smothered their opposition with a total of 81 goals. The Canadians scored four goals and have allowed only 10 goals against them.

Thursday night's win is the third time in succession, the Allan Cup champions won by a shutout as young goalie Ray Edwards ran his scoreless string to more than 180 minutes, in a 5-0 victory over Norway.

Playing in the outdoor Jordal Amfi arena, to be world championships will be contested by eight countries, the Canadians found the ice lightning fast and the Norwegian goalie, Lorang Wifladt, a tough man to beat—until they started to roll.

The Whitby side scored first in the 14th minute of the game period and added four more goals in the third period.

BOTH SHORTHANDED

Bus Gagnon, the Whitby playing coach last year, got the first Canadian goal while both teams were shorthanded. A few seconds earlier the Russian referees had sent Gordie Myles and Norway's Willy Walby to the penalty box with minors for fighting.

Gagnon set up Charlie Burns with the second goal. Connie Broden followed with an unassisted goal, his seventh of the tour. Smith, assisted by Harry Sinden and George Gosselin, who took a pass from Broden, added O'Connor, wound up the scoring.

Centre Bobby Attersley is the club's leading scorer with 14 goals. Gagnon is next with 13 followed by Smith and MacKenzie with 11 and Smith with nine.

Tonight the Canadians play the United States, who have barely squeezed by the Norwegians 3-2 Wednesday night, in the same arena. The Americans have been more exhibitions to play in Bromsgrove Sporting Club here in Oslo for the world competition.

Bowers Rejects Three National League Offers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Johnny Bower, veteran goalie in the American Hockey League, has rejected offers this season from three clubs to return to the National Hockey League at more pay.

Bower says: "I'm very contented in Cleveland with the Barons. I've got security here. I've reached the stage in my career where I have to look for security. What if I went up there for one season and they traded me, then where would I be?"

Bower, 32, was only 19 when he came to Cleveland for the 1945-46 season. Of 13 years in professional hockey, he has spent nine here, two with Providence Reds of the AHL, one with Vancouver of the Western Hockey League and 1953-54 with New York Rangers of the NHL.

COULD HAVE GONE

The three NHL clubs who want Bower are believed to be Rangers, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Each team an offer came from the big league, Barons' general manager Jim Hendy asked his star netminder what he'd be wanted to go. The move would have meant $2,000 to $3,000 more pay, Bower estimated.

"Jim said they wanted me but that I'd have to wait in line," he to," Bower said. "I gave him a flat refusal. I said I'm with the Barons and try to help the club win the Calder Cup."

Bower likely feels his reflexes have slowed somewhat, at 125 lbs. and have put back to 5 ins. That average of 2.23 a game is tops in the league.

Kennedy Quits Toronto Marlies; Wants to Study

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Kennedy, all-star centre and captain of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, said he's quitting the team to concentrate on university studies.

"Yes, I've quit," the 20-year-old Toronto native said Thursday. "My main reason is that I've been getting behind in school. I told Turk (coach Turk Broda) last Friday, but I've been thinking it over for a long time."

Kennedy, a 185 ½ pounds dictator, said he had "once hoped to make hockey a career.

"But they play blood and guts hockey in the NHL and I don't play that way. I just can't make myself do it."

Broncho Billy Anderson Made Pattern for Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Broncho Billy Anderson, the first western star and indeed the first star of movie history, lives in obscurity in a faded district between Hollywood and Los Angeles.

A cluttered red bungalow is the home of the man who started it all the first story film, The Great Train Robbery, and established the pattern for the modern. In five years he made 235 western films with himself as writer, director and star.

Now 76, Broncho Billy is still an iron and frail figure. Even when he was riding the range, he can also be gruff and suspicious of strangers who he's been something of a loner. "I'm single," he explained. "I never have won his confidence or took me a dozen phone calls and letters visiting to talks about the old days.

He grew up in Vandeville, then drifted into movies, working with the pioneer director, Edwin S. Porter.

SUGGESTED LONG PICTURES

"I told Porter if people would sit still for pictures that were 20 and 60 feet, they'd sit still for 1,000 feet," he recalled. "So we decided to make a long picture. But what about? I suggested something that had a lot of feeling—plenty of excitement. Why not about a train robbery? Another fellow remembered there was a play called The Great Train Robbery, so we stole the title."

The film was not a western in the present-day sense, though it had frontiersmen, a posse, a saloon scene and a square dance. It also had the screen's first closeup, a shock scene in which Broncho Billy fired a gun at the audience shades of 3d.

The film, made in Fort Lee, N.J., in 1903, took the movies out of the novelty class and was a sensation. Anderson joined George K. Spoor to form Essanay Co. from their last initials and made films in Chicago. They hired Charlie Chaplin away from Mack Sennett, and Anderson made some westerns in Boulder, Colo.

"But they weren't a success," he said. "Something was lacking. Later, I moved out to Niles, Calif., to make some more westerns, but still, something was missing. I decided we needed a central character in the films, someone the audience could pull for.

I happened to read a story by Peter Kyne with a character called Broncho Billy, and I took the name for the films. Later I met Kyne and he said

CANDIDATES

Later, during a series of three rubber plants in Kitchener, the Liberal leader was presented with a pair of gaiters at the T. E. Kaufman plant. Plant President A. R. Kaufman brought out several pairs and suggested that Mr. Pearson give one pair to each of his Ottawa colleagues.

At a night meeting in Kitchener, Mr. Pearson said the way to provide jobs is to reduce taxes. But Mr. Diefenbaker instead had announced a $1,150,000,000 work program.

At Port William, Transport Minister George Hees described Mr. Pearson as a clever man, "one who can stick the best knife he has contact with and synthesize his pickings."

UN FORCE

Mr. Hees said Mr. Pearson in the autumn of 1956 adopted as his own an idea picked from Mr. Diefenbaker in January of the same year suggesting a United Nations emergency force for the Middle East.

Mr. Pearson's opportunity "to bring forth this creation" had come with the tragic events of Suez. Then, adopting Mr. Diefenbaker's idea as his own, Mr. Pearson made his world famous suggestion and was rewarded last autumn the Nobel Peace Prize."

Speaking at Guelph, Ont., former liberal finance minister Walter Harris charged that "nearly all the public works" in the Prime Minister Diefenbaker has announced were included in "in my own little blue budget book" six months before the Conservatives came to power.

Mr. Harris told more than 200 persons at a nomination meeting which chose Exeter lawyer W. G. Cochrane, 43, to represent the liberals in Huron riding, that when Mr. Diefenbaker spoke over television earlier this week "he was quoting probable expenditures . . . that I had in my book last January."

"DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO"

"The Conservatives have done nothing about unemployment," he said, "because they don't know what to do."

The solution to the problem as Mr. Harris saw it, was to let investors—both Canadian and foreign—know that they would have a chance to make money through investments in Canadian development.

Agriculture Minister Harkness told an Hamilton audience that Canadian wheat was sold abroad in the last six months than in any other six-month period in the last four years.

At a Progressive Conservative nomination meeting, he predicted there will be considerably greater wheat sales soon. Gordon Aiken, a Gravenhurst lawyer, was chosen PC candidate for Parry Sound-Muskoka riding.

See Possibility Fire Involved In Plane Crash

MONTREAL (CP)—Possibility of a fire in the cockpit of the DC-6 airliner that crashed 72 persons to their deaths in a Quebec bog last August has been raised at a public inquiry into the air disaster.

Dr. William Prowse of Ottawa, an expert on aviation medicine, said Thursday that several tissue samples taken from remains found at the scene of Canada's worst air crash were examined by specialists at the University of Toronto.

They were trying to determine whether lightning struck the plane and whether fire was involved in the crash.

The Maritime Central Airways plane, carrying 72 Toronto-bound passengers back to Canada from an overseas holiday, plunged during a thunderstorm into a swamp near Issoudun, Que., 135 miles northeast of Montreal and 15 miles south of Quebec City.

ONE ANALYSIS USELESS

The analysis for lactic acid—an indication of oxygen starvation—proved useless, Dr. Prowse said, and no conclusion was reached.

But the other test—to measure the amount of carbon-monoxide in the body tissues — was more useful.

Tissues from the thigh of another body—not identified at the coroner's inquest in Quebec City —showed no trace of carbon-monoxide.

The Toronto specialists suggested two possible explanations for the presence of carbon-monoxide in the first sample, Dr. Prowse said.

They were: Exposure to fire in the "closed space for a few minutes before death" or heavy inhalation of smoke. Dr. Prowse said 10-per-cent saturation would indicate an "immoderate" amount of smoking, and added that he understood the third officer was not a heavy smoker.

"The possibility of fire . . . cannot be ruled out as definitive," Dr. Prowse added.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — St. Mark's Anglican Church held their annual oyster supper on Wednesday evening when 200 were served at down to tables well laden with food, after which progressive euchre was played.

Mr. and Mrs. H. McAdam, Mr. Fred Bestard, spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt.

The funeral of Charles Benson was held on Wednesday at his late residence, and was conducted by Rev. R. Hall, rector of St. Mark's Anglican Church. Burial was in the family plot in Mt. Nebo cemetery.

Mrs. H. Wallace, Ivanhoe, spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Charles Benson.

A large crowd attended the oyster supper and concert conducted by the Springbrook L. O. L. on Friday evening. An enjoyable evening was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Henderson and John, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mrs. O. Wellman, and Charlie.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt and family were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thomson and Andy.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt, Mrs. H. McAdam spent Friday in Peterborough.

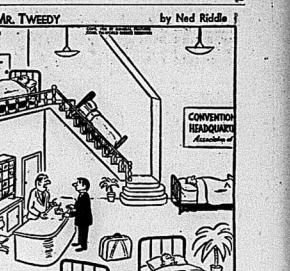
Friends and neighbors were sorry to hear of the death of Bert Spry, who passed away on Sunday in Belleville General Hospital following a car accident which occurred on Friday evening at Springbrook. Mrs. Spry and family have the sympathy of the community in their loss.

The funeral of Mr. Ronald Brownson was held on Monday afternoon at Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, with interment in Stirling cemetery.

The late Mr. Brownson was a farmer for many years on the 10th concession of Rawdon.



On Sunday the roads and streets in this vicinity were snowblocked when a high wind piled snow in large drifts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt called on Stanley Kellar on Saturday, in Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

Peterborough Hospital Won't Accept 'Gift'

BEGIN AUTO PRODUCTION

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — All 50,000 workers at British Motor Corporation's factories in the midlands were back at work today after a strike of 1,500 men stopped production last week. The strike, against recognition of an unofficial trade union, ended Monday but the holdup of supplies prevented many employees resuming work until Wednesday.

TORONTO (CP) — Peterborough Civic Hospital Thursday gave up a $4,000 bequest rather than agree to provide free hospital care for all the relatives of the donor.

Mr. Justice D. C. Wells of the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled that the hospital would have to live up to the conditions of the gift or forego the money.

The donor, John Harper of Peterborough, died in 1934 at the age of 90. He left one-third of the residue of his estate—over $12,000—to the hospital on condition that it furnish a private room and board free of charge to "anyone related" to him and put up a brass tablet to commemorate the bequest.

W. F. Huycke, for the hospital trustees, told the court the words were too broad and might extend to 42nd cousins. He would be coming in "for years to come."

The hospital was willing to put up the tablet, but was entitled to the bequest without providing free care because the gift was for the benefit of the public, Mr. Huycke said.

Mr. Justice Wells said the "real" purpose of the will was to provide hospital care for the next-of-kin. He ruled that the gift was void and payable to the next-of-kin. A reference was directed to the local master at Peterborough to determine who they are.

Sumatra, Celebes Rebels Bombed For Second Day

Communications Centres Are Wrecked by Raids

SINGAPORE (CP) — Indonesia Air Force warplanes today carried out extensive bombing attacks on rebel-held territory in central Sumatra and the Celebes sources said here today.

They reported the capital, Bukittinggi, was hit. They said two B-25 bombers and two P-51 fighters made two passes over Padang and knocked out the telecommunications station.

Earlier in the day, the Indonesian Air Force bombed out the radio station at Menado, rebel capital in the north Celebes.

It was the second straight day of air attacks on the rebel regime proclaimed a week ago today. Monday, the Indonesians bridge south of Padang Friday.

REJECT REBEL DEMANDS

President Sukarno, rejecting rebel demands for a change in government, has ordered his forces to crush the rebels. The rebel demands for a change in government, has ordered his forces to crush the rebels. The rebel demands for a change in government and the second is aerial attack by the Indonesian Air Force. The revolutionary regime has no planes.

The air attacks were the first violence after Sukarno made his decision to try to stamp out the rival regime.

Big Air Search Continues But Nothing Sighted

By IAN MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— Planes from three nations combed back and forth across Atlantic waters during the night hoping to see a light or flare from some of the 22 United States Navy airmen who disappeared early Thursday with their Super Constellation.

At last reports nothing had been sighted from the cold, swelling waters, although the search planes were in the area where flares and small lights were reported 34 hours earlier.

The big, four - engine aircraft, one of the largest flying boats that form a flying distant early warning line, has not been heard from since about 4 a.m. Thursday when it dispatched a routine radio message. It had left its Argentia, Nfld. base about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and was scheduled back about noon Thursday after making its patrol to the Azores.

About fifty aircraft — USAF, Navy, Coast Guard, RCAF and Portuguese Air Force, fanned out across the ocean after the plane was reported missing. Hopes were raised Thursday night when two search-and-rescue planes reported seeing a flare about 400 miles north of the aircraft's last reported position—about 1,000 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

VISIBILITY POOR

Another plane reported seeing small lights on the water about 150 miles from where the flare was sighted.

But nothing more was seen in those areas Friday as the searching planes crisscrossed their hunt there. Poor visibility hampered them.

The surface search includes the U.S. aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose 17 aircraft are in the air, and a U.S. cruiser and USN destroyer which formed part of the radar chain, also looking.

The area in which the missing aircraft was last reported is about 370 miles west of Corvo Island in the Azores. Reports say the lost turned back for Newfoundland before it disappeared. It was scheduled to refuel in the Azores en route for the change isn't known.

There was light rain falling on moderate seas when the plane disappeared. The Argentia naval base said Friday seas had roughened since then and waves were about 15 feet high.

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisian officials today laid plans for diplomatic talks on the crisis with France while awaiting apparently only final talk — the arrival of the British and American conciliators.

U.S. diplomat is due early next week after stops to talk with Prime Minister Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd in London and possibly French Premier Felix Gaillard in Paris.

PEARSON HITS GOVT. DEALINGS WITH STATES

Air Defence Set-up Gets Most Criticism

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lester B. Pearson says the Progressive Conservatives have embarked on a "scandalous" way of looking after Canada's defence relations with the United States.

Speaking Friday night before an audience of about 1,000 in a local auditorium, the Liberal leader criticized the government's handling of the North American air defence set-up and its policy on the militia and Arctic defence.

There's a stitching to another point, he warned that something must be done to counter the move now in Europe to establish a separate trading bloc and pledged that if the Liberals are elected to power March 31 he would try to bring Europe and the Commonwealth together in freer trade to put new power into the North Atlantic alliance.

SHOWS NO STRAIN

The 60-year-old Liberal chieftain showed no strain as he spoke for an hour at enthusiastic pace, subjecting himself to an "inquisition" after the meeting. Part of Western Ontario students in the afternoon, drafting a speech at the dinner hour and then plunging into a new attack against the Conservatives in the evening rally. Today he moves by train to Kingston and Cobourg to Eastern Ontario and to Napanee, Belleville and Trenton before opening an eight-day campaign in the western provinces.

Mr. Pearson made his main evening attack on the government's handling of the North American air defence set-up. "No one undertaken, he said, without any form agreement between the two governments and without the prior consent of Parliament.

He didn't criticize the fact that the Canadian-American air defences are now integrated—that was the only way to defend the continent against attack—but attacked the failure of the government to agree to the set-up with Congress.

If a firm agreement had been reached, the U.S. would have had no control over the Canadian ports of Canadian oil.

The U.S. would not have it both ways. Canada could not be "foreign" to the U.S. and "domiciled" and "entitled" with the U.S. for other forms of defence. The U.S. could not expect to have defence unity and economic disunity with Canada.

TURN PRAISE HARD

Earlier at the university's Convocation Hall, before an overflow crowd, Mr. Pearson emphasized that as prime minister he would work hard for a strong North Atlantic economic alliance and a permanent United Nations force.

As students tossed a bag load of questions to him, he said he was strongly in favor of increasing trade with Communist China and opposed pacifism, but would not be in favor of recognizing Red China now. He said today, leaning also the mainland's claims to Formosa.

He said he had to admit—"though not cheerfully" — that the mapping worked with great reason why the former Liberal government had not recognized Red China.

Faced With Big Stockpile of Cars U.S. Makers Plan Production Cuts

DETROIT (AP) — American auto makers today reported having signs of the largest stockpile of new cars in history, are launching a new round of layoffs and production cuts to slash inventories.

General Motors announced preparing to put many of its plants on a four-day work week. Ford and Chrysler said they will announce a move reported to be dictated by the contract limiting the use of four - day work weeks. Chrysler faces much the same curtailment.

Ford announced Friday that it will lay off 3,000 workers next week at its huge River Rouge plant here and another 1,000 at its Louisville, Ky., facility in an adjustment of production schedules.

Ford also said an additional 4,000 River Rouge production workers will be laid off next Thursday and Friday.

Chrysler announced it will lay off 2,000 workers at its De Soto plant here and a like number at Kokomo, Ind., next week.

Ward's Automotive Reports says the stock of new cars in the United States will approach currently.

Election Platforms of All Parties Before Electorate

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The election platforms of all four major political parties now are before the Canadian electorate.

The last party to place its program before the 9,600,000 Canadians eligible to vote in the federal election March 31 is the Social Credit party.

Its leader, Solon Low, Friday night in Edmonton proposed a 10-point program that revolves mainly around monetary policies, including distribution of new purchasing power either as a government dividend or a consumers' discount on retail sales. The new money, which would be created by the Bank of Canada, would be spent for the net growth in economy.

The three other parties disclosed their platforms earlier in the winter campaign that started three weeks ago.

The Progressive Conservatives based their case on their record as a government in office the last June and a national development program.

The Liberals have promised a $400,000,000 cut in taxes to leave more money in consumers' pockets.

The CCF party's 10-point program included party prices for agriculture and the creation of home and school construction.

While Mr. Low was speaking in Edmonton, Premier John Diefenbaker completed a swing through Newfoundland on an engrossing schedule of whistle-stops, speak-

Could End Boom-Bust Cycle By 'New Money' Socreds Say

EDMONTON (CP)—The Social Credit party's monetary reforms were brought to the fore in an election platform announced here Friday.

National Leader Solon Low indicated candidates now will place more emphasis on the party's basic principles.

He said the present state of the economy demands that efforts be made to find relief from which he termed inevitable unless for policies of "old-line parties."

Social Credit would create a "finance commission" to regulate the money supply and control inflation.

"We have concluded that as long as we control the amount of effective purchasing power to the consumers of services available, there will be a dollar-for-dollar value, and no inflation," he told a press conference.

The plan would provide for distribution as national dividends of "new money" representing the net growth of the economy.

Similar dividends were proposed but never instituted by the Aberhart Social Credit government in Alberta in the 1930s. Mr. Low, provincial treasurer in the Aberhart government, said social credit monetary policies could be instituted at the federal level where they might run into difficulties provincially.

PIPELINE FIRM OFFICIAL QUITS OVER GAS EXPORT

Have Lost Sight Of Cheap Gas Target

CALGARY (CP) — A former vice-president of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited resigned from the company last month because he was "not entirely in sympathy" with the pipeline's plan to export natural gas to the midwestern United States.

A letter of resignation from H. R. Milner of Edmonton was read into the records of the Borden energy commission Friday. It was presented during examination of Trans-Canada's financing backgrund.

Mr. Milner said he objected to Trans-Canada's ultimate inward an export contract with Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, an American firm which will distribute Canadian gas through the U.S. pipeline. Construction of export permits are granted by the energy board in Ottawa.

ORIGINAL IDEA LOST

Mr. Milner said Trans-Canada apparently proposes to dedicate its Eastern reserves, perhaps of cheap gas now available to serve Eastern Canada demand.

The original idea of the Tennessee contract, he suggested, was not only to finance the financing of tht pipeline but also to create a situation that would favor lower gas rates in Eastern Canada consumers.

"That seems to have been lost sight of entirely," he said.

Commission counsel Arthur Ellis Jr. was making his cross examination of the financing of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines by C. D. Atkinson of Montreal, chairman of Trans-Canada's finance committee, when he called to testify.

It is expected he will be questioned with regard to an option to purchase 12,500 shares at $8 each from the company. The shares initially were offered to the public at $10 a year ago and have increased in value to $27 to date.

OFFERED STOCK OPTIONS

The commission has already learned that 50,000 shares, amounting to 120,000 common shares when split by four, were held by Charles Coates, president, as trustee, and by them to the Trans-Canada.

Mr. Atkinson testified he has exercised 55,000 shares of a 60,000 share option. They were offered at $8 apiece. He has paid $80,000, has sold 14,000 for a profit of $266,000 and has retained and sold at $8 a total of 10,300.

The board chairman also received 5,000 shares at $8 each. He turned all but one over to his wife, Mrs. Sophie Atkinson.

Mr. Coates exercised an option for 50,000 shares bought at $8, then sold 10,000 at $27 each for $200,000 profit.

Other companies, one of them Tennessee, each owned 377,790 $8 shares early in 1957 but have since sold all but 100,000 each.

FIND HUGE SHARK'S TEETH

LONDON (Reuters) — Teeth from long-extinct sharks whose mouths were big enough to hold a man have been discovered by Russian oceanographers working in the north Pacific, a Soviet news agency says. Their ship, the Vityaz, trawling at a depth of two miles and three miles by one between Vladivostok, the Soviet Pacific base, and Japan, dredged found "extremely rare samples of the animal world."

Glasgow University Students Throw Flour, Soot, Toilet Paper at Butler

LONDON (Reuters) — A storm of editorial abuse has descended on Glasgow University's rowdy student body. Friday Conservative Deputy Prime Minister Rab Butler and a procession of other dignitaries with rotten eggs, bags of flour and stink bombs.

Most newspapers call the students as "louts," "oafs," "morons," "juvenile delinquents," and "downed teddy boys."

The rector, secretary of state for the home office, went to Glasgow to be installed as the university's rector.

He left with his face and gown covered in flour and a rotten tomato dripping from his shoulder.

Butler, trying to make a speech on the benefits of hydro-electric power, ignored the hail of tomatoes, rotten eggs, bags of soot and toilet rolls.

He went on even after a paper sack of flour burst full in his face. He stood there as students played a fire extinguisher on his head, turning the flour to paste. Butler is a purely titular job. He sure elected each year by the students. His installations set off a riot in which eggs, hijinks and chaos known here as "rag week" ensue.

The newspapers say the Glasgow undergraduates are "traditionally comic traditionally chaotic greeting of a new rector too far.

The Times, which Friday described toilet rolls thrown at installation in Edinburgh, University attended by Prince Philip as "happily unwinding paper rolls," now comes to Glasgow and says "toilet paper" in its editorial on the Glasgow students.

Landslide Vote Approves Union Of Egypt, Syria

Is Convincing Evidence Of Nasser's Popularity

CAIRO (AP) — Some 7,500,000 voters in Egypt and Syria have almost unanimously approved merging their countries into the United Arab Republic under General Abdel Nasser.

More than 500,000 wildly cheering students jamming Cairo's Republic Square this morning heard this result of Friday's plebiscite announced.

Syrian government of President Shukri Kuwatly out in Damascus as Syria officially became a province in the union. President Kuwatly and all retired to stay on with his cabinet as provincial governors, Nasser appoints an executive council for the province.

ABSOLUTE POWERS

Nasser, the former president of Egypt, assumes virtually absolute powers in the new republic as president.

The sweeping approval has been foregone conclusion.

After the results were announced Nasser appeared on the National Union Building balcony, opposite Abdin Palace. The assembled throng broke into applause and deafening cheers.

Egypt's currency was without doubt the most popular Arab leader in many generations, smiled and waved to the crowd.

The vote was taken peacefully in Egypt and Syria. Only in the Sudan was put into deep freeze, probably until at least March 9, by an agreement to continue negotiations after that date.

NOW ONE STATE

Announcement of the plebiscite results turned Egypt and Syria, which are more than 100 miles apart, into two provinces of one state of some 29,000,000 persons. The formal creation of the state was proclaimed Feb. 1 signalled:

1. Resignation of Syrian President Shukri Kuwatly along with the Egyptian and Syrian cabinets.

2. Dissolution of the two governments and all political parties.

3. Appointment by Nasser of a central cabinet, executive councils for regional administration of Egypt and Syria and 400 members of a unified parliament

4. Establishment of a national union under Nasser to replace political parties.

SUDAN TALKS

Nasser will hold these powers for an unspecified period while a new constitution is being written.

In New York, the United Nations Security Council agreed the Sudan issue back to private negotiations between the two countries. Egypt announced will ingness to resume talks with Sudan since these negotiations early elections are held for 10 days starting next Friday. Earlier Sudan talks here had broken down Wednesday.

The Sudan issue was removed from the dispute after Egypt's 12th of the 15 on the council that the UAR plebiscite had not been extended to the contested area. Sudan had never asked for a meeting of the council to halt "threats, tension and aggression" in the frontier sector.

Whether Sudan will hold its elections in the disputed areas was not immediately clear.

80 Taken Ill As Chlorine Gas Pipe Shattered

CORINTH, N.Y. (AP) — Approximately 60 workmen were felled Friday by lung-searing chlorine gas that escaped from a pipe in a paper mill, but all are reported recovering.

The pipe was shattered when a huge chunk of ice fell from the roof of the mill owned by the International Paper Company plant here.

Most of the men affected were employees of a construction company, which is building a new building at the plant.

A physician said pneumonia was the most menacing complication that could result from the gas, which irritates the lungs.

Of the 79 treated at hospitals, 24 remained overnight for additional treatment and observation.

The pipe was carrying liquid chlorine under pressure to an adjoining building where a paper-making building.

Workers said the liquid gushed out and evaporated. Borne by a breeze, the cloud of gas swept the area and into the new building and the main manufacturing building.

Some men were taken ill immediately and rushed out into the air. A first aid force administered oxygen to the most seriously affected and an emergency crew began transporting men to hospitals.

Many went home, then had to call physicians or go to hospitals.

Harris Declines To Run Again In Grey-Bruce

DURHAM, Ont. (CP) — Walter Harris, 54, former Liberal cabinet minister, said Friday declined his party's nomination for Grey-Bruce riding as seat he held for 17 years before last year's general election.

Mr. Harris was defeated in the June election by Eric Winkler, Progressive Conservative. Mr. Harris was first elected in 1940.

Four others besides Mr. Harris sought the nomination. They included Farquhar Oliver. Onlookers said Mr. Oliver said he intends to devote his time to provincial politics.

Mr. Harrington, 50, a Chesley plumber and tinsmith, was elected unanimously acclamation to contest the March 31 federal election.

Mr. Harris told the meeting with the greatest regret but with the feeling that the time believe good judgment, I decline the nomination."

256 Children Now in Care Of Society

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society was held on Thursday. Mr. C. B. Morgan, the president, presided.

In his opening remarks Mr. Morgan commented on the Open House at the Receiving Home and Observation Centre, mentioning in particular that more than 300 citizens had taken advantage of the opportunity to see for themselves the society's most recent tangible efforts to serve the children of the community. The receiving home is now in operation.

Mr. Charles Hyde, the treasurer, reported that the count had established the amount which the society will receive for the maintenance of each child at $1.74 per day. While this is a substantial increase over former years, it is still in keeping with the costs of other societies of comparative size.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, the local director, stated that five children had been admitted to care during the month of January, with two reduction from January last year. At the end of the month the society had 256 children in care. Mr. Kerr announced the resignation of Mrs. Constance Grant, social worker staff, and recommended the appointment of Mrs. Frances Wallbert to replace her. Mrs. Waldorf, who has been working with the Society for some months as a casual employee, will now join the agency on a full time basis.

Mr. Morgan announced that the annual general meeting of the Society would be held next month.

'My Fur Lady' Provides Real Fun for Full House

By EUGENE LANG

Through the sponsorship of the local Kiwanis Club our fair city came to grips with "My Fur Lady" last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium and the lady took the city by storm. Translated from the vernacular — the musical satire comedy hit of which we have heard so much about in the past few months came to Belleville, saw the delight that was written in the faces of the full house in attendance, and conquered everyone who was on hand to witness this hilarious depiction of Canadian moods, motives and mortals.

First, briefly the story behind the footlights. Somewhere on Baffin Island in the far (Canadian ? ?) North, lies the principality of Mukluko - where the charming princess of this realm, Aurora, is confronted with the fact that unless she soon marries this unverdant land of hers will be under the jurisdiction of Canada. She comes south into this Canada nation to find out about the people, their customs and their way of life. Through the guiding hand of Rex Hamermeister, a reporter for "True Canadian Romances," she is given an audience with the governor general and then to the politics, educational and cultural aspects of this land called Canada. She gets a real eye-opener and so does the audience, and winds up back in Mukluko - finally with husband, an insight into Canadian life and the knowledge that she has been the saviour of her country.

MANY FUNNY SCENES

Built around this yarn are many side splitting scenes of Canadian life as the Princess is whisked from one end of Ottawa to the other to see what makes Capital City like tick. The satirical wit that spices the show from beginning to end aims its lithes at all and sundry, sparing none and speering many with the quick thrusts of the pointed rhpasics of the fast moving repartee. The flow-backs into the main points of Canadian history are packed with rollicking humor as the glorious heritage is reviewed — after seeing this scene one wonders simply "What heritage?"

The culturally inclined and their resentment of eggheadedness along with the so-so-Proper dress of the theatre-goers has brought the audience to the point of tears — tears of laughter — at their antics and explanations of their roles in bettering our deteriorating society. The depictions of the defence brass in the armed services was a miracle of both understatement and overstatement — take your choice — with the result that the military and aerial branches were both howling characterizations and the naval one — priceless!

It did not matter what the scene was, whether it be the House of Commons, the Governor-General's private quarters, student hangout of McGill or the ballroom of Rideau Hall, all were packed from beginning to end with hilarity of rib hurting degree.

The musical numbers were lively and well sprinkled with contagious tunes, with a solid bounce noticeable in the projection. A Gilbert and Sullivan like patter mode was noticeable in some, but the modern tailoring of the lyrics overcame any nostalgia to the Victorian era. Sterling performances were turned in by Brian MacDonald as the carefree reporter Rex (Mr. MacDonald also had the difficult task of staging and directing the whole production along with the producing of the choreography), Antony Parr as the Governor-General (a most realistic characterization), Joan Stuart as his Secretary (outstanding handling of her role portrayed with energy to burn in the dance and vocal numbers), Dawn Parker as Princess Aurora (fine stage mannerisms but a trifle weak in the singing at times) and Donald MacSween in a quadruple role, especially as the Admiral and Pastor Bidwell, with qualifications as the peasant poet — this latter part could be shortened somewhat to better advantage. Mr. MacSween is a fine comedian and singer who knows precisely how to draw the most from his listeners and get the required laugh response.

The choreography was extremely well done when one considers that the dancers had a limited size of a stage to work with, entrances from and exits the wings, cues and precision were remarkable, especially in the Carol Vivian Rag- and Elvis Eulogy numbers. Inter-weaving of dancers was not once marred in the fast pacing of the confined stage. Chorus numbers were given a rousing spirit of gusto and verve. The small orchestra was quite good.

The stage sets were changed with alacrity and minimum of noise, with pleasing results of no dragging in the motion of the continuity. All scenery was most adaptable to the needs of the theme with kudos to the designer of the All Canadian Flag for his ingenuity so aptly applied. Stage lighting was artistically created with novel effects and a co-ordination with the other facets of production that enhanced the entire show. The McGill students who participated are all to be commended for an excellent job, no matter how small their parts. Undoubtedly a big undertaking — an undertaking that has brought bright satirical fun to hundreds of people, who have seen this comic extravaganza, and esteem and fame to those who have worked so hard in writing, producing and acting in the show. Anyone who misses this in tonight's performance has only himself to blame for an evening of fun.

35,038 Cows Bred by Unit In Past Year

Despite heavy snowstorms and blocked sideroads, 150 farmers in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties visited the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association at Belleville during Feb. 19 and 20 to attend their annual meetings.

Prime attraction for the visiting farmers were the new sires purchased during the past year and which are expected to do a great deal toward increasing production and type of cattle in the two counties. High point of interest was in the new herd sire Pabst Sir Leader Rag Apple, purchased from the Hillcrest herd of Pabst Farms in Wisconsin.

Dr. J. M. McLean, manager of the Association, told visiting farmers that over 1,200 first service cows had been bred to this bull during the first 62 days he was in service. The Quinte District Association, which services' all breeds of cattle, bred a total of 35,083 cows in the Quinte district during the year. In Hastings 6,583 cows were serviced and in Prince Edward 2,816, both figures being an all-time high.

Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield, chairman of the Holstein Sire Selection committee, reported on the various sires and many constructive comments were also made on the services being presented.

With the cost of milk production and beef production being a prime factor in farm profits, the importance of herd improvement through the use of better sires was discussed.

Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors Miss Ruth daughters of sires in artificial units have produced on the average, twenty-four pounds more butter fat than their stable mates which resulted from natural service. With butter fat worth between eighty cents to a dollar a pound, this is worth pending on the milk market, this represents a big difference in dollars more income from each cow in the herd.

At the election of officers for the various areas the following were elected:

Tweed - Madoc area—President, John Caskey, Madoc; vice-president, Harry Cuttle, Tweed.

Stirling area — President, Hudson Ketcheson, R.R. 1, Belleville; vice-president, Irvin Potts, Stirling.

Picton area—President, Fred H. Hubbs, Bloomfield; vice-president, Tom May, Bloomfield.

Trenton area — President, James Broad, R.R. 7, Belleville; vice-president, Frank Townsend, Carrying Place.

He will prescribe only the preparations that you need—preparations of the highest quality, such as those from the laboratories of Parke, Davis & Company—prescriptions which we will be pleased to compound for you. Season of Self-Discipline

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, February 23 — This is the first Sunday in Lent, the 40-day season of penitence and self-discipline which is so ancient in the Christian Church its beginnings are no longer discoverable. It is not, of course, mentioned in the New Testament, although there was a time when quite reputable scholars were under the impression that the Apostles themselves observed this fast. The view is no longer held, but there can be no doubt that a fast before Easter was being kept while the first 150 years of the Christian era.

There is good reason to believe the period of fasting was at first only from Good Friday morning through the next day, as a time of sorrow for the hours during which "The Bridegroom was taken away." (See Matthew, chapter 9, verse 15) which is the early Christians was a clear reference to the time between the crucifixion and the resurrection, of course.

Some people object that it is unreal to mourn over the death of Jesus when it is both overshadowed and given its ultimate meaning by what happened on Easter. Nevertheless, the Church has never felt this way. The joy of Easter is real — true — but so also is the death on Calvary and the awful loneliness of the world in those hours of His absence.

Sorrow for Christ's death, unless it is to be mere sentimentality, must also logically, include sorrow for the cause of that death — human sin. And sorrow for sin must go on to include attempts to reform and grow better. So, as Lent developed it was natural it should become a time of self-discipline — of self-denial, of good works, and of alms-giving, as it still is today.

By the fourth century the season had lengthened out to 36 days. The present duration of 40 days was fixed by Pope Felix II, in 487, to make it correspond to the 40 days Jesus spent fasting in the wilderness before beginning His ministry.

PAGAN CUSTOM TODAY

The first Sunday in Lent used to be marked in northern Europe by considerable revelry. Kind of celebration that seems to have no connection whatever with a solemn devotional season. Young people worried for days ahead to build a great wheel of straw. On Sunday morning this wheel, dragged by horses (always three horses, though nobody can say why) and pushed by village boys, was taken to the top of a hill, and at night the boys set fire to the wheel and sent it rolling down. At the same time other youngsters rushed violently about the local fields, shouting and waving torches. The end of the ceremony was a great bonfire, made of what was left of the torches.

This strange rite was practiced in innumerable communities. People explained it by saying it was driving the wicked away. Obviously such a superstition was agricultural and not Christian, but no one knew it ever got mixed up in Lent. Probably the answer is that these people had always done this at this time of year and when they became Christians they just didn't stop.

Many people make the mistake of thinking Lent ends on Easter. It does not; it ends the day before. Easter is not the last day of Lent season; it is the first day of a new 40-day season of its own — the Easter season.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON
HARDY DUCKS

"This morning I saw the most extraordinary sight!" exclaimed a friend one cold, late January day. "Our thermometer registered zero, yet when the bus passed the river I saw a whole lot of ducks swimming around close to shore. How could there be open water in this weather? What kind of ducks could they be? What food could they find at this season?"

By continually moving about, water birds have been known to keep, almost indefinitely, a fairly large space from freezing over. If the body of water has a tide, or a current, there is considerably less difficulty.

Several kinds of ducks are capable of remaining in a cold climate when able to have some open water because they eat a variety of food which may be obtained even in freezing temperatures. One of these is the goldeneye, or "whistler" as some sportsmen call it, on account of the loud, high-pitched sound of the wings as a flock passes overhead. Seen swimming at a little distance, males show much white, with dark (actually green) heads having a white spot near the cheek, and dark backs; females look grey with dark heads. Both sexes of goldeneye ducks seen from the bus answered this description.

DIVING DUCKS

Goldeneyes are classed as bay, or diving ducks. Though otherwise definitely fresh water birds, is midwinter they frequently are found on coastal waters in protected bays, where they feed by diving in comparatively shallow water, generally less than 10 feet deep. There they find crabs, mussels, and small-like creatures. Occasionally a flock remains throughout the winter on large inland lakes and rivers, taking shelter in a bay that has not frozen over, where they dive for crayfish, aquatic insects, and certain crustacea, supplemented by seeds, tubers, and stems and leaves of pond weeds and wild celery.

Inland ducks are fairly hardy, too. They are surface feeders, and very wild and wary. Seen at rest they show no definite markings — they are merely brown. In daylight they often just sit in groups on the frozen surface of a lake, well out from shore. In the darkness they come near shore to find food, preferring vegetable matter, such as pond weeds, eel grass, wild celery, and seeds of grasses and grains. But when these cannot be got at because of ice or deep snow they are quite able to subsist on small fish or shellfish.

Although these are the two species most likely to be seen in midwinter, it is sometimes possible to find a few mallards, pintails, or American mergansers.

ROBERTS' WARNING TIMELY

Attorney General Kelso Roberts has warned Ontario policemen, in as many words, to make doubly sure of their target and the need for such drastic action before they squeeze the triggers on their revolvers.

Bully for Mr. Roberts!

A few Ontario police departments have had otherwise commendable reputations marred by trigger-happy officers firing their weapons without just cause. When a policeman shoots and hits a person fleeing from him, he must live with his conscience for the rest of his life. In some cases, policemen have been dismissed or else they resigned voluntarily, after shooting a suspect.

In the days of the Wild West, law enforcement officers usually had no other alternative but to shoot and ask questions of the next of kin. But this is 1958 and the lawless West has been "civilized" for many years now. The East was civilized before the West, so it should be obvious, then, that laws protecting the criminal and the peaceful citizen have been in existence for many years.

When modern day policemen shoot at people running away from the scene of a crime, in all too many cases the officers are guilty of submerging their communities back into the blood-and-thunder type of environment that prevailed in the early days of Canadian history.

There are a few times when a policeman should be entitled to fire his revolver at another human. One of those times is when his life is in danger, or when the lives of others are in peril. If a householder were to get his shotgun from a cupboard to kill an intruder, he would, undoubtedly, be faced with a long session in one of the country's courts. However, if the intruder fired the first shot, the householder could claim he shot in self-defence. The law provides for such action. Police officers should be kept in the same category as householders, as far as firing weapons is concerned.

EVEN DEEDS NOT ENOUGH

The Chinese "volunteers" who have been serving in North Korea are to be permitted to return home.

They will be withdrawn by the end of the year regardless of whether or not the U.N. forces leave South Korea.

This announcement has made South Korean and American officials very unhappy.

Though this may seem a strange state of affairs at first glance, it is easy to follow South Korean and American reasoning.

Once the Chinese "volunteers" are back in their own country, it is going to be much harder to justify the continued presence of U.S. troops in South Korea. But the Chinese could be back in North Korea in force within a few days. The return of U.S. troops to South Korea would take much longer.

It is thus easy to understand why South Korea's defence minister, Kim Chung Yul, should brand the Chinese decision as "cunning intrigue" and "a pretext for propaganda."

This, though, just serves to emphasize that the nowfamiliar argument that the Communists translate their demands for a peaceful settlement of world tensions into deeds, rather than into words, is no easy solution for our problems.

In the present state of the world, even deeds are open to more than one interpretation. When the unilateral withdrawal of Communist troops can be reasonably interpreted as another sly manoeuvre in the cold war, what possible Communist action would not arouse mistrust?

ON TO SIBERIA

A delegation of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, now in Moscow, has announced that it will support the sect move from British Columbia to Siberia.

This could make everybody happy.

In Siberia the Sons of Freedom will be able to undress without anybody caring a hoot. The rest of the local population will be indoors huddled around the stoves.

Communist authorities in Moscow will be overjoyed. Somebody will be going to Siberia of his own free will.

British Columbia residents will heave a sigh of relief. Nudity will be restored to its normal role as a sign of sophisticated entertainment.

Strip-teasers throughout the continent will be relieved of unfair competition.

And, back here in Ontario, we shall have a readymade apt reply if any British Columbian dares to start comparing the advantages of his province with Eastern Canada, to the detriment of the latter.

A raised eyebrow and a whispered "Siberia" ought to do the trick.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

Most Heartening Quote

By Frank Tumpane in The Toronto Telegram

The most heartening quote of the week was that delivered the other day by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer when he said: "You should not be at large."

The remark was directed in a Toronto court to a 23-year-old father when the Chief Justice then sentenced to life imprisonment.

The prisoner had been convicted of manslaughter for beating his 5-year-old son to death because the child had wet the bed.

"You might do the same thing to another child," said the Chief Justice. "I must confine you for the rest of your natural life so you do not inflict injury on others."

The evidence was that the father returned from a beer parlor and beat the child with at least 13 strokes of a belt.

This fellow got what he deserved and what happened to him is in vivid contrast to some of the light sentences handed out lately in other courts for other vicious crimes.

Will this father be reformed by a life sentence? Of course he won't.

And I couldn't care less, as a citizen, whether he is reformed or not. It will satisfy me that he is best behind bars so he doesn't attack other children — his own or anybody else's.

And it will satisfy me if the sentence imposed on him deters other people from beating other children to death.

The bleeding-hearts will tell you that long sentences have no deterrent effect on other potential criminals. I don't believe them. I believe that one thing will think twice before assaulting somebody if he remembers what happened to another thug.

And I am weary; I am very, very weary of this type who can get all misty-eyed over the plight of the criminal and accept with equanimity the plight of his victim.

Why, I think of this case, my heart is not moved by the thought of a man's spending the rest of his natural life behind bars.

My heart is moved by the thought of the terrified, little child who died when he was five years old, dying in agony for something he couldn't help. My heart is moved at the thought of the horror of the short life of the child who died too young to understand there are other things besides pain and terror.

If the man who killed this child is mentally unbalanced (and there was evidence that to some degree he is) then that is the place for him — locked up and for keeping him locked up for life.

Crimes of violence are rampant in this city.

Robberies are becoming routine. Shootings, slashings and sluggings are reported everywhere. We have reached the time when the law must move to meet violence and restore order.

Some thugs cannot learn easily the lesson that in an organized community they'll have to keep their hands off their neighbors. If they can't learn it the easy way, they'll have to learn it the hard way.

And one hard way for them to learn it is to lock them up and keep them locked up. Many they are in Kingston Penitentiary, they aren't slugging or knifing innocent people.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE POWER OF SILENCE

After spending most of our time in the city, with its continual round of noise, as well as its confusion, what a joy it is to get away to some secluded place and there enjoy this medicine of silence, for it is indeed a medicine of a superior kind!

There is power in silence, as well. Tension creates nervousness and worry. Silence takes us into a different world. How often I have gone to the seashore for that gentle music caused by the wash of the waves as they lap the sandy shore. There is nothing quite like it to take the edge off our selfishness and introduce us back to life and our friends.

The silence of the snow has really a lesson to teach us. Silence is always associated with peace. Thoreau loved the silence of his small Walden Pond and all its surroundings that gathered about it. He spent two years there, and the rest and fellowship he found in what he went there to discover. The book that he wrote about "Walden" has become one of the rare classics of the world.

The silence of the wilderness is a harrowing one, which affects us by the terror of the desert. There for those, however, who discover beauty in, even the wastes of Nature. The great mountain ranges that seem like the climb and conquer must return a certain silence of spirit or they wouldn't delight to be near it there were no mountains to climb, what would become of the restless spirit of mankind? John Muir was never so happy as when he was climbing a new mountain or discovering something new in Nature.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

BIRTHDAY TO REMEMBER

George—Washington was born 226 years ago today

I often wonder if American citizenry as a whole realizes that everything we have and are go back to this man, the most superficial examination of the Revolutionary period of history reveals to us that George Washington was the Revolution. Without him we would still be part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Freedom from the mother country would have been impossible without him. He is one of the most important figures in world history. He is as great as his dignified portrait signifies to be, and greater. No man save Moses has ever been so truly the father of his country. He was Washington — first in war, peace, the hearts of his countrymen and everything else we hold dear.

Yet this Washington was as human and fallible as any man that ever lived. He belongs on a pedestal, yet he comes down off that pedestal frequently, walks among his fellows, makes mistakes and sometimes serious and I mean serious mistakes. There was nothing of the feline about him. He was a man of ordinary abilities, but his life was held together by an almost perfect character and dominated by an overwhelming purpose.

Glory be Him, this day and every day! Further indeed of our country

U.S. Divorce Rate Drops

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Since 1946 the divorce rate in the United States has been cut roughly in half, according to a sociologist at the University of Southern California. From a low point in 1946 the population increased 23.

The figures are striking, and they suggest many questions that probably cannot be answered short of a massive research into the problem.

Are Americans choosing their mates more carefully, or are they perhaps learning to adjust their differences more readily?

Could it be that there are outside factors, like the rising cost of establishing separate households or the loss of tax advantages, that are making divorce more up people to stay together despite their difficulties?

Perhaps all of these. If a tax structure designed to ease a married couple's financial burden served in many instances to compound unhappiness in the home.

Whatever the reasons for the declining divorce rate, it's a welcome trend.

Belleville in the '90s

CRIME IN THOSE DAYS

Article 5

There was no serious crime in Belleville proper in 1898, at least in that period covered by The Sun. There was a throw-back to the old days when two men got into a fight near Springbrook and hit one another. One man came out of the fracas with a badly chewed thumb, the other with a badly chewed ear.

They were taken before Justice of the Peace Welsh, who committed them for trial under $100 bail. M—— was fined $30 for biting G——'s fingers, G—— was fined $35 for biting M——'s ear—ears being more important, apparently, than fingers in this particular instance.

P. Ryan was noticed a strange man going into the yard of his father's residence on Dundas Street, followed him, saw him climb the fence with a "hunk of beef." The man was caught and given 30 days in jail.

But that wasn't so bad for a town whose people lived in sin and shame as the editor pointed out in another column.

On the lighter side, Trenton Masons set off across the ice to attend a special lodge meeting in Consecon, and got lost, so had to return home. Fred Cousins, fishing through the ice in Moira Bay, caught a 3-lb. maskinonge. J. Parker Thomas was elected head of the County of Hastings Law Library Association, while to get a word in here about hockey, Belleville beat Deseronto 12-1 for possession of the Corby Cup, and no names were mentioned.

A carload of flour for Charles Smith & Sons was placed on the canning factory siding and that night three bags of the flour were stolen. One side of the car was sealed, the other wasn't. It was the sealed side that was forced. And before leaving for Toronto Frank Ellis was presented with a silver locket at Dickson parlors by the management and staff of the George Ritchie & Co. store.

And to cap it all a Huntingdon farmer was telling the editor that this was the best year the farmers ever had, good prices for everything.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

MENTAL ATTITUDE HELPS IN CONQUERING PROBLEM OF BAD SKIN

There is nothing I can add to the following letter. I've only left out a little of it because of space.

"Dear Dr. Molner: In yourarticle to "women with hair on face", you left out the most important thing.

"Do what you can to remove it or bleach it, and then forget it. Beauty really is more than skin deep.

"A woman wrote to you that 'this problem is ruining my existence. She is wrong. Her attitude toward the problem is ruining her existence.

"I not only have hair on my face (and have had for years, since my teens) but in addition I had lupus which badly scarred my face . . . And tuberculer glands, when I was a child, scarred my neck and breasthone.

"I couldn't get a job after I graduated from college, my face was so crusted with the lupus scabs. My marks were high enough.

"The break came when I realized I must do something not to the hairs or scars or scabs, but to me. I grew up not only afte; dark, and even white then I got my degree and open up and let me through when I met anyone. That was one to my self-confidence. I became self assured and the psychosis began to clear. Now my skin is bright sunlight, and when anyone looked my way I told myself, 'They aren't looking at you, but at the beautiful child with you.' Slowly I could stand to have people see my scabbed and scarred face.

"I had studied for religious education. I had sent out 80 applications for a job and was turned down by all. Then a temporary pastor persuaded my church to hire me to be the children's and women's work there until a regular minister was obtained.

I took the job knowing parents would not send me for their children (I had checked with the doctor to find there was no need for them) but I kept a safe distance from them. It took effort, for I love children very much.

HIRED TO PREACH, TOO

"When winter came and ministers could not get through from the city, I was hired to preach as well as to teach. I simply didn't have time to think of how I looked. Toward spring I was introduced to a young couple who went there to see if the church would want to have me. It was five hours after I remembered my face was not like others. I laughed — because then I knew I had won the real battle.

"Five years later I was interviewed for a place in a very large city, and had 69 men by one of the top men — because of my face. After the interview he said, 'Get her if you can. No one, after the first time, will ever remember that her face is different, because she doesn't know it.'

"The scabs are long gone. The scars are there but no one gives a second look. A couple I knew well for months never said that I had the hair and once when I mentioned it, they were incredulous. They hadn't noticed it. They had become they saw me. Personality is far more important than scars or excess hair or any skin blemish, — M.O."

"Dear Dr. Molner: I, too, have arthritis but for five months I have been taking plain gelatin and the pain is gone. The joints of my fingers have not swollen any more. I have told everyone I know that is bothered with arthritis and each one that tried it has been relieved. Please if you are in a position to make a thorough scientific test of this, I would be grateful. — Mrs. L. T."

I'm glad to hear of your study of just that — and the only valid answer we can come up with. Too many people are low in protein in their diet, and gelatin is high in protein. This is not a cure-all for arthritis, but for those whose diet lacks protein, the gelatin will help. As a matter of fact, it will help a lot of people with hair, brittle nails, fatigue, and often what I'd call "the vague feel-bads."

Few Husbands Help in House

Guelph Mercury

Does your wife insist that other men are more helpful about the house than you are?

If so, you may be inclined to contemplate the facts and figures uncovered by University of Michigan researchers in a survey of 1,000 middle-class Detroit homes.

The investigation disclosed that six out of ten married men in the sample never had helped with the dishes nor got their own breakfasts even occasionally.

Only 15 per cent were found to lend a hand with the house cleaning. Mother is also primarily responsible for such tasks as supervising the children, buying the groceries, cooking and keeping family correspondence up to date.

If you do help the good lady now and then you're the exception rather than the rule. It is to count herself singularly blessed.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is being predicted both by sportsmen as well as by nature lovers that within ten or fifteen years hunting licence will be issued only to experienced hunters with proof of that fact, and to members of recognized sportsmen's or naturalists' organizations that will certify the applicant has been a member in good standing for a specified period, indoctrinated with the principles of sportsmanship and a proper appreciation of, and regard for, wild life.

Jack A. Livingston, executive director of the Audubon Society of Canada, recently reported a situation near a small thriving industrial Ontario city which shall be nameless, in which there is a goodly population of vigorous men who like to take a gun out on weekends and hunt the neighboring fields, woodlots and beaches. In this city also is a thriving branch of the Audubon Society. It pleases it looking rather than killing. In a recent shoot of one half a mile of beach near their community they collected the fabulous total of 23 red-breasted sandpipers, 19 pectoral sandpipers, 2 killdeer plover, 1 long-eared owl, 1 sandering, 8 black-bellied plover, 9 horned grebes, 1 bonaparte gull, 1 little billed gulls, 1 Bonaparte's gull, 1 great blue heron, 2 red-throated loons, 1 hooded merganser.

"Can even Englishmen," asks Mr. Livingston, "think of a reason why gun licences should be issued to people with falsehood or no trigger-happy as that?"

The lid is slowly coming down.

What to Expect After a Coronary

H. Garfield Kelly, M.D. F.R.C.P. Associate Professor of Medicine Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Article 7

If a heart attack struck you down in the street at your job, when your responsibilities were at their height, it would surely alter your perspective about the future. And if it developed quickly and unexpectedly, as is so often the case, you would suddenly be confronted with all sorts of decisions about your job, your family and your other obligations.

It helps a good deal in planning your future to understand precisely your problem. You should know, for instance, that the coronary arteries are vitally arteries which nourish your heart, and that these arteries harden and roughen with advancing years, often to become plugged with blood clot.

It is this plugging of an artery that is called coronary thrombosis. When it occurs, a patch of heart muscle is damaged, and then must heal by a process of scarring that takes about six weeks or so. The size of the scar and the length of time required for it to form will naturally depend upon the size of the plugged artery.

During this period your doctor will want you at rest to reduce the demands on your heart, and if facilities permit, he will want you in hospital to receive drugs which prevent further blood clotting, and to guide you carefully through a period when serious complications can develop.

By the time the scar is well formed you should be out of hospital, free from complaints, unaware in fact, that you have a heart. In the course of the next month or two you should be back on the job.

PLENTY OF RESERVE

Your heart will naturally not be as good as new, because the damage it has suffered will reduce its pumping capacity to a degree dependent upon the size of the scar; but if your heart has been an average one, your heart should have plenty of reserve to permit normal activities. This means that have can return to your old job and your normal way of life with only certain limitations. The more stressful activities such as play ing vigorous tennis, watching exciting-packed football games or other spectacles which excite you unduly, should be eliminated. You may need to be more tempered in your habits, in drinking, smoking, eating to excess, working regularly and too long, or simply relaying too hard. But the vast majority of your recreational, social and business activities should be resumed.

This point cannot be overstressed, since time and time again a rigid withdrawal from interests nurtured and cultivated over the years has brought about unhappiness, frustration, and a degree of emotional upheval, which harms the heart more than the pleasurable activities that have been discontinued.

Your coronary may have been the first indication that your arteries, like everyone's, are hardening and becoming diseased as you grow older.

What factors cause this change in our arteries, and why is it becoming more frequent in recent years? As in most diseases, inheritance has a role to play. Your arteries mirror, to some extent the state of your ancestors' vessels. To be a male is to be plagued with this problem to a much greater degree than the opposite sex. If you are afflicted with other diseases such as diabetes or high blood pressure, arteriosclerosis is likely to progress in your arteries to a more serious degree, particularly if you become overweight.

REDUCE WEIGHT

You will have to accept your inheritance and your sex as inborn characteristics, but you can reduce if you are overweight, and see to it that your diabetes or your hypertension, or indeed any other disease which you may have, is properly managed.

You will undoubtedly have read a good deal in recent years about the undesirability of eating fats. Medical scientists have become greatly concerned about this question and are trying to find out why it is that arteriosclerotic vessels contain fat in their walls, why patients with arteriosclerosis tend to have increased amounts of fat in their blood, and why arteriosclerosis develops more commonly in people who eat fatty foods.

If you are overweight, your doctor will certainly advise you to eat less fat in order to reduce, but even if your weight is normal he may deem it desirable for you to eat less fat in order to lower the fat in your blood. Moreover, further study may show that the kind of fat you eat is important. For instance, you can lower the blood fat if you eat corn oil or some other vegetable fat, and raise it if you eat butter fat or some other animal fat.

However, what effect this would play on your tendency to have a coronary remains to be proven. Your doctor, therefore, is on sound ground when he advises you to reduce your weight, and to limit your intake of both calories and fat. He is waiting for more evidence before he prescribes a certain kind of fat in your diet.

Students of arteriosclerosis are puzzled by its increasing incidence in the last few decades. Instead of looking for analysis the changes in our way of life which might be held responsible, they eat richer foods and more of them, but we also exercise less, drive our automobiles in greater numbers in the cities, riding to and from work, instead of walking as our grandfathers did, and taking an increasing interest in spectator sports than participation in them. These habits all tend to increase our weight, reduce the efficiency of our muscles, and may contribute to the rising incidence of arteriosclerosis. There is, therefore, nothing to gain and possibly something to lose by giving up your golf or your swimming and boating, when these activities are carried out in moderation.

NO SPECIFIC DRUG

Unfortunately, no drug is available which acts specifically to prevent arteriosclerosis. The best substitute available is a drug to reduce the tendency to complicating thrombosis. Such a drug is called an anticoagulant, and drugs of this type are used widely in the first few weeks after a heart attack to prevent further thrombotic complications. Sometimes they may be continued for months or years after the event. However, difficulties of one sort or another make it impossible to prescribe them for long periods of time, and unfortunately he has had a heart attack.

Someone writing about this problem five years from now will be able to add further words of advice based upon further additions to our knowledge of arteriosclerosis. You will benefit from such advances only if you keep in touch with your doctor at periodic intervals. Periodic examination not only helps to avoid further trouble, but ensures that you get the most up-to-date treatment.

Take Note Retired City Slickers, Real Estate Cheap in Yellville

By THOMAS COLLINS

A remarkable document for city slickers of retirement age has just come in from a town called Yellville, Ark.

It tells of 120 acres of wooded land — on the shores of Lake Bull Shoals, that can be had for $1,500 — $25 down and $20 a month. It tells of a three-bedroom home, with garden and poultry house, and near downtown Yellville, that can be had for $4,250 cash.

The document comes from Mr. and Mrs. Victor Worsley of Boonville, who have been down to Arkansas and purchased some of this property for their own retirement.

Why anybody living in a town called Boonville would want to move, I don't know. Why anybody would choose Yellville, Ark., which I never heard of before, I also don't know. Except for the document, and for the conviction of Mr. and Mrs. Worsley that this area of northern Arkansas is paradise.

The document, which is an advertising brochure of a Yellville real estate man, has this to say: "A beautiful 3½ acres overlooking Wilcox Creek (what an address that would be back in the city!). Fine hunting and fishing. Suitable for sportsman's paradise, $500 — $10 down and $10 monthly."

"Twenty acres, south of Crooked Creek. Excellent mineral possibilities, $250 — $10 down and $10 monthly."

"A nice two-bedroom modern home in Yellville. Good neighborhood. Few blocks to post office. Nice yard and garden, $4,250 — $1,250 down and $35 monthly."...

There were two pages of this sort of thing. So I phoned one of the big citizens of Yellville, Dr. H. L. Klemme, a medical doctor, and asked him what about it. He said it was all true, that he himself recently bought 120 acres with a cabin on it for $900.

I asked him how a couple from the city would fare if they came to Yellville to retire.

"Very well," he said. "But I think they would have an income of as much as $250 a month. Land is cheap. So is housing. But living costs generally are about the same as you'll find anywhere else in the U. S. To be citizens of distance they should have the $250. Some people get it on $125 a month. That's not enough."

Dr. Klemme pointed out that Yellville, combined with a neighboring town, has a population of about 3,000. It's about 120 miles north of Little Rock, close to the Missouri border, has an average temperature of 65 degrees, and has an average growing season of 190 to 205 days a year.

He said Yellville had a broad-

Old Houses of the Quinte Area

By Viva Richmond Graham

"I can well believe that story," said the friend who knew Lord Strathcona as a child, "for his real interest was—people. It was said in highest authority in government circles, that Lord Strathcona did more than any other man, in official capacity, to cement friendship between Canada and Britain. He had fine homes in Montreal, London and Scotland. He entertained a great deal, and he possessed one quality to a remarkable degree, namely, kindness.

"I remember during one of our visits with him in England, my parents were invited to some affair, which meant I would be left alone. Though included, Lord Strathcona refused to attend, stayed and with me in the garden, then later, he asked me if I would like to see the ghost that lived in the house. Delighted, I said, yes, and it was a room full of mirrors—and then ghost, of course, was one's own reflection.

I was enchanted. What could be more gallant, than that to make a child happy. I've never forgotten that."

Come now, to the fifteen-roomed mansion on Drummond Street, which cost Lord Mount Stephen six hundred thousand dollars to build in 1880 over a period of three years. Today it is private, but, when entered the most richly appointed in North America. Millions are spent and a half dollars. Does this give any special clue concerning its former owner's taste or intellect? If so what could it be?

Pass through the perfectly-matched, massive mahogany five-inch outer doors of the Stephen mansion, covered entrance, note the European imported stained glass windows on either side and over the arched doorway enscrolled with:

"True friendship's laws by love are given Welcome the coming, speed the parting guest."

AUSTRIAN CRAFTSMAN

The carving was done by a celebrated Austrian craftsman, whose secret of his art was buried with him at his death, over three hundred years ago. Then observe such rooms as the drawing rooms, the library, the den, the dining room, the up-stairs boudoir, with its original wall covering of soft beige rat-stitch velvet, priced at twenty-five dollars a square foot seventy years ago, with little lots of its fresh and delicate beauty, all and each with their exquisite hand-carved, elaborate affairs, with inlaid, bevelled mirrors, with tiny drawers and solid brass accessories. Stand silently, for a moment in the drawing room with its masterpiece of a fireplace done in Italian onyx, once exhibited at the Chicago World's Fair in 1897; a room light, graceful and blonde as a beautiful maiden, a miracle of carved, panelled satin-wood, and the answer is obvious as the secretary of the club explains:

"You see, Lord Mount Stephen had a great passion for wood for twelve years before building this house, he collected, and seasoned rare and lovely woods. Each room is finished with a different imported wood panels and ceiling like satin-wood, oak, walnut, mahogany, marble and onyx, as well, from England, Europe, Africa and the Orient. All is exquisitely hand carved on the spot by skilled wood-carvers brought especially from Scotland."

Over the desk, a neat black framed card of information about the wood therein. Over in a small reception room reads:

of English bury butt walnut (which is taken immediately above the root of the trees), with Bird's Eye Maple fluted edgings. The fireplace is of rosewood."

GOLD-PLATED HINGES

The Secretary continues, as he leads the way and indicates:

"Every door, each twice the size of modern doors and at least four inches thick, all swing noiselessly on gold - plated hinges without benefit of nail or screw. Note that each has four inch fingers covered with two karat gold on both sides. The locks, the knobs, not to mention the thresholds are all of gold.

"The windows still slide in their grooves perfectly. See!" He places a loving hand on the surface of the marble sills as he adds: "You'll notice all the sills have carefully selected marble to match the woodwork as nearly as possible. These accompanying massive shutters are perfect masterpieces of the cabinet-maker's art.

"While the halls and stairways are of Cuban mahogany, the floors are all oak with walnut trim. Sometime ago, we employed a man to clean and polish the woodwork for a thousand dollars. He tackled it single handed. It took him a whole year to do it. But the result was worth it. I was told in addition that it was when first placed, over seventy years ago."

To descend the carved staircase down to the main hall with its elaborate, hand-painted walls of gleaming red mahogany, bathed in the colored light from the hand-glass windows is to sense an atmosphere that is unique, and to realize that the past with vistas of a daily round of gracious living here, against the wood and warf into an intricate pattern with their homes, churches, occupations, interests and personalities, within the sterling frame of freedom — their gift to us.

But possession always bears a penalty, in the case of trees, it is uncertainty. Thus, as with most legacies, it must be treasured and renewed by each generation, lest it be lost.

It is almost a foregone conclusion, however, that Lee Girills, riding members since the general election June 10th., will be the ultimate choice of the convention and possibly will be the only person whose name will go before the convention. A total of 308 riding delegates will be entitled to vote at the convention.

Mrs. W. A. Holbert, 29 Lewis Street, is today observing her 90th birthday, and in spite of advancing years, enjoys good health and fine eyesight, and keeps up with the times. Unfortunately, for the past month, she has been confined to bed with a broken ankle, which has been her first setback.

Pr. Ed.-Belleville Club Marks 15th Anniversary

The February meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Club was held at the Y.M.C.A. with a fair attendance in spite of laid-up cars of the many women drivers.

Mrs. Sharpe presided and extended a hearty welcome to all.

A short business period followed. Several paid dues and a roll call of members was taken.

The program was convened by Mrs. Ford Campbell with Mrs. Weese presiding.

Two lovely solos were contributed by Mrs. A. Downes, accompanied by Mrs. E. Hubbs.

"Two Films, Impressions and fan scenes were shown, the first entitled "Newfoundland, Sentinel of the Atlantic," and the second "The Jasper Highway to the Columbia Ice Fields."

The club is deeply indebted to Mr. William Campbell of Holloway St. Church for operating the projector.

Mrs. Fred Parliament extended thanks to Mrs. Downes, Mrs. Hubbs and Mrs. Campbell.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Fox's group: Mesdames Allen, Weese, M. Dempsey, Insley, Barber, Parliament, LaRue, Eaton, MacFarlane and A. Morden.

In celebrating the club's 15th anniversary, two angel food cakes, decorated with red hearts —were made by Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Parliament. "Happy Birthday" was then sung and the candles blown out by the retiring president Mrs. Weese, namesake, with the newly elected president cut the first piece.

Plans were discussed for the club dinner to be held at 7 p.m. early in March at the YMCA.

'Arctic Missions' By Word, Slides Told to W.A.'s

Thursday afternoon the W.A.'s of Christ Church, St. Thomas' Anglican Church, and St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill met in the Memorial parish hall and enjoyed a fine, illustrated talk on "Arctic Missions," given by Bishop Greenwood of the Yukon Diocese.

Bishop Greenwood, who was introduced by the Rector of St. Thomas', Canon A. S. McConnell, showed pictures of his parishes in the Yukon Territory, giving his own narration, bringing out how great good that had already been accomplished, as well as the dire need for nurses and teachers in the schools, there.

Mrs. H. Dilnutt presided at the piano for hymn selections.

Mrs. G. G. Wright, of Christ Church W. A., on behalf of the assembly, tendered appreciative thanks to Bishop Greenwood for his enlightening talk, and Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, rector of Christ Church, closed the meeting.

The ladies of St. Thomas' W.A. served tea.

NEED LIGHT FOR HORSE

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Elba Wilson, 18, was cited Friday night by police for riding a horse without lights. A policeman ordered Wilson and his horse to headquarters, where he was told to put a light on the horse's tail or the saddle next time he rides after dark. Both he and the horse were released.

Motto of Club Act Young And Stay Young

MONTREAL (CP) — Motto of the 35-member Grandmothers' Club of southwest Verdun might be "act young and stay young."

The group, which includes two great-grandmothers, meets twice weekly in the Southwark Lane YMCA in Verdun for a five-hour session of calisthenics, badminton and swimming.

Dean of the club is 73-year-old Mrs. T. W. Powell, who has been attending meetings continuously for 24 years. "If I didn't turn up, people would think I was sick," she said.

CHAMPION DIVER

"When I resumed my membership last fall, my husband told me it was time I gave it up. But I said that as long as I could walk I would attend. When I have to go in a wheelchair I'll stop."

Mrs. Powell is the club's champion diver and has passed several life - saving tests in swimming. She is a good badminton player and an enthusiastic participant in the half-hour of exercises that starts each session.

"You're only as old as you feel," she said. "I've been very busy to decide whether I have arthritis or rheumatism."

Mrs. Alice Goodwin, one of the two great-grandmothers, said she is 67 and it's punctuated by swim a few years ago.

It was too busy raising three children to take up sports.

But now I can teach my grandchildren a few tricks.

Mrs. Mary Jubin, the other great-grandmother, has six children and 16 grandchildren. She says her housework goes more smoothly since she started to join club meetings.

"I work twice as hard and organized at work better because of those meetings. People say I'm getting old. Well, it doesn't. It begins at 50."

STRENUOUS PROGRAM

Mrs. Judith Prince, YMCA girl's secretary and a leader of the club, said the members "really fool about their exercises."

"We're working on a program that would be plenty strenuous for women half the age of members. But everyone thrives on it. They're one of the most enthusiastic groups I have ever worked with."

The meetings begin in the morning with calisthenics and then extend, to an hour in the Y's swimming pool. A break follows for lunch, comprising in most instances tea and a box of sandwiches brought along.

After lunch, activities move to the gymnasium where badminton is the favorite game. After two or three workouts, the members usually tackle bowling.

"We make sure we're home in plenty of time to prepare supper for our husbands," said one member. "And we're both fit and healthier than if we'd spent the day fretting away at housework."

Nearly 300 Women Meet For World Day of Prayer

"For so the whole round world is every way Bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

Yesterday afternoon, on the 25th day of Lent, for the 39th consecutive year the women of the world united in an unbroken chain of prayer which encircled the earth, beginning in the east at sunrise and ending in the west at sunset. So, with their sisters of other lands the women of Belleville met in Bridge Street United Church to pray for the peace of the world, using as their theme, "The Bread of Life," adapted from the service prepared by the women of Australia.

As the congregation assembled in reverent silence soft music provided an appropriate background, as did the symbolic cross and the white candles which adorned the front of this lovely old church.

Mrs. F. C. Adsett, president of Bridge Street United Church W.M.S., gave the call to worship, and Mrs. James Cordes of Holloway Street United Church, read the 95th Psalm as the congregation joining alternately. Mrs. Wesley Gaswell, with a good on-the-Hill, took the call to praise; Mrs. R. Parson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian, the call to repentance; Mrs. M. Johns of Trinity United Church, the call to dedication, and that of the call of intercession was taken by Mrs. H. H. Godden, of Christ Church; of the Free Methodist Church, Mrs. A. E. Smith, of Calvary Temple by Miss. H. Hawley of the Wesleyan Methodist by Mrs. I. Elliott, of Eastminster by Mrs. J. Willis, of Victoria Ave. Baptist by Mrs. A. Orr, of St. Thomas' Anglican, Mrs. S. E. Morton.

Mrs. H. M. Davis, wife of the pastor of Bridge Street United, gave an impressive message, basing her talk on the theme, "The Bread of Life," saying in part that Jesus could supply this bread of Life to all that would upon him. Life depends on more than physical bread; it depends upon the word of God, and on prayer. Doubt paralyzes the spirit, but God's bread enables one to live courageously and to fight the good fight of faith.

Previous to the offertory, which was taken by Mrs. D. Rollins, Mrs. Charles Hyde, Mrs. H. Parker, Mrs. Twiddy, Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. C. Massey and Mrs. E. MacDonald, Mrs. George Elarby favored with a most beautiful rendering of the hymn "Take My Life and Let It be, Consecrated, Lord, to Thee."

The hymns used included: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Break Thou the Bread of Life," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," ing with the well-loved hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," with Mrs. D. Hunter of College Street United Church giving the benediction, "Until the hope of a better world, a worthier life, a truer brotherhood and a sweeter thanksgiving, inspire us all with patient confidence to labor and to wait may grace, mercy and peace from God the Father and Jesus Christ our Spirit, be with us all evermore. Amen."

There were approximately 300 women present; more had been expected, but those who did avail themselves of this opportunity to meet together in prayer for the peace of the world, were blessed.

Queen of Hearts Ball Highlight Of Season

The Annual "Queen of Hearts" Ball, sponsored by St. Michael's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League of Belleville, was the highlight of the social pre-lenten season. In the intermission Mr. McGeechie was presented with the escort of the Queen of Hearts for 1957, Miss Thompson.

Miss Thompson was crowned queen by His Worship Mayor Gerald Hicks and was the recipient of Red Roses from the League President, Mrs. R. J. Egan. As a memento of the Ball and her coronation as Queen she received a silver pencil with a small heart engraved with "Queen of Hearts" 1958.

Mr. F. Langabeer and Mr. D Callaghan were ushers. The convener of this gala and successful event was Mrs. J. Gallagher.

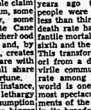
T & T enters a plea for a restraining hand on the numbers of special weeks. There are already all and sundry in the year. I seems that the most important fifty-two concerns a spiritual and charitarian needs should be reserved for special week-ing dedication and celebration. If there must be overlapping let it be with restraint and dignity, not vulgarity. It is to be hoped that the worthwhile is not tainted with the blatancy of commercial promotion of the unimportant. Surely White Cane Week, Education, Boy Scout & Girl Guide weeks are entitled to priority.

This week has been set aside for Brotherhood and Boy Scout Week. Surely the world is desperately in need of greater understanding and brotherhood; there are few finer movements to encourage both than the Boy Scout and Girl Guide groups. On March 2nd in a special ceremony at BCIVS, will be inaugurally honored by having Education Week for our province officially opened here. Surely too, education which is occupying the minds of educators from around the world in Ottawa this week is deserving of a special week set aside for an awakening of public interest. How many of the youth of the nation is educated decides in very large measure the future growth and prosperity of Canada.



The sole objective of the original purpose of special weeks is not to collect money nor is it to promote, for profit, some commercial project whose sole claim to attention is some whim, some quirk, some pet hobby, some subtle promotion. While these are quickly and without effort end to those less fortunate and, by comparison, more selfish creates the desire in men to share with their fellowmen a small share of their greater good fortune.

Education Week, for instance, hopes to stir us from a lethargy which sleeps on the assumption that, because schools are bigger and better, there are no problems. Those people who dedicate their lives to education know that the problems and the temptations are now numerous and more stealthy reached today than ever before. They hope to make us aware and, in our awareness, to help them in one of the most urgent problems facing us from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Baby-Sitting Television Set Now Florida's Latest Wonder

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

One of our travel hobbies, like "collecting" ingenious r o a d-side enterprises, is "collecting" motels.

Perhaps this is because our travel memories date back to when motels were "modern cabins" with two bedsteads, somewhat floors with drain holes in the middle, and light bulbs hanging from the ceiling on cords. Heat wasn't necessary because they closed for the winter.

To take this pastime seriously, you have to make at least one pilgrimage a year to southern Florida where, if the motel was not born, it certainly grew up, leaving and scrabbling its way, year by year, to a distinction probably never dreamed of by the first farmer who got the idea of turning his tool shed into an overnight room for travelling salesmen.

Here the joiced-unit motel, the swimming pool, air conditioning, and room service have crowded into their own, settling a style which is now commonplace.

Extravagantly designed, stories buildings, elaborately landscaped grounds, all complete with French chefs. Soon only that last bastion of distinction between hotel and motel — the parking — remained. In Florida the motel hotel company found a useful one for a resort hotel.

THIS SEASON'S 'MOST'

Just about the time we'd decided the ultimate had been reached and nothing more could be done to top it along came the Sputniks. This changed everybody's thinking about ultimates in general, so we decided we'd cozied to Miami again to see what the "most" could be up to now.

Here imagination, ingenuity, and daring are merely requirements for survival in the resort business, and the genius represented by last year's Miami Beach Fontainey this year, "Sic transit gloria."

Anyway, the most this year, Dad, is a place called the Beau Rivage. It's a 300-unit, 3-pool complete with two restaurants, a night club, Noro Morales, dancing and entertaining, looking for all the world like the hotels that surrounded it. And this televised baby sitting, complete with closed-circuit cameras that cost $3,000 each, you've got to see.

Instead of calling the desk to send up a baby sitter, you dial a call for a camera. This is hooked up to a battery of monitors on the desk of a live sitter or two, who must be very uncomfortable with all those prying eyes and ears staying up all night to stave-un-believing that the electronic whatsis in their room.

Television here is also adapted to the growing closed-circuit way by employing a channel t h a t lets the day planner watch what was passing the rooms, but this way lies madness.

Though much must be said for the this-year's-hotel concept, may we also say a word for last year's

Skirts Shorter, Chemise Favored In New Fashions

By MARY FRAN BURKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — It's the free look—uncluttered and unfitted—for spring and summer.

That's the dictum of fashion experts who assembled here for opening of a Toronto department store Thursday.

Highlights of the preview are: Skirts are shorter—16½ to 17½ inches from the ground with the chemise, relaxed lines; dresses are unfitted with the chemise favored as the slimmest look; coats have a new "spindel" line.

Paisley lead the print parade with various shades of blue the most popular. Ice orange, sun yellow, glowing apricot, mint green and soft pink are also favorite shades.

PRINTS TAKE OVER

Prints in silks and cottons take over the fabric scene. Crepes, cotton batiste and boucle also have a reappearance.

Several coats were modelled in the collection. Most have a fitted back, bowed low down. Hemlines are tapered here and low-placed yokes or banded hiplines.

Suits were shown with blouson backs over tapered skirts. Some jackets are cut moving in at the hips by pocket-and-belt detail.

Dressy varied in style. Some had the straight chemise cut while others were banded in front with a belt.

For late afternoon, a lacy black dress featured a straight front with a side drape. It was worn with gay, tapered skirts.

Chemise separates are the big news in sportswear. A navy knit jacket crepe wrap — around skirt with brass buttons was worn with a powder blue knit sleeveless shell.

Chemise ease is the keynote for footwear this spring. Heels are smaller and curve far back under the foot to balance shorter skirt lengths. Tapered or needlepoint narrowness.

Hats have softer, springer and more feminine lines. Many are draped into folds, while others are found in brims and roller styles.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

WHO TAKES CHARGE OF RINGS IN DOUBLE-RING CEREMONY?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a double-ring ceremony does the best man present both rings to the minister? — Bride-to-be

If the bride and groom wish, the best man may be given charge of both rings, handing each to the minister as he requests in the ceremony. Or very often the best man is given charge of the bride's ring, and the maid (or matron) of honor is given charge of the groom's ring.

WHO PROVIDES CORSAGES FOR THE GRANDMOTHERS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that you always advise that the groom should provide the corsages for "the mothers," bride's mother and his own mother. But what about grandmothers? My maternal grandmother will be a guest at the wedding, and the groom's paternal grandmother will also be a wedding guest. The groom has asked me to ask you if it would not be a nice idea for him to provide corsages for them? — R. R.

Yes, a nice idea indeed — and the customary gesture for the groom to make to these important wedding guests.

SHOULD SHE SEND SHOWER GIFT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one is invited to a shower, not because of illness, I cannot attend, is it necessary to send a gift? — E. W.

When you cannot attend a shower because of illness, it is not necessary for you to send a gift, but it would seem a natural gesture for you to make to the guest of honor if you are devoted to her and if you had planned to go to the shower. But if you hadn't wanted to go to the shower, had regretted the invitation, then it is not at all necessary for you to send a gift.

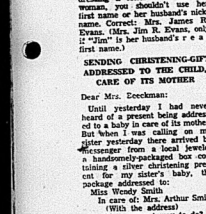
"MRS. JAMES" . . . NOT "MRS. MARY" OR "MRS. JIM"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When addressing a friendly letter, which of the following forms is considered correct: Mrs. Mary Smith or Mrs. Jim R. Evans?

It makes no difference whether the letter is a "friendly" letter or a business or professional letter, the envelope should be addressed with the advance's formal name. For example, when you are addressing a letter to a married woman, you shouldn't use her first name or her husband's nickname. Correct: Mrs. James R. Evans. (Not: Mrs. R. Evans, only it "is" her husband's r e a l first name.)

SENDING CHRISTENING-GIFT ADDRESSED TO THE CHILD, CARE OF ITS MOTHER



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Until yesterday I had never heard of a present being addressed to a baby in care of its mother. But when I was calling on my sister yesterday there arrived by messenger from a local jeweler a handsomely-packaged box containing a silver christening present for my sister's baby, the package addressed to:

Miss Wendy Smith
In care of: Mrs. Arthur Smith
(With the address)

Is this a correct way to do?
— H. R.

Yes . . . this is a correct way, and often done. It is a particularly good form to use in sending a christening or other present that has been engraved with a baby child's name or initials. Makes it all very Wendy-personal.

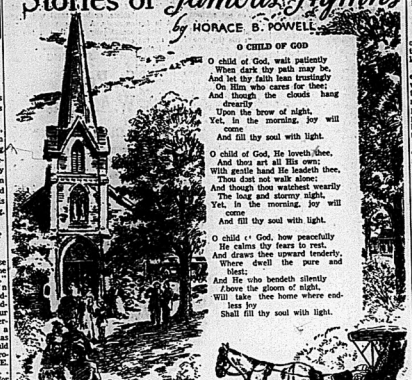
Stories of Famous Hymns



by HORACE B. POWELL

O CHILD OF GOD

O child of God, wait patiently
When dark thy path may be,
And let thy faith be trustingly
On Him who cares for thee;
And though the clouds hang drearily
Upon the brow of night,
Yet, in the morning, Joy will come
And fill thy soul with light.

O child of God, He loveth thee,
And never, at all His own;
With gentle hand He leadeth thee,
Thou dost not walk alone;
And though thou waitest wearily
The long and stormy night,
Yet, in the morning, Joy will come
And fill thy soul with light.

O child of God, He loveth thee,
He calms thy fears to rest,
And draws thee upward tenderly,
Where dwell the pure and blest;
And He who bendeth silently
Above the gloom of night,
Will take thee home where endless joy
Shall fill thy soul with light.

When Fanny Crosby, the blind hymnist, was visiting in Northfield, Massachusetts during the summer of 1885, her friend and partner in hymn-making, Ira D. Sankey, brought her a tune for her latest hymn. Sometimes when she was called to such a task, the inspiration to write came quickly, but this time Fanny Crosby was not in the mood for verses.

"I'll try it tomorrow", she told Mr. Sankey. Next day, true to her promise, she sent her friends off for a ride while she stayed home to work on her poem. She finished it before they returned.

QUESTION:

I would like you to help in calorie counting . . . I have 2 calorie guides but both have left out something. I wonder about the following foods . . . Mrs. Ken McN.

. . . enclosing a recipe that Heather and I concocted this last November. It seems that we had 2 or 3 applesauce cakes, and they rather ran their course, so after pumpkin pie time we had some canned pumpkin going agoing . . . Heather suggested using pumpkin instead of applesauce in the cake.

PUMPCAKE:

(Courtesy Heather and Edith)
One-half cup shortening, 1½ cups sifted brown sugar, 1 well beaten egg, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup walnuts broken, ¾ cup canned pumpkin blended well with ½ cup evaporated milk, 1¾ cups all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon allspice.

Flour fruit and nuts with ¼ cup of the measured flour. Mix sanfo as for butter cake (Note Emem: Cream shortening first, then beat in sugar and egg.) Mix nately add dry ingredients with the pumpkin-and-milk-blend. Bake in buttered loaf or angel tin at 325 deg. fa. 1¼ to 1½ hours. Bakes quicker in sheet pan tin. Can rye flour be used in muffins? Edith M.

ANSWER:

Thank you Heather and Edith. Use the rye flour in Boston Brown.

BREAD:

Mix and sift together 1 cup each cornmeal, cornmeal and whole wheat flour, ¾ tablespoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt. Add to them ¾ cup light molasses and 2 cups sour milk. Stir until mixed and turn into buttered moulds or baking powder tins. Containers must be covers while are buttered and not filled more than 2-3 full. Steam; or bake in oven in steamer, replenishing water as needed. As you know baking powder tins, or one lb. and pail answer purpose, I am mailing you my recipe for rye bread.

LETTUCE:

Captain Ivany Addresses Holloway W.A.

The ladies of Holloway St. Church's W.A. held their February meeting in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. Wilson presiding.

Mrs. Wilson welcomed the members and visitors and read a poem, "Help Us to Help Each Other," which was in keeping with Brotherhood Week.

Mrs. Outingdyke's group had charge of the worship service. Mrs. Way read the Scripture lesson, Matthew 6: 1-15.

Mrs. Outingdyke gave the meditation based on "Prayer." "Life is hurried Today but we should take time to pray often in regard have a quiet time in prayer."

"Dark days come to us all; let us analyze our thoughts; are we selfish or unkind? We must pray without ceasing and God will direct us constantly. Think praise and prayer thoughts as we go about our daily tasks.

"Prayer is not always answered as we expect, but God controls our lives through prayer. Let us get lost in prayer this text. It ran something like this: How much of your life would you give for a million dollars?

In those days a million dollars was taken as about the highest monetary symbol that ordinary folk could comprehend. Of course, in these days of scores of billions in government boggle, a million dollars is hardly pocket change. But to a minister it is still a tidy little sum!

The old preacher began by asking, "Would you give up a hand for a million dollars?" Yes, I thought I could get along pretty well with one hand and a million dollars. Then he asked, "Would you give up a leg also?" T h a t made me think a little more carefully.

Then he stepped up the exchange still further. He asked, "Would you give up your eyesight for a million dollars?" I hesitated at that.

Then came this question: "If you were in a lifeboat with a million dollars in gold and the gold was causing the boat to sink, would you throw the gold overboard to save your life?" And I thought to myself, I guess I would.

Then the preacher pressed his query home. He told us that our physical-liver are a small consideration compared to our immortal souls. Think, he said, about eternity. Then he said we couldn't figure to describe the extent of eternity.

ETERNITY JUST BEGUN

He said if a bird were to come from another planet to our earth just once in a million years and were to carry away just one grain of sand at a time, when this bird had carried away the earth, eternity would just be begun.

That figure of speech h a s haunted my mind ever since. Even a man thinks of his life's welfare throughout all eternity, he said. "Why, I wouldn't be poor and if I were to gain the whole world and lose that."

Jesus told the parable of the rich farmer who was planning large barns for his growing harvests. Feeling his future to be secure, the farmer said to his soul, "Take your ease, eat, drink and be merry." But God said to him, "Fool, this night your soul is required of you: and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?"

Then Jesus added this comment, "So is he who lays up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God."

When a man dies, people often ask, "What was he worth?" The Scripture answer is, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord henceforth." Americans celebrate the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln. Do we measure their worth by the property they left? Washington was comparatively rich. Lincoln lived in modest circumstances. Both were honored in the service they rendered.

If we live in ways that enrich the mind and ennoble character, we can take our worth with us because personality survives the grave. And if we give ourselves to good causes, we are investing in that which carries on our work and makes us "rich toward God."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual family case. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Joan S. — My sister-in-law takes advantage of Mother.

Mother is old. Joan treats me like an invalid.

Sudden widowhood and an awareness of her own increasing age have perhaps frightened Mrs. R. V. out of taking a breather to think clearly and objectively about the next few years.

It is simply not necessary for a physically able woman to prevent herself with the two lifetimes she sees being as "an invalid" in her daughter's home or a maid-of-all-work for h e r daughter-in-law.

The choice of where to live is not nearly as important as Mrs. R.V.'s view of herself. She should recognize that, despite her widowhood, she has all the human rights and privileges she has before. She should take a normal share of responsibility in her daughter-in-law's home, but she should show in no uncertain terms that she needs "time for rest and pleasure as well" if this is not satisfactory with h e r daughter-in-law, Mrs. R. V. would be far stronger if boarding with family or living with another woman who does recognize her rights.

Possibly Mrs. R. V. could even live happily with her daughter if she insisted upon her right to take care of herself and contribute a fair share of work to the household. The need to find new friends in a strange community might stimulate her into the recognition that she is not yet a "has-been." A good share of happy living may be in front of her if she makes the effort to find it.

A Lift for Living

Taking Inventory of Ourselves

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We do not appreciate many of our possessions until we lose them or are threatened with their loss.

We take good health for granted until it is taken away. Then we see its value. We often accept the affections of loved ones as a matter of course until we are deprived of their devotion when they pass from us. We fail to prize liberty until our freedom is threatened or lost.

So it is with life itself. When our lives are endangered, we take stock of ourselves.

We have been told that recent wars have been fought to preserve the American way of life. Is our way of living worth the cost we have paid in blood and tears? What is worth dying for? What is worth living for?

Ten years ago an American said: "I lost a son in the Second World War. Then I took around me at what is happening. I wonder whether it is worth dying for."

Jesus did not talk much about the life preached no gloomy gospel. But He did ask His disciples to face up to the question of just what life is worth.

SEARCHING QUESTIONS

He put to His followers these searching questions: "What will it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own life? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his life?"

In Luke Lenten season let us take stock of ourselves by asking first, What is the world worth to our lives?

I very well remember a sermon I heard in my boyhood on and service."

Mrs. Townsend played softly "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Jose introduced the guest speaker, Captain Ivany of the Salvation Army. The captain gave a musical number on the accordion, "The Ninety and Nine," which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Ellerby favored with two solos, "O, How I Love Him" and "Into My Heart."

Captain Ivany gave an instructive and inspirational address on "Work and Mission of the Army."

"The Army is organized to combat the forces of evil in the world. It brings the spirit of Christ to those we labor among at home and abroad. The Army goes out to the unchurched and uncouraged and the downcast, helping in untold ways, thus rendering a great service to the Lord."

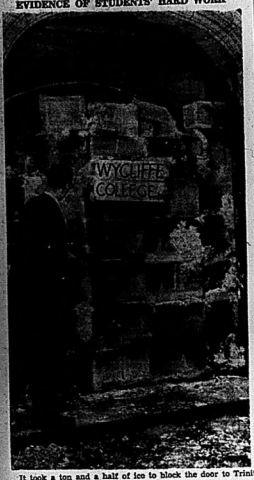
Mrs. Wilson took charge of the business part of the meeting, thanking Mrs. Outingdyke and Mrs. Way for the lovely worship service.

Many items of business were discussed and plans made for future activities. The W.A. will meet with the evening group on March 25.

The date of the bazaar was set for October with a committee of Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Outingdyke, Mrs. Oliphant and Mrs. Wilson.

MEMBERSHIP TEA

The W.A. will hold a membership tea in March. Mrs. Campbell gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Cook read thankyou notes from members and Mrs. Scott reported on flowers sent out and gave the auditor's report. It was decided to have a special thank offering at Easter time.



Mrs. Campbell expressed thanks to the speaker for the fine address and to the soloist.

After the meeting closed a social half hour was enjoyed.

EVIDENCE OF STUDENTS' HARD WORK

It took a ton and a half of ice to block the door to Trinity college, University of Toronto, but it evidently was not too much night work for students at Wycliffe college. When Trinity staff and students arrived in the morning they had a choice of going around to the back door or chopping their way through.

Garden Notes

Propagation, Care of Rex Begonias

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The rex begonia group includes many hybrids. You will find a number which include shades of green, red, or silver, veins and a narrow margins in bi-color leaves. Some have lovely clusters of flowers in shades of salmon, pink or white but usually they are grown for their handsome foliage. They make good house plants and are also suitable for porch, planter and garden if given good light but little sun.

They need re-potting whenever they become pot-bound. A lusty plan may need fresh soil twice a year. The feeding roots are on the fleshy rhizomes which lie along the surface of the soil.

A weekly spraying with tepid water applied with some force will keep them healthy and discourage pests. Include the underside of the leaf when spraying.

Too much sun will cause leaf burn, but only strong light will bring out the deep rich reds, greens and silver markings of the leaves.

We could tell you of named varieties, but it is best to go to your florist and choose from his stock what appeals to you. Or, someone in the neighborhood may be willing to give you a leaf to start your own collection. A leaf that has begun to fade on the outer edges, or is slightly damaged will do very well for propagating purposes.

Rooting them in tap water is seldom successful. You can try a little hydroponics soil-less plant culture here. There are prepared mixtures on the market, but one quart of water with one level teaspoon of any balanced plant food dissolved in it will do. Choose one that contains nitrogen, phosphorus and potash — the kind you would use in the garden. Dissolve the plant food and add one-sixteenth of a teaspoon (a pinch the size of a small pea) of permanganate of potash. This will color the water but it is a mild antibiotic. It will prevent the formation of algae and slime and the fungus that causes damping off. The druggist must mark this poison, but it was used for years in India by the missionaries to purify drinking water, and to prevent cholera. A dime will buy enough to last for years of propagating work.

This solution is good for rooting pieces of leaf cuttings of begonia and soft wood cuttings of geraniums, chrysanthemums, fuchsias and African violets. Split stems of mums half an inch. Roots will form on cut surfaces.

The begonia leaf is cut in fan shaped pieces about two inches across the top, one inch at the base and one and a half inches long. Take as many pieces as you can from the leaf. Make one or two short cuts cross the thick main ribs about three fourths of an inch up from the base, and one sixteenth of an inch deep. The cuts and raw plants will form on these shallow cuts. Place the base of the leaf cutting in the solution half an inch. If you have difficulty in keeping the cuttings erect, run a thin wire through the top of the leaf and hook over side of glass jar. See that the solution level is maintained.

When sturdy roots have developed and the plants have three leaves they are ready for transplanting. Use two and one-half inch pots. Put half an inch of crushed charcoal in each pot. For soil use a mix of two parts sand, two parts leaf mold, compost or peat moss and one part good loam. Screen this through a quarter-inch screen.

Liquid plant fertilizers, granules, tablets, or bone meal will supply nutrients. A little pinch of soot occasionally will deepen the leaf coloring.

St. Paul's W.A. Visits County Home

STIRLING — On February 19 approximately 30 people from St. Paul's W. A. Stirling, paid a visit to the County Home, Belleville, under the supervision of Mrs. Robert Patterson, president of the W. A.

Each member was asked to supply homemade cookies and these were all parcelled in cellophane bags of one dozen each, all containing nice assortments.

As the group visited the various residents, they made the presentation individually. The older people were thrilled with the idea, and appreciated both the personal visit and the special gift. Those who were not allowed pastry were given gifts of fruit instead.

At the close of the visit the group assembled in the main reception room, and Mrs. Kenneth Yorke and her assistants served light refreshments.

Those who attended included the president, Mrs. Robert Patterson; Mrs. A. Packman; Mrs. C. Hatton; Mrs. J. B. Thompson; Mrs. James Hough; Mrs. George Carlisle; Mrs. Ed Williams; Mrs. Percy Usman; Mrs. Maurice Bell; Mrs. Lorne Wilson; Mrs. C. Davidson; Mrs. H. Mix Anti-Freeze And You May Be Inviting Trouble

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Adding antifreeze can insure trouble rather than protection if you mix one kind or brand with another.

Since there's no way of knowing how compatible they may be, you cannot be certain of the freezing point of such a solution. Thus you may leave yourself wide open for a come-up when the temperature drops.

A mixture of different anti-freeze products can also cause foaming. In such cases, a good part of the solution will be forced through the radiator overflow.

And there are other possible dangers. Rust and corrosion inhibitors in one type of anti-freeze may, with those of another, it could bring about a chemical reaction harmful to the cooling system.

From Q. S.: "When my 1952 engine began to use more than the usual amount of oil, I checked for leaks. None were found, but I do see oil coming from the breather pipe."

(A) A clogged crankcase ventilating system is probably causing oil mileage. It causes a pressure build-up which forces oil out of the breather pipe.

• • •

J. A. writes: "Our car glove squeaks and the all-important distributor mechanism which automatically times delivery of the spark according to engine speeds and loads.

• • •

From D. G.: "Oil caused my distributor points to burn, so that they had to be replaced. How can oil get on points?"

(A) Overlubrication of the distributor is a common cause. Another is excessive crankcase pressure which forces oil up into the distributor.

• • •

P. G. writes: "Around the bases of a few spark plugs, I noticed traces of oil seepage. I tightened up on them a bit more, but the oil still shows up after a while."

(A) The plug gaskets may be damaged — overtightening will do it — allowing oil to be drawn up more readily past the rings.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A tragic tale of violence and death trickled down from the raw land of the Eskimos.

RCMP investigated the knifing of one Eskimo, the shooting of another and the snow burial of two children, one of whom later was found alive.

An inquest was prepared into the three deaths in the area of Henik Lake, in the Keewatin district of the Northwest Territories. The federal government, meanwhile, moved the entire band of Henik Eskimos to a new location on Hudson Bay, saying it is plagued by social problems unusual among the children of the Arctic—including petty thievery and violence.

RCMP reported the Eskimo child was found alive by police investigating the shooting of the child's father and the knifing of another man at the interior village.

The mother, Kikkik, was found after a two-day air and ground search by RCMP. Only three of her five children were with her.

Kikkik was quoted as saying the others, Annaoliha, 5, and Henik, 4, had died of exposure and she buried them. But Annaoliha was alive when the constables found the tots in a snow bank, wrapped in caribou hide.

BRITISH VOTE

The proposed summit conference became the main topic of debate in the British House of Commons, and Prime Minister Macmillan won a vote of confidence on his policy of a positive but cautious approach to the talks.

Macmillan said flatly "I want a summit meeting." But he wants it only if prior diplomatic negotiations indicate that there is real hope of concrete achievements at the conference—not just propaganda.

Labor spokesmen insisted that the government attitude to the summit talks lacked a sense of urgency. Pressed to a vote on a technical motion, the government won 308 to 242, a majority of 66.

SUDAN IMPASSE

A new crisis was cooked up on the hot desert sands of the Middle East. Egypt and the Sudan clashed over a 10,000-square-mile area on their common border.

President Nasser suddenly claimed the area as rightfully Egyptian and announced that the inhabitants would be included in a plebiscite on the part of the state uniting Egypt and Syria.

The Sudanese had already been preparing to conduct polling in the district as part of their own regular elections Feb. 27.

Cairo talks between Nasser and the Sudan foreign minister, Mohamed Ahmed Mahgoub, broke down. The Sudan called on the United Nations for help.

TUNISIAN TANGLE

The French - Tunisian quarrel moved into the UN Security Council and then out again, as the council accepted the Anglo-American offer of "good offices" toward settlement of the dangerous dispute.

Tempers remained much on edge in Tunisia, with a number of incidents between French forces stationed there and the local authorities.

French officials still stayed on the use of Tunisia by Algerian rebels. Tunisia was adamant in demands that French forces get off her soil, and several French consuls were thrown out.

The French announced new reinforcements are being sent to Algeria—making a total of nearly 500,000 men.

LEOPOLD PAROLED

Nathan Leopold, 53, a partner with Richard Loeb in one of the most shocking murders in U.S. history, was granted parole from Illinois state prison.

Leopold has served 33½ years of a life sentence for the 1924 "thrill" slaying of Bobby Franks, a 14-year-old schoolboy. Loeb was murdered in prison in 1936.

"I am determined to do my utmost to justify the faith shown in me," said Leopold, who will be free in three or four weeks.

BECKS SENTENCED

Dave Beck Sr., wealthy former chief of the teamsters union, was sentenced up to 15 years for stealing $1,900 from the union.

Legal authorities indicated that the actual sentence will likely be three years. Beck, 63, indicated he will appeal and said he is "no more guilty than anyone in this courthouse." His still is scheduled for trial on income tax invasion charges.

His son, Dave Jr., 37, convicted of stealing $4,650 from the teamsters, was fined $2,000 and further sentencing was deferred for three years on condition that he return the money.

BUFFALO SHOT

A rampaging bull buffalo weighing 2,000 pounds, prowled the outskirts of Winnipeg for four hours, stalked by RCMP officers in cars and on foot.

The bull broke loose after it had been unloaded, along with a buffalo cow, from crates in which they had been shipped to the Assiniboine Park zoo from Elk Island park, near Edmonton.

Finally, the king of the prairies was shot and killed by a mounte — but not before he pounded on a white over the plain where his ancestors roamed free.

MOTION CARRIES

Temporarily this department buries the hatchet with Frank (Ole Iron) Orr of the Cornwall Standard Freeholder. The young spalpeen dares, and rightly so, to cross columnar rapiers with such venerable swordsmen as Michael J. Rodden of Kingston, and Chick Appel of Stratford.

The young squire from down east tilts a nifty lance against the Worlds of Kingston and Sir Galahad of Stratford. And forsooth, in his corner you will find this old charger from Belleville.

List, to what the youngster writeth:

"Mr. Appel questions our claim that this is the best senior 'A' hockey league in Canada. We will still say that and wait for the Stratfordite to disclaim our claim and gives us grounds for changing our mind. Pembroke bopped North Bay twice and breezed through Sudbury in exhibition games while Belleville dumped Kitchener-6-1 in a pre-season tilt. While these games are only 'mean-nothing' tilts, the defeats of the other league must mean something. In the games against Whitby in the interlocking deal, the other league didn't fare very well. Neither did this loop but no team in this league was handled as easily by the Dunnites as some of the squads in the other loop. The biggest laugh of the hockey season so far was the Soo Greyhounds applying for the right to represent Canada in a European tour next year and then moving into Whitby and getting a farcical hammering 11-1. The Whitby players are still laughing about that one. The Dunnites have been beaten our league at home but never 11-1 and so easily.

"Mr. Rodden now makes a statement and we must argue with him. He claims that the Soo Greyhounds 'are probably superior to Belleville,' but he adds they may never get a chance to prove it. We have watched both teams in action and will disagree with him. The Soo has an inferior team to Belleville and by a fair margin too. Don Campbell is the Soo netminder and he is no match compared to Belleville's Gordie Bell who is one of the best playing senior hockey today. On defence the Soo has only one man who approaches Floyd Crawford and Moe Benoit in excellence and that is Ivan Tennant. Belleville has a better collection of forwards than the Soo as the Bailey-Lumley-Rubic line has carried the ball for the Hounds and now the erratic Bailey is up for a suspension. The Soo's Donnie McLean is one of Canada's finest hockey players but other than that their forwards are not overly impressive. Belleville has a talented collection headed by Bradley, Brown, Payette, Menard, Gutfelon and Hildebrand. Bucko might give the Soo a coaching advantage but they just haven't go the horses to whip Ike and his Merry Macs.'

"Mr. Appel fails right in line with the rest of the press in Western and Northern Ontario who refuses to recognize the Eastern Division of the senior OHA. The Toronto dailies who sell just as many papers down in this end of the province as the other way, give our league very poor coverage while the other league is blared. From the way they cover this league you would think that we were a bunch of farmers with skates tied to our hip-rubber boots playing on the pond after chores on Sunday afternoon. They seem to think that Whitby was the only team in this league and since they have left it is a strange occurrence to see our loop mentioned outside of Eastern Ontario. This loop is as much a part of the OHA-NOHA and it is time a few people realized it.

"It seems likely that Belleville will win this league and Kitchener will take the other league. They will eventually have to hook up with Belleville getting four games out of seven on home ice. That might help out the-ho, our so might be on Belleville. (Much as we hate to admit it, George Carver.)

"In the other group, they have Kitchener which is great, the Soo who started great and have recently become just ordinary and want much else. Sudbury has very little. Chatham is weak slater with a great goalie and one big line. North Bay is having trouble and one of their big guns is Johnny Bobenic who Belleville didn't want this year. Windsor has a potentially great club and a very high-priced one but have been doing nothing and show signs of missing the playoffs. They can be likened to the Chevies. They have a star studded roster and have spent money on relatated stars but they just can't get started.

"Last year they laughed at this league around the OHA and NOHA groups and no one laughed harder at the Whitby Dunlops than Kitchener through press, radio and television. They were still laughing when the Dunnies trampled over them on the march to the Allan Cup. Apparently they still haven't learned their lesson and they could well be laughing this year when one of the Eastern teams is on their way west for the finals."

Didn't Like Yank Statements, Give Fitting Reply on Ice; 'Goose' Gets Beak Punched

OSLO, Norway (CP) — Wren Blair is happy with his Canadian hockey team for the world championships. One thing that's worrying him, however, are spectators.

There was a rousing free-for-all Friday night halfway through an exhibition game here against the United States. Whitby won 9-2.

Some of the fans joined in the battle. It ended with a Norwegian spectator being arrested for punching Canada's George Gosselin on the nose.

Blair didn't like it.

"I think European crowds are too excitable," he said. "It's the players' right to have a fight now and then."

PAY TO SEE ONLY

"The fans have only paid their buck to get in to see the game. That doesn't give them the right to get mixed up in what goes on in the rink."

The second - period fight released some pent-up feelings.

"The boys didn't like the 'Yanks,'" Blair said. "They've been issuing loads of statements about us and the boys haven't liked what they went for them a bit tonight."

The fight started when Gosselin stopped Norman Hall of the American tried to cut in on the Canadian star. They fell to the ice wrestling.

Russian referees S. Starovoitov and A. Filimonin gave both players minor penalties. Two policemen who had jumped on to the ice to separate the pair took them to the penalty box.

SWARMED AROUND

Some of the 8,000 fans swarmed around the box, others ran to the ice.

One of the high - spirited spectators punched Gosselin's nose and was arrested.

Minutes later Canada's Jean Paul Lamirande traded punches with Frank Stienagle of the U.S. They were calmed before any further demonstration by the crowd.

Bob Attersley provided two of Whitby's goals. Charlie Burns, George Samolenko, Gosselin, Ted O'Connor, Frank Bonello and Connie Broden also scored.

Junior Scores Three Against 'Hot' Dutchies

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, ninth ranked since Jan. 15, had their sizzling 15-games - without - defeat record shattered Friday night—by a 19 - year - old left-winger.

Gary Vena, one of four 19-year-olds brought in by Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds for the OHA-NOHA Senior A game, left the league-leading Dutchmen reeling three times in Greyhounds' 4-1 victory.

Vena's third goal scored a goal in each period, while netminder Don Campbell held off Dutchmen sharpshooting display as he stopped 33 shots.

Windsor Bulldogs kept their hopes of a playoff spot alive taking a 5-1 decision from Sudbury Wolves. Bulldogs' win took them into a fourth-place tie with North Bay Trappers. Sudbury still is in third place.

HOST LEAD

In the Ontario Hockey Association Eastern Senior A series Belleville McFarlands increased their lead over Whitby Dunlops—to four points, defeating third - place Pembroke Lumber Kings 8-3.

Greyhounds were without Netminder John Pavlidis. Jim McMurrey, Ron Rubic and John Bailey against Dutchmen.

Bailey, Offside sandwiched Soo's other goal between Vena's first and second. Centre Bill Wiggins—to four points, defeating third - place Pembroke Lumber Kings 8-3.

Wiley notched Dutchmen's lone counter.

STRATEGY BACKFIRES

Sudbury coach John (Peanuts) O'Flaherty followed goaltender John Ahlani in a late bid to check the Bulldogs, leading 2-1. After three successive faceoffs in the Windsor end the strategy backfired. Irwin Grosse scored into the empty net.

Frank Budgette, with his 32nd goal of the season, and Bob Brown scored the other Windsor goals. Jim Gordon replied for the Wolves.

Belleville and Pembroke split two goals in the first period, battled through a scoreless second. McFarlands sported the visitors a goal then came on with two of their own in the third period.

Jack Douglas and Jim Farelli scored the Lumber Kings goals. Barrie Crawley, Russ Kowalchuk and Joe Marineau counted for Belleville.

"Spud" Island Second

Northern Ontario Rink Wins High School Curling Crown

By ED SMITH

Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Skip Tom Tod's cool, determined Fort William Collegiate rink Friday night won the Dominion high school curling title for Northern Ontario, which missed the crown by one stone in 1957.

The 19-year-old skip took the championship in the 11th and final round with an 8-5 victory over British Columbia to finish with a 9-1 won-lost record.

Prince Edward Island, which had battled the Northern Ontario representative for first, missed a two - point, five round-robin tournament, lost 7-6 to the champions in the afternoon and finished second with eight wins and two losses.

Tod said it was "one of my happiest moments" but he and his teen-age rink greeted their win before an audience of 1,000 with the calmness of veterans.

Tod, vice-skip Neil McLeod, 18, second Pat Morin, 19, and lead David Allin, 18, simply grinned at each other and shook hands with congratulating rinks.

THREE-WAY TIE

Ontario, which won the title last year in Winnipeg, finished in a three-way tie for third with Nova Scotia and Alberta. Each had six wins and four losses. Saskatchewan and New Brunswick were tied with seven wins followed by British Columbia and Manitoba, 4-6; Quebec, 2-8; and Newfoundland which lost all of its 10 matches.

The host rink was still in a tight match with New Brunswick when Northern Ontario wrapped up the title. The Dominion crowd shouted over their congratulations and went on to take an 8-7 victory.

Other final round scores saw Quebec defeat Manitoba 8-7 in 11 ends, Saskatchewan down Ontario 10-7 also in 11 ends and Alberta trounce Nova Scotia 12-4.

STRING OF 18 WINS

In winning the Dominion title, the Fort William rink, curling together as a unit for only a year, ran up a string of 18 wins in three championship tournaments.

They won the Northwestern Ontario championship with six straight wins and the northern title with three. Their only set back was an 8-6 loss to Ontario in the seventh round here.

At Winnipeg, Ontario won the championship by downing Carl Tod's Northern Ontario representatives from Port Arthur 8-7 on the basis of a last rock, takeout-and-stick by Ontario skip Ian Johnston of Kingston.

Tod made sure of no similar repercussions in his sweep to victory.

His weighty chip shot on P.E.I.'s shot-rock in the 10th end of afternoon play gave Northern Ontario a well-earned 7-6 decision and set the stage for the encounter against British Columbia in the evening.

WOULD FORCE PLAYOFF

A loss for Northern Ontario coupled with a P.E.I. win in the evening round would have forced a playoff.

British Columbia's Guy Wren put up a stout fight, playing the side house for single scores in the first and second. Northern Ontario had those back in the third and fourth but wavered when the Prince George rink got two in the fifth. Tod buckled to the task and drew in for a two in the sixth and duplicated in the seventh.

Allin and Moran nestled the early counters and McLeod and Tod did the punching on opposite Con rocks for singles in the ninth and 10th.

Final standings in the Canadian high 'school curling championships:

	Won	Lost
Northern Ontario	9	1
Prince Edward Island	8	2
Ontario	6	4
Nova Scotia	6	5
Alberta	6	4
Saskatchewan	5	5
New Brunswick	5	5
British Columbia	4	6
Manitoba	4	6
Quebec	2	8
Newfoundland	0	10

Marlies Whip Biltmores 7-4; Habs Dump Petes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last year, tried to have seen their hopes of making a playoff spot this season all but vanish.

Biltmores, whose 48 league games this season have produced only 13 victories, Friday night dropped a 7-4 decision to Toronto Marlboros. The defeat leaves them in the loop's cellar, eight points behind sixth-place Barrie Flyers.

Flyers, improving recently, led second-place Hamilton Cubs 4-4 while in the only other game Ottawa-Hull Canadiens defeated Peterborough Petes 5-4.

Bob Nevin and Jack McMaster, with two goals apiece, paced the Marlboros. Doug Riseley, Roger Cote and Sonny Osborne added singles. Leon Rochford, with two, Carl Kraft and George Ustalo were the Biltmores' marksmen.

Barrie, with a goal from Pete Panagabko, took a 1-0 first-period lead against Hamilton and pushed it to 4-2 in the second. Third-period goals by Don Blackburn and Murray Oliver tied the game.

Bob Blackburn, Jack Cole and Panagabko scored Barrie's second-period goals. Other Hamilton marksmen were Pat Baker and Jerry Sullivan.

Captain Ralph Backstrom fired four goals for Canadiens. Bob Rousseau and Terry Gray scored the other Ottawa goals, George Montague, with two, Larry Babcock and Gerry Brisson scored for Petes.

Macs Increase League Lead With Last-Minute 3-2 Win Over Kings

Marineau Pokes in Winner In Dying Seconds of Game; Gordie Bell Roadblocks Foe

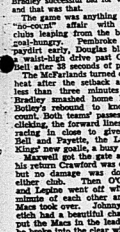
By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Manager Drury Denyes was the only Eastern Senior League team head to answer Eddie Marineau's written request for a try-out and last night was one of the many occasions he was glad he did.

For the chunky, speedy winger barged in on the Pembroke goal with the clock ticking off the seconds and poked in the rubber to give the McFarlands a 3-2 victory over the Lumber Kings in their second scheduled game of the season.

And the McFarlands can give Gordie Bell a great big pat on the back for the big goalie again came up with a performance that was easily the big stumbling block to a Pembroke victory.

Barton Bradley took over the scoring leader's secret lead from overseas Bobby Attersley by notching a goal and an assist to give him a two-point margin over the Dunlops' ace.



The game was one of the best seen here this season and nearly 1,800 spectators enjoyed a fast, furious hard-checking game. The Kings gave every one of the McFarlands will be a force to be reckoned with in the forthcoming playoffs. Referee Carl Brophey had an easy time, dealing out nine minor penalties, five to the McFarlands.

The Kings grabbed a goal lead before a minute had gone in the first period with the Macs tying the count before the period ended. The second heat was scoreless with the clubs splitting a pair before the midway mark of the third chapter. It looked like overtime then when Marineau-Brown-Bradley successful bid for victory and that was that.

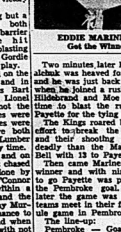
The game was anything but a "no-cont" affair with both clubs leaping from the barrier coal-hungry. Pembroke hit payoff early, Douglas blasting a screened shot past Gordie Bell after 38 seconds of play.

The McFarlands turned on the heat after the setback and in less than three minutes Barton Bradley smashed home Lionel Bottley's rebound to knot the count. Both teams' passes were clicking, the forward lines were setting in close to give both Bell and Payette, the Lumber Kings' new goalie, a busy time.

Maxwell got the gate and on his return Crawford was chased but no damage was done by either club. Then O'Connor and Lepine went off within a minute of each other and the Macs took over. Johnny Murdoch had a beautiful chance to put the Macs in the lead when he broke into the clear with just a Lumber King near him. He skated in on Payette but the Kings' new goalie kicked out his drive to the corner.

GORDIE BELL
Roadblock Plus

With less than three minutes to go Douglas was sprung alone through but raced in on Payette and was ready to fire. The Pembroke defenceman stabbed Bradley neatly, rolling him into the net where he skated his way cuthooting the Kings 15-9.



The scoreless second period was productive of some of the closest checking seen here this winter with both goalies again standing out, especially Bell, who bordered on the sensational in the early minutes of the period, kicking out the Pembroke drives.

It was nip-and-tuck hockey with the visitors finally succeeding in bringing the crowd to its feet but with neither team accomplishing in hitting paydirt.

At mid-period the McFarlands fairly swarmed around the Pembroke net with both Bradley and Marineau missing close in. Brown was fairly flying but was held out by the close-checking Kings.

Guidolin and Frank Menard of the latter were both penalized for pushing but the tempo did not relax. Penalties outshot the Macs 12-7 in the period.

The teams hit high gear again in the third period with both goalies tested hard before Moe Bertrand drew a tripping call at 4.58. The Kings unleashed their power and it paid off when Carroll rolled the puck over the Macs' goal-line after Bell had kicked out two drives.

EDDIE MARINEAU
Got the Winner

Two minutes later Russ Kowalchuk was heaved for elbowing and he was just back on the ice when he foiled a rush with Ike Hildebrand and Moe Benoit in time to blast the rubber past Payette for the lying goal.

The Kings roared back in an effort to break the stalemate and their shooting was more deadly than the Macs, hitting Bell with 13 to Payette's six.

Then came Marineau's game-winner and with nine seconds to go Payette was pulled from the Pembroke goal. It paid off later the game was over. The teams meet in their final scheduled game in Pembroke tonight.

The line-up:

Pembroke—Goal, Payette; defence, Fildes, O'Connor, Douglas, Limoges; forwards, Bert Olmstead, Plamondon, Jack Giesebrecht, Clark, Farrell, Menard, Hildebrand, Giesebrecht, Barber, Benoit.

TIGER AT WORK

Hockey Is Toughest Sport Says Trainer of Many Teams

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Cecil (Tiger) Goldstick will tell you that the life of a trainer is athletics is not just a matter of alcohol, bandages and a sponge.

During a career that began in the 1930s, Tiger has done everything from thawing frozen underwear to using psychology on his charges.

"Hockey is the toughest sport there, rougher than football or wrestling," he says, "I like it because it's our sport.

"You have to have brains and ability to play — why, stick-handling is an art in itself—and you have to be in top condition."

AN EARLY START

Tiger trained midget hockey teams in his teens when he wasn't wrestling on amateur cards here. Later he trained two Western Hockey League clubs, a United States hockey team and the Edmonton Eskimos of both football and hockey.

Now chief trainer of Edmonton Flyers of the WHL and a wrestling referee, manager of a woman wrestler and minor hockey team in his spare time, Tiger boasts:

"I've never been with a team that hasn't made the playoffs."

He was trainer for coach-Bud Poile's Flyers when they won the WHL title several years ago and for Poie Blake's Houston, Texas, Huskies when they won the United States league crown.

"The golden stick" has packed a busy training career into his 55 years—"I've been accused of being either simple or crazy but I'm the navy, and it has involved some many experiences."

FROZEN UNDERWEAR

"One night in Saskatoon it was 30 below. The dressing room was so cold a quart-can-inch of ice formed on the players' underwear. I thawed them out, dried them and we played that night."

He recalls a night in 1948 when he took over coaching duties for the New Westminster Royals after coach Clarence Moher took sick. The injury-riddled team went down to eight players "but we beat Portland 4-2." he says.

Tiger said that while a lot of people forget the trainer, his value to a team could not be measured in terms of training only. "Players often will take problems to us rather than the coach or general manager," he said.

He tells of a player, now with Boston Bruins, who invariably had an ache.

"I thought it was psychological," grins Tiger. "No one night-ly ache, a cough drop when he complained about his back after the first period. He went back in and scored two goals.

TRAINED MANY STARS

Tiger has rubbed down a variety of players including the ace Boston line of Vic Stasiuk, Johnny Bucyk and Bronco Horvath and Chicago Black Hawk goalie Glen Hall and winger Earl Riebel.

Because of his rocky, rotund body, the amiable Tiger never played much hockey. He got plenty of action in wrestling rings, however, and was Dominion naval middleweight champion in Halifax during the war years.

Tiger has dabbled in sports-writing and had a radio program of his own—Trainer's Forum in Edmonton last year but his career hasn't all been tied to sports.

He saw some of Canada's earliest naval action in the Second World War when the cruiser Prince Robert captured the German freighter Weser off the coast.

Canadiens Swap Doug Harvey For Rocket on Injury List

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey's greatest offensive star returned to the National Hockey League wars this week but his team's most formidable defenceman may be forced onto the sidelines.

Both players belong to the all-conquering Montreal Canadiens and it is feared if even Maurice Richard's return can make up for the loss of rearguard Doug Harvey.

Harvey may dress for tonight's game against the New York Rangers, but a thigh - muscle injury and a lacerated ankle suffered Thursday when Richard returned against Boston Bruins will probably keep him out of action for a week.

If he were lost to the club for more than a game or two his absence might have more effect than that of any of the Flying Frenchmen's goal - getting (Toe) Blake has sent off to the hospital this season.

A MAJOR POWER

For down the years the 33-year old Montreal native has been the major defensive power in the development of one of the game's most feared attacks.

Once scorned as a loafer and a floater, Harvey is now recognized as one of the league's all-time greats and even as a defenceman he is a constant threat to score.

His record in time spent on defence—for the last six years a member of the league's all-star team—is amazing for the last three the winner of the James Norris trophy as the NHL's best rearguard.

His contribution to the free-wheeling series - crossing Canadien offense has been the forwards' sure knowledge that backing them up was a shrewd, cunning, cool-headed veteran to cover for any of their defensive lapses.

Significantly one of Canada's most successful coaches, a 4-0 loss to last-place Chicago Black Hawks last Sunday night when Harvey was sitting out one of the two games he has missed this season.

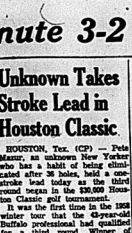
Coach Blake narrowly missed losing Harvey for the season last this week because of a pizza pie he ate in Detroit some days ago. Blake choked on a bite, swallowed and got the dough part way down. But it lodged in his esophagus and Thursday night he went into hospital to have it removed. He'll be back on the bench tonight.

Dickie Moore, the league's top scorer and one of the four Canadiens who have played every game this season, will play with a light cast protecting the wrist bone he broke two weeks ago. The break was not discovered until Thursday.

With Richard on the limp the Canadiens will keep rearguard Jack (Red) Bownass, called up from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League, until Monday.

Unknown Takes Stroke Lead in Houston Classic

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP) — Pete Manur, an unknown pro golfer who has a habit of being eliminated after 36 holes, held a one-stroke lead today as the third round began in the $30,000 Houston Classic golf tournament.



It was the first time in the 1958 winter tour that the 43-year-old Buffalo professional had qualified for a third round. Winner of only $100 in two years of regular tournament play, Manur turned in a second straight round of 68 per golf Friday to lead the field of 130 with a 68-71—139.

Six players, including Vancouver's Stan Leonard, tied for the first-round lead with 69's Thursday but only Manur broke par Friday.

Leonard blew to a 74, five over par, for a total of 145. Other Canadians also eliminated were Toronto's Al Balding with 72-75—147, Lyle Crawford of Vancouver with a pair of 73's for 146 total and Murray Tucker who posted identical scores.

The field of 130 was cut to 72 pros and six amateurs for today's second round. Total was 148, four over par.

John Con stroke off Mazur's hot pace were Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., Jimmy Demaret, Phoenix, Ariz., Ted Kroll and Roberto Devicenzo, Mexico City.

PAUL PAYETTE

BARTON BRADLEY

Barton Bradley, Paul Payette Presented With Top Awards

Two smooth-skating McFarlands centres were given major honors in Memorial Arena last night as a crowd of nearly 1800 gave vociferous approval.

To Paul Payette went the Lee Grills trophy for the "most gentlemanly player", while the top-scoring Bart Bradley won the Bill Green Memorial Trophy and memento for the "most valuable player."

The final Carlings silver tankards awards for players of the week were presented to Minnie Menard and Bradley.

A handsome silver memento was presented to Bradley as his permanent possession by Bobby Orr, Oshawa Generals' hockey star to whose memory the Belleville Hockey Oldtimers donated the math trophy.

Hank Fenn, Oldtimers' president, presented the trophy to Bradley in mid-ice ceremonies during the second game's third period intermission.

We are proud to present this trophy to the memory of a well-loved Belleville hockey star to the youth team, and as such, I specially like it is presented annually to the player judged the most valuable," President Fenn told Bradley. "It is presented annually to the player judged the most gentlemanly, Mr. Griffs."

Bobby Green handed the latter some silver clock and hockey player on an engraved pedestal to Bert Bradley with a warm handshake and congratulations. Mr. Griffs, a brother, was unable to be present.

The Carlings tankards were presented to the recipients by Harold "Speed" Weiler, company representative prior to the presentation of the main trophies.

The McFarlands and Pembroke Lumber Kings lined up in their respective bluelines for the ceremonies. The Kings plugged their hockey sticks on the ice in tribute to the winners while the Macs gave the Kings' players their team-mates with sticks as they skated by.

The students gave him an ovation when he told them about that was when he explained why the former Liberal government hadn't built a university in Ottawa years ago. The boos turned to applause when he finished the explanation.

Earlier, he dropped in at the Dundas Street Centre United Church for a chat with the minister, Rev. Donald Joyce, and to look over the structure where he had spent part of his youth. His father was minister of the 80-year-old church from 1925 to 1932.

As he entered Convocational Hall, some students planted a wall a foot high placard reading: "Pester Lester vs Diet the Scot." Few students wore "Carry on John" lapel buttons in support of Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The Arab union, with Nasser as its head, has already won widespread popular approval in both countries and the yes-no ballots prepared for the 4,500,000 voters were a formality.

The already-certain results of the plebiscite will be announced officially Saturday, and Nasser will immediately take over.

Egyptian officials planned to poll more than 10,000 desert nomads and Nile Valley dwellers in disputed areas along the Sudanese border despite objections from the Sudan government in Khartoum.

Says Public Works Not Recession Cure

TORONTO (CP)—Paul Hellyer, associate defence minister in the former Liberal government, says public works as a solution to Canada's unemployment crisis are nothing more than a "time-honored palliative."

Mr. Hellyer, speaking Thursday at an Empire Club meeting, said it takes months for a public works program to achieve the desired effect and even then, with gigantic machinery used in many projects, the labor requirement is very small in relation to the expenditure involved.

The fastest and most effective means of ending unemployment was "to cut taxes on a broad base."

For today's smaller-than-ever radios and hearing aids
a powerhouse . . . peanut-size

REMARKABLE, button-like transistors have made possible tiny radios and hearing aids. They do the same job done by tubes . . . but occupy only a fraction of the space and consume much less power.

ALONG WITH THIS development came a whole family of revolutionary new batteries from Union Carbide. Some—small as a peanut—drastically reduce the size of portable electronic devices.

THE MINIATURE BATTERIES used with the transistors have led to almost invisible hearing aids and personal radios that fit easily into pocket or purse. And equipment for telephone, telegraph and other fields of communication is now being designed on a compact, space-saving scale.

FOR ABOUT HALF A CENTURY, the development and production of "Eveready" dry cell batteries has been an important job of the people of Union Carbide. They will continue to seek new ways to make these portable packages of power even more useful to all of us.

Peron-Approved Leftwinger Wins Argentine Vote

Had Promised Amnesty Covering All Parties

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Gaunt, bespectacled Arturo Frondizi, a leftwing intellectual, is the new president-elect of Argentina. The support of banished dictator Juan D. Peron apparently was a decisive factor in his landslide victory.

Frondizi ran far ahead of middle-of-the-roader Ricardo Balbin Sunday in Argentina's first free presidential election in more than a decade. Nine other opponents trailed far behind.

Both are lawyers and represent left and right wings of the Radical party, a conservative group despite its name.

Frondizi's wing apparently collected votes from many of the strong-arm segments of Argentina's political spectrum. His backers ranged from Communists to Labor to Peronists and Fascist splinter parties.

With more than 8,000,000 Argentinians voting, unofficial returns early today gave Frondizi 1,434,-773 votes, Balbin 892,153.

PLEDGES AMNESTY

Critics of "shame" came from the Labor benches when the minister announced that the rocket base will be mainly in East Anglia, Lincolnshire and Yorkshire or the English east coast.

Sandys added:

"It would obviously not be in the public interest to disclose the number of missiles or the number of sites or their precise location."

FIRST OF FOUR BASES

It has been generally understood that the agreement provides for the establishment first of four bases for intermediate-range ballistics missiles.

Sandys said the rockets will be deployed "in small numbers on selected sites, mainly on active or disused Royal Air Force airfields." He added:

"The United States will supply the missiles and specialized equipment at their expense, and will also pay the training of British personnel in America.

"British will meet the cost of providing and constructing the sites, and supplying certain items of equipment."

Sandys estimated Britain's share of the bill will be about £10,000,000.

The defence minister emphasized that the missiles will be manned and operated by the RAF units.

The basic agreement for setting up the rocket bases was taken last March in Bermuda by Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower.

Joint Decision To Fire Rockets Is Necessary

LONDON (AP) — Defence Minister Duncan Sandys announced today that the Anglo-American pact setting up rocket bases in Britain provides "that the missiles shall not be launched except by a joint, positive decision of both governments."

Sandys told a gravely attentive House of Commons:

"The nuclear warheads will remain in American custody and will be kept in an unarmed condition so that there can be no risk of a nuclear explosion; and the weapon is designed in such a way that it would be impossible for it to be launched accidentally."

Cries of "shame" came from the Labor benches when the minister announced that the rocket bases will be mainly in East Anglia, Lincolnshire and Yorkshire or the English east coast.

Sandys added:

"It would obviously not be in the public interest to disclose the number of missiles or the number of sites or their precise location."

THESSALON (CP) — The body of Wilbert Purdy, about 57, was found Friday by a trapper near the body. It was riddled by pellets from a 20-gauge shotgun.

Purdy was last seen Jan. 27 by Murdock Lewis, with whom he shared a small house and by whom he was found, near the harbor in the eastern part of the town of 1,000 people on Ste. Marie.

The body was found by a group of children playing cowboys and Indians, police said an unfired shell was found beside the body.

During the last three weeks, search parties covered many square miles of bush surrounding the township.

PRIME MINISTER CLAIMS SUPPORT FOR TORY RETURN

Pleads for More Support in Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Five weeks before election day, March 31, Prime Minister Diefenbaker in claims discussed public support for the return of a majority Progressive Conservative government.

In a speech at Trois-Rivieres, Que., Saturday night he said there is an attitude "overwhelming" to give his party a majority in the 265-seat Commons. In the last Parliament the Conservatives held a minority of 113 seats.

It was his first campaign speech in Quebec — a province where the Liberals have always made gains if it is to reach that goal.

Mr. Diefenbaker used the occasion to make his most vigorous attack yet on Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson's name more frequently than any previous election that the former Liberal government was repudiated a year ago of rising unemployment.

"He says the time has come to reduce taxes," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "That is why he voted against reducing taxes in 1954 and 1955 and 1957."

READY FOR TOUR

The prime minister returned to the capital here Sunday. Tonight he is scheduled to open a campaign for another election meeting Tuesday night in Toronto and Wednesday across the river from Ottawa, before heading east again for Quebec City and Three Rivers, Que., Charlottetown, Sydney, N.S., and Saint John, N.B.

At Trois-Rivieres he spoke to almost 4,000 persons at a $5-a-plate testimonial dinner to Conservative-General Leon Balcer, seeking re-election in Trois-Rivieres.

The tables, set for 3,700, were jammed with diners who heard a letter of disbelief and babble of conversation throughout Mr. Diefenbaker's 40-minute speech. More than 200 persons stood at the rear of the big banquet hall, jostling in the city's exhibition grounds. Waiters still were distributing glasses of sour turkey when the prime minister finished his talk.

Conservatives held only nine of Quebec's 75 seats in the last Parliament and Mr. Diefenbaker made a plea for increased support.

"It is essential for our party and government that the province of Quebec play a leading role in the Progressive Conservative party," he said while speaking briefly in French.

Speaking in English he asked the province to elect a Conservative representation "in keeping with the responsibilities of this province."

Khrushchev Claims USSR Possesses Arms Which Never Existed Before

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Sunday a new Russian weapons test explosion scheduled for today said the Soviets had exploded a hydrogen bomb in the Siberian Arctic.

The blast came as Nikita Khrushchev said in Moscow that Soviet armed forces have equipment with "the most terrifying weapons of all time . . . such things that—but—The AEC has said it would make announcements about tests that involved circumstances of special interest. But Sunday's terse announcement gave no hint of what prompted it.

Neither the Soviet press agency Tass, nor Moscow radio made any mention of the test early today.

At Moscow, Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky said the Soviet armed forces have missiles that can deliver a hydrogen charge to any point on earth.

The explosive equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Khrushchev later, Japan's central meteorological observatory said its chief had calculated the blast occurred about 2,480 miles north-northwest of Japan.

The last AEC announcement of a Russian nuclear test came on Oct. 31 after President Eisenhower's statement, the commission has announced detection of 27 such test explosions.

There may have been more tests than that. The AEC has said it would make announcements about tests that involved circumstances of special interest. But Sunday's terse announcement gave no hint of what prompted it.

Neither the Soviet press agency Tass, nor Moscow radio made any mention of the test early today.

Truman Blames Republicans' Economic Misrule for Slump

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. congressional election race, aided by a powerful push from former Democratic president Harry S. Truman, has produced a vigorous Republican reply, moved off in full voice during the weekend.

Democrat Truman today today of conducting a "fear" campaign they said could bring about an economic depression.

Truman's Saturday night broadside against the "economic misrule" he said had produced a Republican recession was so-called by leading Republican senators as a disservice to efforts to slow the business downturn and to lift employment.

Truman also strongly criticized the Republican foreign policies.

Democrat Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) said this is not a period when "men who have been to the White House can forget their responsibilities."

Citing income and employment statistics, Wiley said this country is not going to the dogs.

Churchill Smokes Cigar With Visitor

ROQUEBRUNE CAP MARTIN, France (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill smoked a cigar today with the first visitor he has been allowed since he came down with pneumonia and pleurisy a week ago.

Pierre Jean Moatti, the local district governor, and his wife were the guests of Jan. 5 when the British elder statesman is staying in their villa here and those of the French people for a speedy recovery.

The cigar was together," Moatti said. "He looked fine."

Moatti, a lawyer, reported that had given Churchill one of his cigars and Churchill had replied he preferred his own brand of his own.

The daily medical bulletin noted continued progress by the 83-year-old former prime minister. It said the convalescence was lengthening him less.

The bulletin said:

"The pneumonia continues to resolve. Sir Winston's general condition is satisfactory and the pleurisy is causing him less discomfort."

Today's bulletin was the first to mention the fact that the pleurisy had been causing pain to Churchill.

It is known, however, that with the first stages of pneumonia past, it is the pleurisy which is now worrying the doctors.

JOBLESS CAUSE OUTCRY

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia's unemployment figures—74,784 registered out of a total working population of about 4,000,000—have brought the federal government under fire from unions and businessmen, newspapers and the Labor party. The Labor party is demanding an acceleration of public works programs.

PEARSON GREETED BY LARGE CROWDS AT VANCOUVER

Liberals Face Uphill Battle in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson has expressed doubt whether the ocurres of election campaign funds can ever be fully brought into the open.

There has been much talk in the last 50 years of such a step, he told the press conference Sunday, but little has been achieved. The reason, he suggested, is that many a campaigner would be reluctant to make contributions to political parties if every contribution were to be made public eye.

Mr. Pearson answered reporters' questions for about an hour after arriving at Vancouver airport in a reception by party supporters.

More than 1,000 persons turned out at the airport in mild weather to greet Mr. Pearson and his wife as they stepped from a TCA aircraft.

The two workers swarmed over the tarmac bearing placards, pennants and banners in support of the Liberal party. Shouts of "We want Mike!" went up from the crowd. The Liberal leader, his big rally here tonight, the first in an eight-day tour of the Canadian provinces.

UPHILL BATTLE

The Liberals face an uphill battle in British Columbia where they only two of British Columbia's 22 seats in the last Parliament. The Progressive Conservatives had seven and the Social Credit six. The New Democratic Party was encouraged by the "large and enthusiastic" meetings he held in Ontario. There would be no stalemate in the next Parliament, he feels. Liberals would come through to win.

Then as he plunged into replies to reporters' questions, he indicated he was in favor of a Commonwealth or Canada's air transcontinental service, with arms reservations, and suggested that Prime Minister Diefenbaker is not the first to propose an armament pact with the United States force for the Middle East.

On other points he left nothing to doubt in the minds whether he would favor free and open competition in the publicly-owned CBC's television outlets and shied away from stating in view on the future of Canada's natural gas in Canada and the United States.

His greatest elaboration was on the Nobel Peace Prize. Progressive Conservative cabinet ministers claim that prime minister Diefenbaker was the first to suggest the emergency UN police force in the Middle East. A proposal, they maintain, which Mr. Pearson took for his own and thus earned the 1957 Peace Prize.

Say 1 Out of Every 7 U.S. Women Will Undergo Premarital Abortion

NEW YORK (AP) — One in 10 American women will undergo premarital abortion before marriage, the Kinsey institute reported today.

The institute research which do not lead to quick marriages, 89 per cent ever had premarital intercourse. Half these married ages eventually broke up.

The more developed religious a woman was, the less likely she was to become pregnant before marriage.

The magazine article is based on the third book in the series of reports on sexual behavior to be published May 14.

The findings are derived from the group of nearly 8,000 women interviewed for the institute's 1953 report, Sexual Behavior in the Human Female. After eliminating certain women whose relationship was a sample of 5,293.

In its 1953 report on female sexual behavior, the institute said half the women questioned had sexual experience before marriage. Of these, one in five becomes pregnant, the new report said.

Rebels Kidnap Top Auto Racer In Havana Hotel

Place Batista on Spot By Audacious Abduction

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban reb-ø-lis had President Fulgencio Batista on a new hot spot today with the kidnapping of Argentina's world champion auto racing driver, Juan Fangio, from his hotel in the heart of Havana.

Embarrassed police searched frantically for abductors of the 46-year-old five-time world title-holder as the capital—jammed for today's Gran Premio auto race—buzzed over the audacious feat.

Un Buenos Aires, Manuel Montes, business partner of Fangio, said he had been informed that the driver is in no danger and will be released Tuesday. He said the information came from Fangio's racing manager in Havana.

Special guards were assigned to the 34 other internationally famed drivers here for the race. The authorities refused to discuss the Fangio case, but Chief of Police Manuel Casas was quick to claim responsibility. A rebel spokesman telephoned The Associated Press to confirm the abduction Sunday night but would not say what would be done with Fangio.

DOUBT IN DANGER

Friends expressed doubt the champion was in any danger. They believed the rebels were holding him in an attempt to force cancellation of the auto race—slated to start at 2 p.m.—and thus give Batista an embarrassing black eye.

But Brig.-Gen. Roberto Fernandez Miranda, head of the national sports commission, after conferring with a small delegation of drivers, informed them the race would be held as scheduled. He termed the kidnapping "monstrous."

The kidnapping probably also was intended to throw a scare into Cuba's big tourist industry. Rebels have been trying to sabotage various aspects of the economy in an effort to force Batista to resign. Most business leaders would seek peace by helping to force Batista out.

A stranger walked up to the desk clerk here as he was talking to friends in the lobby, asked if he was Fangio, then walked off. He returned about five minutes later with a drawn gun and stood guard in the doorway while a second man walked up to Fagio, poked a gun in his ribs and hustled him out. The pair hustled the racer into an automobile where a third got behind the wheel and sped off.

Fangio, the favorite to win the $100,000 Cuban race for the second time, is the biggest name in sports-car circles.

Five Perish In Log Cabin Fire at Kenora

ENA, Ont. (CP) — Fire raced through a log-cabin in this Northwestern Ontario hamlet early Sunday, killing five persons, including a young mother who was injured attempting to rescue her children.

The victims: Mrs. Kenneth Linklater, 24, her husband Kenneth Irvin Linklater, 25, and her three children, Roderick, two months, Leslie, 18 months, and Albert, 2.

Provincial police said Mr. and Mrs. Linklater were driven out the front door into the snow when the fire broke out. Here, footed, the woman ran to the rear of the dwelling, smashed a window and tried to climb in—in attempt to reach the sleeping children. She was unsuccessful and emerged with her clothes ablaze

Police said Mrs. Linklater rolled on the ground to extinguish the flames, then wrapped a blanket around herself and ran through the snow, despite badly burned feet, 3 miles to the home of Warren Clark, her nearest neighbor on Ena, on the Trans-main line 25 miles north of Kenora.

The temperature was near freezing. Mr. Clark and Paul Nowaviski, also of Ena, hurried Mr. Linklater lying injured in the snow.

The men flagged a CNR freight train and placed the injured couple on board for a 25-mile journey to Redditt. An ambulance there took the couple to Kenora Hospital.

Mrs. Linklater died three hours after reaching hospital. Mr. Linklater was reported today to be in good condition.

Ena is a hamlet of about 25 persons. It has no telephone or electric power service. Provincial Mr. Linklater is a CNR section man.

Scouts Association Host To Leaders, Representatives In Honor Founder's Birthday

Saturday evening the Belleville Boy Scouts Association again played host to the scores of leaders and group committee representatives in the city on the occasion of the birthday of the late Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts movement.

Every year the local Association entertains uniformed and civilian members of the movement in the city. This year's gathering was held in Christ Church Parish Hall.

Guests introduced by Mr. Legget were Canon A. S. McConnell, A. W. Alley, "who did most of the work in connection with gathering," Mayor Gerald R. Hyde, Alderman Ross Tee, past president of the local Association at RCAF Station, Trenton, Archie Lewis, who is the backbone of Scouting in Belleville," Stuart Reid, Scouting enthusiast and one of the L. A., Rev. Everett P. Smith, assistant minister of Christ Church, who represented the rector, Archdeacon J. B. Sweeney, Mrs. Arthur Murphy, and Art Jackson, field commissioner.

His Worship, Mayor Hyde, has been "always interested in boys' work," and, although never a Cub or Boy Scout, he was active in other youth movements.

Canon McConnell was the commended for the work you leaders are doing. On behalf of the parents of Scouts in Belleville, I thank you and wish you well in the future," said the mayor.

District Commissioner Phil Allcorn was pleased to present Gilliwell beads to Len Furney, Scoutmaster of the Woodside. In addition to Mr. Furney, there were five other Gilliwell beads presented at the gathering.

Said Mr. Allcorn: "These beads are one of the highest tributes that can be paid to a leader."

The district commissioner presented a certificate to Lee Boyle, assistant district commissioner, for having completed successfully part one of the three-part Wood Badge course.

District Commissioner Allcorn reminded the gathering that it is imperative he be advised of any prospective new scouters who have indicated a desire to take part in the movement. Also, he stressed the need for greater attendance at group committee representatives at Association meetings.

He introduced a group survey taken in 1957 and the first part of 1958, which showed that there are 24 Cub packs with 70 leaders and 17 Boy Scout troops with 31 leaders operating in Belleville. In addition there is one Rover crew. He stressed the number of packs and troops has become so great, it has been necessary for districts from "families" in the city to encourage them to co-ordinate the principles of Scouting to a more efficient degree. This plan will be on trial until the end of June.

A/C Harvey, president of the Association at RCAF Station Trenton, brought greetings from his Association and mentioned that in little over a year of operation, five groups consisting of 250 Cubs and Scouts have been born at the air station. He was "impressed" with the type of instruction leaders and group committee members are getting.

"We are stressing absolute necessity of training leaders," said the Commodore after hearing District Commissioner Allcorn say that 33 Belleville Scouters have not received any formal training.

Scouters Bob Williamson and Jim McBride were presented with senior St. John Ambulance badges by A.D.C. H. Smith.

At this point in the social and business gathering, a quartet from the local chapter of the "Barbershop Singers" entertained.

Following the entertainment, brief addresses were given by Alex Jennison, A.D.C. for Cubs; Les Boyle, A.D.C. for Scouts; Stuart Reid, and Archie O. Lewis, regional commissioner.

SUGGESTS HOSPITAL VISIT

Alex Jennison presented certificates to a number of Scouters who had completed preliminary training courses.

Mr. Robb, who appeared for G. C. Gwyn, former district commissioner who retired some time ago because of ill health, held the ultimate responsibility of group committees is to foster good citizenship in boys.

Regional Commissioner Archie Lewis suggested leaders visit the hospital W.A. or Opportunity Shop to acquire used uniforms for boys who cannot afford to buy new ones. He also asked Scouters to "pave the way" for other city citizens on March 1, when the Red Cross opens a blood donors' clinic in co-operation with the Belleville General Hospital. Almost all Scouters attending the meeting volunteered to be on tap on March 1.

Harold MacDonald, Scout of the 6th Belleville troop, and winner of the first prize in the Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto, played the correct solo which won him top honors in the 16 years and under competition. Jim Wise, of the 11th troop, who has been playing the cornet for only a few months also showed he is well on the way toward becoming an expert instrumentalist.

At the close of the business session, Cubs Laurie Conway and Bill Elliott, both of the 2nd Belleville group, sang a Scouting hymn.

Canon A. S. McConnell opened the gathering with prayer and Father Murphy closed it with the Lord's Prayer.

A. W. Alley extended thanks to Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, through the Rev. E. P. Smith, for the use of the hall and facilities. Appreciation was also extended to the Mothers' Auxiliary, through Directress Mrs. Elsanor Blakely, who provided and served a delicious late-evening, buffet-style dinner.

Liberal Leader Visits City, Attacks Policies of PCs On Unemployment Issue

Saturday afternoon Lester B. Pearson, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, visited Belleville for a few minutes en route from Kingston to Cobourg where he filled a speaking engagement that night.

Arriving in this city at about 5 p.m. Mr. Pearson was the guest of Dr. D. C. McVicker, mayor of Prescott and Liberal candidate for South Hastings in the May 31st election. Liberals of the South Hastings riding packed the top floor of the Memorial Centre to catch a glimpse of the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner and to hear him slash out at the Diefenbaker administration.

Introduced by former member of parliament, Frank S. Follwell, Mr. Pearson said the Liberal party now has "some constructive ideas for the future" and expressed confidence that his party will return to power next month.

He said Liberal party chiefs are asking themselves what they can do in Canada to "improve the present situation." "One thing we must do," said Mr. Pearson, "is to study seriously and do something about the unemployment situation."

If the public works program of the Progressive Conservative government is as important as they claim "then it should have been implemented before now." Mr. Pearson scoffed at the idea of building a 100 million highway partially circumscribing the Arctic Ocean, which the Tories have advocated to alleviate the Canadian unemployment situation.

"that," he said, "will certainly help the unemployed in Southern Ontario. Now you can send your men to the Arctic to work."

As far as trade is concerned, the Liberals "want to increase it wherever we can, and diversification will take care of itself."

Mr. Pearson said his party has a "constructive scheme to help the economy by deficit financing." He said the Liberals were not shielding the fact deficit financing is necessary now to correct the "recession."

Slicing taxes and giving added help to newly-married couples are a few ways Mr. Pearson plans to help the economy.

He felt that by putting more money in circulation, it would help clear up the current unemployment situation.

"Canada is now in a recession," he said, "so now is a good time to use some of the savings of the past to provide jobs."

Referring to the rigors of his campaign, Frank Bennett, Conservative Minister of External Affairs said: "These are strenuous conditions. Frank Bennett is an indefatigable worker."

Before his arrival in Belleville, Mr. Pearson had addressed about 1,000 students at Queen's University. He stopped off at Napanee and, after a stay of about 15 minutes in Belleville, he called at Trenton and then was whisked by car to Cobourg. Mr. Pearson arrived in Vancouver this morning to begin electioneering in the west.

Mr. Pearson closed his impromptu address at the Liberal Centre by saying "Canadians must continue to search for peace and human understanding."

Robert Temple, secretary of the South Hastings Liberal Association, thanked the speaker and presented him with a 35-mm color transparency which Roy Davis, 150 Bridge St. E., had taken in Pakistan a year or so ago. Mr. Davis, now an employee of Canada Wire, spent some time in Pakistan, as a Canadian representative under the Colombo Plan. His was the only car in that country with Ontario registry. Mr. Pearson expressed his appreciation for the gift.

Maurice Callaghan, president of the association, presided over the meeting.

Fire Damages Residence on Colborne Street

Overheated stovepipes were given as the cause of a blaze which late Saturday afternoon caused approximately $1,500 damage at 28 Colborne Street, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown.

Belleville firemen said the fire started from a thimble downstairs, then got into the partition and spread to the attic where most of the fire damage was caused. The flames were then cut through the roof in one place before firemen brought them under control.

Firemen said there was smoke and water damage in the upstairs apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas and their two children, although this was minimized with articles of furniture being covered with tarpaulins.

Longines Symphonette Will Pay Return Visit to City

After many requests for a return engagement, the Longines Symphonette Society Concert Association, is pleased to bring back to Belleville the Longines Symphonette under the musical director, Mishel Piastro. They played here in 1954, and will be heard on Tuesday evening in the Collegiate auditorium.

The signature of this famous New York string orchestra is known to millions of listeners as "the world's most honored musician", and the Longines Symphonette opening bars of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata". This concert ensemble is often referred to as "the average man's symphony orchestra". It makes a specialty of playing shorter selections and "movements" from the great masterpieces as well as including the larger representative compositions of a lighter vein to please varied musical tastes.

Since 1941 Mishel Piastro has guided the activities and development of this Symphonette. Prior to this time he served for many years as concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic under Toscanini.

Gerald R. Delao, 14, was killed. George Rodriguez, 13, was wounded in the arm.

The shooting occurred Sunday night in Soledad Canyon, 10 miles from Newhall, where the youths were dumped out of their abductor's car, police said they were told.

They later arrested Lorenzo Castro, 18, and Ruben Ramirez, 20, on suspicion of murder, kidnapping and attempted murder.

Edsel said the Rodriguez and Delao boys later were forced at gunpoint into a car and taken to the canyon.

Trenton Bear Cubs Whip Kingston 6-4 in Fourth Junior Playoff Game

TRENTON — Trenton Bear Cubs, using two new players from Bayside public school, took first win in the semi-final series with Kingston Frontenacs 6-4 in a dazzling display of defensive hockey here Saturday night.

The Bear Cubs, with their backs against the wall, took the lead early in the first period and, although the score was tied 2-2 at the end of the opening frame, never were behind in the remaining two thrill-packed sessions.

The Kingston team had taken both their home games in the series, fought to a tie in its previous visit to Trenton and, in losing the game Saturday night, left the door open for the Bear Cubs with a 2-1 series count. The next game will be played in Kingston tonight.

Roger Dorrell shouted the first red light at the 1.13 mark when he scored on a pass setting up Burleigh and Harvey Scott. Frank Lewis gave the bear Cubs a 2-0 lead when he picked up an unassisted goal at 7.45.

Kingston came back in the last of eight minutes of the first period with Bill Gibson connecting on a pass from Lynch at 12.27 and captain Phil Jeffery scoring a fine assisted goal at 16.47, to tie the score.

Trenton outscored the visitors 2-1 in the second with Bob Carnadus getting the first goal at 10.13 unassisted and Lewis picking up his second goal on a pass from Dorrell and Scott at the 16.36 mark. Kingston winger Bill Gibson tallied again from Hegarty at 18.46 for his team's only counter in the period.

The Bear Cubs' first goal of the third period by Jimmy Ellis with help from Gilbert Jones and Guy Austin at 5.32, was answered by Kingston's Lewis 15.15 when Syd Faulkner and Hegarty took the puzzled Lewis and took a pass from Beatty at the 19.45 mark to seal the game for Trenton. The win scored by Trenton just as the final buzzer sounded was not allowed by referees.

Jimmy Ellis and Wayne Leavey were the two newcomers to the Bear Cub's lineup, stepping up from the ranks of the Halloran Juvenilet. Another newcomer to the junior ranks was in the Kingston lineup in the person of Merritt Decker, a former midget player.

Reports claim Frank Canavo, who suffered a shoulder injury in last Thursday's game at Kingston, will be out of play for the rest of the season.

Referees stood for little nonsense and sent players on both sides to the penalty box on 23 occasions, which included two misconduct penalties.

Attendance at the game was reported as 678.

Pearson Speaks On Defence At Legion Hall

TRENTON — Hon. Lester B Pearson had his brief speech on defence punctuated by low flying jets taking off from the R.C.A.F. Station Trenton Saturday, as he spoke at the Legion Hall to a group of Liberals.

"One of the most important subjects here is perhaps defence," said Mr. Pearson newly elected head of the Liberal Party, "and it would seem appropriate to speak of it here in this new Canadian Legion Hall.

"I would like to see the world situation so improved that we could eliminate the need of large air force bases such as the one at Trenton," he said, "however this is not so.

He told the gathering that no other matter also close to home is jobs and the present unemployment.

"The biggest danger in Canada today is the present government office," he said, "was that of high prices and inflation. Now 18 months later, unemployment and recession is the biggest problem."

Mr. Pearson said an emergency bill to cut taxes, especially in the income tax field, would encourage spending.

"We of the Liberal party," he continued, "have been criticized also plan to make jobs, even if it means a deficit budget. And we plan to do it in a constructive way."

Mr. Pearson said that one of the handicaps of the campaign was the size of the country. He pointed to reach Toronto Saturday night and then be in British Columbia on Sunday.

He was welcomed to Trenton in short addresses by Mayor Thomas Wilson of Trenton, W. Lawson, vice president of Branch 110, Canadian Legion, Irving McCaughey, president of the Hastings South Liberal Association and Dr. Gordon Noble, riding constituency. Dr. D. C. McVicker, the mayor of Deseronto.

However, when the pup got to the bottom it jumped to its feet, ran up the bank and slid down again. Since then, this several times to the amazement of the onlookers.

SCHOOLS CROWDED

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Within two hours of the 8 a.m. opening of registration in the first grade public schools all available space was taken and many of the parents and children who had waited all night were turned away. Officials say 1,000 more schools are needed, but a greater problem is the scarcity of teachers.

Tonsil Removed As Child Cuts Mouth on Comb

TRENTON — Susan Proctor, 37-month-old daughter of Sgt.-Major Lester and Mrs. Albert Proctor, 1A Breadner Avenue, Middleton Park was rushed to hospital Friday evening after falling with a comb in her mouth at home.

At the hospital one of the child's tonsils had to be removed and four stitches were required to close the cut in her throat. Dr. W. L. Griffiths attended.

The tot was kept in the hospital overnight and was discharged Saturday afternoon where she is reported to be recovering from the ordeal satisfactorily.

The baby's mother said her daughter has become hair conscious lately and was standing on a stool combing her brother's hair. On getting down from the stool and apparently with the comb in her mouth, the child lost her balance and fell on the comb.

Mrs. Proctor was unable to contact her husband at the time and called her neighbor, Dr. F. C. Purchase, who rushed the child and her father to the Trenton hospital in his car.

Surgery of the child's throat were also taken to determine the extent of the injury.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Two cars were damaged to the extent of $300 Friday morning when slippery streets made a head-on collision inevitable.

Neither of the drivers was injured.

The mishap occurred on Front Street about 10.20 a.m. and also involved a parked automobile parked on the west side of the street.

Audrey J. Turner of South Trent Street in Frankford reported that he was travelling south on Front Street and was attempting to pass a vehicle which was parked at the side of the street.

He said she applied her brakes but they either failed or did not hold sufficiently and in trying to avoid slamming into the back of the truck she pulled in a position directly on the busy business street. The car was driven by Kenneth Martin of 111 King St., Trenton. Police reported the street to be in slippery condition.

Both vehicles suffered heavy damage to the front ends with the Martin car damage estimated at more than $200 and the other car at about $150.

It was the second accident Friday which caused heavy damage but there were three other mishaps which resulted in little damage and all blamed on icy roads.

WILL FACE CHARGES

Cecil Webb, 20, of Water St., will face charges of breaking, entering and theft in Belleville Court here on Tuesday afternoon.

Say Distemper Epidemic Wanes

TRENTON — With the coming of milder weather the epidemic of distemper which has hit the dog population of Trenton and surrounding areas appears to be waning, Dr. G. H. Jones, veterinarian, said Saturday.

He estimated that about 100 dogs had died of the disease which affects only dogs, but is very contagious among them. Many more have been stricken with the disease but he stated that 50 per cent of the cases brought to his animal hospital were treated and the dogs survived. Many others were brought in too late.

Cook of the Ontario Provincial Police are continuing the investigation which may also involve other breaks.

Webb was taken into custody on Friday and will appear in the county jail in Belleville. He will be brought to Trenton to face the charges.

Canadian-Born Singer Weds Show Manager

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Canadian-born singer Gisele MacKenzie, 31, and her personal manager, Robert Shuttleworth, 44, were married here early today.

They flew from Hollywood with a small party of friends after a midnight.

The ceremony was performed by district court Judge Frank McNamee in a penthouse suite of the Flamingo Hotel.

Miss MacKenzie, born in Winnipeg, wore a gown of pale-blue satin with gold flecks, a matching hat and gold slippers. Shuttleworth wore a dark blue business suit.

Maurice Kessler, Toronto, Canada businessman, was best man. Mrs. Axel Siordahl was the bride's attendant.

HIS SECOND

This was the first marriage for Miss MacKenzie. Shuttleworth's previous marriage ended in divorce in 1950.

The couple said they had been considering marriage a long time but decided on the spur of the last Saturday night.

They plan a honeymoon here two days. They will live in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Shuttleworth first met her daughter in the World War when he was serving with the Royal Canadian Navy. He persuaded her to sing at a naval function and she did. She joined Ina Ray Hutton's band and signed Miss MacKenzie as his client.

Miss MacKenzie starred on several CBC programs before coming to Hit Parade, before starring on the television show, Your Hit Parade, before starting her own show last September.

It has been reported that the show's sponsors are considering it in April because of production hassles between Shuttleworth, the show's producer and the sponsors themselves.

WHAT PRICE CIGARET HOLDERS?

Yet the current argument about filter cigarets in the United States leads to the inevitable conclusion that the world's cigaret smokers have been tossing a comparable amount of money out with the garbage.

To reach this conclusion we have to wend our way down a rather long road.

First of all came the action of a U.S. House of Representatives committee in charging that the manufacturers of filter-tip cigarets were guilty of misleading advertising, by claiming or inferring that these filter tips gave protection against hazards to a cigaret-smoker's health.

The U.S. agriculture department saw in this an opportunity to go after filter tips on an entirely different ground — they had replaced 125,000,000 pounds of tobacco in the past three years, it said. This tobacco would have brought growers $70,000,000.

Our first reaction was a derisive chuckle. Did the agricultural department know so little about cigaret smokers, we asked ourselves, as to suppose that they would be deceived by a filter. If their filter-tip cigarets deprived them of 125,000,000 pounds of their normal consumption of tobacco, they would merely increase their purchases of cigarets to make up the deficit.

Second thoughts, however, revealed a flaw in this argument. For the missing 125,000,000 pounds of tobacco were not 125,000,000 pounds which would have been smoked, but 135,000,000 pounds which would have been tasted. When it comes to butting a cigaret, who cares whether the butted portion is made up of pure grade A tobacco or filter?

This seems fair. But perhaps it is not generally realized that a new principle of taxation has thus been formulated with far-reaching possibilities.

Hitherto, advance, as everyone knows, there is a purchase tax of 60 per cent on automobiles. It does not know whether there is any possibility of having a failure to agree as to the definition of a motorcar. It is demonstrably a mechanically - propelled conveyance having four wheels (where it does not have three), the intention of which is to convey from one place to place by means of public road carriers (tyre applicable) highway. There is barely room for disagreement. The case has principally to be considered: could 'well be applied, I feel. In this case the 60 per cent purchase tax would be applicable to all automobiles with this exception:

"Plain motorcars having no means whatever of conveying the passengers they are designed to convey."

Such cars would be tax-free.

Now this system would have certain obvious advantages. It would ensure the maintenance of full employment in the car industry. It would entitle cars to be sold so cheaply that everybody in Britain could afford one. It would obviate the overcrowding of the roads.

I would suggest, as a slight improvement, and to provide the necessary incentive, that purchasers of motorcars (excluding might after a certain stated time interval be allowed to add to their cars, again tax-free, those means of conveying drivers and passengers which they had hitherto foregone, whether these means be seats, trailers, or motors, or whatever. This time interval would be made long enough great as that covering the payments on the excepted automobile. Purchasers of motorcars could then see them only when they had paid for them and the inflationary aspects of the installment system, or hire-purchase, would be avoided.

This reminds me that in Jan- dockers proved a new trades union rule of some significance in the battle against Communism. Two Danish freighters landed with food cargo in Tilbury for a strike-bound while two gangs of dockers argued as to which gang should unload them. As they vacillated, being been reached by evening, one gang of dockers, in a motorboat, sailed away still laden. The dockers it a claimed "standing money" for the time they were standing by (i.e. arguing), as well as the money for the cargo. They earned if they had unloaded t h e ship they did not demand. The management refused to pay. The dockers went on strike.

Negotiations dragged on, or resulted in the gang being paid the $1 had "lost." The workers got the money in charity, saying, "It was not the money so much as the principle of the thing."

Now we see what the Commissioners' report is likely to exactly the sort of money intended to be kept in an untaxed wallet or pocketbook. Its object, or means whatever of retaining the articles it is designed to hold. In this last game you have to think of everything.

Puff-Puffs Disappearing

Ottawa Journal

"Mummy, mummy, there's a puff-puff train coming!" The small boy at the railway station as excited as if he had seen an Indian in war paint.

How quickly, it made us think, the steam heroes of the iron highway are being replaced by the diesels, these square – cut, unhandsome power units of the modern age.

When the last steam locomotive goes into retirement it will seem to so many that romance has died. A train was not a really a magic carpet to a boy standing beside the track unless the plume of smoke and steam rose to the sky, the fire-box lighted the face of the fireman and engineer in the dusk and the long wail of the whistle gave familiar warning, reassurance and a call to adventure out beyond the far horizon.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE EDUCATED HEART

It is just as important to educate your heart as it to educate your mind. It may even prove to be a better investment in the long run. No matter where we go the mind is forever noting new things, principally matters of fact and science. In the same manner do we enrich our heart. It is inspiring by the contact with the finer and best kindnesses and unrehearsed deeds of our fellows.

What a wonderful thing to have a well-educated heart! What a power friends! What a universal its opportunity! It is far more important to have the right heart gets a well-rounded education than that the mind gets one. The ideal is to enrich one's mind acter by a balanced mind and heart. There you are interdependent. Each lifts the other.

There is this difference: To get so educated heart you don't have to go to College. You can find among the humblest and so-called educated in mind. And wherever you discover acquired, you may make all the difference between success and failure.

I have friends who seem to have perfected this education in the heart every time I come in contact with them. That's what makes me delighted to be alive, a valuable agency for holding people together. There is forever a testing of spiritual values.

We experience the educated heart because of our friends contribute to its education. It is different with the heart that is furnished. It has a personality all its own and it has the home feeling to it. There is nothing silent about it.

Strength for The Day

MORE GOOD THAN EVIL

This morning's paper told the murder of a woman by her husband who then committed suicide. Also there was the account of a boy who had killed his mother, and of another juvenile who had stabbed a teen-age girl. What a world of sin and crime! Yes, but that same newspaper told of several happy romances, of a notable discovery of new territory made by a gallant crew of men, of the saving of a great fortune to the advancement of science and education. There will be more church notes adjacent to the stories of murder and multilation. The smiling faces of brides and newly engaged young women were just a few pages over from the shocking pictures of t h e battered wife, and the sullen faced boy who was being questioned by police in connection with a heinous crime.

The world is not all bad. In the events of life are a mystifying mixture of gallantry and crime, of lust and of high determinations of pure and sacrificial love. If we think only of the evil things there are in the world, we shall become discouraged indeed. Worst of all, we shall get a distorted picture of life. There is plenty of evil in the world, but there is plenty of good also.

And don't forget that we could not get the good without the evil, nor for the fact that the good always fare exceeds the evil.

What will the sporting youth of this city do for a playground and the patriotic 15th Regiment do for a parade ground when the hospital is built upon? The arrangements of the people of St. Michael's Parish are about to knock old customs "galley west". It will seem odd when the good old hospital tot cannot be used as a recreation ground. However, the Rev. Father Twomey and his flock are to be commended for their enterprise. A large stone school with architecture to match the hospital St. Michael's Church will be a decided ornament to the locality and credit to the city.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SOUND, SENSIBLE ATTITUDE OF PATIENT CAN HELP PHYSICIAN

"Dear Dr. Molner: First, I want to say I enjoy your articles. It seems to me that at present things so a layman can understand. I most heartily commend you on your stand in favor of a good family doctor. My family is blessed with him, and we have been his patients since he first came out to shingle 20 years ago. I thank God for him.

"Third, some time ago when you answered a reader as to why she still had backache after two years of urinary trouble, I knew just how she feels, for I have had the same condition.

"The lid has been kept on so far with one of the sulfa drugs, but I am one of those people who can be harboring a serious illness and still be in my feet, exhibiting only the vaguest of symptoms, unless it is ready to explode wide open.

"Suffice it to say that while in my case it is temporary indigestion, surgery is indicated, and in my case it is not. My doctor has consulted with the best specialist in the city, and I have been doing very well, with only occasional forays, but I am left with all my heart that my own doctor's judgment and his methods are helping me to live with my infirmity."

It occurred to me that after reading your answer to the other reader that you might like to be regarded on how one should conduct oneself in daily living as regards diet, exercise, mental climate — chilling is bad, I know from experience. — Mrs. C. A. E."

I like letters like this one. It shows such a sound, mature attitude. Urinary infections often are hard to "cure," as mentioned here. But this is accomplished. But when the doctor can't, with antibiotics, put a complete end to the trouble, it helps everybody (especially the patient) to learn to cope with it as a problem that you have to live with.

THINGS THAT PLAGUE US

Most of us, by the time we achieve the age of good sense, have something or other that we have to watch and "keep along" — and we do nicely as long as we don't make being ill your job — again and able to take idiotic chances with our health. Arthritis, weak arches, spinal curves, her yous stomachs, headaches — oh my 150 other things can plague us but if we learn to control them we go along pretty well. If we insist on finding a "complete cure" so we can ignore our own particular weak points, we are often destined for disappointment.

For almost any such cantankerous problem, I'd say good diet and rest. In the case of urinary infection, a chill is indeed likely to touch off a flare-up. But a sudden chill is a strain on the system, and will cause flare-ups of other ailments, too. I'd be silly to put too much emphasis on chills, because some people would refuse to go to the door, or would wrap themselves in cotton wool, or go to extremes.

The above case is a well attend ed one, with the patient under standing the situation and riding along smoothly instead of fretting because the impossible isn't once precedented.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are two teen-age girls about 19 pounds overweight. We have tried to cut down on sweets but still don't lose weight. We are hesitant to try how new pills, but we want to know if they are safe. — J.P. and A. F.

You "tried to cut down" on sweets! Listen, girls, sweets don't eat fos me any old day, but you can't fool yourselves. Did you cut out the sweets entirely? Or was your own satisfaction first. If you can say "Yes," then you believe it and ask me again! Try eating less of everything.

Note to Mrs. F. D.: Carbuncles are big boils, and due to the staphylococcus germ, which is also active in infection. Care will, either boils or carbuncles in keeping the germ spreading and causing general site is an important factor in treatment.

Reset by blinding, painful headaches? If so, you'll find a cure in this newspaper for a copy of my booklet, "Headaches — Their Causes," enclosing a large, self-addressed stamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover cost of mailing.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he cannot undertake personal letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Doughnut Making Art

Christian Science Monitor

The village of Homestead, Long Island, has a problem that the making of doughnuts is a light industry. No one has argued that it is a heavy industry — though some may recall that Homestead once was not say where or when) that could have been fabricated with small mill.

But the zoning board of Homestead averred that a new doughnut shop had no business in a zone designated for business. Let it, said the officials, find a location in a zone for light industry.

Now, it must be admitted that the modern machine-made doughnut, mixed, extruded, cut, punched, fried, and conveyed to the hot air without the aid of human hands, is a tribute to automation as compared with the handcraft job that Mother rolled and cut on a floured board. But so are the electric mixer and the self-stirring oven Mother used.

At any rate, Justice Harold T. Hogan has ruled in favor of the doughnut shop open in a business zone [zoning] the contrary, a restaurant that bears its own plea). Doughnuts it will start offering not only regulation doughnuts and crullers but honey-dipped twists, chocolate-frosted cinnamon, coconut and apple-and-spice doughnuts—and doughnuts topped with frilly whipped cream and strawberries. Doughnut making is neither industry nor business but an art. Only those who have done one kind, through dense bush and swamp, a difficult and costly flask.

Might Want Them in Hurry

Brantford Expositor

Lying in the harbor at Sydney, Nova Scotia, is a "mothball" fleet of obsolete or presently unwanted ships in storage.

On November 29 last five of these 25 ships — corvettes and escort vessels — were turned over, under an allied aid agreement, to the Turkish Navy. They were scheduled to "sail" on December 9, but the fleet haven't sailed. The reason given is that the Turkish crews are having trouble in learning the complicated machinery involved. Royal Canadian Navy officials say that most of the mechanical breakdowns was too serious and that some could have been fixed up locally by the new crews been familiar with the ships. The RCN maintains that the "mothball" system is sound and says it should not be changed.

That becomes a debatable opinion. Suppose a war had broken out suddenly and had become necessary to gently desirable to have the Turkish Navy take over the "mothball" ships and go into battle with them immediately. Could they have done it any faster than they have done it? Presumably not. The Royal Canadian Navy's theory that the ships are in better shipshape and navigable within a few days therefore appears to be a fallacious considerably short of proof. From December 10, 1957, to January 16, 1958, and probably later, is no mere matter of days; it's more than five weeks.

If the ships should be cleared up, n case we or some. of our allies need more of these ships in a hurry,

What a godsend winter is to the economy of Canada most of us realize. Without the snow and ice, much of our vast woods operations in both timber and pulpwood, in most parts of the country, be almost impossible in terms of cost. The development of the north would be economically hopeless if supplies, equipment and machinery could not be readily moved by frozen bush road and across lake and muskeg and swamp, where only air and rail are later justified. Apart altogether from the fine money men winter affords our trappers, prospectors and others who explore the vast, empty wilderness, the preliminary work on erection of bridges across rivers, the in-

Tax-Dodging Really Theft

Windsor Star

Hon. George Nowlan, minister of national revenue, has said something which long has needed saying. It isn't just ordinary tax evasion that is the problem but tax returns. All too often the cheaters are people who parade against the cloak of respectability in their communities.

Mr. Nowlan mentions people generous in community affairs, leaders of community enterprises, financial campaigns, pillars of the church, and highly respected citizens generally. He might have added at some of the names which crop up.

Probably the majority of these people never pay anything like their fair share of the country's tax burden. They certainly wouldn't take a chance on being found out. They seem to think it is quite all right to steal from the government which, in fact, is stealing from their fellow-citizens. The same mentality applies to many who think nothing of smuggling.

Ah b t w'oso

There are various gradations of crime. But theft is still theft, fraud is still fraud, and dishonesty is still dishonesty, even if it be at the expense of the government. The tax authorities have established all the names of all the income tax cheats, there would be much less cheating. Most so-called "respectable" citizens then wouldn't take a chance of being found out.

A little boy on mother's knee,
A little boy not more than three
With smiling face and eyes of blue,
Ah! how I envied you,
my boy.
I wished that I could be like you.

When all the world is bright with joy—
I looked upon you as a king,
Until they tried to make you sing.

The women folks were gathered near.
"Sing, sing for auntie; that's a dear."
They said and pleaded with him there

To show them all that
That he could carry any air
And sing aloud most any tune.

I envied you, my boy, until
They made you sing against your will.

How oft I've wished again to be
A little boy not more than three;
But now I'm glad I'm growing old.

Poor little boy, I grieve for you
Because you are so often told
To show off what you cannot do.

I'll envy you no more, my lad;
Those singing aunts would drive me mad.

H. Fred Norman, Bath, Will Be Liberal Standard Bearer For Lennox-P.E. Riding

PICTON — H. Fred Norman, 53, of Bath, was given an acclamation as Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox at a convention held in Picton Friday night. The former president of the Ontario Young Liberals Association, who operates a store in Kingston and is now a resident of Bath, where he is a member of the village council, will oppose Clarence A. Milligan of Napanee, who received the Progressive Conservative nomination here on Wednesday. Mr. Milligan was a member of the last House.

In spite of adverse weather conditions, about 50 persons attended the meeting, more than half of them from Lennox. Due to the weather, speeches were brief.

Also nominated were Clinton Green, Liberal candidate in the last Federal election; Percy Meliott, a former municipal candidate; Mayor H. J. McFarland, of Picton, who on Wednesday also received a P.C. nomination; Dr. Robert Clapp, Reeve Harold Lasher of Napanee; Reeve Elwell Huff; Len J. Foley.

Mr. Green particularly stressed the need of organization and everyone becoming an active worker.

In announcing that he would be a candidate, Mr. Norman referred to his activity as president of the Ontario Young Liberals from 1939 to 1944, as treasurer for Ross MacDonald, former member for Brant and a life-long interest in politics.

Gordon Stalker, president for Reeve Huff, president of the riding association, who had not been well. He mentioned that Mr. Norman is a graduate in Arts of Queen's University (1937) and owner of the Searway Glass and Paint Co. of Kingston.

Mayor McFarland extended a welcome to the town. Jim Madden acted as secretary.

Mrs. Norman was first to congratulate her husband and introduced were his 81-year-old father, Horace F. Norman, their son, a sister, Mary Norman, brother Bill Norman and nephew Bruce Gordon.

FIGHTING OWN CABINET

"John Diefenbaker is not fighting against but his own party and cabinet all the way. We see the spectacle at Ottawa of the modern version of the Cabinet Rock," said Mr. Norman. "The fury and the heat as John sounds out his frantic, peculiar rhythm is most distasteful to the cabinet and party. This wild-eyed man may be a product of our times but like Elvis not necessarily necessary."

"The election was not necessary and may not prove anything. We Liberals had 190 members but this man could bring any reasonable measure and have a full majority and what party could criticize something they voted for.

"Mr. Milligan says hours were wasted listening to the CCF. If I remember correctly, days and weeks were spent listening to the Tories concocting the pipe line. We now know this was sounding board and tinkling cymbal.

"I listened to John Diefenbaker in the House many years. Even to a Liberal steeped in it, I was interested. But after nine months the Tories find they have sponsored a demagogue, and a very naive one," declared Mr. Norman.

"When you play serious games like international politics you test your cards. John exposed his to the U.S. The embargo on oil and the proposed one on cattle is an admonition from the greatest financial power on earth to warn us that financial matters are finely balanced. Bennett and his gang were soon out of office after the greatest exploitation of foreclosure, receivership and repossession known to modern man. How many people today face such an issue?

"Think what happened in the old war when the United States, reeling from several blows, received a shocking one. Canada, its close ally, its defence partner, has told her she does not wish to trade as before. The Commies, the Chinese satellites and the haters of the free world roared for all to hear 'Canada throws off American imperialism.' We know this is not true but we know that a good and inexperienced man, impetuous and frantic for power, had erred.

"How long is Mr. John Canuck, the hard-headed realist to have several times put us back on the track, before they are human. Only Diefenbaker can give us a sermon on politics.

"I am biased and fighting for the vote because I believe and feel sure that John's house is a house of cards built on shifting sands and that the Conservative ratic man does not in the final setting have the ability he is said to possess," declared Mr. Norman.

"Did the new House face its position squarely? No. This is not John Bull. The British were wrong and has he changed any measure one iota? Has one it has been enacted, but 1,700 men are supposed to get work on Avro Arrows. This is the end of the familiar Tory method, build confidence and they will be Defie Dens Instead of Bennett camps. I wonder if what contractor will build the camp.

"Mitchell Hepburn said he rejoiced to hear the grass grow. This is a favorite occupation of P.E. L. Surely no noise scars the air from plans for 80 odd years of faithful Toryism.

"Thomas Kidd, the faithful funder, is rudely awakened by a packet from a Kingston. Mr. Tustin, after 22 lean years, is definitely thrust out. This is not personal to Mr. Milligan, but there should be some redress for Faithful George,' said Mr. Norman.

PLEADS FOR SUPPORT

"I ask you all to support any and all measure out of human kindness for the days ahead. Do not in any way add to the burden and losses occurring to our not personal to Mr. Milligan, but personal nation. Let us be tolerant and sympathetic. Let us be tolerant and sympathetic. Let us be tolerant and sympathetic

Gamma Mu Hears Talk on 'Blood Panel'

The regular meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. R. S. Morphy, Hastings Drive. Mrs. W. Cochrane presided in the absence of the president.

Dr. Donald Scott, representing the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Blood Bank, addressed the group and told of the need of a panel of 1200 donors of blood to make this worthy service successful.

The operation of the blood bank means that no longer will the residents of Bloodville have to find two blood donors to replace the blood he has been given. It is hoped that the panel will supply types of rare blood which will be in readiness in emergency cases.

Anne Bradley, who is a member of Alpha Lambda of the Chapter, was asked for assistance with the skit sales for forthcoming "Black and Gold Ball".

QUEBEC (CP)—Mrs. Onesime Gagnon, wife of Quebec's new lieutenant - governor, says she'll talk about women playing a more active part in politics should she qualified.

Children's Day Of Prayer Held At St. Thomas'

The annual Children's World Day of Prayer service was held in St. Thomas' Anglican Church on Friday afternoon. The Rector, the Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell, was in charge of the service and Mr. Robt. Bell was at the organ.

The groups included Christ Church, and St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill.

Members of the Girls' Auxiliary, of Christ Church, and St. Thomas' joined with the Juniors of the three parishes. There were 130 girls present at the service.

The Juniors, in their uniforms of green and white made an impressive picture as did the background of the G. A. members in their outfits of navy blue and white.

The service was compiled by the Women's Inter - Church Council of Canada and is used throughout Canada on this special day. The theme of the service was "God's Steadfast Love."

The hymn, "Praise Again Dear Lord We Pray", was sung followed by intercessions for the children far away.

Members of the G. A. taking part were: Carol Furzen, Christ Church; Jane Wallbridge, of St. Thomas' Church and Sandra and Betty Jones and Linda acted as ushers. The hymn "Can a Little Child" from St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill as a girl from Asia; Margaret Wannamaker, Peggy Pringle from St. Thomas' J. A., as girls from Europe and Hawaii.

Following the service, a series of slides on Japan, were shown.

Offering for the study book course and were of great interest, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan read the Scripture.

With the Singing of "Jesus Bids Us Shine" and the benediction by Archdeacon Creegan, a beautiful service was brought to a close.

It is to be hoped that other youth groups may join together in this Children's World Day of Prayer, service.

New Trends

By VERA WINSTON

The new lines have made themselves felt in coats to a remarkable degree. Just a glance at the coats soon to be in the stores proves this. Red worsted jersey makes a topper with a spring style look. It goes in for a simple collar, covered buttons and narrow sleeves. The interest focuses on the full-blown back that narrows down toward the knees. A self band and bow give the trim, narrow look toward the hem that is seen at all coat collections at every level.

Feathered Flattery

Feathery fronds and a bit of glitter spell flattery in a gala hat.

Ideal for evening wear, it is kind to those seated in back of the theatre. Miss Alice fashions snowy white plumage into a gently smart, open-crowned turban for festive wear. A satellite spray of rhinestones and pearls provides a fine finish for the fine feathers.

French Chicken Pies

CLUB CONVENERS TAKE NOTES

A vision is before my mind's eye of a production line of women belonging to the Cloverhill or some sister circle, making these individual chicken pies for the Men's Club dinner.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Tomato Juice; Curried Lamb in Rice Border (leftover from Sunday's Roast); Carrot Rings; Spinach with Lemon Butter or Bacon Bits; Pumpkin cake (see last Saturday); Coffee.

Don't miss one mouth-watering stew. It is worth boiling a chicken to get the 1½ to 2 cups large cubes of chicken meat you need for them. It took a Frenchman to devise them, but it takes Canadians to appreciate the unforgetable flavor and tenderness of these creations.

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN PIES — FRENCH STYLE:

These amounts serve 6. 1) Pastry: Three cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter, ¾ cup shortening, ½ to 2-3 cup cold water. Sift together flour and salt. Cut in butter and shortening until particles are the size of small peas. Sprinkle the cold water over mixture, a little at a time, while tossing and stirring lightly with fork. Add water to driest particles, pushing lumps to side, until dough is just moist enough to hold together. Form into a ball. Place on floured board; flatten to ½ inch thickness, smoothing dough at edges. Roll out and trim edges to form a 21 x 4-inch rectangle. Cut into six 7-inch squares.

2) To Assemble Pies: Place 6 thin slices boiled or baked ham (about 4 x 3 inches) on pastry squares. Top with Chicken Stuffing (see below) about 2 tablespoons for each. Arrange 1½ cups cooked chicken, cut into large pieces, over the stuffing. Shape each pastry square into an individual pie by moistening edges and bringing corners to center; seal by pressing edges together with fingers. Cut slits for escape of steam. Brush with slightly beaten egg white or cream. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven, 400 degs. Fahr., 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Serve hot with Chicken Sauce (see below).

3) Chicken Stuffing: Combine 1 slightly beaten egg yolk, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 cup chopped chicken, ¼ cup dried bread crumbs and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Season to taste. Stir to combine.

4) Chicken Gravy: Melt 1-3 cup chicken fat or butter in top of double boiler over hot water. Remove from heat. Blend in 1-3 cup flour. Add 1 cup chicken broth and 1 cup light cream. Cook over boiling water until thickened, stirring occasionally. Season to taste. Cover and place over hot water until ready to serve.

NOTE:

Pies may be made 24 hours in advance and stored covered in refrigerator. Bake just before serving.

GOOD MANNERS

NEIGHBORS PLAN TO GIVE PRE-WEDDING LUNCHEON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For many years my husband and I have had as nearby neighbors a family whose friendship is very precious to us. Ever since we came to live here, over 25 years ago, we have seen a great deal of each other. We each had one child, each a daughter, and when our daughter passed on from polio, this mother and father and their daughter were in indescribable comfort to us. N o w their daughter is to be married in about two months, and (besides the wedding present we are giving her) we have in mind a special kind of party we would like to give.

Since the reception (immediately following the 4 o'clock ceremony at their church) is to be given at their home, we thought it would be a great convenience to them if we serve the pre-ceremony luncheon at our house, inviting the out-of-town guests (there will be quite a number driving here on the day before), and inviting also all the wedding attendants (or at least all those from out-of-town). We thought it could best be buffet service, a simple but substantial menu: at, say, 12 or 12:30, thus not too much out of our routine, offering "dressing-room" for out-of-town guests and possibly two nice bedrooms for the women guests and girl attendants, our downstairs game room for the men).

What do you think of our idea, Mrs. Beeckman? We've never heard of this kind of party, but we can't help thinking it might be a real relief for the bride and her parents to know that they would not have to plan the hospitality and provide the pre-wedding luncheon. However, I wanted your advice about our plan before we "presented" it to the bride and her parents. Two Grateful Readers.

It's an inspired plan you a n d your husband have in mind and undoubtedly will be very much thoughtful and generous neighbors. The portion, of course, that the bride and her parents will be thrilled and relieved at your plan to take over the hospitality of the out-of-town guests and attendants, to invite them to the pre-wedding luncheon. Do "present" your plan at once . . . you and your husband gift-together. And I suggest you might assure the bride and her parents that, although of course they are invited to the party, you will completely understand if they would prefer to use those important hours to rest and/or to check on last-minute items.

GLOVES AND PURSE DURING THE CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my daughter's wedding, the ceremony is to be in my pastor's home, with only my attendants present. I am wearing a street-length dress. Do I wear my gloves and carry my bag during the ceremony, or what do your advise? Bi

Don't wear your gloves a n d carry your bag during the ceremony . . . no need for this, and they will only be in your way.

A simple and effective "sleep-chair" for a student's room can be improvised with a heavy cloth or plastic curtain suspended from an adjustable closet bar.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual Family Council hitory. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

John F. — My wife won't forgive me.

Clara F. — I was told he was a ringleader.

* * *

John F. — My wife and I have been happily married six years and have three youngsters. I am not the dallying sort, but I recently got into very serious trouble at a business convention.

I have been going to these things for years and have never had anything to do with some of the wilder goings-on. At the last get-together, however, I drank a bit too much and allowed myself to be led astray.

As fate would have it, there was an accident and a whole bunch of us got into trouble — the police, publicity, the works. It was a terrible experience and I almost thought I would have a nervous breakdown as a result. My wife learned about the whole thing, as did other wives, and she still refuses to forgive me now after eight months. Shouldn't she have a little understanding?

* * *

Clara F. — Terrible as it is, I could forgive this one incident, but I have been conducting my own private investigation and have learned that my husband has not been the good-goody he claims to have been at these affairs.

One woman learned from her husband that my husband was one of the ringleaders. She told me that a lot of women blame my husband for the way these affairs have been conducted because he is an important local chief in the organization.

I have never mistrusted my husband, but now I see that he is a brazen liar — on top of being a cheat. He has disgraced himself, me, the children, his organization. Should I pin a medal on him?

* * *

The Council: Because of her part at this lurid scandal, Clara seems to have gone too far overboard in her need to condemn her husband. Whether or not John's responsibility in the affair was greater than he admits, Clara should realize that the additional information came to her through malicious gossip, and she should treat it as that.

No responsible person would give Clara the kind of information she has gotten. Ring leaders" among children and adolescents are often singled out for special punishment, but it is assumed in adult groups that each person is individually responsible. John apparently has his own big share of guilt. Clara was wrong to try to add to both his burden and her own by seeking gossip.

No, we don't think medals are in order. But it's possible John has learned his lesson. If that is so, he could profit by a little mercy. It might even sweeten and tighten the marital tie at this time.

Probably nowhere in Canada but in the Fraser Valley have so many daring and even crazy attempts been made to build and maintain major transport facilities. Today the native's top highway builders are engaged in a grim fight "to hang a road along the wall of the canyon". It's a fabulous task, and it's a fabulous story in this week's Star Weekly.

Modern Voyageurs Compete in Ice Canoe Race

Cross Mighty St. Lawrence Hard Way

"Professionals" are men from the islands which dot the river around Quebec city and to whom the ice canoe is the traditional mode of transportation with the mainland. Above, 4 husky competitors from l'Ile aux Grues.

The ice canoe is built for endurance and speed. Aluminum or steel band covers keel from bow to stern, acts as runner for swift haul over ice floes.

Split-second coordination is imperative as the men leap in and out of the canoe to speed its passage through ice-choked waters. There's many a dunking from start-line to finish.

Most spectacular and colourful of the varied events which make up Quebec's Winter Carnival is the Ice Canoe Race across the mighty St. Lawrence River from Quebec city to the town of Levis. Last year, 60,000 watched this thrill-packed battle of skill and daring against swift currents, treacherous ice floes, biting winds and bitter cold. Separate races are run for "professional" and "amateur" ice canoe enthusiasts.

Amid the piercing echoes of the starting gun, the rumble of empty boats rattling over the crisp snow and the squeak of steel-cleated boots, crewmen race their canoes to the waterline. Spectators line the jetty to cheer them on.

Carnival Queen Michele Lacroix congratulates Liguori Lachance, captain of last year's winning team. Liguori and his four brothers who compose his crew are from the historic Ile d'Orleans. It was the third time the Lachance brothers had won the coveted trophy. Winning time for the arduous 24 mile crossing: 28 minutes. Since water and weather conditions vary from year to year crews do not compete against past records.

Helicopter Replaces Horse In Crashing Snow Barriers

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — As snowbound sections of New York state fight out from under towering drifts, the helicopter is taking over an emergency role traditionally given the horse-drawn sled.

To families marooned behind walls of snow, the chopping of a helicopter rotor blade, not the jingle of sleighbells, is becoming more and more the signal that help is approaching.

A horse-drawn sled often can reach snowbound spots inaccessible by automobile or truck. But its laborious course is no match for an aircraft that can take off and land in areas no bigger than itself, hop over miles of drifts in minutes, pick up and deposit passengers with ease and make careful searches of miles of territory.

In the current emergency, helicopters have dropped food and fuel to hundreds of isolated residents.

OTHER RELIEF METHODS

Also being used to battle the storm's grip are snowshoes, sleds, toboggans, skis, diesel tractors and a wide variety of planes.

In Schoharie County, five families cut off by snow-choked roads ran out of fuel. Helicopters swept in and took them out in short order.

The state has established a code of basic signals under which snowbound families can notify helicopters and other relief aircraft of their needs.

The signals—circle, square or triangle—tell the relief craft whether food, fuel or hay is needed. It is then dropped from helicopter or plane.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren and boys were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Macfarlane.

The Young People's meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille on Sunday evening. Due to the unfavorable weather conditions, attendance was not large.

Church attendance for the past two Sundays has not been large due to the cold weather and some sickness.

NEW YORK (AP) — Showman Mike Todd came back Friday from a nine-day visit to Moscow and said Nikita Khrushchev is "the greatest showman of our time."

"I couldn't even carry his bag," Todd said. "He could be elected president of the U.S.S.R. hands down, and it wouldn't even be close."

Actress Elizabeth Taylor, Todd's wife, accompanied him to Moscow while he attempted to work out a deal to show U.S. films there in exchange for showing Russian films here. She said she was "fascinated" by Russia.

"It is like a grade B motion picture," she said, somewhat cryptically.

Research on Pollution Problems

Until comparatively recent years, pollution of our waters was by no means accepted by the public as a necessary nuisance, unpleasant to be sure, but an inescapable by-product of industry. Flowing streams furnished natural disposal places for unwanted waste materials, so that is how they were used.

Today, after years of uphill fighting on the part of the nation's conservationists, stream beds and the water which flows over them have taken unto themselves new values. Now the true worth, both aesthetic and monetary, of pure flowing water is known and appreciated by all.

Legislatures have given us laws with some teeth in them and today pollution violations can be exceedingly costly for the offender. Thus, our industries are faced constantly with disposal problems which are not easily solved.

Analysis, with its coal mines and multiple associated industries, has had more than its share of pollution problems. Back in 1915 and earlier, it was a common sight to see what now are pretty little brooks running black as ink with coal washings from the collieries.

Today those same washings are collected in settling ponds and the water treated and neutralized before being released into the running streams. Literally millions of dollars have been spent in sealing off abandoned mines to prevent the flow of deadly "mine drainage" from reaching our clean streams.

The oil industry is one which faces constant financial hazards because of oil pollution of public waters. Effluent from refineries is not an easy thing to handle and was a way of accumulating before storage capacity. Moreover, it is an efficient fish-killer if drained into a stream.

In Oklahoma, where much oil is produced, the pollution problem is a serious one. The refineries appealed to Oklahoma State University and Doctors W. H. Irwin and Troy C. Dorris, Professor and Assistant Professor, respectively, of Zoology, took on the job of finding some way to render this poisonous effluent harmless so that it could be carried off by flowing streams without doing damage to aquatic life.

Twenty lagoons of equal size were constructed, each with a carrying capacity of one day's output of effluent from their particular refinery. One lagoon drained into the next, in series, down through the entire twenty. General exposure to the outdoors — oxygen, sunlight, etc. — worked wonders.

Gradually the effluent changes as it passes from one lagoon to the next. And with these changes a succession of biotic life establishes itself. First come the bacteria, algae and protozoa. These agencies permit the composition of the effluent to be altered through the effects of oxidation, neutralization, digestion and assimilation. Such things as sulfides, ammonia, etc., disappear.

Both fish and bottom life live happily in the twentieth lagoon. Thus the corrected effluent can be carried away harmlessly through existing natural channels. Research in this instance, certainly has paid big dividends. The probabilities are that similar experiments will be carried on as a possible answer to the disposal problems of other industries, thereby restoring many badly polluted waters, and converting them into valuable recreational areas.

But time marches on, the world keeps on turning, and new problems arise. Consider this one, recently reported from Holland.

Near Amsterdam, a certain nuclear plant has for some time been dumping its radioactive waste into an open ditch. Well, it got around that strange things were happening in that ditch, so scientists decided to investigate. They came up with some badly deformed frogs, some of them with as many as 20 legs.

In the first place, this suggests some pretty sloppy work, or lack of it, on the part of the Dutch Health authorities. But combine the conjecture a bit further. What, we wonder, if this sort of thing were permitted to continue, would be the effect on the fish and bottom life in our streams? For that matter, what might happen to the people who use such affected waters for recreational purposes? Or, perish the thought, for edible fare? While it does furnish plenty of food for thought, such thinking surely is not pleasant.

At a recent convention of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners, held at Las Vegas, a resolution was passed, aimed particularly at the present practice of disposing of nuclear waste in the open sea. The resolution urged, in part, "that radioactive wastes be disposed of in appropriate underground depositories." And high time, say we. Future generations can get along very nicely with only two legs.

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Sammy Boulmetis brought Brookemeade Stable's Oligarchy fast down the middle of the stretch Saturday to overtake Calumet Farm's favored Iron Liege and win the $130,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah. Iron Liege, under top weight of 125 pounds with Bill Hartack riding, set the pace and fought off an early challenge by Mrs. Hirsch Gilroy's Oh Johnny. But the Calumet Kentucky Derby winner couldn't outrun Oligarchy, who carried only 108 pounds.

Time of the 1¼ miles was 2:01 2-5.

It was also the fourth time Johnny had won this particular holiday special, which is 500 a traffic jam on the far turn as they were moving up and Longden had to take the long way home on the outside.

Tall Chief II won by half a length over Promised Land. Solid Son was third in the field of 11. The time over the grass course was 2:30 1-5.

Industrial Hockey

Point Anne, Hillcrest Wreckers, Don's Delivery and the Terrors will battle it out for the league championship in the industrial playoffs which get under way next weekend.

Point Anne captured first place in yesterday's final scheduled game by defeating Hillcrest 4-2. Meanwhile the Terrors gained the fourth playoff berth by downing Circle TV 7-4 after the two clubs had ended in a tie, Circle TV and Tweed missed the playoffs in the six-team grouping.

The Oa-pointers and Terrors will meet in one half of the semi-final while Hillcrest and Don's tangle in the other half. Both series are best two-of-three. Point Anne and Terrors meet at 2.30 next Sunday while the Hillcrest-Don's fixture is slated for 1.30. The clubs will exchange times on the following weekend.

Billy Strahan put Point Anne into first place yesterday by firing all four goals in his club's victory. He potted two in the last five minutes of play after the teams battled on even terms most of the way. Wayne Fox and Jack Lucas were the Hillcrest marksmen.

Bill Storms bagged four goals in the Terrors' sudden-death win. Leo Goyer potted two while Bruce Smith added the seventh. Jack Stewart clicked for two for Circle TV while Dick Knaptin and Ross Parks each scored one.

The race for first, second and third places this season was one of the tightest in years as the three top clubs took turns in holding down first place. Nevertheless more than four points separated these three teams. The final standing showed Point Anne with 16 points while Hillcrest and Don's each had 15. Terrors and Circle had seven points each before the sudden-death fixture.

National League Playoffs Pack Draws Away From Chicago, Toronto

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Eastern Senior "A" hockey league wound up everything but third and fourth places in a weekend blaze of goal-getting, upsets, positions, switches, surprises and what not.

The big thing that emerged from the whirl of hockey madness is the do-or-die battle for Cornwall on Wednesday when they take on the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens in the final game of the schedule, and on the outcome of his hands hinges the third and fourth playoff spots.

In the four games played forty-seven pucks whistled into the riggings—but not one from the league-leading Montreal Canadiens. The Hitlebrandters wound up their schedule more or less leisurely, suffering a 10-0 setback. their worst defeat of the season, at the hands of the upsurging Pembroke Lumber Kings.

And the Mass' inability to score in Pembroke Saturday night cost them sharp-shooting centre Barton Bradley the top scoring championship. Bradley will finish in third place behind Billy Colvin of Kingston and a scant point behind Bert Giesebrecht of Pembroke, who made a brilliant, but unsuccessful, nine-point bid for the title.

The Kingston CKLC's in a brilliant last-minute drive for third place whipped the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens 7-6, their first in eight games against the Jubilaires, but not enough to overtake Cornwall Sunday afternoon when the cellar-dwelling Men of Miron took the bit in their teeth, turned on their spot rivals and whipped them 10-5 to creep within a point in the standings. That takes the schedule down to the last wire. Cornwall and Ottawa will battle on Wednesday and the Chevies must win to finish in third place.

The semi-finals will start here on Friday night against either Kingston or Cornwall. In the other bracket, should Cornwall take third place, they will open in Pembroke Saturday night and back home on Sunday. Should Kingston take it, the series will open in Pembroke Friday night and back in Kingston on Saturday.

HOT TIME . . . .

Trenton, the town to the west of us, which, if the cricketing fingers of nationalism continue their calisthenics may soon become the western suburb of this bustling-at-the-seams metropolis, is toning a big Booster Club party come next Wednesday night.

It is going to be a colourful wing-ding on ice and it is expected everybody and his doggie will be there. The Trenton Booster Club, which we understand has the local junior "B" Bear Cats at its "baby," not to mention the minor hockey zoopetts, is doing a swell job in the inaugural year, and is deserving all of the support it merits.

Dick Beare and his red-tammed buttoneers of the Belleville Booster Club will be on deck to throw in their weight behind the Trenton club. They have organized, girded and erected a broomball team which will combat with the Trenton Boosters for the championship of Zwick's Island.

Booster Harry (Senator Claghorne) Rollins will master-mind the team from a scooter while Booster Steve Beverungen will act as coach, and Booster Father Bill, Snipe Matthews will call the plays from his sulfa board, which has recovered from its attack of St. Vitus Dance with Pat and Joy Beverungen leading the cheering section. Jim Ward will be in charge of the brooms, balls, and a special pillow section for those who regard their natural equipment as insufficient.

There will be aslitherin' and aslewin'l when all hands gather on the ice to do a spot of moccasin dancing to the tuneful rhythms of the Commodores orchestra. For those who prefer their ice fun with a touch of Scotch, there will be the Quinte Pipe Band askirling the pibrochs and the haggis high jinks. Two gals' hockey teams will be out there showing the mere males how the game should be played, if the distaff side had its way.

Beauty and grace will combine when Barbara Diment's majorettes "strut their stuff". . . Those gals are well trained and ice a show that's the last word in precision and color.

There will be a grand parade of "Trenton Minor Hockey on the March," in which some 16 district teams will take part. There will be a big variety show with comedy skits by Douglas Bannon and others.

All in all it looks like a hot time in Trenton town come Wednesday at the Thurlowlandy Gardens. The fun starts at eight o'clock, a fine show for all the family.

Barons Share Top Spot With Hershey Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons, capping an uphill struggle, share first place with the Hershey Bears today in the topped - tuck American Hockey League race.

The Barons, who have been closing on Hershey for the last month, caught up Sunday night. Cleveland's 4-1 victory over the Rochester Americans coupled with the Bears' 7-3 setback at the hands of Providence Reds produced the stalemate.

Each club has 71 points with Cleveland holding the upper hand in games remaining. The Barons still have nine games left as compared to 11 by Hershey.

The Bears had led the league since Oct. 20 and in December they had opened up a seemingly insurmountable lead of 16 points.

COMES TWICE

Cleveland scored twice within the first two minutes and never was headed. Bo Elik and George Bouchard started the scoring Saturday night. Claude Laforge cut the deficit to 2-1 in the second stanza. A pair of late third-period goals by Danny Lewicki and Fred Glover insured the verdict.

Jim Bartlett scored four goals in the Providence win, the first time he has scored four tallies in a game this season. The New York hockey Rangers handed the Bears 22 goals—eight of them in the last four games.

Ray Ross, Bill Carmichael and Gary Collins notched the other Providence goals. Bobby Hewitson got two for Hershey, Dunc Fisher counting the other.

Springfield Indians scored four times within four minutes to down the last-place Buffalo Bisons in the other game. Floyd Smith, Ken Schinkel, Tom Schneider, Bob Armstrong and coach Cal Gardner and Gerry Ehman were the Springfield marksmen and Pete Ingram, Norm Corcoran and Pete Conacher scored for Buffalo.

SATURDAY SCORES

In Saturday night's action Cleveland trimmed Rochester 6-3 and Springfield edged Hershey 5-2 in overtime.

Rochester opened the scoring against Cleveland but were no match for the Barons who ran in six straight goals against spare goalie Jerry Cheevers, subbing for the injured Gerry McNeil. The Cleveland scorers were Don Hoffman, Ellis Bill Gilbert, Dan Poirasna, Cal Stearns and McLellan. Ron Smrke got the Rochester goal.

At Springfield, Armstrong scored the long shot to give Indians their win. Dale Anderson and Floyd Smith counted in regulation time for Springfield and Lorne Davis and Claude Evans for Hershey.

TEST ENDS IN DRAW

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — The touring Pakistan cricket team, who had led by 120 runs on first innings, had to fight hard to force a draw with Jamaica here Saturday. At the end of the four-day match they were 131 runs behind with only three wickets standing. Jamaica declared their second innings closed at 401 for six — a lead of 271 — then dismissed the Pakistan wicket for 140 by the close.

Chevies Whip Kingston 10-5 With Webber Scoring Five

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltending is a tough job at the best of times. But the fellow in the nets for Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Eastern division playoffs think they've got the toughest job of all.

This weekend they split four games—they scooped the puck from the netting 47 times at the loop's forwards went on a scoring spree.

Leading the parade were third-place Pembroke Lumber Kings. They pumped in 16 goals in two games. Lumber Kings thrashed league-leading Belleville McFarlands 10-0 Saturday and then downed Ottawa - Hull Canadiens 6-3 Sunday.

Cornwall Cheviies Saturday beat Kingston CKLC's 10-5. The Junior Canadiens also lost the Saturday game to CKLCs by a 7-6 score.

Cornwall's Bryan Webber topped the scorers. He netted five as Cheviies, tied 3-3 in the first period, went ahead 6-3 in the second and outscored CKLCs 4-2 in the final.

Moe Savard, Ron Muir, Rene St Hilaire, Pete Payette and George Aitken scored the other Cornwall goals. Gary Gunnlaugson with Brian Anderson, Don Thomson and Mike Bukacheski scored for Kingston.

One goalie who came out of the weekend reasonably unscathed was Pembroke's Andre Payette. He blocked 20 Belleville shots to help Lumber Kings to their first victory of the season.

Bert Giesebrecht led Pembroke with three goals. Playing coach Jerry Plamondon and Bruce Gieshebrecht each got a pair and Jack Giesebrecht, Jim Farrell and Frank Chiarelli added the others.

Jack and Bert Giesebrecht and Jim Mayoff each scored two goals for Lumber Kings against Ottawa. The Canadiens' goals were scored by Claude Richard, Bill Carter and Bob Roussseau.

Race Tightens In Western Senior Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A tense week's action is ahead for Sudbury Wolves, North Bay Trappers, Windsor Bulldogs and Chatham Maroons in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series.

This week sees the loop's final regular season games and each squad has a chance to grab one of the two remaining playoff spots. But competition is so close, one slip could spell disaster.

Only North Bay were without a weekend game. Of the others, only Windsor managed a victory. They defeated Chatham 4-2. Maroons tied their other game 4-4 with Sudbury.

Sudbury now is in third place with 50 points, Windsor has 49, Chatham 47 and North Bay are tied in fifth place with 47. And to add to Maroons' troubles their remaining regular league game on Wednesday is against the formidable league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

REVENGE IS SWEET

Dutchmen, beaten 4-1 by Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Friday, got a revenge victory during the weekend. They whipped Greyhounds 7-2.

Winnsor came from behind with three unanswered goals to defeat Chatham. Maroons took a 1-0 first-period lead with a goal by Gord Haidy. Irwin Grouse tied it in the second period for the Bulldogs before Lloyd Ferguson put Maroons ahead again.

Veteran Joe Klukay, Frank Bathgate and Mickey Roth got Bulldogs' tallied-period goals.

Maroons were also ahead—4-3 after the second period against Sudbury. Then Wolves' Joe Zorzi evened the score and put the teams into a scoreless overtime. Ferguson, with two, Danny

Hungarian Will Clip Mile Mark Says Delany

NEW YORK (AP) — Ireland's Ron Delany predicted today that the world indoor mile record of 4:01.6 is about to be broken.

By Delany!

Of course not. By Istvan Rozsavolgyi, the Hungarian who has been second to Delany in four races here since arriving less than two weeks ago.

"Rozsavolgyi definitely can break the record," said the Villanova University student with finality, "and if I were running against him in the intercollegiate special mile this week, both of us possibly could break it."

Delany will be taken up with defence of his 1,000-yard and two-mile titles in the intercollegiate meet where team points count more than individual champions. He'll have to do it this week—and alone. He leaves for home on Wednesday in effort to get training for the European championships in summer.

He couldn't manage 4:10 in his debut but Saturday night in the Knights of Columbus Athletic Union championships he went all the way down to 4:08.3 as Gerry Dexter got a 4:03.7 effort. The fact that he won't have Delany around to push him, he said, is that he will be able to concentrate on himself rather than playing cat-and-mouse with the Irishman.

Demaret Leads Houston Classic

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP) — Veteran Jimmy Demaret, a golfer who seems to revel in bad weather, fired a 68-70-70-70—278 to top Classic invitational into its final round today.

The 47-year - old professional thrived on mud and water Puddles Sunday and Monday helped the lead on the back nine of a delayed third round of the $20,000 Houston event.

He halfway - mark leader from Buffalo, N.Y., had trouble with the mud on the 18th.

Demaret's 70-70-69—209 left him with a comfortable lead over Fun Gol of Lemont, Ill., and Roberto de Vicenzo, the long-driving Argentinian pro from Mexico City. Mazur ended with a 216, seven strokes behind Demaret, the native of Houston.

Stan Leonard, the Vancouver pro who was tied for third to a five-over-par 77 after sharing the second round lead with Fun Gol and others, came back with a 69 Sunday, that left him in a seven-way tie for fifth.

Two Canadians reached today's final round. Toronto's Al Balding recovered from a shaky second round and stood 76-72-73 and tied with Leonard. Young Vancouver prospect, played steady golf with three 74s for a 222 total.

A stroke behind Furgol and de Vicenzo were Dow Finsterwald, Phoenix, Ariz., and Jay Hebert, Sanford, Fla., with 212s.

Dunnies Whip Swedes Twice Russians Thump Norway 11-3

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Competing countries in the world hockey championships which begin Friday in Oslo conducted tests of strength in weekend exhibition games.

Canada's entry from Whitby made short work of two third-place Swedish provincial teams, winning 17-0 Saturday and 9-1 Sunday.

Anatoli Tarasov, Russia's coach, said: "Canada will probably give them the same easy scoring chances the Norwegians did. Canadians are not much stronger," he said. "There are individualists who know how to play and they know how to play this game."

Dunc Clark, U.S. manager, said: "The Canadians sure have a strong team. They have surprised if they turn out to be the champions."

Canada the victory against the all - stars. Clark was worried about the U.S. effort to help strengthen it. "The Americans have in Walter Brown a 1956 Olympic team member, to take over goaltending duties.

Americans Win Five Canadian Ski Titles

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP)—Ganso's highest city got a taste of Canadian ski championships over and five of the 10 titles started toward the American border.

Canadian skiers held on to both senior championships, the Alpine and Nordic, as well as winning the cross - country and men's relay races.

The biggest armful of trophies was taken by Bonde Stenerud, only Anderson, who skits out of Rossland.

Although her competition was limited to a small field from Vancouver, Miss Stenerud showed she had such a decisive edge in training that Alpine, Nordic and combined titles that there was little doubt she could have handled skiffier competition.

Twenty-year-old Gerald Gannon of Rossland, last year's Canadian junior champion, lead all entrants for the Alpine title but was disqualified in downhill and slalom. His downhill time was second only to champion Verne Anderson of Rossland and he ran sixth in the slalom, where American skiers excelled.

Lanky Antero Rauhane, 22, a Finnish - born Sudbury resident two years, won the Canadian cross-country title on the Sudbury Sampo Athletic Club, he covered the 9½-mile course in 1:00.30 to win by more than a clear five-minute advantage over the nearest opposition.

Anderson, 24, had a five-second margin over Gannon in the men's downhill.

Two Americans made it almost a two-way fight for junior ski honors. Rudy Ruana 19, of Missoula, Most., finally won out over Bruce Bellerive by the slim set earlier in each of the runs by Ken Lyons of Bishop, Calif.

The jumping, last event on the list, was mainly a duel between Ernie Mahl from Leavenworth, Wash., and Vancouver. Jim Brenner, who finished with Bruce Silver to defend her Queen's Cup mixed-doubles win of last year.

Tatum was unruffled. He said he once owed $24,000 in back taxes—and "mistakes . . . made by a man who did my tax returns" but that he whittled it down by a "little arrangement. I have with the income tax people."

He said: "When I get to a town where I think I'll draw a good gate, I call up the tax bureau and tell them. Then they come around and attach me.

"As for Spivey, I don't owe him anything."

Teepees Within Point of Clinching Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees moved to within one point of clinching first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings with two victories.

A 6-1 victory over Toronto St. Michael's put the Teepees seven points ahead of second-place Cubs and 13 in front of third-place Toronto Marlboros. Teepees have four scheduled games left to play.

Only other weekend action saw Marlboros edge Barrie Flyers 6-4.

St. Mike's took a 1-0 first period lead against Teepees, then collapse as Teepees scored two unanswered goals in the second and punched in four more in the third.

Profiles of Party Leaders

Solon Earl Low

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Solon Earl Low is a direct, forceful politician convinced that only Social Credit monetary policies can insure security with freedom for all Canadians.

The 52-year-old leader of the Social Credit party believes Canadian voters eventually will accept this view, but he does not expect his party to take power at Ottawa's overnight, certainly not in the March 31 general election.

He has forecast another minority government with neither the Progressive Conservatives nor the Liberals getting a clear majority in the 265-seat Commons. He thinks his party will do better than the 19 seats it won in last year's election, its most successful in terms of numbers elected.

IN FIFTH CAMPAIGN

Like the other leaders, Mr. Low lists the state of the economy, agricultural problems and trade policies as election issues, but there's little second place as usual to the party's perennial appeal that Canadians give Social Credit an opportunity to introduce its monetary reform policies.

The former Alberta school teacher is leading his party into a federal general election for the fifth time since he was elected national leader in 1944.

In last year's campaign, Mr. Low was not as active as he had been in the campaign as of 1945, 1949 and 1953. He suffered a heart attack in Calgary in the fall of 1953 and his doctor ordered him to take things easier.

However, he plans to step up the tempo this year and deliver 20 to 25 major speeches outside his own constituency of Peace River.

"I had a medical check-up and I feel fine," he said in an interview here as the campaign got under way. "However, I have to be more careful than before the attack in 1953."

ALBERTA FARM BOY

Mr. Low, born on a southern Alberta farm where as a boy he milked 20 cows a day and walked 1½ miles to school, was one of the early disciples of Social Credit monetary theories.

He first became interested while attending the University of Southern California where he made a study of the writings of C. H. Douglas, Scottish-born economist-founder of Social Credit. He felt they were based simply on adapting Biblical teachings to political practices.

Ever since, his political philosophy has been closely tied to religious concepts.

An experience in the early 1930s while he was teaching at Raymond, Alta., high school convinced him more than ever that Social Credit could solve the country's economic ills.

Depression had gripped Prairie farmers and teachers at the school found themselves working without salaries. Fewer students were issued cards, which was used in lieu of money.

CIRCULATION STOPPED

A court injunction finally stopped circulation of the script because it violated federal currency laws. However, the practice tided the teachers over a difficult period.

To Solon Low, this was concrete evidence that the theory of Social Credit was workable—that what was physically possible was economically possible. It was proof to him that debt - free money could be issued by the federal government to meet any unforeseen deficiency of revenue, provided current production and consumption would justify such a step.

The answer to economic ills, he felt then as now, was to put more purchasing power into the hands of the people.

He soon found himself in a position where he could attempt to implement Social Credit theories. He was elected in the 1935 Social Credit landslide that swept the movement to power in Alberta under the late William Aberhart. Two years later, Mr. Low became provincial treasurer for seven of his 10 years as Alberta's MLA, so was minister of education and minister without portfolio, holding the latter post after being elected national leader at a party convention in Toronto in 1944.

YOUNGEST PARTY CHIEF

Of Canada's current major party leaders, Mr. Low is the only one who has been a provincial cabinet minister or a member of a legislature at 21 the age of the youngest of the four.

He was a seat in the Commons in 1945 and took over leadership of the Social Credit group there after John Blackmore, long-time member for Lethbridge, Alta., Mr. Low has represented Peace River ever since.

Born at Gardston, Alta., centre of Mormonism in Canada, he was one of a farm family of nine children. At 18, he was teaching a rural school of 29 pupils.

He took a job on the job of Social Credit leader when an MP's salary was only $4,000 annually, less than he received as an Alberta cabinet minister. The personal income now is $10,000.

This is all Mr. Low gets as he received no pay from his party. Of Scottish and English interest age—his father helped write the constitution of the state of Utah—he is an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In 1951, he managed a basketball team of Mormon missionaries in Ottawa that reached the national playoffs.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was smoking to himself peaceful and ma said, William, it's important to decide who you is going to vote for to represent our district in the city government. I've firmly made up my mind, but still I'm open to suggestions, she said.

That's what I call sitting on the fence with both feet firmly on the ground, pop said. What's your man, my dear, Mackmartin or Slewsberry? he said and ma said, I won't tell you till you tell me which one you've decided on. I'm for Mackmartin, pop said. He's got all the ear marks of a good man in front of the finger marks of a burglar. He went through college in 2 years instead of the usual 5 and he's a self-made man. He's a distinguished lawyer who has always refused to defend crooked politicians. Ideals, pop said.

I dont care about all that, his father was a rich man and he was born with a silver spoon, and that's a black mark be cause positive, ma said. Slewsberry is the son of a poor barber and had to work his way half way through grammer school before he had the time to work, and besides, I hear that all grate men had a humble start, pop said, and you said, the father of Peet sake, speeking of black marks, Slewsberry was convicted of drunk driving and he was a magistrate's clerk.

That's not the matter, he can ever-come it just as he overcame his humble beginnings, ma said, and besides pop, I think I can never overcome your logic and I don't know why I keep trying. I'm odd to you at the polling booth, he said.

Meeting he was still going to vote for Mackmartin.

Oldest Profession in World Thriving Despite Disapproval

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—If she's a success in her calling, she makes around $20,000 a year. She maintains a fashionable address. She may think the badge and key for "Old Man"—who is not necessarily her husband.

Her profession, oldest in the world and thriving despite society's disapproval, is practiced under a rigid code. She scorns streetwalkers as the lowest form of life.

An aristocrat among prostitutes, the call girl is considered in certain circles a glamorous career—daughter of Joy.

But she usually attempts suicide. Often she succeeds, on the first or third or sixth try.

Why is she what she is? What motivates her? Is there a pattern of behavior?

Six years ago the telephone rang in the office of a Manhattan psychoanalyst, Dr. Harold Greenwald, executive director of the Association of Applied Psychoanalysis.

A friend was calling to ask if he would take a call girl for psychoanalysis. Greenwald said of course, it wasn't her occupation but her problem that interested him.

She came, 23-year-old Sandra, who had been a call girl for five years. She had a quiet kind of beauty and refined manners. Her trouble, she said, was frequent, intense depression. Twice she had taken overdoses of sleeping pills, but had been found in time.

While Sandra was still in analysis, he took on call girl No. 2, a bright, pretty redhead he met at a party.

Stella, as he called her, was worried whether she should attempt suicide again. From an overdose of sleeping pills a few months before, she had awakened in a hospital 36 hours later.

But except for the same problem—fear of suicidal depression, there was no apparent kinship with Sandra.

Stella's early environment was the exact opposite. She was the child of well-to-do, cultured parents. Sandra's family had been so poor she lived part of her childhood in an orphanage and foster homes.

What was the common denominator? By the time Greenwald found it he had four more call girl patients ranging in age from 19 to 43—and was well on his way toward a book.

"The Call Girl: A Social and Psychoanalytic Study" is based on analysis of his six patients and interviews with 29 others.

After finishing analysis, five of his six call girl patients gave up the racket, although this wasn't a direct goal of therapy.

Not one of those Greenwald interviewed grew up in a happy home. She couldn't absorb the values of society because she was unable to form any attachment for her family. And because she couldn't identify with the mother she felt rejected her, she was uncertain about her own identity—and her own sex.

To prove to herself she really was a woman, she rushed into many affairs with men. Promiscuity almost always precedes a girl's entrance into the profession, says Greenwald. But it's not usually because she likes sex. Of the 30 girls interviewed, 14 expressed definite hostility to men.

From his patients Greenwald also learned about the practical aspects of the profession. The finances, language and operating code.

For a "trick" with a "John," which in the language is a sexual session with a client, the price range from $30 to $100.

Greenwald had under-estimated. Sandra made around $20,000 a year, untaxed because they live mostly in cash. All their expenses are high.

Clothes, apartment and upkeep for all customers. And she has to spend large sums for protection from arrest.

But most of the money she gives to her "old man." He is a paid arm-candy, who serves two major purposes, Greenwald found. One is to keep her from being lonely. The other reason is that, by supporting her client-lover, in effect he makes money in a low, vile way, and by giving it to a girl he considers less evil than himself.

In the case of the call girl, as contrasted with the streetwalker or the occupant of the house, her boy friend is never set free as a procurer.

In her professional code, a call girl recognizes a client in public unless he speaks to her first. Even if she sees him with other girls, she doesn't identify her prominent customers by name.

Aladdin Show Not as Good As Everyone Had Expected

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Aladdin as translated onto television, was an electronic wonder of sound, color, action and terror. Yet the CBS-TV Show of the Month was not the work of an inspired genie.

Better than many programs visible on the home screens, the Arabian Nights story presented Friday evening nevertheless was not as good as everyone had been led to expect.

S. J. Perelman, who wrote the book, and Cole Porter, who wrote the music, simply did not rub the lamp of their respective talents hard enough to evoke much magic.

MUCH MORE EXPECTED

The centuries-old fairy tale concerns a poor boy named Aladdin who came into the possession of a magic lamp with which he made very good Indeed.

From such a theme one expected Perelman to draw humor and fashion a fantasy equal to his work burbletured by the prevailing genie of the program. In any event, humor did not reach the screen.

And after hearing the music it seems probable that Porter, previously considered wrote the right numbers in nine days.

Sal Mineo was barely adequate to the taxing role of Aladdin, into the role of the magician was Aladdin's antagonist, Cyril Ritchard injected broad comedy nature in an obvious attempt to keep the scenes lively and moving. Perhaps Ritchard was as baffled as any thoughtful viewer over his unmotivated reason for trying to destroy innocent Aladdin.

As the princess, Anna Maria Alberghetti had little opportunity to do much except sing.

There are two ways of judging a $500,000 musical extravaganza such as Aladdin. First, how does it compare with other entertainment fare on television? Aladdin was superior to some similar efforts, but inferior to the few best.

Secondly, considering its cost and its cast, how does it compare to a Broadway musical? Even such a theme one expected Perelman to draw humor and fashion a fantasy equal to his work burbletured by the prevailing genie of the program. In any event, humor did not reach the screen.

And after hearing the music it seems probable that Porter, previously considered wrote the right numbers in nine days.

SINGER OK

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Harry Belafonte left hospital Friday after a four-day stay for muscle surgery on his right eye. Pre-operation was termed "very satisfactory."

Miss Dunne Found Russians At UN Cordial and Polite

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It was much more exciting than acting, because we were taking part in real and important drama."

That was Irene Dunne's reaction to her recent experience as a United States delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. Some of her impressions:

"Diplomacy is very careful and polite. Your opponents can stand just as glaring as can be while they are quietly cutting your throat.

"I think it is a healthy thing for laymen to serve on the assembly's delegation. We came in full of enthusiasm to get things done—and sometimes we do accomplish things.

"We may have been in time and create a little action. One day, one of the delegates came up and said, 'Oh, I hate you!' Then he explained that he had stayed up until 1:30 in the morning, watching one of my old movies on television. Even Andrei Gromyko said that he had seen me on TV.

"I found Gromyko very cordial—all of the Russians, in fact. I always went out of my way to talk to them at social affairs. —

NO STAGE FRIGHT

"When I made my first speech, I was amazed that I wasn't nervous at all. Yet, when I make a TV or stage appearance, I shake all over. Perhaps it was because I wasn't giving a performance.

pledged $27,000,000 for the relief of Palestine refugees. Both with a pretty nice gesture for our country to make.

"I came away greatly impressed with the work the UN does in its limited fields—and I don't mean certain limits. I think we averted a serious situation in Syria, which might have been much worse without a forum to hear it. . . .

"I'm much impressed with the work the UN agencies do. I'm especially interested in UNICEF's work with children. And the health organization, which has found a cure for malaria—in some cases yaws with a five-cent injection of penicillin. I might add that Americans don't contribute one hot cake to the organization. . . .

"I asked her about her resuming her acting career.

"Sure, I'd like to do something

Little Benny's Notebook

I was eating breakfast still partly sleepy, when pop, Heck, I wish this was Saturday.

Meening no school; and pop said, If you only knew it, school days are the best of all. I remember mine, and I only wish I had appriciated them then as much as I do now. My, I remember jumping away to school with my little companions while my poor father had to trudge off alone to his office. Everything we said was so important we had to yell to each other's faces, so that you kind do now without realizing your blessings.

Yeah, that's all right on the way there, but how about after you get there? I said, and pop said, That was even better. In my fondest memories I see me and myself in the classroom with a free education wafting soothingly from the radiators, and myself well lothed in a happy daze that can never be recaptured, except perhaps at class banketts. Ah, those were the days to remember, he said.

Do you remember the one when you graduated and the last time and how you felt when you realized you never had to go back to school again? I was big enough to go to work and make my own decisions instead of having to ask for it and not even getting it. Yes, I said, I remember. I said, Besides, I bet you cant remember anything wooden-ear about homework, I said, and pop said, Memory has its limitations.

For land sakes, William, let him drink his milk, ma said, and pop said, Drink your milk, Benny.

Which I did, and I heard the fellows yelling and whistling and I ran out and went to school with them still feeling agenst it.

Socred Leader Says Election Not Necessary

GRAND PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP) Social Credit Leader Solon E. Low said Saturday night the Conservative government has no moral right whatsoever to ask the people for a renewal of confidence.

The national leader accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government of placing "the welfare of the party above the welfare of our country" in calling the March 31 federal election.

Mr. Low told an election rally following his nomination as Social Credit candidate for Peace River constituency that Mr. Diefenbaker and his party—asked for the privilege of forming a government."

"They got it. The people charged them with the responsibility of safeguarding the welfare of Canada and they wanted them to stay at their post until our country was out of danger, or at least until they had demonstrated that they could or couldn't carry on through a dangerous period."

But the Diefenbaker government was afraid that it couldn't meet the situation, it had no confidence in its ability and in the face of a few difficulties, Mr. Low added, deserted its post and abdicated its responsibilities.

SC "GUIDANCE"

The Progressive Conservative minority government, however, under the fearless and careful guidance of the Social Credit group in the House of Commons, Mr. Low said, "is a pretty good government as has been proved since Oct. 14, 1957.

"But a Tory government on its own couldn't be like a runaway Bennett-buggy on a steep side of a hill with no steering wheel and no brakes.

"Without the Social Credit to give their pitiful efforts reality, the Conservative endeavors in the Commons this time would have been downright pathetic and unproductive."

Mr. Low quoted Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks made before the June 10 election which said in part:

"We will assure the farmer of his full share of the national income by maintaining a flexible price support system to ensure an adequate parity for agricultural producers based on a fair price-cost relationship."

Mr. Low said "during the revolution, stage of the bill a social Credit member severely criticized it, pointing out that it didn't mention parity once, it didn't mention cost-price relationship once, it didn't mention the word 'guarantee' and he argued that through the way that fill $400,000,000 tax-cut proposal would be a lot better than Prime Minister Diefenbaker's $1,100,000,000 public works program for aiding the unemployed. For example, he said, how could Canadians expect to get work fast from the proposed $100,000,000 highway in the Yukon that might take months or years to get started.

"A treaty for the Eskimos!" one of his supporters shouted.

Barchesadi, Jr., mounted the front step of a red-bricked corner

Liberal Leader Seeks Votes on Street Corners

COBOURG (CP) — Mike Pearson got down to some old-time electioneering Saturday as he sought votes on the street corners and legion halls in a fast-moving motor tour of four ridings in eight hours.

The pace was so fast that when a stripper suggested the Liberal leader may want to "dance all night" on March 31, Mr. Pearson replied that it may be a case of where he wanted to sleep all night and all day before he did any dancing.

He mixed joking with some serious campaigning as he spoke at Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Trenton and Cobourg and then pushed on to Toronto where he caught a plane Sunday morning for Regina to start the first day campaign in the western provinces.

Peace, he said, was not an issue in the election fight, though voters would have to decide

Business Daze

"Of course, the joke would be much funnier if I could remember the punch line."

PAROLED AFTER 23 YEARS IN JAIL

Granted parole after 23 years in prison, Nathan Leopold, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1933 for the thrill-slaying of Bobby Franks, now 46 is in Puerto Rico and take a 310-a-month job. He will be released next month but will have to report regularly to his parole officer and remain in his residence every night after 10.30 p.m.

PEARSON GREETED

That was not so, Mr. Pearson said. No person and no country had any monopoly on the suggestion of a UN police force. The former prime minister St. Laurent, however, was almost the first to suggest it before the United Nations back in 1946 or 1947, Mr. Diefenbaker made his proposal in 1956.

For years the Liberal government's UN delegation had tried to get the UN to set up a permanent police force to prevent local wars from growing into big ones. Even when Mr. Diefenbaker made his proposal in the Commons in 1956, Mr. Pearson recalled, that he and his staff already had discussed it with the UN secretary-general, but it was felt that the Middle East powers and other countries would not support it.

And when he sought to have the proposal discussed at a Commonwealth affairs committee meeting, none of the Conservative members participated in the discussion and Mr. Diefenbaker did not even appear.

The Canadian delegation at the UN finally got member countries to agree to the temporary police for the Middle East after the Suez mix-up. Mr. Pearson said he was satisfied with the temporary arrangement. As prime minister he would look for a permanent police body in his drive for peace.

Replying to other questions, he declined to state party policy on the matter of forming a party to competition with CBC television outlets. He would keep to the question with his colleagues in the light of the Fowler commission report which he considered a "pretty impressive document." He would not go further than that.

But generally he believed in private enterprise in television. He observed that in connection with the publicly-owned and operated transportation industries air transport, Transport Minister Hees had qualified a Conservative decision to end TCA's monopoly gradually.

That was "all right" with Mr. Pearson. He did not want any political interference at the point where, for example, TCA and Canadian Pacific Airlines might both flounder. The measure of competition could best be decided by the experts—the air transport board.

A Liberal government, he said, would review the 20-per-cent advertising tax on Canadian editions of foreign magazines. The tax was imposed by the former Liberal administration and, so far, retained by the Conservatives as a measure of protection for Canadian magazines facing foreign competition.

The tax was "experimental," Mr. Pearson said. The Liberals would look it over to see if it was working out and whether another approach should be taken.

Farmers' Union Told Prices Not High Enough

ROSLIN — A joint meeting of Roslin and Cherry Locals of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held in Roslin Hall on Friday evening with a large attendance of members and interested farmers.

Miss Margaret Bates rendered a piano solo, which was much enjoyed.

The president spoke briefly on the sale of Cherry, which Roslin Local has undertaken to sell and the results so far have been splendid.

He also introduced the new provincial president, Mr. Gordon Hill, of Varna, Ontario. Mr. Hill is himself a farmer and realizes the need of farm organization. Mr. Hill stated the Farmers' Union has constantly demanded that nothing but a full, fair relationship prices, based on cost of production will allow farmers to continue to farm.

"Our back is against a wall, and we are fighting for our very existence. When farmers all over Ontario find it necessary to work part or full time in other industries, and do their work on the farm in the evenings, and weekends, in order to hold and help pay for their farms, it indicates a general farm depression on the Ontario farm front. These people are the farm's best, and need their living from the soil, but due to the present economic and political poor, farm prices, now have to depend on some other source of livelihood.

"There should, and can be, policies passed that would give agriculture a fair measure of the protection given to other industries."

PRICE SUPPORT LEGISLATION

"The Farmers' Union recommended that the present legislation, due for presentation to the House' and, in an effort to procure legislation satisfactory to our honorary president, Mr. A. V. Cormack, visited the many government members, including the Minister of Agriculture, and encouraged that floor prices set at parity level, as a means of implementing the present legislation to ensure an adequate parity for agriculture production", Mr. Hill stated.

He spoke briefly of the presentation of the Farmers' Union Fifth annual brief, to the Prime Minister and cabinet of the Ontario Government, at Queen's Park, Toronto, in January.

In receiving thanks, Mr. Frost gave welcome to the large delegation and said it is encouraging to see the interest and concern for agriculture and that it was a compliment to the organization.

In conclusion, Mr. Hill threw out a challenge for all members to work diligently to increase their membership, as it is a "Union of action from the root" producing farmers.

At the close of the meeting, the Secretary auditor's quarterly statement and a discussion period was followed.

The Local president, Mr. Fred Elliott, expressed sincere appreciation and congratulations of the members, to Mr. Hill for having given his valuable time in addressing the 2 locals in the county.

Mr. Roscoe Roberts of Foxboro was present and was asked to come forward. He also expressed pleasure that his name had been added address and reminded everyone that he too, is a farmer and realizes the price conditions that exist today. "Farmers must organize, if they want to have a bargaining power" he noted.

Mr. Clarence Graham, county director, of Twins Local, also thanked Mr. Hill for coming and stated that a social evening at Marysville Local was also represented.

Members of the Roslin Local served refreshments.

TAKE NO CHANCES

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A 25-million-mile conjoined with telescopic sight was confiscated by security police near the Nevada-Arizona border. "Sure, I'm going to shoot rabbit hunting out there," the owner, who refused to be identified, explained. "But we couldn't afford to take any chances, so we confiscated the gun."

WOULD-BE RESCUERS SHOT

MADRID, Spain (CP)—A man who locked himself in his house and then set fire to it, shot into a crowd of his friends as they tried to rescue him Sunday. He killed three and wounded four before shooting himself to death.

PRIME MINISTER

Mr. Diefenbaker hammered hard at Mr. Pearson's election platform, which features the promise of big tax cuts to help stimulate the economy and ease unemployment.

He said Mr. Pearson has come up with many new ideas after seven months in opposition. Another four or five years in opposition might produce something better.

The former Liberal government had "hidden" an unemployment advisory report which warned a year ago that unemployment in the 1956-57 winter had been "clearly not seasonal." The report had predicted a fall-off in business expansion, housing and exports.

"I say to Mr. Pearson: What did you do? There must be some reason why you waited until 1958 to unveil the policies you should have implemented last year."

Conservative government had acted by cutting taxes, reducing interest rates, raising old age pensions, providing $300,000,000 in mortgage funds for winter house-building, stepping up public works programs and extending by two months the period for special wintertime unemployment insurance benefits.

FRIENDLY RECEPTION

Before the banquet, Mr. Diefenbaker got a friendly reception from Mayor Laurent Paradis and from Most Rev. George Pelletier, Roman Catholic Bishop of Trois-Rivieres.

At city hall Mayor Paradis requested federal support for a bridge across the St. Lawrence River here. The prime minister replied smiling, that early explorer Radisson, La Verendrye and Groseilliers had built a bridge to Western Canada that could be broken. As for a bridge here, he would give it consideration.

At the bishop's palace he signed the guest book and was told by Bishop Pelletier that they both had much the same mission, that of material and temporal welfare tightly linked to the spiritual and eternal, the bishop said. He and the prime minister were working for the good of mankind they were working together.

POLITICAL

Mr. Low spoke at Grand Prairie, Alta., after his nomination as Social Credit candidate in the Peace River by-election, announced in the Commons since 1945.

SEES RETURN SENTIMENT

Diefenbaker said there is a public attitude "everywhere appears" to restore the Conservative government with a majority.

Mr. Pearson argued throughout the campaign that his party's record would be a lot better than Mr. Diefenbaker's announced 10-point public works program for aiding the unemployed.

Mr. Coldwell said the Conservative government's "brush-off of British Commonwealth" and "accommodation with Communist countries" proves the insincerity and "overly conservative trade policies."

Mr. Low said the Conservatives have no moral right to ask Canadians for a renewal of confidence.

Mr. Low accused the Conservatives of placing "the welfare of the party above the welfare of the country."

HITS AT LIBERALS

At St. Hyacinthe, Que., Finance Minister Donald Fleming charged that the Liberals refused to take full pressure for this winter's unemployment and that they have "vacillated carefully over every increase in the numbers of unemployed."

At Midland, Ont., former Liberal health minister Paul Martin predicted unemployment would reach more than 600,000 by the end of March. By dissolving Parliament, the Conservatives were attempting to escape the responsibility of dealing with unemployment.

A "so-called secret Liberal report" forecasting an economic slump which Prime Minister Diefenbaker released to Parliament was "a diversionary tactic and a red herring," Mr. Martin said. He said the report contained nothing "that was not brought forward by the previous minister of finance" . . . It could be found in the annual report of the Bank of Canada."

Mr. Martin spoke at a nomination convention which picked John R. McIsaac former mayor of Orillia, as Liberal candidate in the Simcoe East in the March 31 federal election.

Labor Minister Michael Starr said a whirlwind visit with to Hamilton Saturday night. He attended festivities at two halls but said he was not "politicking." Mr. Starr, first Canadian of Ukrainian descent to hold a cabinet post, said he was invited to the city to take part in "Shevchenko" a Kiev of pre-Lent celebration by Ukrainians.

He was greeted by members of the Ukrainian community including Quinto Martini, Progressive Conservative for Hamilton East.

J. Waldo Monteith, minister of health and welfare, said Saturday at Stratford that bed grants for hospitals and nursing homes have raised to $2,000 from $1,000 during the Progressive Conservative administration.

"There are many cases across Canada where hospitals were forced to being condemned—they are in an entirely different position now," he said.

Mr. Monteith spoke at nominating convention at which he was the Progressive Conservative candidate Perth riding in the March 31 federal election. He held the seat in the last Parliament.

Three Ds Dominate Memory Of Writer After Return From Long Journey in New China

Editor's Note: The editor of Reuters, Walton A. Cole, has just returned to London from a round-the-world trip including 13 days in Communist China where he travelled nearly 4,000 miles. Cole, who proved to be shorthand notes a record of the sights he saw and the people he met, wrote a series of articles, of which the following is one.

TRAVELLING EDITOR

Walton A. Cole, the editor of Reuters, has just returned to the London office of the news agency from a round-the-world trip including 13 days in Communist China. Cole has written a series of articles based on his observations during his 4,000-mile journey through China. He is well known in Canada. (CP Photo).

By WALTON A. COLE
(Copyright, 1958, by Reuters)

LONDON (Reuters) — Discipline, drabness and dedication are the three Ds dominating the memories of my recent travels within the new China.

Perhaps these impressions are the more vivid by contrast with those seemingly happy- go -lucky lands of Southeast Asia, adorned with their peacock plumes of color, through which my route of entry led.

And on my return journey by way of e-gay, ever-neon Tokyo, the China scenes kept crowding in on me—the monotyped clothes in winter garb of blue denim . . . the intensity and industriousness from factory school to factory.

There were the shiny scrubbed female faces framed with hair straight as string; the clinically-clean streets devoid of motor traffic; giant billboards proclaiming national slogans.

SUFFERS FOOD

There was superbly - prepared food in hotels and restaurants where cooking, not decor, was paramount. Courtesy prevailed everywhere.

China has a population of 650,000,000 which officials in charge of a state campaign for practicing birth control estimate will reach 800,000,000 by 1975. How then can a single central government succeed in guiding the thinking and providing the daily bread and work of such a diversified nation?

It does so through a structure of committees that seek to represent the viewpoint of every sectional interest engaged in the national effort ranging from former capitalists such as textile mill owners to those who used to belong to Sir Xuoninzang.

These committees reach even house wives in city tenement blocks and peasants on collective farms. They exercise control and provide a two-way channel of information over which the public attitude is piped back to the policy makers the Communist party

NO 'FREE TIME'

Political education and re-education—is the constant theme. The child in the kindergarten learns to love country and Communist party and chairman Mao Tse tung. Old men in study groups learn every change in the party line and "wash" their own brains so that they may have "correct thoughts."

In school and university, in factory and village, everyone learns the political doctrine and philosophy which will form the basis of his life and provide "correct" answers and analyses for every question.

Co-operative working and communal living is huge, block-like barracks mean that supervision of the individual is effective. "Free time" as an individual is virtually unheard of. The city worker may say goodbye to his colleagues when the day's work is done — but is likely to meet them again that evening in the communal dining-hall and rest-decor.

HAPPY WITH LOT

But unless hundreds of people I saw in the staff conversation room and canteens were acting, they are content and happy in this communist lot.

In 12 days in China, I saw only a fragment of the country, but in 4,000 miles of travel I did visit main cities like Shanghai, Peiping, Nanking and Canton, and talked with scores of people: High government officials, newspaper men, factory workers, housewives, peasants. Even the last remnants of the capitalist class.

No doubt many of the people I interviewed gave me "correct" answers. But in themselves they are revelations of government thought and policy.

SOME GRUMBLE

There were stated to be some rumbles of discontent, particularly among city workers pressed to volunteer on the farms.

Some officials and intellectuals

BOY AND GIRL

BY ROUSON

-it should be stressed that an intellectual in China is anyone with an elementary school education—have undoubtedly interpreted too freely chairman Mao's invitation to "let one hundred flowers blossom and one hundred schools of thought contend."

Some peasants, too, may be skeptical of the benefits of government control through co-operatives, particularly if they own rich land, good implements or have sons and daughters who have stayed at home to help work the good earth.

MAO DYNASTY

The impact of the new China on me was that there now is a Mao dynasty similar to Ming and that this leader's dynasty is solidly based.

The Western visitor to China could criticize many aspects of the regime just as the Chinese Communist is ever ready to criticize the capitalist society if his philosophy is challenged in certain sectors.

One notes the determination to push through at all costs ambitious prestige building and industrial projects seemingly regardless of their true place in the economy, the ceaseless suppression of the individual, the scorn of so much relating to the past, the blind faith in the correctness of policy decisions.

ASIAN, NOT RED

What does the new China demand of the rest of the world? The answer is: "Equality and complete reciprocity. One high official told me: "China believes in coexistence, the main points of which policy are non-intervention in the internal affairs of another country, equality and mutual cooperation."

It is relevant to note that in travelling through Southeast Asia, I found China was regarded by Asians I spoke to as another Asian country rather than as a Communist nation.

My own introduction to China was when I crossed the border bridge from Hong Kong. New Territories: on the China mainland to catch the train for Canton. The state tourist service immediately took over—porters were organized, formalities attended to, and with a farewell blast of martial music from the station it was on my way.

The same service awaited me at Canton, a huge city which seemed bare of everything but blue-clad people, and the noisy, chugging restless river boats with more blue - clad people. Streets were litter-free, cars almost nonexistent, and there was no advertising except for poster-art encountered everywhere I went — urging such things as "world peace through the solidarity of the workers."

The air trip to Peiping in the state air line, which claims a seven-year accident - free record, does little night flying and abandons a flight if visibility is poor at destination—as was organized on the same efficient basis. The aircraft was Russian-built

Mallard Knows Good Thing in Cold Weather

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — Freddy the mallard knows a good thing.

Jimmy Wallington found Freddy "frozen right into the snow" Sunday, brought him into the house and thawed him out in a box behind the kitchen stove.

But Jimmy fed Freddy oatmeal gruel and by Tuesday he was as chipper again. So the Wallingtons opened a door and Freddy took off.

Thursday night, Mrs. Wallington said, the family was at dinner when there was a sharp rapping on the door. Jimmy opened it and there stood Freddy. He waddled into the kitchen's warmth, quacking a demand to be fed.

Family Quits Home After Bottles Pop

SEAFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Mysterious antics of bottles and other objects finally proved too much Friday for Mrs. Helen Herrman's family. They quit their home to live with relatives.

A flying sugar bowl and a leaping ink well Thursday night served as the final straws to the nerve-wracked mother and father of two children, James Jr., 13, and Lucille, 13.

For 18 days the family had been plagued by bottles blowing their screw tops and similar incidents. The phenomenon has defied all explanation.

Detective Joseph Tozzi of the Nassau police said he was present when a sugar bowl, containing a pound of sugar, flew off a dinette table and hit a nearby table. It made a dent of one-half inch in the wood.

"There is no question that it happened," said Tozzi, "and there's no explanation for it.

"It was impossible for any human hand to have touched that sugar bowl. I was standing in the doorway outside the dinette. The boy was at least 15 feet from the table. The father was talking with Mrs. Herrmann and the daughter were elsewhere in the house."

Paper Sales Up

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian daily newspapers had an aggregate daily circulation of 3,890,898 in 1957, the trade weekly, Editor and Publisher, reports.

This was an increase of 17,623 copies daily, or .45 per cent, over 1956.

United States dailies had an aggregate circulation of 57,805,41. This was an increase of 703,935 copies daily, or 1.23 per cent.

Rawdon
MISSION BAND

RAWDON— Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Mission Band convened in the church hall on Sunday morning with an attendance of 25.

Pauline Johnson opened with "Little Sunbeams", and Jimmie Summers gave his report, followed by a vocal selection by Fred Cooney.

Readings were given by Kalvin Sharp, and Jean Sharpe, Pauline Johnston and Linda Summers, Carole Sharpe, and Judy Cooney contributed duets.

The March program will be in charge of Howard Jeffs and Judy Cooney.

Betty McAdam and Carolyn Merrick gathered the offering, which was dedicated by Dianne McAdam.

Mrs. Eric Summers read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Harry McAdam outlined the first chapter of "Kenje."

The Presbyterial award was placed on the Mission Band certificate. Mrs. Don Johnson closed the meeting.

Several of the Rawdon roads were filled with snow drifts on Monday following the weekend storm and the folks who live along these by-ways were without mail service, and were snowed-in until the snowplough made its appearance on Tuesday and Wednesday, and some families were without bread.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ryan, Glen Miller were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cryan, at Connaught.

Miss Mary Ellen David had the misfortune to sprain her ankle while sleigh-riding near the Williams school.

Mr. Arthur Robertson, of Peterborough, is ill in hospital.

A large number of Rawdonians attended the oyster supper at St. Mark's parish hall. Several remained to play cards and all enjoyed a delightful evening.

A. C. 2 Dale Hubel, Clinton, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gordon and Mr. James Hubel, student at Queen's University, Kingston, spent the weekend with Mrs. Russell Hubel and family.

Way to Handle Peronists Poses Tough Problem

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The tough problem facing President Arturo Frondizi is what to do with the Peronists who are taking credit for his landslide victory in Sunday's Argentine election.

Frondizi told a press conference Monday night that he would be elected "not the Argentine people" and recognized no special political help. But clandestine newspapers appearing after the results were known claimed his election was a triumph for backers of ousted dictator Juan Peron.

One paper proclaimed: "The day is not too distant when the Argentine workers will go battle against the "literarians" who overthrew Peron in September, 1955, and have run a provisional government since.

Frondizi's only real opponent, Ricardo Balbin, had the government's backing. Peron gave Frondizi an implied endorsement.

MANY BLANK BALLOTS

Actually the Peronists did not give the victory to Frondizi, though they did make it overwhelming. About 1,100,000 Peronists apparently voted for the ex-president's 70% of the cast blank ballots—and his margin over Balbin, candidate of the Radical party's right wing, was about 1,700,000. The Peronists' only real alternative to Frondizi was the blank ballot; Balbin publicly rejected Peronism.

If Frondizi legalizes the now-outlawed Peronist political party as expected, it is likely to turn against him and seek to regain power. If he refuses to recognize the party, it undoubtedly would try to turn his six-year term into political chaos.

Frondizi pledged before the election to ask Congress for full amnesty for political offenders and parties. The 52-year-old Buenos Aires lawyer told the press conference that the amnesty would help Peron "if Congress decides so." Peron now is in exile in the Dominican Republic.

Frondizi's party, a Conservative group that stayed neutral in both world wars, captured control of Congress. It won all 45 Senate seats and an overwhelming majority of the 187 places in the House of Deputies. The party also won all 22 provincial governorships.

Progress Made In Plans for Bridge at Soo

TORONTO (CP) — Edward W. Jones of Barrie said today there has been definite progress toward construction of an international bridge over the St. Mary's River to connect Ontario and Michigan at Sault Ste. Marie.

He spoke to about 2,500 delegates at the 50th annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association, annually composed of municipal council members and persons engaged in highway construction and development. Mr. Jones is retiring president.

The bridge was suggested in one of three resolutions passed at last year's convention and presented to the Ontario cabinet.

HAVANA (AP) — Rebel kidnappers freed the world champion automobile racer, Juan Manuel Fangio, unshaken by his 29-hour experience, talked with reporters, government authorities disputed claims by other drivers that someone poured oil on the course of the race in which the 46-year-old, five-time world titleholder was injured and said he have been the star attraction.

Fidel Fangio, the National Sports Commission said Cifuentes' car "supposedly" went out of control.

SAY NO SABOTAGE

The commission contended that technicians who established absolutely all suspicion of sabotage were involved in the oil on street had seeped from the 27 racing cars. Drivers said even absolutely nothing would not be accounted for the amount of oil on the course.

Fangio told reporters his abductors had made clear that they had grabbed him the hope that his disappearance would force cancellation of the race and embarrass President Fulgencio Batista's regime.

The veteran driver showed no bitterness towards his captors, who selected as their headquarters the Havana hotel on the eve of the big race.'s.

He said the rebels did was in a good cause, then t as an Argentinian guest," said Fangio, whose own country threw out dictator Juan Peron in September, 1955.

REFUSES TO IDENTIFY

He refused to identify the kidnappers or to go in descriptive of them.

Fangio was picked up by Argentine Embassy employees at a lonely house where the rebels left him.

The veteran driver said five gunmen were involved in his abduction, and that his captors had confined him in five different hideouts and used three different cars to transport him.

Fangio said his captors treated him decently.

The race, originally scheduled to run 313 miles, was halted after Cifuentes' crash. Stirling Moss of Britain, who had completed five laps of 3.5 miles each, was declared winner and awarded $3,000.

Fangio will wind up with more. The sports commission said it had guaranteed him more than $5,000 to appear, and considered the abduction a "circumstance beyond his control."

BANDIT FORCES WOMAN TO JOIN IN BANK HOLDUP

Three Robberies Net Gunmen $8,000

MONTREAL (CP) — A housewife held at gunpoint was forced to participate Monday in a bank holdup—one of three major robberies in Montreal that netted about $8,000.

Mrs. Ernest Bergman told police a man forced her back into her car when she stopped at a shopping centre, wordlessly laid a pistol on the seat between them, and ordered her to drive to a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia at 6535 Cote des Neiges Road.

Entering Mrs. Bergman to accompany him, the gunman entered the bank and handed a note to the teller, who stacked bills so the number for him. He grabbed a handful and fled in Mrs. Bergman's car. The bank said he got about $3,000.

Paule Emile Lelievre, 32, was shot in the leg as he grappled with one of two bandits who took $1,500 from the 1350 Fleury St. East branch of the Banque Provinciale de Canada.

MEETS BANDITS

Lelievre, who had been delivering receipts to the bank, met the rifle-toting bandits when he came out of the basement. They were escaping after herding nineteen bank staff into a rear room and forcing teller Chislaine Martel to hand over the money.

The third holdup Adrien Laberge, employee of a liquor commission store at 6470 Sherbrooke Street West, was jumped by two men while walking from the store with $4,900 to deposit at a bank.

Arthur Durocher, part - time constable who was on duty at a school crossing, saw the scuffle and tried to stop at men from getting away in a car with the money. He was dragged several feet by the vehicle but managed to draw his revolver and fire several shots.

Reaction to British Rocket Bases By Papers Is Hardly Enthusiastic

LONDON (Reuters)—Reaction to the Anglo-American agreement to build rocket bases in Britain ranged today from sharply hostile comment to lukewarm support.

Announcement of the agreement in the House of Commons drew a flurry of attacks from opposition Labor members. Denounced Minister Duncan Sandys rejected a Labor proposal that the bases should be built under U.S. after summit talks with Russia.

Left - wing newspapers attack the plan as a "bad deal" which would destroy hope of securing a fui summit talks." The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, forms the agreement "something of a gamble," but the right-wing papers Express and Mail back it in other choice "until saner counsels prevail."

The Labor paper Daily Herald publishes a front-page editorial headlined "Fight for your life," urging Britons to "raise your voices and fight for our children."

The newspaper blasts the government for adding rocket bases to H-bombs and heightening the danger of world war. The editorial also denounces the Labor party for talking about "launch-

Party Leaders Range Over Wide Variety of Topics

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Party leaders ranged over a variety of election campaign issues Monday night.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker at Cornwall discussed farm legislation and the condition of the textile industry. He is scheduled to address a meeting tonight at Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River from the capital.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson talked of trade before a Vancouver audience of nearly 3,000, his biggest meeting since he began his campaign. He moves on today to Nanaimo, B.C., and Victoria.

CCF Leader Coldwell dwelt on the rights of Parliament at Lennberg, Sask.

Both Mr. Coldwell and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, will speak on national television broadcasts tonight, the CCF leader in Regina and Mr. Low from Edmonton. The Social Credit leader did not make an address Monday night.

Tim Buck, leader of the Labor-Progressive Party of Canada, said in a Toronto speech that Canada could ease its unemployment problems by trading with Communist China.

Recently returned from a tour of Red China, Mr. Buck said that country wants to buy commercial fertiliser, wheat, lumber, lead, zinc, copper and asbestos from Canada but that Ottawa refused to trade.

At Ottawa, Labor Minister Michael Starr said that if the policies of the former Liberal government had been allowed to continue under the Progressive Conservative administration, unemployment would be at least double what it is today. The Liberal policies he referred to, he said, were tight money and unrestricted immigration.

Mr. Starr was speaking at a nominating convention which picked Charlotte Whitton, 60-year-old former Ottawa mayor, to contest Ottawa West for the Conservatives.

At Toronto, Liberal Senator Arthur Roebuck said the Conservatives caused Canada's present unemployment problem — the most recent official figure was 520,000 jobless at Jan. 18—by their "stupid" policies of encouraging United States risk capital investment in Canada.

80,000 Alcoholics in Ont. Report Given Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The Alcoholism Research Foundation estimates there are 80,000 alcoholics in Ontario.

The figure is contained in the report by the association for 1957, tabled Monday in the Ontario legislature by Provincial Secretary Dunbar.

The estimate, foundation "officials said, is based on past figures and on the assumption there are 4,000 more alcoholics each year than during the previous year.

The 1956 census showed Ontario's population is 5,404,929.

The 1957 report also compared according to the incidence per cent of the 1956 and 1957 figures for which are available up to 1954. The latest figure, for 1954 was 86,707.

Annual figures from 1946 to 1953 are: 31,866, 33,360, 40,170, 45,200, 48,000, 48,900, 51,470, 57,000.

The report suggested that industrial health problems should include treatment for alcoholism, pointing out drunken employees only passed on the problem to "them to handle."

An estimated three to six per cent of all industrial employees are alcoholics, missing 18½ work days, 10 more than the non-alcoholic workman.

The report said only a small fraction of alcoholics are reached by existing treatment services. Progress in combatting alcoholism requires a "big breakthrough" in the number of physicians and others who will accept personal responsibility for treating alcoholic patients.

The foundation's centres in Toronto, London, Ottawa and Kingston treated 1,666 patients' last year. A fifth centre is to be established this year in Hamilton.

The report said: "While many other alcoholics received treatment in mental hospitals, penal institutions, private clinics and alcoholics anonymous, in many years would be required for all these facilities to expand enough to keep pace with the growth of

Bitten by Dog Wife Now Barks At Husband

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)— Mrs. Ora Belle Hall Monday was awarded $1,000 damages as a result of having been bitten on the leg by a dog.

The biting of a year ago left its mark emotionally, Mrs. Hall said. She testified that sometimes when her husband leaves her she still thinks of dogs.

She'd her husband, Jacob Klar:

"My wife is normally an affectionate person to me. Now she barks at me and pushes me when I try to kiss her."

alcoholism which is recognized by authorities as the largest public health problem facing a generation."

The foundation, operating on a $200,000 budget, had increased its educational and research programs.

H. D. Archibald, the foundation's executive director, said the increasing prevalence of alcoholism is one among other indications that "many young people in Canada and Ontario are prepared to use alcohol without unhealthy and undesirable consequences."

SUES CITY

NEW YORK (AP)—A Brooklyn man who sued the city for false arrest, assault and malicious prosecution won a $222,500 verdict Monday in New York State Supreme Court. The award was made to Edward Weglarz, 31, who was tried and acquitted in 1949 on a charge of holding up a diner for $60. Weglarz later sued the city for $500,000, charging that he was beaten severely in a police station and forced to sign a confession.

MEMBER CALLS FOR PUNISHMENT OF HOODLUMS

Says Teachers, Pupils Living in Fear

TORONTO (CP) — An investigation into report that hoodlums are attacking students and teachers in Ontario schools will be called for by a member of the Ontario legislature.

W. J. Stewart (PC—Parkdale), asked for the inquiry Monday in a speech advocating corporal punishment for "ruffians and bullies" who carry weapons, or attack citizens.

"I am opposed to pampering and adherence to modern psychology that would self-expression by undisciplined children and youth," he said.

"It has been reliably stated to me that well-behaved pupils, as well as teachers, have been attacked in our secondary schools, others threatened and in constant fear.

"I respectfully draw this report to the attention of the attorney-general and the minister of education, and ask for the investigation of this report at once."

WANTS MORE PROBATION

Mr. Stewart also proposed more widespread use of probation, more protection for juvenile delinquents.

He said juvenile courts were established to keep delinquents from getting black marks against their names but contended this protection isn't being given.

He cited the examples of a youth who received a jail sentence because of a juvenile offense and another who was refused entry to the air force because it was learned he had appeared in juvenile court when 15.

Outside the House, Dr. C. C. Goodfellow, deputy minister of education, said Monday night he can only recall one case in which a Toronto teacher was threatened—when youths recently expelled Central High School of Commerce and threatened Vice-Principal W. H. Hall.

One of the youths, Paul Brooks, 16, Friday was sentenced to three months for threatening with a "hooked-up" knife.

Gas Tax May Prove Deterrent To Air Services

TORONTO (CP) — W. Gordon Wood, vice-president of Trans-Canada Air Lines, said Monday the two per cent extra tax airline companies will have to pay on gasoline bought in Ontario may prove to be a deterrent to expansion of air services out of Toronto.

The extra tax costs his company $1,000,000 a year, he told the Canadian Club of Toronto. An eight per cent per-cent tax on all gasoline sold in the province. Industrial users pay no gas-oline bought in Ontario may prove to be a deterrent to expansion of air services out of Toronto.

18-Hour Snowfall Blankets Britain Creating Chaos

Railways, Roads Blocked And Villages Isolated

LONDON (Reuters) — Blizzards battered Britain today, downing power lines, isolating villages, delaying and in some cases knocking out transportation.

The all-night battle to keep transportation running continued into today as the snow kept falling with forecasts of still more to come.

By breakfast time the snow belt had spread south to below Bristol and was moving further south.

Heavy snow fell on London, bringing chaos to the morning rush hour as subway trains were slowed and suburban trains lines blocked by derailed cars.

CHAOS IN NORTH

Abandoned cars, overturned snowplows and blocked main roads were some results of an 18-hour continuous snow fall in the north.

Two main railroad lines running up the northwestern side of the country were blocked by deep snowdrifts. In another area a live power cable fell across the track halting trains.

Northern main roads presented a picture of cars buried in snow, trucks and buses abandoned.

Snow delayed air services between London and Paris, sometimes by up to one hour. Planes at London airport had to be de-iced and snow swept from the wings before takeoff.

TRAINS DERAILED

Passengers spent the night on a train jammed in a snowdrift near Preston, Lancashire. Gangs of men were trying to dig out another trapped near Manchester.

A bus missing between Scarborough and Bridlington, Yorkshire, was located under 10 feet of the snow, with passengers and crew sheltering at a nearby farm.

Bridlington and the nearby town of Whitby were completely isolated. Snowdrifts 12 feet deep choked streets and almost covered houses in Yorkshire towns.

In France, villagers near Paris barricaded their front doors, moved furniture upstairs and prepared plank gangways and boats as the river Seine and its tributaries overflowed as heavy rain, rose sharply.

Retired Doctor Cancels Debts Of $750,000

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) —Dr. Bailey T. Tally, just retired, is marking from his books all accounts owed to him—an estimated $750,000.

"Maybe they said he is canceling the bills for two reasons: "Maybe they said he is canceling short hours and are out of jobs, and others would not pay the bills even if they had the money."

Probe Possible Link to Slaying At Morrisburg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Chief Constable Robert Taft said Monday night a .32-calibre pistol was taken last week from a man wounded by police. A shotgun weapon was used to kill an Ontario Provincial Police constable at Morrisburg, Eastern Ontario, he added.

Maurice Philion, 22, of Ottawa, was charged Monday with possession of an offensive weapon.

Inspector of Detectives James Teal said earlier Monday that bullets from the pistol seized from Philion would be compared with those that killed OPP Constable Ronald Pitt at Morrisburg.

Chief Taft said that Winnipeg police at first had difficulty learning the calibre of the bullets that fatally wounded the Ontario policeman but they were sure they were .38-calibre.

WOUNDED BY SHOT

Police said Philion was wounded in the chest by a police bullet last Friday while trying to escape after two detectives who sought to question him about a $1,000 car theft visited a home adjoining St. Boniface.

Police said that when they encountered him over a restaurant last Friday night, he pulled a gun and threatened to kill the detectives.

Chief Taft said that as far as Winnipeg police are concerned their investigation will deal with only that charge.

In Ottawa, police said Philion is wanted for questioning in connection with the robbery of a drugstore Feb. 10. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, Ottawa police added.

Please Pass the Tranquillizers Peppery Charlotte Is on Warpath

OTTAWA (CP) — Peppery Charlotte Whitton won the Progressive Conservative fight for Ottawa West Monday night and politicians about the capital promptly reached for their tranquillizers.

The chunky 60-year-old former mayor defeated Federal Liberal Osmond F. Howe, 58, Monday night and now goes against Dr. A. McIlraith's bid to retain the seat a sixth time in the March 31 election.

With an almost four-to - one majority, Miss Whitton won 1,-681 to 426 in the contest in the 4,000-seat Coliseum, hired when the ex-mayor's campaign organizer estimated the lists. Only three ballots were spoiled.

Those present braved gusty driven snow to journey to the exhibition grounds and emerged from the convention two hours later to find three inches of snow under their automobiles and a raging storm in progress.

But there was ginger in the air. Miss Whitton disposed of amiable Osmond Howe, a familiar figure in Ottawa public life for years. Miss Whitton tossed out the gauntlet to Dr. McIlraith—her personal lawyer in private life.

"I'll kick Dave McIlraith or I'll run with a limp for the rest of his days," she said in a post-convention interview.

Indomitable during five years as mayor, from 1951 to 1956, Miss Whitton has a formidable reputation in these parts as a political scrapper. She has been writing a newspaper column since quitting the municipal scene.

"I'm not promise peace," she said at one point in her nomination speech. She described Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, "I promise war—for the good of the east Ottawa."

"Don't tie this country to hook again with a bow-tie," she quipped, alluding to the Liberal leader's sartorial habits.

"Stay with John (Diefenbaker) and his good four-in-hand—the Commonwealth and the United Nations in our external relations, development of Canada for Canadians at home, and balanced reciprocal trade abroad."

Proof that spring is just around the corner may be seen by a glance at the lower Moira River in the city. Almost overnight holes developed in the ice and, with the strong current underneath, the ice is treacherous.

Thickness of ice in the bay, though, varies. In some spots it is still quite thick, while in other spots it is reported to be very about stepping off the shore. It was early in March last year that the ice went out of the Moira and Trent Rivers.

4,000 Markers Now Issued in Quinte District

The auto licence bureau reported at this morning that 4,000 markers out of a possible 10,000 have been issued in the Quinte district so far this year. That means 6,000 vehicles must be registered by 1958 before Belleville owners will be open to prosecution if the vehicles are driven after that date.

Extra staff has been employed at the bureau to speed up the issuing of markers and operator's permits, but, to date, no rush has been experienced.

Ward from Toronto this morning indicated that there will definitely be no extension of the March 12 deadline. Any extension would have to be authorized by the provincial parliament.

Said the officer in charge of the bureau: "If those who have not got their 1958 markers and permits wait until March 12, I'm afraid they'll be out of luck. We just won't be able to handle them all."

Founder's, Past Presidents' Night Honors 25 Years Of Service by Kinsmen Club

Tribute to a quarter of a century of community service was paid to the Belleville Kinsmen Club Monday evening at a combined Founder's Night, and Past Presidents' Night, club officials observed the 25th anniversary of the club's founding.

Speaker at the Founder's Night banquet program held at the Inter-City Cafe was "Hal" Rogers of Toronto, founder of the Kinsmen Club movement in Hamilton 38 years ago.

From that small beginning back in 1920, Founder "Hal" told his listeners that the Kinsmen Club movement in Canada had grown to 327 clubs and close to 11,000 active members.

Since the inception of the movement nearly 100,000 men had been members of Kinsmen clubs.

In addition there are nearly 8,000 Kinettes in 275 clubs.

As a "young man's club" Kin has proven itself as a service club organization, their work during the war years attesting to them to thousands. Over 50 million quarts of milk had been distributed to children by the club's "Milk for British Fund"; over 100,000 parcels had been supplied with cigarets; magazines had been supplied to naval men, and Gastes Houses had been provided near army bases.

"Kinsmen Club members found satisfaction in all this, and they also found satisfaction in the teamwork necessary to make their efforts a success in the fellowship which the club work offered." Mr. Rogers said.

WORD OF APPRECIATION

Mr. Rogers had a word of appreciation to Belleville and district people for their support of the Kinsmen Club down through the years. "Only through the generosity of the people had much of the work of the Kinsmen Club been made possible," he said.

Kinsmen Club had proven themselves a service organization during the war years but their service activities are even more vital today

Kinsmen Club had gone much farther than providing swimming pools and providing parks for the children.

The Stratford Club was now building its third apartment houses to provide accomodation for, old people at low rental. Recently a 35-member Toronto club operated a home for diabetic children, and the Preston club was building a home for retarded children.

Kinsmen were still a young man's club but it was going on to even greater efforts.

"Talk is the organization which you "old fellows" helped to build," Mr. Rogers told the speaking directly to former club members, "and that is why it has come to Belleville to pay tribute and which I do most sincerely."

Past president of the Belleville Club, Clen Colling introduced the speaker, while former club head Norman Garbutt who was unable to attend the club meeting, expressed club appreciation.

Immediate past president Cecil Brown acted as chairman for the evening's program.

PRESENTATION MADE

One of the highlights of the evening was the attendance at the meeting of a dozen or so members of the Ottawa Kinsmen Club. It was the Ottawa club which sponsored the founding of the Belleville Kinsmen back in the middle of the "lean thirties".

Last night's visitors from the Capital Club in Ottawa were headed by Jack Norris, a former Belleville resident who as member of the club executive helped to found the local organization. The Ottawa club presented a sun-dial, a birthday cake, each section representing a Canadian province and symbolizing the national aspect of Kinsmenship.

Early history of the Belleville club was recalled by its charter president Bill McIntosh.

Greetings from Kinsmen national vice president Bob Good of Kingston, and from District Deputy Governor Don Hastie of Trenton, were received by the club.

"This is a great night for Kin in Belleville", Vice President Bob Good said. "It marks the closing out of the first 25 years and starts a second 25 years of service".

Belleville club president Don Bacon on behalf of his club members bade goodbye to club member Charles Duncan who is moving to Kingston and presented him with a three piece attendance pin.

NEWEST MEMBER PRESENTED

Later in the meeting, President Don introduced Fred Hall as the newest club member. Kin Founder Hal Rogers presented Fred with his Kinmen pin.

Entertainment was provided by the B.C.I. "Ginger Boys" whose rock and roll musical antics called for two encores; Belleville pianist Bruce Coad, and selections on the Hammond Chord organ by Maurice Baker.

Head table guests presented by past president Cecil Brown, home included past presidents Bill McIntosh, Carl Gillis, Bruce Brown, Garbutt Duff, Elmer "Buster" LaBarr, Oriff "Bollen" Lloyd, Harry Brown, Clen Brown, Cleo Colling, Frank Lang, Ben Yanover, Norm Garbutt, Newt Wilbee, Don Thomas, Bill Fraser, Stu Martin, and President Don Bacon.

Unable to attend the Founders' Night meeting were past presidents Hall Gaffney, Jeff Marvel and Arthur Cruji. Club past presidents now deceased are Harry Knott, Murray Davis and Keith Scott.

Queen's Doctor Says Churchill Is 'Pretty Good'

ROQUEBRUNE CAP MARTIN, France (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill passed a "comfortable night," a member of his doctor's staff said today, and Lord Evans, Queen Elizabeth's physician, told reporters that his reading of the last two bulletins is that Churchill's condition continues to improve.

The bulletins have reported the 83-year-old statesman as recovering from an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy.

Evans, on vacation on the French Riviera, said the Queen sent back word progress reports on Churchill's condition.

He said Churchill has "made a remarkable recovery in so short a time," and added: "The antibiotics have removed a lot of worries from the doctors now-except pleurisy."

He said he will be paying a courtesy call on Churchill before flying back to London, adding: "I think it will be Sir Winston the better, I expect, if I don't give a wrong impression of his patient's health. In any case he is doing fine now."

Rotarians Given Insight Into Magazine Publication

Local Rotarians were given an insight into the problems encountered in the production and distribution of a national weekly magazine at the publishing luncheon meeting of the club, when Ernie Colebourne, addressed the club Monday.

Mr. Colebourne, president and publisher of Upper Canada News Agency, wholesale distributors of magazines and newspapers for this district, has been in the distribution business for the past 27 years. He came to Belleville 20 years ago to establish a local branch of a Toronto news agency, and in 1951 went into business for himself.

"The distribution of periodicals and magazines is a vast and important industry employing 18,000 people in Canada and the United States," he said. "We operate over 5,000 routes and other local vehicles covering 2,963 routes, to serve a total of 118,693 dealers in Canada and the U.S."

"Our part as a distributor is the final link in the closely knit chain of people who rely on 'Time' delivery. Nothing moves faster than any other nations magazine, week in and week out," Mr. Colebourne explained.

"Time" is only one of thousands of magazines handled by the local agency.

EXPLAINS OPERATIONS

The speaker explained the widespread organization and operation which requires the co-ordinated efforts of 18,000 men in U. S. cities — Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and New York.

The entire printing operation is supervised from the publishers, the Production department, one of whose many problems it is during their busiest months, are "advance forms" of ads which are printed in Chicago, and delivered to the printing plants in Philadelphia and Los Angeles, at a specific time.

The job of editorial production which covers every tighter schedule, revolves mainly around the teletypesetter, a device by which type can be set in Chicago by remote control from New York, the publishing centre for the operation, he stated.

"The final deadline for editorial copy is late Sunday afternoon and by Monday morning the last press plate has been locked on a press cylinder in Chicago, and plates and molds have been sent to Philadelphia and Los Angeles," the speaker said.

Mr. Coleboure explained seven 66-page presses located in three cities, each capable of turning out more than 15,000 copies an hour of the "current form", are used in the publication, and within a 24-hour period more than 2,000,000 copies of Time's domestic edition are printed.

When the magazines have been "put together," the shipping crews at each of the printing plants swing into action decentralizing the required number of copies to each distributor.

Within 48 hours of press start-up time, copies have reached the farthest destination", he said.

One of the main headaches for Canadian distributors handling U. S. magazines is Canadian customs, he said "Every magazine and newspaper has to be cleared through customs and this takes time and money", Mr. Coleboure explained.

The speaker was introduced by program chairmen Court Miller and thanked by Newt Eddington.

FILM SHOWN

A film entitled "Mightier Than the Sword," which illustrated the effect and importance of magazines in our every-day life, was shown.

Prior to the address, Dr. Tom Ryley, of Belleville General Hospital, appealed to Rotarians to support the co-ordinated Red Cross — Boy! blood donor campaign.

Dr. Ryley stated a panel of 1,500 donors is required for the Belleville area.

He explained the ages of 18 and 65 who have had no serious diseases within the past five years are eligible," he said. "They will be called only twice a year by telephone appointment, and will be issued a blood-type card after the first donation. Approximately 30 donors will be called each week."

He explained the Red Cross has organized and is publicizing this campaign, while the hospital's part is that of taking, processing, typing and storing of the blood.

"This campaign is well organized but we need your response," he concluded.

Chairman of the publicity committee, Harold Wright, presided at the election of officers for the coming election. The slate is as follows: president, Jack Vanover; vice-president, Fred Wilson; treasurer, Don MacKinnon; directors, Bill Hurst and Harold Parker, and past-president Joe Demeza.

President Demeza called for additional nominations and announced an election will take place March 24.

4 Meet Death In Accidents During January

Four persons met death on the highway in as many fatal accidents in the No. 9 Ontario Provincial Police District during the month of January, it is noted in the monthly statistical report received from the Department's Department in Toronto.

The No. 9 police district is comprised of the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

In all there were 122 reportable accidents resulting in injuries to persons.

During the month police made 2,949 road checks, issued 867 warnings, and laid 321 traffic charges.

Plowmen Want Change in Rules

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association Monday called for changes in rules governing the annual provincial plowing matches to allow contestants to use tractor-mounted two-furrow plows with 12 and 13-inch bottoms.

Alex J. McTaggart of Aurora told the association annual meeting the decision should be allowed to arrange furrows by hand just as livestock owners are required to dress up animals before entering them in exhibitions. "Plowing matches in conformation and handling cannot materially affect the quality of plowing," he said. "It does not affect the decision of the judge, but it does add much more pleasing and attractive appearance."

Plowing competitions usually require a share which turns a 16-inch furrow, he said, but there are few areas in Ontario where it is practical to use a 16-inch furrow consistently most tractors have tires which require a 12 or 13-inch furrow and it is difficult for tractors to use with plows in competition.

Will Close Swing Bridge Six Weeks For Repairs When 401 Bridge Opens

TRENTON — Soon after the new bridge across the Trent River on Highway 401 is ready for traffic, the big swing bridge in Trenton will be closed down for a period of about six weeks to allow for $60,000 worth of repairs, it was revealed Monday by Councillor J. Gould, chairman of the public works committee.

Traffic to and from the east end west sides of town will then be re-routed around the 401 bridge and it is expected, of course, that regular through traffic which is now using the Trenton bridge will be using the big new highway anyway.

The town bridge is not expected to be closed down to pedestrians, who will be able to walk across at any time. It is also expected that the town fire department will continue to use the bridge as the only means of crossing the river to handle any fire which may break out. It will also have the fire trucks from R.C.A.F. Station Trenton to depend on should a major fire develop.

Local taxis will have a problem but it is expected they will still station a car on each side of the bridge and with their two-way radio systems will be able to keep in touch with the fire halls.

REPAIRED LAST FALL

Speaking on the repairs planned for the town bridge, with permission from Commissioner of Works Eric Aldersey gave a report on the work done on the bridge last fall.

He said J. D. Lee, construction consultant, had made a preliminary report on the bridge in 1957 and had recommended urgent repairs last fall to strengthen the bridge. This work was done by the town in form of placing large timbers under the deck of the bridge. The work was completed just before freeze-up.

On work to be carried out this year the whole underside and sidewalk of the bridge will be strengthened and, contrary to previous rumors, will not be removed. It is the top steelwork which gives the bridge its strength.

He said an entire new deck will be laid after the old one has been removed to make way for wooden blocks, and new railings replace, some of the underneath steelwork.

Sidewalks will also be built up, as in places where the weight of the bridge and traffic is on them they have been crumbling away. These must be kept repaired and in good condition.

This work, he said, will only be done on the eastern end of the bridge. The swing part is under the Federal Government's jurisdiction and has been kept in good repair.

The cost of repairs is expected to be in the vicinity of $60,000 with the town paying one half and the government in paying for it.

The committee was named at a previous council meeting to meet with the Department of Transport in Toronto to try to get the town's share lowered as yet no word has been given from this committee.

In other town work planned for the coming year it is expected considerable time will be spent on the town streets and sidewalks. But paving of new streets will be held in abeyance due to the pipelines which will be run into the side streets. Mr. Aldersey said he felt it would be useless to lay any new pavement only to have it torn up by new sewer running gas lines along the street and across into the residences.

Maintenance work will be carried out on gravel roads and some streets in town will be widened. The cost of this is expected to be high again this year because the permanent paving program cannot be carried out.

The sidewalks in town will be replaced in some areas where needed and it is expected the section from King to Front St. will be among this work.

The town commissioner of works pointed out that all the street work will be controlled by the amount of money set aside on the new budget for it

'Unemployment and Trade' Policies of PC Government Outlined by Hon. Earl Rowe

Few of the great Conservative leaders in Canada's history have been greater than the present one, Hon. W. Earl Rowe, M.P. for Dufferin-Simcoe since 1925, intimated as he addressed the South Hastings Progressive Conservative nominating convention last night at the Belleville Armoury.

Introduced to the audience of 1,000 delegates of the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association and loyal party supporters by W. E. (Ernie) Tummon, M.P.P. for Hastings South from 1925 to 1935, Mr. Rowe slashed out at the Opposition platforms of the Liberal party. However, he agreed that both Tories and Grits were using "unemployment and trade" as their platforms, but in different ways.

"The Liberals were warned last February — just 10 short months before the election — that Cork days were ahead but they refused to entertain that caution. Instead, they boasted about having 100 million more and worried about $700 million American that could leave. They voted here," said the speaker.

Under the leadership of Mr. Diefenbaker, the Progressive Conservative party has justified itself in the eyes of the people in the March 31 election, the Diefenbaker government will return to Ottawa with more than 140 seats, and no more than 150 seats.

Mr. Rowe said the only reason an election has been called is because the country is aware of two historical Canadian parties is about ready to represent a minority one against successfully if its opposition has the same membership.

The Liberals, when they were in office, did not have a fiscal policy," he said. "Ask any Liberal what their fiscal policy is and they cannot tell you, simply because they didn't have one." He blamed the Liberal party government, and especially former Minister of External Affairs Lester B. Pearson, with buying more from the U.S. than Canada sold to the United States.

"If you want to be successful in life, you must first learn to live before you buy. Never in history has a country been able and still keep its head above water," said Mr. Rowe.

SPEAKS ON TRADE

"Even though the campaign platforms of both parties are 'unemployment and trade,' and whereas Mr. Diefenbaker has attached party policy and, to some extent, Mr. Pearson agrees with it, the Liberals have their excuses and make it known that Canada will supply the primary materials to the U.S.A. for many years to come. That should take care of Canada's unemployment and, to a degree, our trade problems," said Mr. Rowe.

He asserted that Canadians are proud people and that they will not be run over by minion. The 1880's and 90's were "tough times" in Canada, so "tough" in fact, that many Canadians advocated surrendering our independence and joining the United States. But, according to the speaker, the Tories e m e r g e d through, saved Canada's economy and gave birth to Canadian Industry.

"In 1894," said Mr. Rowe, "the Liberals passed a resolution that there be commercial reciprocity between Canada and the U.S. When Sir Richard Cartwright went as an emissary to Washington, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain said that would be the first blow toward wrecking the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Mr. Rowe urged a closer relationship between Canada and "the motherland."

In this respect, he said, Mr. Diefenbaker is following closely in the footsteps of Sir John A. Macdonald, whereas the Liberals under Mr. Pearson are tending to drift away from that relationship.

NOT PLEASED WITH MOVING

Referring to the Liberal identification resolution, Mr. Rowe said "that was a flabby, flowery, floundering document."

Since the end of World War II, Canada has enjoyed fiscal industrial development by 25.5 per cent, which is "very good" but could and could be none other countries.

If Mr. Pearson is such a master of external affairs," said Mr. Rowe, "why should we have known before now that our education system was failing." The Liberals had let us "go to sleep" years watching the Russians build up to the point where they could send up satellites and dead dogs.

If after John Diefenbaker is returned and there is collusion between Nasser and Khrushchev as there was at Suez, Mr. Diefenbaker will not embarrass our country," he said.

Mayor Rose Burrit of Trenton, thanked the guest speaker.

Said president of the association, Sam Curry, "I see we have with us the mayors of Belleville and Trenton. I'm surprised that the mayor of Deseronto didn't show up."

RUSSELL AND THE H-BOMB

Lord Bertrand Russell is one of the leaders of an influential group in Britain which is seeking to ban nuclear weapons at all costs.

"As things are now and as statesmen go, it is an even chance whether any human beings will exist forty years hence," Earl Russell told a recent mass meeting.

As things are now and as editors go, it was inevitable that some newspaper would take issue with Earl Russell and the movement he heads.

The Hamilton Spectator has done so, with closely-reasoned moderation.

"We agree with the aim wholeheartedly," says the Spectator, "but we recall Lord Cecil's celebrated and well-intentioned 'peace' ballot in the thirties, the overwhelming result of which helped convince Hitler that Britain would not, by armed force, resist his ambitions. The results were almost fatal. That is the mischief of such campaigns, which have the naivete of emotional idealism and the belief that it is entirely by wishful-speaking that we have given to the opponents who have given no practical proof of good will."

"Does Earl Russell think his views are shared by men in Russia? He does. "Sane men among the Soviet society must be just as disturbed as sane men on our side to find themselves in this prison of the balance of terror," he has said.

That, then, is the Hamilton Spectator's answer to Russell.

But, by a coincidence, minutes after we had read the Hamilton Spectator's editorial we came across an article by Joseph Alsop, the syndicated columnist.

"What is needed," Soviets cannot be induced, by any imaginable effort, to agree to controlled nuclear disarmament?" Alsop asked Russell.

"Then," replied Russell, "I personally am for unilateral nuclear disarmament."

"The naivete of emotional idealism" to which the Spectator referred?

Perhaps. Russell called it a "bitter choice." It would, he said, likely mean "for a while, Communist domination of this world of ours." But, he continued, "if the alternatives are the eventual extinction of mankind and a temporary Communist conquest, I prefer the latter. It would be inexpressibly horrible, but it would not endure, any more than Genghis Khan's altogether horrible empire endured. And the end of the human race on earth is, after all, an absolutely irreversible event."

One may doubt Russell's assertion that the future of the human race is in jeopardy; one may quarrel with his decision in what Alsop calls "the ultimate choice." But here is no starry-eyed idealist refusing to face facts. He hardly falls into the class described in the concluding sentence of the Hamilton Spectator's editorial which read: "These ardent idealists have untried ability to face the final cost of their actions."

WILL HE FLUSH WILD?

An American-sponsored expedition which will search for the Abominable Snowman in the Himalayas has been given permission to use three pointers.

Snowmen are primarily bird dogs, though they can be used on other upland game. When they scent game, they point out its location by standing stiffly poised, nose outstretched, in the direction of the game's hiding place.

This is the first time we have seen it hinted that the Abominable Snowman may be playing hide-and-seek with searchers, lying close when they pass and needing to be flushed.

The expedition seems to us to be strictly for the birds.

$4,000 WITH STRINGS ATTACHED

The Peterborough Civic Hospital cannot be criticized for giving up a $4,000 bequest rather than agree to provide free hospital care for all the relatives of the donor. Obviously the motive behind the donation was not of a philanthropic nature. What a pity that the deceased had such a narrow view of the humanities!

Perhaps, though, his "gift" is a good example of something which is wrong with the world today. Too many people are only thinking of themselves and of their own kin, without giving enough attention to the plight of others.

That $4,000 gift with no "strings" attached might have purchased some kind of apparatus that could have eased someone's suffering.

TEST OF A MAN

Do you have to be driven, young man, and watched
Ere your daily task you'll do?
Must someone stand at your back to get
An honest day's toil from you?
Are you one of those who must feel the whip
Ere you'll carry your proper share?
Is it safe for your foreman to go away?
Do you work when he isn't there?

For this is the test of a man's true worth.
It isn't the skill he shows,
It isn't that he can do better work,
It isn't how much he knows.
For the skilled man often bemoans his lot
And cries that they never raise him.
While the poorer workman is favored more,
If he's square with the man who pays him.

She Loved Doves—Stewed

Montreal Gazette

Once Mrs. William Wordsworth, the wife of the poet, was walking through the woods she paused to listen to the beautiful sound of a stock dove in a tree. A farmer's wife was passing along the forest path. She could be heard saying to herself: "Oh, I do love stewed doves."

Mrs. Wordsworth, in all her enthusiasm for her husband's poetry, took the old woman to her heart. "That," she said when continued, "some like them in a pie; for my part, there's nothing like them stewed in onions."

Mrs. Wordsworth was startled for a moment to realize that her feeling for the stock dove was not shared by the old woman she had thought. But everyone experiences such sudden awakenings. It cannot be expected that everyone should share the same feelings or interests, and there is no reason why they should.

In 1838 James Russell Lowell, when a student at Harvard, was expelled from the institution he is being chosen as the class poet. Under the customs of the time this honor meant, indeed; for it meant that he would recite a poem for the graduating class at convocation. And the choice was full of meaning, for it foreshadowed the day when Lowell, as a poet, would be speaking not only for his immediate circle but for the American nation.

But the authorities' first choice as class-poet was not shared by everyone. It so happened that the father at that time was in Rome. When word was received that his son had received, old Mr. Lowell remarked: "Oh, dear, James always let me take the world without writing poetry and go to work."

This absence of understanding, when interests are not shared, may be the result of a sudden awakening to differences. It may be the result of a dawning realization that understanding is not to be hoped for, and that out even the satisfaction of achievements will ever be shared.

There is a great want of understanding is felt in the words of the American statesman John Quincy Adams. Neither of his parents showed any sympathy to-wards the career of a politician. This, in itself, was hard to accept. But the same want of interest was found even by his brother Hiram, who lived with him after he had set up a house of his own. Hiram was with him all through the years when he was attending the Latin School in Wall Whitman.

"When it came from the press" writes John Burroughs, "I said to him, 'Hiram, here is the book you have heard me speak of, one as having cost me nearly four years work, and which I rewrote four times.'

"That's the book, is it?" he replied, hardly glancing at it, and never about it, or desire to look into it, but drumming on the table—a habit of his that was very annoying to me at times, but which he was not aware of."

Perhaps it is a growth of wisdom when a person becomes able to go through life, losing nothing from his old loves or interests, but knowing very well that he cannot expect sympathy or enthusiasm for them.

This was the sort of wisdom shown by Rev. R. H. L. Sheppard (often known as Dick Sheppard) the vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields from 1914-1927.

He was very active in church affairs, but in the midst of his church administration. In 1918 a most important piece of legislation affecting the Church of England came before the House of Commons. It was known as the Enabling Bill. Its purpose was to enable the Church of England (formerly (as the cen'ral representative council of the church was called) more fully to work more effectively.

Mr. Sheppard was profoundly interested in the fate of the bill A meeting of clergy was t'kinr place in the House of Commons and on the time when the Commons gave the Enabling Bill second reading.

"Dick Sheppard", with the news that the bill was now as good as passed, hurried to Church House, but the bird had flown. When he arrived, he said:

"As I was coming along to bring this thing, I suddenly realized that understanding is not to be hoped for, and that out even the satisfaction of achievements will ever be shared.

U.S. Watches Election Here

New York Times

With few exceptions Americans are not going to have a preference in the Canadian general elections of March 31, but all of us ought to be greatly interested. Certainly many American friends, who knew him when he was Secretary of State for External Affairs in the Mackenzie King Government of Premier Louis St. Laurent, may be reminded that Liberals on his behalf. Perhaps there are some American business men who have designs and intention of the Progressive-Conservative Party leader, Minister John Diefenbaker, to shift as much trade as possible from the United States to Great Britain.

Generally speaking, it can make no more difference to Americans whether the Conservatives or Liberals win than it does to Canadians whether the United States has a Republican or a Democratic Administration. There is no fundamental basic relationship between o u r two countries.

This does not mean a lack of quarrels and complaints, mainly from the Canadian side. T h e United States economic and financial penetration of Canada has gone so far that many Canadians are alarmed. They are also irritated when many industries located or created by American investors do not sell their products Canada and some do not permit the Canadian forest co. pasies to export to the United States so as not to compete with parent organizations here. T h e Canadian balance of payments is more than $1,000,000,000 in deficit with the United States in 1957. Canada could offset this by the surplus ot wheat partly because the United States was sending surplus wheat abroad under Public Law 480 as grants or for local, currencies. Canadians are also Canadians are concerned, this is dumping. There is, however, considerable irritation in Canada over our intention to raise tariffs on lead and zinc and other imports.

There Americans used to enjoy twisting the British Lion's tail. Canadians now enjoy the process of giving Washington the American Eagle's tail, as Sir Winston Churchill put it. This does not alter the fact that Canada and the United States could not exist without each other and that we are more closely interdependent than any two democratic nations on earth.

It is understandable that Canadians should be a little uneasy because of our immensely greater power, wealth and population, but they really have nothing to worry about. Certainly, we do not have, and can watch the electoral campaign now under way with a great but dispassionate interest.

Vicar Saves Village 'Pub'

St. Thomas Time-Journal

As its name might indicate, Flax Bourton is a small village in the West of England, and the first inn ever erected is called "The Angel." There the men of the village repair at night to quaff their pint, play darts and attackers, and to exchange chit-chat, or even to settle in their own way problems that keep the world in turmoil. And, in fact, a commonsense approach to world problems is often talked in these inns.

"The Angel" is owned by a brewery, and as the population is declining, a diminishing and the Angel was not making fair profits, it was announced that they would give up their licence and close the door forever.

Then up spake a champion of "The Angel." None other than the rector of the village church, the Reverend Percy Demuth. He appealed to the brewery company. "Don't separate you old friends," he said. "If you take the inn away, you will drag the heart out of the village."

The brewers relented; the inn will stay.

Dr. Samuel Johnson said there is nothing contrived by man by which so much happiness is produced, as by a good tavern or inn. Johnson, one of the greatest of all talkers, loved to talk with his friends in a tavern and just exchange talk with strangers, or the urban "pub" has been described as the poor man's club. It is, indeed, one of the most ancient institutions in England, as witness the fact that "The Angel" has served the villagers of Flax Bourton for about 900 years. For this reason alone it is worth preserving. To the rector, it is a little like a family club, a place of cosy companionship and free discussion; perhaps a blessing, led by members of the church choir. Mr. Demuth is a man who does not drope in for a chat with the men who, after all, are his parishioners. In many places the vicar has his pint with the boys, but discussion sometimes reaches a high level.

Rev. Percy Demuth had another reason for keeping the Angel going. His Sunday school marches through the bar on Sunday mornings to go upstairs for their social tea. The inn is their "Christian Education Building."

Men having teams engaged in drawing ice should stop and pick up the odd cakes of ice which fall from the sleigh. When left upon the roadway as they generally are, they are a source of danger especially at night, Something should be done to stop this practice.

The members of the city council Ald. Panter informed the members that when the government engineer was here last week looking over the harbor and flood he stated to him that under existing conditions the only relief possible would be obtained by getting an ice breaker from Nova Scotia and breaking up all the ice in the harbor, thus allowing the water to flow away.

GOD SO DESIRES IT

"And now abideth faith, hope, and love." We read these words and make much of faith and love. But how people linger over this beautiful trilogy! Faith is relatively easy, but hope is just as much a Christian doctrine as faith and love. Hope is hope! It is the confidence that God means what He says, that He is working in the world in which we live for triumph, not for defeat. It was really believe this, then why do we ever become downcast? Why dejected? There are a few choice souls who walk quietly through life. Some of these are the gentling variety, some are not. But they are all filled with a certain confidence about God and the way

He made things and the things He has said. They are sure that the Christian life is not a struggle, but being the case, they have hope. Circumstances may bowl them over, but they come up, if not smiling, at least confident and ready to go at it again. And it is the vigor they have. Such people are magnificent. They have hope in God. There is no such thing as a long-faced Christian. There are ugliness and sour Christians, but no long-faced Christians. One simply can't be long-faced and Christian and have hope. Hope is fear and despair take their leave.

Have hope. It is God's desire that we do.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the big railroad station lobby, I was awaiting the arrival of a member of the family from a long journey.

It being around 8.30 in the morning, a local train first arrived. It had picked up commuters from a number of communities twenty to thirty miles away. These were mostly business people hurrying into the down-town. There were grave men with brief cases, women of all ages with the secretarial look, young housewives with long purposeful strides clerks, accountants, minor executives, salesmen.

In their midst strolled a bevy of upset of about ten men of a near car cleaning crew, husky men of thirty and forty, bare-headed and in raggedy old overalls and well-worn work shirts, carrying pails, mops, brushes and the frowsy tools of their trade.

The contrast between these toilworkers and the swarm of commuters was quite striking. The latter were happy, hearty men, care-free in their bearing and confident in their step. The horses obviously at grips with life.

The commuters were sad, pushing, slightly panicky in their bearing and expressions.

I be' there is not ten dollars a week difference in the wages of the men with the pails and those of most of the commuters.

But I have a piece to pay for the privilege of pretending to be important, to ourselves!

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT RECOMMENDED FOR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

"Dear Dr. Molner: I suffer from extremely low blood pressure which keeps me feeling weak. No organic ailment has been found, my doctor says. Can you offer any suggestions? —T.W.P."

For the sake of those and others besides you (but I'll get to your case, too) let's point out the evils of any prolonged debilitating disease (TB, rheumatic fever, anemia, heart disease or others) that entails confinement to bed will contribute to low blood pressure.

Sometimes unsuspected diseases which haven't yet forced the patient to bed will also lead to it. Any marked lowering of blood pressure. So you've been smart by having a thorough check to rule out the possibility of organic disease.

Second, low blood pressure isn't a disease. There isn't, in fact, any "correct" blood pressure, any more than there is a "correct" height for people, and then you're "extremely low pressure", since extremely low pressure doesn't often bother you, that's the trouble with language — "extremely" is such a vague word.

So to get to the people with moderately low pressure, there is a really effective treatment. You may say it's too much, but sometimes the simple things are the genuinely good ones.

It isn't a pill or drug. (We do, of course, have drugs to lower blood pressure when it becomes too high. We also have drugs that will raise blood pressure, but they aren't too effective.)

No, the treatment that I've been invited time and again is a good, well-balanced diet, exercise, and a change of attitude.

TONE THE MUSCLES

From the purely medical standpoint, improvement of muscle tone will do a lot to raise the blood pressure if it is sub-par. To date, no medicine has been invented to tone up the muscles. The only known muscle-toner is brisk (rather than lethargic) use of the muscles, and I for one hope it will stay that way. I suspect it of helping one of the fundamental rules of life.

Exercise, whether calisthenics, walking (at least 1 mile, brisk strolling), golf, bowling, swimming and such, will do much good for you than you think.

If you prefer archery, duck-on-the-rock, rhythmic dancing to the attic, horseback riding, cutting the grass, gardening, or square dancing, I don't care. They're all good.

True, such activity may be tiring at first, since you have a pooped feeling to start with. That's natural. But as the activity whips up the circulation, you'll lose that tired feeling.

I add that a diffident, bored outlook on life in general is a very real cause. People who learn to sip up their personalities find that they get up their pressure, too. Haven't you many times noticed how you felt literally born by a private physician? — Mrs. G. W."

Now we accept that's another vaccination, and presently a long-time dentist that has had enough punctures in the arm. No harm, and probably some good in the disease in protection.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How often should douches be taken to keep the uterus healthy?" here's a douche for every tissue — only the vaginal canal. It is not necessary douche to be healthy. Many women do it unnecessarily. There are specific conditions where a douche (like medicine) may be needed, but wait for a doctor to prescribe it. Otherwise avoid the habit.

Attention all women! For my new pamphlet, "The Menstrual Bloat Blues", write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling. This pamphlet will help you!

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his columns whenever possible.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FAITH IT THROUGH

I have watched workmen drilling into solid rock for the great buildings that are arising all about me in my city office. I once watched them at work on a new bridge over the Hudson River — a wonderful feat! Day after day they drilled and drilled. There came a time when men laughed at the idea of making a success of the Hudson River — but there were men who were willing to faith it through! And they did it. There has been many an illness that men and women have been healed, when doctors have given up — but not the many who decided to have faith through.

When things get dark—for you and you imagine there is a "dead end" somewhere before you, dismiss the idea. No matter what it may be that you want most to achieve, go ahead. Faith it through! Read history and the stories of brave men and women. Most of them called upon faith to see them through — faith backed by prayer and confidence.

I don't know what you are up against, but I do know that you would put the moon, should we succeed in reaching it, but there are many things I would wish for instead of tramping about on the moon. I would like to see perpetual peace in the world, and no hungry children, and no hungry anywhere enslaved. Those few words, Courage, Confidence and Conviction, have changed the face of this world, and they will keep changing it!

Whatever you have in mind to do, dismiss all fear, and have a bit of confidence that you possess. Go forward. Whatever you have in mind to do. Faith it through!

Lee Grills Unamimous Choice As Conservative Candidate For Hastings South Riding

Lee Grills, member of parliament for South Hastings in the last government, received acclamation last night as the Progressive Conservative candidate to contest the March 31st federal election with Liberal candidate Dr. D. C. McVicker, mayor of Deseronto.

Mr. Grills was the unanimous choice of some 1,000 party supporters who turned out at the Collegiate auditorium, despite inclement weather, to nominate a candidate and to hear Hon. W. Earl Rowe, member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe since 1925.

The acclamation of Mr. Grills did not come as a surprise, since before the nominating convention he appeared to be the unanimous choice of the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association. Before the nominations were opened last night, association secretary Ray Gunsolus read aloud a letter from Senator George White of Marmora, who predicted faith in Mr. Grills' ability and urged all Tories in the riding to support him. And at the annual meeting of the association some time ago, President Sam Curry intimated that Mr. Grills would be the only P.C. candidate to stand before the convention.

LEE GRILLS

RECEIVES OVATION

Following word of his election, Mr. Grills, Mrs. Grills and daughter, Betty, mounted the stage amid almost overwhelming applause and cheers. (Mr. Grills had been standing in the audience not far from the stage entrance.)

Elected to the House of Commons last June after a bid for a seat in the 1953 election, Mr. Grills last night again pledged himself to represent the people of South Hastings to the best of his ability and added that a non-political attitude would mean nothing to him. He would serve everyone in his riding regardless of their politics and creed.

The candidate was profuse in his thanks to his electors both in the last election and at the latest nominating convention. Mr. Grills said the 23rd Canadian parliament was unique to him because the Queen read the throne speech. It was the first time he was elected, and "because I had the opportunity of serving under one of the greatest leaders our country has ever known."

OPERATES SIDNEY FARM

Mr. Grills, who operates a dairy in Belleville and a 150-acre farm in Sidney township, paid tribute to former members of parliament, George Stokes and Ernest Tummon, both of whom "are loved and held in high esteem by everyone in the riding, regardless of political affiliation." Roscoe Robson, MPP for Hastings East and Elmer (Sandy) Sanderson, MPP for Hastings West, have been "towers of strength, provincially" to Mr. Grills.

The 53-year-old choice of the convention echoed the sorrow of President Sam Curry about the critical illness of Mrs. Harold Varty, wife of the deputy reeve of Hungerford township, and the painful accident encountered by Dr. J. Russell Scott over the weekend.

Ben Thompson, MP for Northumberland in the last parliament, and Clarence Milligan, newly re-elected P.C. candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox spoke on behalf of Mr. Grills. In his opening remarks, the association president, Sam Curry of Tweed, said: "There has been a decided change for the better in the outlook of the Tory party, both locally and across the nation, since February 1957. I say with sincerity that our party in Hastings County has never been more united. And that applies across Canada, too."

He remarked that many "independent" voters last year cast ballots for the Progressive Conservative party and "we feel we will have them again on March 31, because they trust John Diefenbaker and know that he has fulfilled his promises since becoming prime minister."

PRESIDENT HAS VOTE

Mr. Curry, however, stressed a note of urgency in the coming election. "Complacency is, perhaps, the hardest thing we have to fight in this riding. We have to get out and fight harder than we did for the last election. However, I think we in Hastings County are going to roll up the largest majority ever for a Conservative candidate in this riding."

Greetings from the city were brought by Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, and from the county by Reeve Charles Long of Tyendinaga, in the absence of Warden Lloyd Payne.

Entertainment was provided by the Quinte Highland Pipe Band under the baton of Pipe Major John Haggerty. The pipes skirled the Grills family onto the stage when Mr. Grills received his acclamation. Pretty Miss Carol Connor of Tweed, an accomplished soprano, also entertained. Her piano accompaniment was ably provided by Fred Porter of Tweed, and little Judy McKnight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. McKnight of Belleville, resplendent in a tartan uniform, skipped through the Highland Fling. Linton Read played the organ.

Mr. Grills introduced his campaign manager, Jack Ireland, who also directed the campaign last year.

Minister Confers With CPR on Diesel Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — High-ranking CPR officials met Monday with Transport Minister Michael Starr on the CPR proposal to reduce the number of firemen in its diesel locomotive cabs.

After an 80-minute meeting on the issue, which last winter led to a nine-day firemen's strike that tied up the CPR's transcontinental system, Mr. Starr said the company representatives will be in touch to date on the situation and made no specific response.

R. J. McNeill, CPR vice-president for personnel, and R. A. Emerson, vice-president of operation and maintenance, added: "No unanimous move was made. It was a purely exploratory conversation."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) the CPR firemen's union—was not represented at the meeting requested by the company. Mr. Starr was in the capital only briefly between campaign activities for the March 31 federal general election.

ASKED ACTION

After earlier CPR talks on the diesel issue at Montreal collapsed Feb. 14, the company stated it planned to ask the minister to take "appropriate action." But Monday's brief statements from the participants gave no indication that Mr. Starr had been asked to take any particular steps at the moment.

The company contends the union has repudiated an agreement to negotiate the diesel issue, signed after the January, 1957, strike. The walkout ended when the issue was referred to a royal commission which found in favor of the CPR stand that firemen are not needed on freight and yard diesels.

The union has announced it will go before railway board of adjustment — a three-member conference group set up to interpret disputed clauses of collective agreements—for clarification of the agreement. The board is to sit at Montreal early next month.

Three-Cent Cut In Wholesale Price of Coffee

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto chain stores will pass along a three-cent cut in the wholesale price of coffee to consumers within a few days, a survey indicated Monday.

Wholesale price reduction war announced by distributors for major brands, including Chase and Sanborn and the Maxwell House division of General Foods Limited, was to present wholesale price is 81 cents a pound and the retail price in chain stores 95 cents.

A spokesman said the lower price is due to improved production methods and the lower price of South American coffee beans.

Leon Weinstein, president of power supermarkets, forecast further reductions.

"Even with this price cut, coffee and tea prices are far too high. There should be a bigger reduction soon," he said.

Expect Prices In Farm Support Plan Set Soon

CONNWALL (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has indicated his Progressive Conservative government probably will announce its new farm support prices before the March 31 federal election.

He told an overflow audience of 2,200 here Monday night that the government's Farm Price Support Act, passed during the last session, will come into effect March 3 and a farm-representative advisory committee will be established immediately after.

He followed the announcement with a promise his government will take whatever steps necessary to protect the textile and other essential Canadian industries from competition from cut-rate foreign goods—an important issue in this textile manufacturing area.

Price supports for farm products "will be maintained during and preceding 10 years.

The government is also committed to set floor prices for nine specified products at not less than 80 per cent of the 10-year average.

The Liberal Opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker said, had criticized, ridiculed and condemned the act when it was introduced into the Commons, "and then they voted for it."

Calling the textile industry "one of the great industries of this country," he said that in a farewell to one of the industry's officials just now he had said the industry has too long been subject to the hazards of inefficiency and "we are out for better treatment."

The tariff board, was studying tariffs on the importation of textiles and there was no reason why the government, after receiving its report, should not continue to assure to vital industry would be subject to dumping of foreign goods—the importation of goods for sale at prices below that in the country in which they were produced.

PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

"I have personal knowledge of what it means to be unemployed" he told an audience which filled the 2,000 seats of the Cornwall Armories and spilled over into the hall outside.

"As long as I am prime minister no person in this country is going to suffer—because of unemployment. My heart goes out to those in this position. I've kept my promises in the past. That promise will be kept to the letter."

He was "colossal impudence" for the Liberals to blame the Conservatives for unemployment after the former Liberal government "was warned over and over again from October, 1956, to June, 1957, about what was coming and they refused to act."

The government, he said, are the party of "national destiny" and their policy is to assure that "to a major extent" Canadian p'ause of the speech.

Pearson Pledges Financial Aid For Export Trade

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lester B. Pearson has opened his Ontario Liberal campaign with a pledge to create vast new aid for Canadian exporters.

The Liberal leader told an audience of more than 2,000 persons Monday night that a Liberal government would reshape the existing federal Export Credits Insurance Corporation into an export-bank, with power to provide long-term credit on exports to new markets.

Linked with this would be special Liberal efforts to try to expand trade with Communist China and other Asian areas, reducing "political difficulties" that now get into the way of that development.

CONTINUING FIGHT

The existing insurance corporation was set up mainly to aid exports on short-term credit, perhaps two or three years, though its special instances credit can be extended over longer periods through cabinet order.

ON EASY TERMS

Mr. Pearson lisolicited his proposed export bank, supported by "sufficient resources," would use it as an easy for new foreign customers to buy Canadian goods on relatively easy terms, perhaps as long as five years for the purchases over a period of 10 or 20 years.

"These credit facilities," he said, "would be used especially to promote ever increasing sales of wheat and flour and lumber and fish all over the world as well as to assist the sale of manufactured goods especially to the Caribbean, Latin America and the Far East, where adequate credit facilities now are particularly a handicap to our exporters."

He pledged also to build a Northern trans-Canada highway across the Prairies to Edmonton, Prince George to the Peace River and Vancouver.

These would be in addition to his other pledges, to reduce taxes and provide federal loans to municipalities, set up 40,000 university scholarships and bursaries and to do what he can to obtain world peace.

The West had to find new energy and diplomatic strength to negotiate with the East, through the North Atlantic alliance.

CITES FEARS

"Surely," he told the Exhibition Forum audience, "we have nothing to fear about such negotiations except our own inabilities, our own divisions in the West; our own excessive fears and, at times, our own unrealistic illusions.

"What we now need is the strength and wisdom for imaginative diplomacy and for a western leadership to push it through; a leadership which means more than adjusting to the old methods of defence containment by methods which may, even now, be out of date and to some extent at least, perhaps unnecessary."

Coldwell Says Piper Changed Tune Remains

LEMBERG, Sask. (CP) — The only opportunity Canadians have in the March 31 federal general election to express their protest against current conditions is to vote for the CCF, says M. J. Coldwell.

In an election speech, the CCF leader said Monday night the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives "have dropped the little difference that there has been between them and the CCF takes up the fight for a new approach, a real alternative to the present policies being carried on."

Mr. Coldwell said the Liberals in Laurier's day were the defenders of Parliament's rights, and in Macdonald's day the Conservatives had protected Canadian development.

CONTINUING FIGHT

But both parties had abandoned their earlier positions. Now the CCF "is carrying on the fight for parliamentary rights that was once one of the proudest traditions of the Liberal party."

The CCF also was carrying on "the fight for protection of Canada from the rule of our public utilities which once found expression in Conservative support of a development like the (publicly-owned) Ontario Hydro Commission."

Mr. Coldwell said Laurier "would never have tolerated the ghastly thing that the Liberal cabinet did to Parliament in the closure motion of our time" during the pipeline debate.

He would Macdonald ever have "countenanced the continued subsidizing of foreign control over a vital Canadian resource, the trans-Canada pipeline, which the Conservative government now has embarked upon."

In the course of enrolment from Liberal hands, the piper was changed "but the tune has remained the same."

Community Chests Have Drawbacks Says Official

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canadians cannot be expected to go on forever giving increased amounts to charities and other welfare groups, a member of the mid-winter conference of the Community Funds and Council of Canada said Monday.

It said welfare organizations will have to become more selective in their services. The committee was dealing with the planning of community chests.

Jean - Marie Martin, dean of Laval University, Quebec, said community chests have drawbacks and may not be able to produce as much money as a number of separate appeals. He also thought the chests tend to put charitable drives in the hands of professionals and there may be a danger in their bigness.

Touchy Topics Touched on by Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial legislatures throughout Canada touched on some touchy topics Monday. Subjects included liquor, poor food and alcoholism.

C. M. Fines, Saskatchewan provincial treasurer, told the legislature the CCF government is giving serious consideration to modernizing the province's liquor laws.

In neighboring Alberta, the Social Credit government reported Albertans made 6,709,735 liquor purchases in 1957 at an average cost of $5.82 per purchase.

In Ontario, the Progressive Conservative government tabled a report estimating there are 80,000 alcoholics in the province and that they are increasing at the rate of 4,000 a year.

In the Alberta legislature, Premier Manning said the government hired a new cook for the Provincial Institute for Juvenile Offenders near Red Deer after some inmates refused to eat what they described as "unpalatable" food.

The Saskatchewan government reported in the legislature that all crown corporations except two made a profit on 1957 operations.

In the Nova Scotia House members gave approval in principle to a Progressive Conservative government bill which would ratify an agreement between the government and a Swedish-British firm, Nova Scotia pulp limited. The agreement could lead to the establishment of a $40,000,000 pulp mill in the province.

Works Projects Started But Few Turn Up

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto put into operation Monday an emergency work projects program designed to relieve unemployment and found a shortage of men available to handle the program planned.

A total of 293 married men on relief were notified to report for work. But only 140 had showed up by 1 p.m. (EST), Frank Grimmett, director, said. He described the turnout as "disappointing."

Board of control members expressed doubt that enough men on relief would be found to handle the projects, which include clearing brush and debris in ravines and parks.

Another 651 married men have been asked to report today and about 900 single men are being notified to report Wednesday.

The projects were drawn up under a plan announced by the Ontario government whereby it will contribute 70 per cent of the labor costs. One stipulation is that the men given work must not be entitled to receive unemployment insurance.

Club Sponsors Cooking School

The women of the city and district who enjoy cooking schools will have an opportunity of seeing a demogstration in this art on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. The school is being sponsored by the Y's Menettes and the two sessions will be held in the auditorium of King George School on North Front St. It might be added that any husbands who have a yen for out doing their spouses in the culinary arts of the home will be welcomed with open arms—well anyway with a warm handshake.

The director of the school is Miss Aili Saving, home economist, who was born in Esthonia and received her early education in Sweden. Since coming to Canada, Miss Saving graduated from Macdonald Institute, Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph with a Bachelor of Household Science degree.

At home in Thornbury, Ontario, Miss Saving has the opportunity to enjoy many of her favorite outdoor sports such as skating, skiing and swimming.

Though keenly interested in both dramatics and music, Miss Saving likes above all else to "do" cooking. Combining "Old Country" ideas with modern Canadian cooking is a hobby and contributes greatly to her success as a home economist.

Since joining Canada Packers, Miss Saving has conducted "Brer, da York" cooking schools throughout Ontario. Her obvious interest in food and her naturalness have won her many friends among the various organizations sponsoring these schools.

The proceeds from the sale of tickets by the Y's Menettes will be devoted to the welfare interests of the club.

No Alcoholic Drink Permitted On Journey Across Antarctic

The February meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" on Ash Wednesday, and a few thoughts on the significance of Lent were considered.

Ash Wednesday is the beginning of the Lenten season which lasts 40 days. It is a time when Christians are called upon to deepen their meaning of the Crucifixion and Resurrection. Ashes symbolize Penitence, and in ancient times were from psalms of the previous Palm Sunday. Ashes were also to represent the death of the "human body" and symbolize "the shortness of earthly life." For nineteen centuries, the observance of Lent, has brought rich blessings to the church.

"National Health Week" has just been observed. Dr. J. B. Cullen, president of Colgate University, said, "the discontinuance of the use of alcohol as a beverage, would be the greatest advance in public health, since the discovery of bacteria in disease, when we consider the amount of drinkers become addicts we cannot afford to do it."

The devotional was taken by Mrs. T. F. Townsend. Her thoughts were built around the words, "Be still and know that I am God." "It is this, inner strength is gained and courage to carry us over difficult times." Georgina Mathewson, the great field Scottish preacher said "My God and I make a majority." Use for my thorns. I have thanked Thee for my roses, but not once for my thorns. Teach me the glory of my cross. Teach me the glory of my thorns."

Mrs. G. Coulter gave a resume of the life of the World Famous Missionary, Livingstone. The society has three objectives: the protection of the home; the abolition of the liquor traffic and the triumph of the golden rule in industry.

"What of the Antarctic Expedition?" was told by Miss Johns. Having been christened by Mrs. Vivian Fuchs, wife of the leader of the British Antarctic Expedition, the "Magga Dan" was launched at Aalborg, Denmark. Mrs. Fuchs did not use the traditional champagne, but smashed a bottle of Worts Invalid Stout against the bow of the vessel. Regarding plans for the trip, the expedition secretary wrote: "No alcoholic drink will be taken on the journey across the Antarctic Continent, nor on the sledging runs."

The 35th International Congress against alcoholism, sponsored by the World Bureau Against Alcoholism, September, 1956, to the ancient city of Istanbul, which crossed between East and West, had more than 300 representatives from 40 countries studying the world wide aspects of the alcohol problem, speaking in seven of languages, listening to lectures in five tongues. Delegates were brought together in unity and determination to find a workable solution to the common menace of alcoholism".

Post Valentine Dance Held by Can. Legion LA.

A successful post Valentine dance was held last Friday evening at the Canadian Legion hall, Belleville branch 59, sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion.

The dance was well attended. Guests were present from Tweed, Pembroke and Consecon. Old time and modern music was supplied by Rombough's orchestra.

The first spot dance was won by Mrs. G. Hughes and D. Batchelor, while the second winners in the spot dance were Mrs. O. Whittle and L. Burfoot.

Square dances provided a great deal of merriment with the "caller" Mrs. Donaldson, who did an excellent job in that capacity.

As it was the birthday of Mrs. Nora Williams from Consecon, a "Happy Birthday" was sung to that lady.

A draw was won by Mr. H. Eaton.

Refreshments were provided and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary and by other willing workers.

Credit is due Mesdames W. Bailey (president), C. Reed (convener), E. Meeks, D. Batchelor, R. Blair, M. Moore, W. Heasman, B. Dawdell and the committee as a whole, also Messrs. W. Bailey and C. Reed

MISS UNIVERSE SIX YEARS AFTER

Mrs. Virgilio Hilario, pictured with her two children, Ana Liza, eight months, and Arnie, two, in their home in Forbes Park, outside of Manila, the "Millionaires' Row" of the Philippines, gave up the glamor routine at "Miss Universe" to settle down as housewife and mother almost six years ago. Mrs. Hilario is the former Finnish beauty, Armi Kuusela, who won the first "Miss Universe" contest at Long Beach, California, in June, 1952. She met her husband the following April and married him one month later. Within four weeks she announced she was "tired" of being "Miss Universe" and all that came with it, including a seven-year film contract, and that she was settling down to have "more than one or two children."

Favored Classic

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Silk surah, rich and rustling, is a good choice for daytime wear under a fur coat. Silk is more important than ever and this is a big, big season for prints. So the dress depicted is right in fashion. The ground is muted olive green, toned with a royal blue design. The frock is cut on straight clean lines and is the sort of classic that is good form any time of year. Buttoned in back, it has flapped hip pockets. A dark green velvet bow adds detail to the round neckline.

BRIDE-TO-BE WRITES NOTES OF INVITATION

Dear Mrs Beeckman:

My sister is to be married next Summer. This is to be just a "family wedding"; she has asked me to be her matron of honor, and our only brother is to give her in marriage. Both our parents are dead. She would like to send invitations to the wedding, and has asked me to ask you what would be the correct way to write them. — Sister of Bride-to-be.

If your sister is writing her own invitations, her notes might read: Dear Elizabeth,

John and I are being married in our church (give name and address of church) on Saturday, the eleventh of July, at four o'clock, and it would make us both so happy if you and Don will be with us. It will be a very small and informal wedding, and we hope you can come to the ceremony and afterward to the reception in the Church Social Room.

Dearest love to you both from both of us

Devotedly,

SHOULD SHE DISPLAY GIFTS AT WEDDING RECEPTION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our wedding reception is to be in a large private suite of 3 hotel here in this city. Is it necessary that we plan to have the wedding presents taken to the hotel to be displayed to the guests?

— Bride-to-be

No . . . not necessary, not proper, and certainly not practical.

Eggs Are Economical

Your budget may be well - balanced but mine is riding for a fall.

TUESDAY

Individual Chicken Pies (see Monday); Chicken Gravy; Green Bean; Kernel Corn; Slaw with Hot Boiled Dressing; Bowl of Fresh Fruits including Pears; Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

So I'm on the egg chapter of that challenge. I made an asparagus omelette and got some praise from my doubting - Thomas relatives that I didn't expect.

ASPARAGUS OMELETTE

Four eggs, 1-4 to 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 cup milk or hot water, 2 tablespoons butter. 1). Plain Omelette: Separate the eggs. Beat yolks with salt, pepper and milk until light and creamy. Beat whites stiff and fold into yolks. Pour into rather hot pan in which butter has been melted and immediately reduce heat. As bubbles form break them, and as omelette becomes firm on bottom, lift edges with narrow lifter, and give the pan an occasional shake to loosen omelette from bottom. Cook gently until barely firm. Mark a folding place at centre but not cutting through. Run a broad spatula under to be sure it is free, spread filling on one half (see below), then carefully fold over. With the aid of two broad spatulas, transfer to hot platter. 2), French Omelette: Beat the eggs together (until mixed but not foamy), adding other ingredients. For cooking, see method above. This omelette may be rolled instead of folded. This makes a more solid omelette, of better flavor in the opinion of most people. 3). Asparagus Filling: Make a thick sauce by melting 1 tablespoon of butter and stirring in 1 tablespoon flour. When blended stir in 1/2 cup thick milk. Add 2 tablespoons grated nippy cheese and 1/2 to 1 cup cooked well drained asparagus tips or pieces. Heat through. It is now ready to spread over half of cooked omelette. Fold over and serve on hot platter at once. If you have leftover asparagus tips, heat them and garnish platter with them.

Scrambled Eggs with Sausage: Beat eggs slightly, allowing 1 per person. Add 1 tablespoon of milk for each and combine with salt and pepper. Cook egg mixture in a frying pan or double boiler, very slowly, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. To Fry the Sausage: Place in cold pan and brown over moderate heat 20 to 25 minutes. Turn occasionally. Pour off fat as it collects. Or bake uncovered in the centre of moderately slow oven, 325 degs. Fahr. Turn when first side is browned. Bake 30 to 35 minutes; "Country style" 40 to 45 minute. Note: 1). If desired, cooked sausage may be cut into 3 or 4 pieces and folded into the scrambled eggs. 2) Eleanor's sister Evelyn dips uncooked sausages in flour before baking them, and Eleanor says the outer crust is delicious.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Helen F. — I want to help George financially

George M. — She doesn't realize how hard it's going to be.

* * *

Helen F. — For the past year I have been going out with a man who is married, but who has been separated from his wife and child for the past three years. He says he loves me and wants to marry me as soon as he gets his divorce and gets on his feet financially.

The main problem is money. George says he doesn't want to get married until he is out of debt. He also needs money for the divorce. He figures all of this may take another two or three years.

Now I am nearly 30 and I don't want to put off marriage for so long. I have been working since I got out of high school, so I have managed to save up some money. I want to pay the debts and other expenses so that we can start life together. George is against it.

George M. — Helen is very good and generous, but I can't see her hard-earned money going to my wife and child. My debts are, of course, all in connection with their support. My salary is quite low and the prospects for the future don't look too good, so I'm afraid that Helen will have to make more sacrifices than she realizes.

The idea of getting married very soon seems glamorous and exciting to Helen, but she doesn't realize the hard times that may be ahead. Sometimes when I think of the prospect of supporting two families, I get cold feet. A two or three year wait would give Helen the chance to see whether she really wants to take on all the difficulties of marrying a man with an ex-wife and child to support.

* * *

The Council: Helen is mistaken about her problem. It is not money. It is the fact that George is married. The expression "money talks" is true in more ways than one. We use money to express our values and attitudes. We often use it to communicate to others our uncertainties, or our feelings of power or dependency and our real desires.

In this case, when George speaks of money, he seems to be trying to communicate his uncertainty about his marriage and the future. George claims that "the prospect of supporting two families is giving him cold feet" — as well it might. However, we have a strong suspicion that if George felt that divorce and a second marriage were definitely his goals, he would be thinking in terms of doing something to increase his income. He would not try to scare off both himself and Helen with his fears about the future.

If Helen helps George financially, she is placed in the unpleasant position of helping to break up a marriage and of buying off a man from another woman. That sounds very crude, but it is truly what Helen's money would be saying. In her impatience for marriage, Helen prefers not to hear, but she is aware of the harsh facts. She should not gloss over the fact that this action on her part could be a very unfortunate emotional factor in the start of her marriage.

What to do? George must be clear about his future. When, and if, he is free man, he can approach Helen in a different spirit. They may then see the financial problem in an entirely different light.

Moose Population Increases Despite Long Open Season

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

He's a big, ungainly hunk of animal with a face not even a mother could love. His distribution is less than charming, especially when his intentions are unknown.

If that seems like a contradiction, it is generally in character with the status of the moose as a game animal. The harder he's hunted, the more he thrives.

Small wonder Canadian hunters excuse his social deficiencies. Unlike other kings of the north-land such-as the caribou and the brown and grizzly bears, old Alces Americana is fighting the battle of survival and winning.

OVER-ALL INCREASE

Almost without exception, the seven provinces where moose are plentiful enough to support an open season report a steady upward trend in the numbers of hunters, kills and animals still on the hoof.

The estimate of Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, Ontario chief of fish and wildlife, is typical. He reports the current kill "far below any danger point—in a good deal of the province we could shoot a lot more."

In British Columbia, where the estimated 1957 bag of 7,000 moose would make it the hunter's paradise of the Dominion, biologist Jim Hatter of the provincial game commission says more liberal gunning regulations have helped as much as lucky trails over the last few winters to send the moose population soaring.

"It's just as wrong to under-harvest as it is to overharvest," Dr. Hatter says.

NEED SUFFICIENT FOOD

"If moose are too plentiful for their range, there won't be enough food to go around and they'll die from starvation and parasites and disease. This happened in the late 1940s when we had a string of tough winters."

For an animal as big as a horse — some weigh up to 1,200 pounds — and an appetite to match, proper and sufficient feed is a perpetual problem.

Newfoundland is among the provinces where wildlife experts wonder whether they may have too much of a good thing. The estimated 1957 kill of 4,000 could easily be stretched to 6,000, they say. There is a particular need for thinning of the herd in remote interior sections, a complaint echoed by Ontario and Saskatchewan.

The moose's aversion to human society is his greatest protection, because although he may sport an antler big enough to hang the family washing on and carry the bulk and power of a locomotive at full steam, he is not considered unduly hard to kill. The difficulty is getting into his standing grounds.

HUNTERS ENCOURAGED

Saskatchewan, for instance, cut its non-resident licence fee for $100 by half to encourage hunters into out - of - the - way spots. Newfoundland also has special interior seasons designed to lure trophy hunters.

Quebec is the only province to report a lower kill this year, largely because its season was put back a couple of weeks to avoid rutting (mating) time when bulls are easier to call and when bulls are meaner. Newfoundland, Saskatchewan and Alberta estimate an average season's bag. In the three other provinces more moose fell to hunters' guns than in previous years.

The cross-country picture:

Newfoundland

Estimated kill 4,000 in season ranging up to 3¼ months. Harvest about equal to annual growth in accessible regions, well behind in remote areas.

Quebec

1,113 killed in 10-day season, down from 1,756 in 1956 when season coincided with the rut.

Ontario

Estimated 1957 kill about 5,000, up slightly from the previous year which showed a sharp increase over 1954 and 1955. There has been a general increase in the length of the season and areas open to hunters.

Manitoba

Just emerging from a rigid program over a 15-year period from 1935. In 1956, 707 animals were taken, almost one per licensee. Figures for 1957 not yet available.

Saskatchewan

1957 bag not expected to be greater than 4,000 killed in 1956. Sharp increase in kill recorded in 1955 and more so in 1956 when hunting periods included the rut for the first time.

Alberta

Expects about the same kill as in 1956 when 4,500 were taken. The season is designed for an unmolested rut.

British Columbia

Marked increase in harvest during last five years with extended seasons. Both cows and bulls may be shot. Estimated 1957 kill between 820 and 850, more than the previous year's 6,500.

JOBLESS HIGHER

LONDON (Reuters) — Unemployment in Britain has risen to its highest level in nearly six years, Labor Minister Iain Macleod said Monday night. About 380,000 persons became jobless this month, he said, bringing the unemployment figure to 421,000. The Labor party immediately called on the government to "take appropriate action to remedy the situation."

EMBANKMENT FALLS

LONDON (Reuters) — An 18-foot section of the Thames embankment between Vauxhall and Chelsea bridges on London's west side collapsed into the river Monday. The miniature landslide caused wide cracks in surrounding streets.

Dr. T. Hogg, Former Hydro Chairman, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, 73, noted engineering consultant and former chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, died Monday.

Active and apparently in good health, Dr. Hogg died en route to hospital after becoming ill in a downtown store.

Dr. Hogg was awarded the Professional Engineers Medal by the Association of Professional Engineers three weeks ago in Sarnia, Ont., in recognition of his contribution to the development of Hydro electric power.

He was born in 1884 at Chippawa, Ont., near the present site of the Hydro plant on the Niagara River. He was educated at Niagara Falls Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto, where he graduated with a B.A. Sc. in 1907. Twenty years later he received an honorary doctorate in engineering.

Dr. Hogg joined the Hydro Commission in 1913, became chief engineer in 1927 and chairman in 1937.

RESIGNED POST

Ten years later he resigned as chairman at the request of George Drew, then premier. His resignation came during a public controversy over a Hydro shortage in Ontario and the possibility of Hydro rationing.

Mr. Drew, speaking on a radio broadcast, said the resignation was requested because "problems are being created commercially as a result of the failure of the chairman to communicate essential information to the government."

Dr. Hogg was retained by the commission as an advisor, however, and helped plan Niagara power developments and the St. Lawrence power project now nearing completion.

In 1944, Dr. Hogg was named to represent Canada on a public utilities committee to survey the needs of Allied nations and plan procurement of equipment for liberated countries.

During the last 10 years, he undertook provincial and federal power studies as well as many consulting assignments for private industry.

CONDUCTED INQUIRY

In 1947 Dr. Hogg conducted an inquiry into the adequacy of power developments in Manitoba and recommended exclusive provincial responsibility for development and operation of all hydro electric plants in that province.

He recommended Manitoba embark on a 30-year power development project to cost between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000. His plan was later endorsed by the government.

Dr. Hogg caused considerable political controversy when a royal commission led by him recommended rejection of a $250,000,000 irrigation and power project for South Saskatchewan in 1953.

Last December Dr. Hogg returned from Brazil where he had been engaged in consulting work for Brazilian Traction Light and Power Company Limited.

ACTED FOR PROVINCE

He acted for Ontario on the Canadian section of the joint board of engineers for the St. Lawrence Seaway project. For the Kootenay Power Company, he was a consultant before the International Joint Commission on the problem of Kootenay Lake storage.

His company directorships included Brazilian Traction, Brilish Newfoundland Corporation, Sherritt Gordon Mines Limited, John Inglis Company Limited and Canadian General Investments Limited.

Survivors include his wife, the former Anne Speck of Niagara Falls, and three children, John Hamilton, Mrs. [illegible] Bowlby, and Thomas John, also an engineer, all of Toronto.

HELD PRISONER BY PIRATES

William Rhodes Hervey, Jr., and his wife, Mildred, relax in the chart room of their yacht "Valinda," anchored at Baltoa, Canal Zone, after a harrowing experience when their yacht was boarded by 21 prisoners from a camp on Isabella Island, 650 miles west of Ecuador. The convicts held Hervey, his wife, two guests and four crewmen prisoners for three days, and looted the yacht of valuables and most of its stores of food and water before going ashore on a beach on the northwest coast of Ecuador. Hervey said he would estimate his total loss at between $10,000 and $13,000. Hervey is a Los Angeles attorney.

Ex-Dictator Peron Still Wields Power in Argentina

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ex-dictator Juan Peron showed in Sunday's general election that he still wields much power in Argentina although his party was banned from campaigning and he is in exile, in disgrace in the eyes of the world.

Peron, holed up in the Dominican Republic, is boasting that the Argentine victory of leftist Arturo Frondizi, 59, was due to no less a personage than Juan Peron.

From the extent of Frondizi's sweep, it appears there is some substance in Peron's boast. He had called on his followers to support Frondizi, who in turn made no secret of seeking their vote.

CLOSE FRIENDS

It wasn't the first time that Peron had shown his power from exile. Last year, hard-core Peronistas obeyed his command to cast blank ballots in the election of a constituent assembly in Argentina.

Perhaps Peron's influence assumed weight in the absence of other big campaign issues between Frondizi and his main opponent, Ricardo Balbin, 53. These two, both lawyers, were close friends for many years. When Balbin ran for president against Peron in 1951, Frondizi was his running mate. When Peron jailed Balbin, Frondizi was Balbin's counsel.

The fact of over-riding importance is that a free election was held. The interim government set up by Gen. Pedro Aramburu held strictly to its promise to place power back in the hands of civilians, and not a single member of the interim government was a candidate in the election.

KEPT FAITH

Aramburu's integrity thus showed itself in contrast with an all-too-familiar pattern in the politics of South America, where military leaders have repeatedly seized power and held it regardless of the wishes of the people.

Through all this, Peron retained a considerable measure of popularity because simple folk did not realize their economic plight was the result of his years of reckless rule.

Aramburu, in his role of caretaker pending the establishment of an elected government, could not initiate the bold austerity measures necessary to restore Argentina's prosperity and position in trade.

BIG CHANCE

Frondizi now has the opportunity to introduce long-term policies in his country which inherently has vast wealth, comparable in some ways to Canada.

With an area of 1,079,399 square miles, less than one-third the size of Canada, it has a population of 20,000,000 from the tropical north to the chilly south, but mostly in the middle temperate zone. Beside its famed cattle and wheat, its products include silver, copper, gold, petroleum, sugar, cotton and fruits.

LOVERS' QUARREL

MONTREAL (CP) — Roland Gravel, 32, charged with stabbing his girl friend during a Christmas dinner party, Monday was given a suspended sentence. He was allowed to plead guilty to a reduced charge of grevious assault after Mr. Justice Wilfrid Laurre explained that an attempted murder charge was unjustified, although it was a "lovers' quarrel" that ended seriously.

There just have to be more schools

Right now, over 3 million children are registered at elementary and secondary schools in Canada. During the next 10 years enrollment will grow to at least 4 million. Accordingly, many new schools will have to be built.

The financing of new schools is undertaken by school boards and municipalities with Provincial Government assistance, and they usually issue debentures in order to spread the cost over a period of years.

Life Insurance Companies have supplied a large part of these funds and today hold 25% of all outstanding municipal bonds in Canada. Thus, part of the money paid by you in Life Insurance premiums may return to your community to help build schools for your children.

Such investments by the Life Insurance Companies in Canada, on behalf of their policyholders, contribute to Canada's growth and progress, important to everyone.

Profiles of Party Leaders

M.J. Coldwell

By DON PEACOCK

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, no stranger to winter election campaigns, has high hopes for his Socialist party on the March 31 vote.

"It seems to be the most hopeful election the CCF has ever been in," he said in an interview here. He said he had received from all parts of the country reports of rising interest in the party.

The CCF, whose membership in the Commons has ranged from a low of seven in 1935 to a high of 28 after the 1945 election, has a long way to go to reach the total of 133 elected members necessary to form a majority government in the 265 - seat House. At the dissolution of the last Parliament, it had 25 members.

OLDEST OF LEADERS

But the 68-year-old Mr. Coldwell, oldest of the four major party chiefs and now leading the CCF for the fifth time in a general election, is not dismayed by his party's past record. He—and others not allied with his movement—feel it has exerted an influence far out of proportion to its modest Commons members.

Mr. Coldwell, who has said he never set the prime ministership as his main goal, but rather the promotion of policies to improve the lot of the underprivileged and oppressed, once summed it up this way:

"Proposals that were denounced 25 or 30 years ago—when the CCF was coming into being—as dangerously radical or downright impractical, today are embodied, in whole or in part, in a good many pieces of Canadian legislation."

Asked recently whether he considers himself a radical, he replied:

"A radical in the sense that I have always wanted to get to the root of problems. But I think I have always been fairly moderate—I have never gone to extremes."

Of his gentlemanly approach to politics and his skill as a parliamentarian over the years, the native of Seaton, Devonshire, England, had achieved individual success in that he has become one of Canada's most-respected politicians.

NOW MORE ACTIVE

Mr. Coldwell pans to campaign far more actively this year than he did for the 1957 election, when a mild heart attack a few months previous limited him to scarcely a half-dozen major speeches. He did little travelling outside his own Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar.

He hopes this year to cross the country before the March 31 acte.

Since his heart attack he has had to watch his weight and go easy on smoking. But he still enjoys a nightly cigar and occasionally, on doctor's orders, a glass of wine.

Few persons in Canada have had such a long and active political career as Major James William Coldwell—he Major is a family name, not a rank—since he left school teaching for politics.

Only 13 persons in the last Parliament had served in the Commons as long as he and only two of these — Progressive Conservative veterans A. C. Casselman, Grenville-Dundas, and Earl Rowe, Dufferin-Simcoe — had been there longer.

Coming from England in 1910, he taught school in Alberta and Saskatchewan for about 25 years, 20 of them in Regina, where he became a principal in 1919. Three years later he was elected to Regina's city council, serving on that body for 11 years.

EARLY DEFEATS

Venturing further afield, he lost in two other elections—in the federal vote of 1925 as Regina candidate for the Progressive party, and in 1934, also in Regina, in a bid to enter the provincial legislature.

He reached the Commons in 1935 in the first national election contested by the Co - operative Commonwealth Federation, which he had helped to form in 1933 and of which he was to become national leader in 1942 after the death of founder J. S. Woodsworth. Mr. Coldwell won the Saskatchewan seat of Rosetown-Biggar, which he retained in five succeeding general elections.

The CCF leader's many years as a school teacher show through in his carefully - reasoned speeches. Never flamboyant, he can, on occasion, show temper and stubborn determination.

This latter quality was demonstrated in 1935 when the Regina school board fired him for his federal political activity.

Determined to establish a school teacher's right to participate in politics, Mr. Coldwell went ahead and won election. The school board was turned out of office in the civic elections later that year. The new board reinstated Mr. Coldwell, but he declined his old post, preferring to devote his full time to public life.

The bespectacled CCF leader enjoys taking time out now and then to recall the early days of CCF campaigning on the Prairies. He once set out on a speaking tour in a small airplane built by the pilot himself. The plane was grounded at the end of that flight for safety reasons.

There were speaking tours in old Jalopies and winter journeys by horse-and-sleigh relay from one farm or village to another.

After 22½ years on the federal stage, 16 years as a national party leader and seven general election campaigns it wouldn't surprise some who know him well if he prepared after March 31 to take a less active part in politics.

A widower since 1953, when his wife died while he was campaigning for the general election of that year, he makes his home at Ottawa with a daughter.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

As a Damon Runyon character would say "$150,000 to $200,000 is a lotta claims," but that is what the New York Rangers would consider a bargain for the Canadiens' young starlet, Pocket Rocket Richard. Muzz Patrick is quoted as saying that in "Fury on Ice," a colorful yarn in the current Saturday Evening Post on the fabulous Richard freres.

At that figure, Patrick told the Post writer, Henri would be the best buy in the league. "He's a kid so he's got at least ten years ahead of him. And we know he's tough. Oh, he'll come up with injuries, like any other hockey player, but he's not the brittle type."

The Pocket proved he was a star in his own right when he took over from his famous brother, the Rocket, after Maurice suffered a near-severed Achilles tendon a short time ago. Lyn Patrick, of Boston, the Post story says, has predicted that if anybody is going to break the Rocket's record it will be the "Pocket."

WILLIN' AND ABLE!

If you are out around Madoc way and run into one Ken Holmes and he starts talking insurance, you can change the subject in the jerk of a butterfly's whisker, by mentioning the village Blue-and-White entry in the northern section OHA intermediate "C" hockey league.

He'll drop policies for pucks in a split second. He will toss out his torso and wax eloquently over the chances his Blues have in not only winning the group title but the intermediate "C" championship to boot.

As a matter of fact, from the record the Madoc team appears to be a powerful well-balanced aggregation. They have a potent scoring platoon, a solid defence and a boundless goalie that is rated one of the best in the loop.

In Bob Taylor who learned his hockey in this town and has a wide and varied experience in others, the Blues have a top-scoring threat who at this writing has hit the hemp 39 times and assisted on 26 other goals for 65 points. "Shaker" Baker, another city product, has a 16-27-43 record while playing coach Earl McLellan leads 21-26-47. Then comes the "Nobber" Day with 29 points and Fred Nickle with 27.

One of the outstanding stars of the club is a Tweed junior, playing his first organized hockey since graduating from OMHA ranks. He is Bobbie Beare, twenty-year-old goalie, who is doing a fine between-the-pipes job for the Blues. He is standing up well under interscholastic fire and to date has a goals-against record of 2.39 in fifteen games.

After Tuesday tells you all this, and a lot more about his Blues, it's time for a getaway, unless of course, you are insurance minded. You will find the dotted line ready and willing.

ACCEPT 53 RECORDS

TORONTO (CP) — Doug Kyle, Caledonia-Edinburgh runner for Hamilton and Vancouver track clubs, has had 19 records accepted by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, records chairman Ken Twigg of the Central Ontario branch said Monday. Kyle set six native and four open records ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 metres. The AAU accepted 53 open and native records either set in Ontario or outside Ontario by Ontario runners.

WON'T CUT TEAM NOW

MONTREAL (CP) — The British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, hoping for more financial contributions, has decided to defer any action toward trimming the size of Canada's team for the 1958 games. The association executive secretary Saturday, heard reports that about 36 per cent of the $100,000 objective has been received or pledged, and decided to wait a month to see how the campaign progresses.

Single Point or Blues Loss Will Give Habs the Title; Scoring Leaders Not So Sure

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-Canadiens are a whisker's breadth from the National Hockey League championship but unfortunately for a couple of their number the scoring title has no such aura of mathematical certainty.

Dickie Moore and Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard each scored a goal and collected three assists in last week's play. Ordinarily four points would rate a pretty fair achievement. They don't though in the face of a scoring splurge by Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

The NHL's official statistics, released today, show Moore with 71 points and the little Rocket with 69. The two Montrealers still head the scoring procession.

Bathgate came up with a six-point production on two goals and four assists last week and Howe, making a stretch drive to retain his title, did even better. Gordie potted two goals and helped on five others.

STILL HEADED

Bathgate, with 62 points, remains in third place. Howe, whose total now is 58, moved ahead of Broono Horvath of Boston when Horvath came up with two goals and one assist and slipped into fifth place with his 57 points.

The big push by Bathgate and Howe put them on the Ranger pan. In the last two weeks Bathgate has counted 10 points and Howe 11. In the same period Moore notched five and Henri Richard six.

Behind the big five no one appears seriously in contention. Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, tied for the season since Jan. 28, still ranks sixth with his 50 points.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit and Vic Stasiuk of Boston are next in line, tied at 48 points. Delvecchio scored one goal and one assist and Stasiuk a goal and two assists. Johnny Bucyk of Boston, tied for seventh a week ago with Delvecchio, failed to get a point and is in ninth place with his 46 points.

Camille Henry of New York, with a one-one count last week, holds fifth place with 45 points.

REMAIN TOPS

Despite their dwindling lead, Moore and Henri Richard remain leaders in the departments they have been heading for a long time. Moore's 31 goals and Richard's 44 assists are tops in the league.

New York Rangers came up with the best team play of the week with two wins and a tie. Rangers have 66 points and leading Canadiens, with 83, need only a single point—or a New York decision—to clinch the Canadiens had one win and two ties in their three games.

The other place Detroit Red Wings had a win and a draw in two outings and remain in third spot with 57 points, three more than Boston Bruins who dropped two of their three games. Toronto Leafs split their two games and broke a tie with Chicago Black Hawks whose three losses dropped them into the cellar all alone.

TO TOUR BERMUDA

TORONTO (CP) — Ed Burn, secretary of the Ontario Cricket Association, said Monday he has accepted an invitation by the Bermuda Cricket Association to lead a Canadian team on a tour of the island next June. Burn has been invited to act as coach for the MCA team July and Aug. The Bermuda club visited Ontario last summer.

Willie Pastrano Favored Over British Heavy

LONDON (AP) — Willie Pastrano of the United States, given rave notices by British boxing writers for his last fight here in October, is rated 3-to-1 favorite over Britain's Brian London for their 10-round heavyweight bout at Harringay Arena tonight.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 is expected.

London, 22, a fine boxer and a tight hitter, made a big hit here—where they dislike clever men—when he outclassed Dick Richardson of Wales, Oct. 15. Willie, a native of New Orleans, has a record of 45 wins, five draws and one loss.

London, 23, is a crude slugger. He has a record of 20 victories and two defeats, including 17 knockouts.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Whitby team which will represent Canada in the world hockey championships complained Monday about the lack of opposition it has been getting from Swedish teams.

Gonzales Wins Over Lew Hoad

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Pancho Gonzales swept aside Lew Hoad in straight sets Monday night, 6-3, 7-5, to move into the finals in their professional tennis tour to 16-5.

The quick and so powerful was Gonzales that the match took only 58 minutes and left the 3,850 fans gasping.

Five Strokes Off the Pace, Porky Oliver Wins Classic

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Ed (Porky) Oliver found himself among the winter tour's top money winners today after scoring a sizzling final-round 67 on a muddy course in the $30,000 Houston Classic golf tournament.

Five strokes off the pace after 54 holes, the 42-year-old Oliver zoomed past the leaders with excellent approach shots and fine putting and collected top money of $4,500 with a 69-73-67-67—276.

It was one of the richest titles ever won by the Canton, Miss., veteran of over 20 years on the tournament trails. Many times a runner-up, the 225-pound Oliver was so nervous and fidgety after sinking a six-foot birdie putt on the final green he would not watch the final threesome.

MISSED PLAYOFF PUTT

One of the three, Jay Hebert, missed a seven-foot putt that would have forced a playoff.

Hebert and Robert De Vicenzo each drew $2,500 as runners-up at 282—six under par for the par-72 Memorial Park course.

Jimmy Demaret, the 54-hole leader by two strokes, jumped to par 76. That dropped him to a fourth-place tie at 283 with Dave Ragan Orlando, Fla., and Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill. Each drew $1,333.33.

EIGHTH MONEY WINNER

Oliver's $4,300 moved him into eighth place among the 1958 money winners, leading the estimates he has won another $2,000 in events not on the PGA tour.

As the winter tour moved on to Louisiana and the Baton Rouge Open, Frank Stranahan continued at the top money winner at $8,-949.28. Stranahan turned in his third straight 71 Monday to pick up $1,200 in a tie with Johnny Pott and Miloh Marusic at 283.

Billy Casper holds second place with $6,595 although illness prevented his playing here. Hebert's $5,000 is fourth from sixth place to third with $6,512.50.

Marcotte Will Play for Leafs Against Habs

TORONTO (CP)—Billy Reay, coach of the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs, says he will put his newly-acquired goalkeeper, Lorne Marcotte, in goal for Thursday's game in Montreal if the former Buffalo Bison netminder shows well in practice.

Marcotte was obtained from the New York Rangers farm club Sunday night in return for ex-Toronto Marlboro junior star Bill Kennedy and about $3,000 cash.

Reay said Monday he hopes to play the new goalie instead of Ed Chadwick because "in crucial games we've played, Chadwick has really stood out in only one of the last 30."

"When you've won only three games out of 11 and tied only one other, you've got to make a change and find out a few things," the Leaf coach added.

Will Play 164 Training Games Is International

MONTREAL (CP) — International League clubs will play 164 baseball games in spring training before their regular season starts April 16, league president Frank Shaughnessy announced today.

All clubs will train in Florida except the Havana Sugar Kings who will train in the town of Trinidad, Cuba.

Rochester and Toronto open the first camps March 10, with Red Wings players going to Daytona beach and Maple Leafs to Fort Pierce.

CONSERVATION Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

I have just completed reading the winter issue of "Our Valley," the combined quarterly report of the various River Valley authorities operating in Southern Ontario. This publication is issued by the Department of Planning and Development, and mighty interesting reading it is.

Because of my long association with the country within its scope, I am more than interested in the report of the Moira River Valley Authority. My interest is not confined to the material functions of the Authority — the amount of money they have spent or the present state of their finances—but rather I am overjoyed at the attitude the members have taken towards the more aesthetic aims as manifested in the planning for the future.

Like all River Valley Authorities, the Moira started out with a Planning and Development "Master Plan." This plan has gradually assumed stature as the year succeeded year, and the work of the authority progressed. There is a definite customary progressive plan of reforesting, of water impoundment, of flood physis, flood control, fish and wildlife habitat improvement—all the sustaining rehabilitation projects which will eventually produce the maximum return from the land and water within the valley.

What appeals to me as much as any one thing though, is the consideration given to preservation of a specific place in the planning for the rehabilitation of all the historic buildings and early industries which are so indelibly linked up with the past.

These days when the cry for modernization in homes, in factories, in road possessions, is so dominant it is refreshing indeed to realize that these links are not to be destroyed by the march of progress. They are to be preserved and form a link from the present to the past. Unfortunately, far too many of the old pioneer buildings have succumbed to decay and it is gratifying to realize that here at any rate the march will halt.

In the Moira Authority, these salient structures are commanding their rightful place in the historical background of the Valley. They are being preserved as a reminder to the present generation, as perhaps nothing else can do as well, that the spirit of the early pioneers is still being made manifest through the industrial efforts in some of the more modern buildings being constructed today.

The O'Hara Mill development near Madoc is a typical example of how the past is being retrieved in the present. As only one of many examples, it is significant of the deep understanding of the members of the Authority that it is a tribute to their foresight that such historic places will be preserved for the customary reminder of our obligation to those who built and operated them.

So, while this generation is reminded of the puzzles of the past, future generations will have no cause to forget some of the men whose vision and courage have transformed a plan into a living entity. The pioneers lying on both sides of this beautiful river are being purchased to form part of the general plan to be named the Col. Roscoe Vandewater Conservation Area. This is in honor of one of the original founders of the Authority who was a devoted conservationist, a distinguished soldier, and a great friend.

Towers Wins Northern Title

TIMMINS (CP) — Veteran centre Doug Towers of Abitibi Rapids has won the Porcupine Mines Senior Hockey League scoring championship after holding first place all season.

Towers, second last year, had 36 points from 31 goals and 36 assists. His younger brother, Merv — of Kapuskasing Huskies, was second, with 31 goals and 29 assists for 60 points.

His third place was Jerry Labelle, Abitibi, with 55 points, followed by Teddy McCaskill, Kapuskasing, 45, Bill Kawulla, Abitibi, 44, Eric Prentice, Timmins, 43.

Sully Porter, Kapuskasing, won the goaltending championship with a goals-against average of 3.39 a game.

Storey Yelled At Player To Protect Self

DETROIT (CP) — Red Storey, National Hockey League referee, says he yelled at Montreal Canadiens' Doug Harvey only to protect himself.

He said Monday a protest by Canadiens manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings that he was directing Montreal play was ridiculous.

Adams said after Sunday night's game between Detroit and Montreal, which ended in a 3-3 tie, he would ask for an investigation of the incident.

"Certainly I yelled at the play. That's my job," said Storey. "I shout 'heads up' or 'look out' to let them know where I am. You've been in sports long enough to protect myself and not get hurt."

In Montreal, league president Clarence Campbell examined the charge as stupid. He said:

"During the game Doug Harvey was playing behind the net with the puck and presumably was being pursued by Storey although he would collide with Storey near the boards.

"Storey said, 'Look out, Doug, look out.' That was his sole observation and an expression he has used to other players many times. It was simply a matter of self-preservation for Storey."

A Wing spokesman said the club intends to press for an investigation, but is not officially protesting.

He said the request was not in the form of a protest because the Detroit club was acting merely as a transmitter of information presented to Adams by "three different fans."

Adams said he has sent telegrams to Campbell and referee-in-chief Carl Voss asking for an investigation of Storey's action.

The announcement was made at the OLTA's annual meeting by Lorne Main, retiring president and former Canadian Davis Cup player. He said the Ottawa group now is directly affiliated with the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

TV-WATCHING LEADS TO MUSCLE FLABBINESS

Don Mills is an Ontario community above average in per capital income, with recreation facilities far above average — and a television set for almost every house. Result of this combination of wealth is that less than half of the children of the community are able to pass minimum physical fitness tests used by U.S. and European doctors. The muscle flabbiness, according to Lloyd Percival, who conducted the test, is showing up in poor posture which will give trouble in later life. Now, parents of the community have a list of exercises, which will take no longer than 10 minutes a day, to assist development of their children's leg and back muscles. Culprit in the case is television, since children are spending time watching their favorite programs when they should be exercising their muscles. A start is being made on the problem by Gayle Jones, left, as she shows Connie Bridle the exercise for stronger back. Lloyd Percival, right, emphasizes knee bends to Stephen Harris.

AT THE PARK — When she tries to run out on him, June Blair is threatened by John Russell, who plays a narcotics smuggler in the suspense film, "Hell Bound", a United Artists release. The picture is now at the Park Theatre. On the same program has been added thriller "The Girl in Black Stockings," stars Anne Bancroft, Lex Barker, Mamie Van Doren, Ron Randell and Marie Windsor. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

Miyoshi Umeki Nominated For Oscar for Sayonara Part

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who is Miyoshi Umeki?

That's what Hollywood has been asking, and the town is finding out. Until recently, she was best known as "that girl who played Red Buttons' wife in Sayonara." Last week, "that girl" was cited by academy voters for one of the five best supporting performances by an actress in 1957.

Miyoshi is a tiny, pert lass who is served. "But maybe I could also be Indian."

There are some things she misses about home — Japanese food, music and movies. She goes Eties as they ply their trade. "And I miss many people in the streets," she said. "Here, everyone drives. You see your friends only in cars and can talk only as long as the signal is red."

HISTORIC ROUTE

Godfrey Trying to Restore Jazz Music to Common People

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Godfrey has a new mission. He has set out to rescue jazz music from the intellectuals and restore it to the common people.

For a long time Godfrey had been watching the banjo-dragging chic American treasure up windup stairs to their ivory towers and believes it time to bring it back to the man at the street level. His eloquent weapon in his crusade is his CBS radio afternoon program, Monday through Friday, 2:05-5:30 p.m. EST).

Being a man who dislikes labels, Godfrey avoids the word jazz.

"It's all right with me if anybody wants to call it that," he says, "but as far as I'm concerned it's just the same good old music that a lot of us grew up with. Jazz, Dixieland, New Orleans—what do names matter?"

LITERARY PRELIMINARIES

"It's getting so there are more experts and critics than musicians. There's a raft of guys now who write essays on the backs of LP record jackets and in the slick magazines. There are darn near as many books on jazz today as on child psychology."

What's wrong with that?

"Nothing, really," Godfrey replies, "except that this kind of music is meant to be enjoyed with a lot of literary preliminaries. You build a big intellectual fence around it and you're going to keep more people out than you fence in."

So, around Godfrey's CBS radio studio these days, you see Cozy Cole's brushes caressing the drumhead, Jack Lesberg impassively teasing a big bull fiddle, Johnny Smith's graceful guitar with solemn tenderness. You sense the restrained chemistry in Bobby Hackett as he fingers the valves of his cornet, while Frank Black's cool boss brightened and sassy over the mouth piece of his clarinet.

FINALLY STOPPED

Govt. Considers Plan to Subsidize Engineering Costs

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario Good Roads Association said Monday the Ontario government is considering a plan to subsidize engineering costs of cities.

OGRA director J. H. Irvine of Ottawa told the annual meeting of the City Engineers Association he has been informed by Highways Minister Allan the matter is under consideration and an announcement will be forthcoming.

The government now pays 30 per cent of county engineering department costs, but there is no indication how much it would be considered for cities.

W. S. Kingsero Acheson of Chatham was elected association president.

Other officers: Secretary-treasurer, A. R. Dell of Toronto; trustees: T. L. Hennessey, Simcoe; W. L. Bradley, Kincardine.

Murphy Leaves Paris for Tunis

TUNIS (Reuters) — American envoy Robert Murphy was due here today from Paris on the first stage of his bid to patch up a breach in Franco-Tunisian relations.

He was expected to have talks with President Habib Bourguiba soon after his arrival.

Leaders of the Algerian National Liberation Front were expected meanwhile to be headed for Tunis from Cairo, but there was no official confirmation of the report.

Murphy Monday held "strictly confidential" talks lasting 90 minutes with Premier Felix Gaillard and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau in Paris.

PARTY LEADER

GIVES CCF VIEW

Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, said at Kitimat, B.C., that "the Liberals will go down and the CCF will go up" in the March 31 election. The two major parties in the next Parliament would be the CCF on the one hand and the Liberals and Conservatives on the other.

At Hamilton, Trade Minister Churchill said an economic report to be released next week will predict capital investment of $8,500,000,000 in Canada in 1958, the same amount as in 1957. This would be a Liberal charges that Canada faces a recession.

At St. Catharines, J. M. Macdonnell, minister without portfolio in the government of Ontario, lives' greatest assets in the campaign is the Liberals' weakness.

At Strathroy, former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris said 1958 will be Canada's worst year since 1945 unless the Liberals are elected to power.

Mr. Diefenbaker seized the occasion of the Cornwall meeting to announce that the government's new farm Price Stabilization Act will come into effect March 1.

The prime minister, speaking to a crowd of more than 2,000 in the textile manufacturing city, promised that his government will take whatever action is necessary to protect the textile and other essential industries from competition in the form of dumping of foreign goods in Canada.

Mr. Pearson said that if he becomes prime minister he would end the Canada trade treaty with Communist China.

He also said a Liberal government would establish an export bank to provide credits to countries wanting to buy Canadian products, especially wheat, flour, lumber, fish and manufactured goods.

A direct wireless telephone service between Australia and Japan is scheduled to open in March, 1958.

Egyptians Quit Frontier Town

KHARTOUM, Sudan (Reuters) — Egyptian troops have pulled out of Abumaraad, 80 miles inside Sudanese territory.

The troops were seen leaving shortly after the Sudanese government announced Monday that troops have evacuated Abumaraad—they have all gone, and the deputy governor in the area has hailed down their flag.

The announcement said Sudanese troops will move right up to the Sudanese border to occupy Abumaraad as soon as possible.

Abumaraad is in the border area disputed by Egypt and the Sudan.

Tension mounted between the two countries early in February as Egypt claimed sovereignty over the disputed area. Sudan at once announced its intention of holding a plebiscite there. The disputed area has been patrolled for more than two years.

Egypt has since agreed not to press its claim until a plebiscite is held. Sudan has formed following general elections Feb. 27. Prime minister Abdullah Khalil and Abdullah Khalil reported two days ago that a company of Egyptian soldiers had been sighted in the disputed area and had refused to withdraw.

Meanwhile the Sudanese foreign ministry announced that King Saud of Saudi Arabia has asked Egypt and the Sudan to "settle their differences in a wise and friendly" manner.

SHOULD IMPROVE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell said Sunday that if unemployment doesn't ease up next month, he expects the Eisenhower administration to recommend a tax cut. However, he said he looks for the job situation to improve then. The number of jobless in the U.S. last month was, estimated at about 4,500,000.

Former Mayor Drapeau Attacks Quebec Premier

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Former mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal has asked for the support of Englishspeaking Montreal and at the same time has delivered a strong attack on Premier Duplessis and the present city administration.

Mr. Drapeau spoke Monday night to an audience of about 900 persons in Montreal in a major address since his defeat last October by the Creator Monreal Rally's Senator Sarto Fournier.

He predicted taxes will increase in Canada's largest city and that the metropolis stands in danger of losing its autonomy to the provincial government.

Much of his address covered points raised before a French-speaking audience last January which he described in the English press of Montreal as one reason for his electoral defeat.

Mr. Drapeau's Civic Action League, which he led as mayor for five years, bills itself as a reform - conscious movement aimed at restoring morality to municipal politics.

HE LOST

The CAL gained seats in the 99-man council but Mr. Drapeau lost out, a development which Monday night was cited partly to the fact that a majority of the English - speaking population failed to support him.

There was no mention in the speech of the inside land deal inquiry for a province-wide extension of the CAL to safeguard political morality, although Mr. Drapeau made frequent references to the "danger to the life of democracy in Quebec.

He charged that the present administration is a "branch office of the Duplessis government" and that it has passed provincial legislation amending municipal charters.

CRITICIZES PRESS

A large portion of his 1½-hour address criticized the role of the press, where qualities in certain fields deserved praise, he said, but in which the press had been consistently "slanted" against him.

He such hostility was evident in coverage of provincial politics, which tended to be "favored with Duplessiism."

There was fault on both sides in the fact the Civic Action League has not received the support of most English-speaking Montrealers.

"There is a place awaiting you," Mr. Drapeau told his receptive audience. "It is already occupied solely with the French - Canadian element, it would be dangerous to leave fighting for democracy in Quebec.

Says Prophetic Pulpit Church's Best Weapon

TORONTO (CP)—The church's strongest weapon in the space age is a prophetic pulpit, an official of the United Church of Canada said today.

Rev. Homer R. Lane of Toronto, an associate secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, said in a report to the board's annual meeting a common attitude of the Sputnik era is that "the gospel has been preached . . . and the church is here for those who want such a museum piece."

However, "many perplexed and sensitive people are coming to the churches, not to gain social approval, but because they are seeking something they cannot find elsewhere—warm and sincere friendship, a vital message."

STRONGEST WEAPON

He urged fellow ministers to use the pulpit to help those who are sick from the world. "The church's first and strongest offensive weapon is a prophetic pulpit."

The gospel must be presented in every day language, "let us be done with this fad for theological jargon in the pulpit."

Mr. Lane's arguments were supported by two of four other board secretaries reporting to the meeting, Rev. W. G. Berry of Toronto and Rev. Robert S. Christie of Vancouver. The reports were released to the press before the meeting.

MUST'NT "CONFORM"

Mr. Berry warned against catering to public opinion in sermons.

"Frequently it is said that in moral issues and social problems the church's position is not in step with what people think. We are told that while the average church-goer indulges in "little" harmless, moderate drinking and gambling, the church condemns all such practices. Surely the church should conform to what a majority of its members think."

He attacked this attitude, saying the gospel is a fixed standard and "we must not be changed by the whims of people . . . We do not determine what is right by popular opinion."

RADIO, TV "TRAPS"

Religious radio and television programs often are marked as to their real interest and purpose, he said. They appear in a chatty, secular manner, but are ultimately religious traps in which the unwary irreligious man may be caught if he doesn't watch out.

"If the gospel is fundamental to the meaning of life, then we had better present it in a forthright, fearless manner, making no pills or truth."

Mr. Christie said that when the church is silent and the press top-heavy, social issues and customs with deep-rooted spiritual and moral implications can inadvertently get out of focus.

As examples of such situations, he cited what he called "unethical and too-often one-sided newspaper propaganda" backing new industrial projects in the commercial Sunday sport in Vancouver in plebiscite campaigns last year.

NORWAY WORKERS

Norway had some 27,500 unemployed at the end of 1957, about 1½ per cent of the total working population.

MR. TWEEDY

"She won't go, but just to be polite, why don't you ask Mother to go to the movie with us."

MEMBER CALLS

J. R. H. Morgan, superintendent of Toronto secondary schools, said:

"There is nothing to justify any charges of basic confusion."

Psychiatrists and their associates were supposed to study Health Minister Phillips in the legislature.

"Whether or not we think certain forms of special training are frills and fads, we must accept the fact that the much-maligned psychiatrist is the medical man who is best qualified to guide the care and treatment of mental patients," the minister said during the throne speech debate.

In a survey of the government's mental health program, Dr. Phillips said four out of every 1,000 Ontario residents continue to become patients in provincial mental hospitals.

"With the rapid growth of this province that in itself provides a patient accumulation problem that is almost impossible to keep up with."

ASKS ZONING

Mr. Worton (L—Wellington South) asked the government to establish zones in which varying hospital insurance premiums would be paid on the basis of demand for hospital care.

He also suggested the provincial police establish an ambulance service along highways such as Highway 2, Highway 400 and Highway 401.

W. Johnston (PC—Carleton) called for restoration of the market for Ontario bacon, cheese and apples in Britain.

He said the United Kingdom has an adverse trade balance with Canada, which in turn is an adverse balance with the United States. "Surely it is a logical step to correct this evil."

Mr. Yaremko lauded the Liberal Opposition with references to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's concessions giving $22,000,000 to Ontario and $65,000,000 to the other provinces.
